Foreign Intelligence.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 12.

THE rumors circulated through the medium of the foreign prints, that a reconciliation of the differences between our court and that of Ruſſia has been effected, are entirely void of foundation. On the contrary, it is here underſtood, as a matter of abſolute certainty, that the Ottoman government will not become a tame ſpectator of the coronation of the empreſs as ſovereign of Crimea and Tauridis.

LISBON, Dec. 9.

The ſentence of death pronounced upon the offenders who commi ted a robbery upon the royal treaſury ſeveral months ſince, being preſented to our ſovereign for confirmation, her majeſty tore the paper, ſaying, that as ſhe was the only ſufferer, no life ſhould be made a ſacrifice for the offence. It it imagined that it will become common to ſend public offenders into perpetual baniſhment to the coaſt of Africa, inſtead of puniſhing them with death.

UTRECHT, January 15.

When and in what manner the differences in this republic will be ſettled is totally unknown even to the deepeſt of our politicians; but this is certain, that the two factions begin to exceed thoſe bounds which they have hither reſpected, and ſcarce a day paſſes without ſome ocourrences happening, which, though of but ſmall importance, ſeem to preſage thoſe of a more unhappy kind; the minds of the people get heated, and the conſequences are much dreaded.

The affairs of the republic ſeem at this time to be in a ſtage of ſtagnation, and there are no ſteps taken by either party that can lead to the forming of any probable conjectures of what is in agitation. To judge by appearances, one would think that the republic enjoys the moſt perfect internal tranquility. Many of our politicians, are however of opinion, that this calm is only the forerunner of a terrible exploſion, and that the firſt ſtroke will be given by the ſtates of Holland.

PARIS, January 5.

The following is the model of the circular letter ſent to all the members who are to compoſe the general convocation at Verſailles, on the the 29th inſt.

M.

"Whereas I have reſolved to call together a number of perſons of various conditions, and of the moſt qualified nobility within my kingdom, in order to impart to them my intention for the relief of my ſubjects, the preſent ſtate of my finances, and propoſe proper remedies againſt ſeveral abuſes, I have thought proper to call you hereto.

"I write you this letter to acquaint you, that I have fixed the 29th of Jan. next, for the ſaid aſſembly, to be held at Verſailles, and that my will is, that you be there on the aforeſaid day of opening, there to take your ſeat, and hear what ſhall be pronounced in my name. I reſt aſſured, that I ſhall receive from you every aſſiſtance, I have a right to expect for the good of my kingdom, which is the only object I have in view. Upon this, I pray God to have you under his holy guard.

Given at Verſailles, Dec. 29, 1786.

Signed, LOUIS."

LONDON, Jan. 15.

The king of France is now buſily employed in making the way clear to univerſal toleration throughout his dominions. So much has his moſt Chriſtian majeſty this object at heart, that contrary to practice, for time immemorial, he has admitted into the Royal Academy of Sciences at Paris, members who have withdrawn themſelves from the pale of the mother church.

Yeſterday morning, purſuant to their ſentence, eighteen malefactors were executed on the platform before Newgate. They were turned off about a quarter paſt nine, and behaved becoming their unhappy ſituation.

Jan. 16. The emperor has cauſed all the private Saints and other religious days, which the Roman Catholics obſerve, to be omitted in the Imperial Calender, and in lieu thereof they have inſerted this year for the firſt time, an account of the various fairs and public amuſements as they occur in his majeſty's dominion.

The alarming intelligence from Rhode Iſland has not a little agitated many of the American merchants. The trick of the Americans making payment of their debts in paper money is a downright robbery, as even in their own country it is depreciated above half in value; but to an Engliſhman, it cannot be of any ſervice whatever.

Jan. 20. Some of the private letters from the continent mention a popular ſedition having broken out lately at Vienna; and although the accounts vary as to the effect of it, yet the fact itſelf ſeems ſufficiently authenticated for us to record it. The emperor cauſed all the proſtitutes to be taken up in the courſe of one day, a proof, conſidering the great number of them, how well an emperor can be ſerved. Thoſe daughters of proſtitution were diſperſed in different convents, a profanation highly reſented by the monks, who, to a man, became friends to the harlots, and joined, as it were, iſſue with Venus's petticoated corporation. In ſhort the church and ſtews united in a common effort to ſpread among that part of the people, whom the poet juſtly ſtyles, "the ſcum that riſes upmoſt when the nation boils," contagious breath of fanatiſm. The Imperial palace was inſtantly ſurrounded, and the man at whoſe nod millions of his fellow-creatures uſed to tremble but a few minutes before, now found himſelf, it is ſaid, compelled to withdraw ſecretly from the furious multitude. The next day a proclamation was publiſhed, containing an apology for the ſovereign in regard to this miſconſtruction of his real intentions. This ſtep, repreſented as an act of clemency by ſome, was, by many more, conſidered as rather partaking of a dangerous weakneſs; but the further precaution of the emperor, in enforcing military law, and forbidding, under the moſt heavy penalties and puniſhments, all riotous meetings, will prove more efficacious than ſuch a proclamation as alluded to can be prejudicial in its conſequences. A great number of the rioters, it is ſaid, have paid with their lives for the rebellious attempt.

Extract of a letter from St. Marino, Dec. 20.

"The limited diſtrict, and conſequently the confined powers of this ſmall republic, does not entirely preclude its inhabitans from uſing the utmoſt endeavors to manifeſt their love of liberty, and their great deſire to cultivate every kind of trade and commerce, by the utmoſt ſtretch of their abilities. To prove this the following circumſtances need only be recited, which have very lately taken place here: Four Italian and two French prieſts arrived in the courſe laſt month from Rome, who were inveſted by the pope, and the conclave of cardinals, with power to take upon them the management of eccleſiaſtick affairs throughout the eſtates of the republic, and were empowered likewiſe to diſplace ſuch of the clergy who did not appear before this uncommon and invaſive tribunal. This intruſion was no ſooner made public than a popular commotion took place, and it was with the utmoſt difficulty the magiſtracy could reſtrain the impetuoſity of the people, who were proceeding to the moſt open acts of violence. The prieſts were obliged to withdraw themſelves, and all the peturbation ſoon after ceaſed. The other matter is the eſtabliſhment of a new ſilk manufactory, by two gentlemen from Genoa, who have likewiſe began to work upon velvets, and by theſe means give employment to a great number of people."

Jan. 27. The Spaniards are indefatigable in ſtrengthening their marine; every poſſible exertion is made, not only in Europe, but in the Weſt Indies, to render their navy equal in number and force to that of the other branch of the houſe of Bourbon. The combined effects of which we ſhall no doubt be made ſenſible of, when the convenient moment ſhall arrive for changing that deluſive hypocritical cant of affectation and complaiſance, which is now made uſe of, not to humbug our ſapient miniſters out of their underſtanding (for that is not in the power of art) but to cheat the nation out of its more eſſential ſources of opulence.

We hear from Augſburgh, by letters dated Jan. 6, that the Turks are abſolutely determined to prevent, if poſſible, the empreſs of Ruſſia from being crowned upon the ſpot queen of Taurida: They will agree to that ceremony being performed in the capital of her dominions, or in any other place at a diſtance from thoſe of Turky, but not that it ſhall be done under the eyes of the Muſſelman, in a country ſo near to their's; they are therefore determined to oppoſe ſuch an inſulting ceremony with all their powers. Thus it ſhould ſeem, that the empreſs perſiſting in her reſolution of being crowned at Cherſon, will be the ſignal of an open rupture between the Porte and Ruſſia.

Letters from Paris, dated Jan. 18, ſay, "The advices we receive from Holland are contradictory; ſome give us hopes that the affairs will be made up before the month of May, whilſt others inſinuate that matters become daily more confuſed, and that the ſtadtholder, ſupported by a party who openly eſpouſe his cauſe, ſeems but little diſpoſed to conſent to the overturning of the eſtabliſhed conſtitution, which he has ſworn to maintain."

The Iriſh papers are ſtill full of the outrageous depredations continued to be committed by the Whiteboys; but the contribution they levy is of a more dangerous complexion, for it conſiſts of gunpowder, even eight pounds to a houſe. It is neceſſary to aſk, to what purpoſe this gunpowder, is intended? Not merely to kill rooks and carrion crows, if uniform outrage can juſtify the worſt conjecture. We before obſerved, and again repeat it, that the country gentlemen cannot be too careful of their families. To ſuffer this increaſing ſtrength among the inſurgents, is acting like Charles the Twelfth when his houſe was ſet on fire at Bender: his laſt reſource for checking the flames, was the attempt of extinguiſhing them with brandy.

February 24.

Extract of a letter from Vienna, January 27.

"His Imperial majeſty has given orders for an accurate ſurvey to be made of this capital, and of all the ſuburbs, and other contiguties, together with an exact ſtatement of the number of churches, chapels, and of all religious houſes, with an account of their ſeveral revenues, and to what particular uſes they are appropriated. Commiſſioners are appointed to act in the ſeveral diſtricts, who are to make conſtant returns of their proceedings to his majeſty, who, by his public declarations, has reſerved to himſelf a right of judging in all caſes of delinquency, without any appeal to the courts of Rome. He has further ordered, that where groſs abuſes may have appeared to prevail, an interdict of all functions ſhall be made until a fair trial ſhall prove the guilt, or give an honorable acquital."

Feb. 27. By authentic accounts from Berlin, we are informed, that the king of Pruſſia has ordered a ſurvey of all the provinces of Sileſia to be made out, and laid before him.

Private letters of good authenticity, from the Hague, mention a new company of merchants having aſſociated there for the purpoſe of carrying on a trade to ſome hitherto unfrequented parts of Africa.

The queſtion of marriage, on an appeal from the court of ſeſſion in Scotland, determined in the houſe of lords on Wedneſday, appears to be as follows, viz. that no ceremony is neceſſary to conſtitute a marriage by the laws of Scotland——In the year 1769 Mr. Robertſon the appellant, a merchant, paid his addreſſes to Helen Inglis, the reſpondent, a chambermaid. Miſs Inglis ſays, that Mr. Robertſon declared his paſſion in the moſt tender and reſpectable terms, aſſuring her that he was utterly indifferent to the inequality of their condition, or the eſtimation of the world; that his warmeſt deſire was to have her for his wife, but that it would be neceſſary for ſome time to diſſemble their connections, leſt it ſhould give offence to his father and mother, with whom he then lived. On this the lady candidly acknowledged that ſhe then yielded, and they became huſband and wife by mutual declarations of conſent, without any ceremony. Mr. Robertſon took Miſs Inglis from her ſervice, and put her under the care of a governeſs, that ſhe might be the better qualified to be his companion. He built a houſe for her, and provided her in the moſt liberal manner with furniture, clothes, and all the paraphernalia of a married lady, and behaved to her with the moſt ſingular attention and tenderneſs, writing letters to her in the moſt affectionate terms, ſtiling her his deareſt wife, and ſubſcribing himſelf her loving huſband. They continued on this amicable footing till the year 1783, when Mr. Robertſon formed a deſign of marrying a lady of the name of Miſs Brown, which they ſolemnized by a proceſs of matrimony peculiar to Scotland, namely, by going to bed together, and taking a proteſt in the hands of a public notary, that they were married perſons. On this Miſs Inglis commenced her ſuit againſt Mr. Robertſon, in which ſhe inſiſts againſt him for declaration of marriage and adherence, and produced many letters from him, wherein he ſubſcribes himſelf her loving huſband. To this Mr. Robertſon pleaded that none of his letters contained any acknowledgement of a paſt marriage, and that they were conſtantly addreſſed to the reſpondent by her maiden name. That when theſe letters were written he was very young, and had but recently returned from Holland, where he had been educated, and where proclamation of banns is eſſential to marriage, and where of courſe concubinage is covered with the decent name of huſband and wife.——That he uſed thoſe appellations as mere terms of blandiſhment—as the whiſpers of a lover in his miſtreſs's chamber—the only object of them was to appoint meetings, and they were wholly inadequate to eſtabliſh the important relation of huſband and wife. The court in Scotland, however, found the marriage with Miſs Inglis eſtabliſhed, which the deciſion of the houſe of lords has confirmed.

In the houſe of commons of Ireland on February 19, the attorney general's bill 'To prevent tumultuous riſings and aſſemblies; and for the more effectual puniſhment of perſons guilty of outrage, riot, and illegal combination; and of adminiſtering and taking unlawful oaths,' being ordered to be read a ſecond time; when the clerk came to the clauſe, enacting the pulling down Roman Catholic chapels, and ſelling the contents of them; this clauſe brought on a long debate, but at lenght it was carried in favour of the bill by 193 againſt 30.

On Feb. 20, the houſe was in committee on the ſame bill, which was debated clauſe by clauſe, and at length agreed to by 176 againſt 43; but the clauſe reſpecting the pulling down Roman Catholic chapels was expunged.

The empreſs of Ruſſia having granted a free toleration to the Catholics of the Latin communion, together with the free and public exerciſe of their religion throughout her extenſive dominions, was alſo deſirous that they ſhould be governed by biſhops of their own communion, and conſtitute a national church. For this purpoſe, ſhe nominated the prelate, who then preſided over the eccleſiaſtical affairs of the Latin church in her empire, in quality of Vicar Apoſtolic, to be firſt Archbiſhop of Mokilow, and appointed a Mr. Beniſlouſki to be his coadjutor. Mr. Beniſlouſki was ſent to Rome, to negociate and ſettle their buſineſs with the pope. A day was appointed for the ceremoney of inſtalling the archbiſhop in his new ſee, which the empreſs commanded to be performed with all the pomp and ſolemnity of which ſuch ceremonies are ſuſceptible, and aſſiſted at it in perſon, with all her court. Divine ſervice was ſung, and every thing proceeded in the uſual train, when a ſudden ſtop took place in the ceremony. The caſe was this: The uſual oath was tendered to the archbiſhop, in which he obſerved the following clauſe—Schiſmaticos & hereticos perſequar & impugnabo. The oath the archbiſhop refuſed to take, and perſevered in his refuſal. His conduct was much approved by the empreſs and her court. The ceremony ended here, of which an account was ſent to the pope, to deſire further inſtructions. On the arrival of this intelligence, the pope expreſſed the ſtrongeſt diſpleaſure, as he had given particular directions that the obnoxious clauſe ſhould not be inſerted. Freſh diſpatches were immediately ſent, with inſtructions to omit that part of the oath, and in all things to conform to the good intentions of the empreſs; and the archbiſhop was inſtalled.

Amongſt the illuſtrious perſonages who ſet out from Czarſko Zelo on the 18th ult. to accompany the empreſs in her journey to Cherſon, are the Engliſh, Imperial and French miniſters. The emperor will leave his capital the beginning of March, in order to meet the czarina at the above place.——Our letters from Peterſburgh alſo add, that the Neapolitan ambaſſador has at laſt, after an uninterrupted negociation for four years, concluded a very advantageous treaty between his court and that of Ruſſia.

The child of a genteel family at Axminſter, about three years old, was dangerouſly ill in the meaſles, which were very riſe in the town; his death was hourly expected, as one had died juſt before.—A near relation who had paid great attention to theſe circumſtances, and on being informed the ſecond child was dead, he would be ſatisfied of the ſame, by ſeeing it himſelf; and having received from all the attendants that the child was certainly dead, and convinced thereof himſelf, inſiſted on trying an experiment, & ordered a veſſel of cold water, in which the child fully immerged. It was afterwards wrapped completely in flannels, and ſo put to bed, where, being ſtrictly attended to, after ſome hours a violent perſperation took place, and ſoon after life was very apparent, and the child is now perfectly reſtored to health. Dr. Fothergill, of Bath, in his firſt letter on ſuſpended animation, makes the following intereſting obſervation, which ought in every principle of humanity to cauſe a univerſal attention to the circumſtances attending the ſeeming departure of life. "It is painful to reflect, that the mere reſemblance of death has too often been miſtaken for the reality, in which ſtate the helpleſs victim has been conſigned to the grave! Theſe unfortunate events ſhould awaken, caution and repreſs that inconſiderate hurry of laying out the dead, and precipating the funeral ceremonies." In the above inſtance, ſays our correſpondent, the ſecond child would moſt certainly have been interred if it had not been for the zeal and humanity of a relation. The writer hopes that in future, the ſame attention will be paid by the relations and friends of the dead, as then there is not a doubt but that numbers will be reſtored to their neareſt and deareſt connections who are now laid out on the appearance of death. Let it be remembered by the readers of this day, that at the inſtant reſpiration ceaſes life does not quit the body in an ærial form, as has been too generally ſuppoſed; and it is an unfortunate and melancholy truth that this popular idea has been the cauſe of thouſands of the human race being committed to the grave prematurely, and thus ſociety may have been deprived of many of its moſt valuable members. In matters of ſuch infinite importance to mankind, the legiſlature ſhould moſt ſeriouſly attend to, and give their ſanction to certain experiments in order to determine life and its departure from the ſyſtem: for it is poſſible in the preſent ſtate of things, that even kings, princes and legiſlatures may pay the debt of nature probably to the grim tyrant death, before it is by the laws of nature juſtly due. Reflections that may tend to preſerve the lives of the people.

Mr. Peale is now arranging for the public view, a large and elegant collection of Italian Paintings, lately imported, the coſt of which is eſtimated at 3000l. ſterling.

Extract of a letter from Naſſau, (N. P.) April 7.

'On the 30th ult. the ſloop Hawke, of Bermuda, mentioned in a former paper to have been ſeized at Heneaga, was condemned in the court of vice admiralty, for breach of the laws of trade.

'The ſchooner Betſey, Acorn, from Jamaica for Philadelphia, is caſt away on Heneaga. The crew and conſiderable part of the cargo and rigging are ſaved, but the veſſel is entirely loſt.'

To the Printers of the Pennſylvania Packet and Daily Advertiſer.

A FRIEND to public utility, obſerving ſo perfect a coincidence of ſentiment on the part of your other correſpondent with regard to brick walls, thinks it proper to thank him for his further learned diſcoveries, though he does not altogether approve of introducing with the marks of a quotation, a ſentence which is only to be found in the performance ſigned "A Friend to Liberality," viz. "That brick walls will not burn like pine boards." Now as theſe are his own words, we may fairly ſuppoſe they are conſiſtent with his opinion, and for which, he may take to himſelf at leaſt one ſhare of the credit of ſo wiſe an invention.—— But in reſpect to the powers of water, the diſcovery he has made is really ſo curious and original, that it ſeems to deſerve a particular attention;——he ſays, "If you have a large fire on your parlour or kitchen hearth, get a bucket of cold water freſh from the pump, and pour it on the fire;" now mind it muſt be cold water, and freſh from the pump; no other water of any deſcription is mentioned in making this experiment; but if you will get cold water, and freſh from the pump, then, what is the conſequence? Why, the fire may be extinguiſhed by the operation.

Now as this writer has agreed ſo well with me, I am as well diſpoſed to agree with him—I admit the argument in its full force: but as he ſays, "this ſeems to be an æra deſigned for the moſt important diſcoveries." I do not ſee why he and I may not put our wits together, and find out ſomething further.—I can inform him by way of fact, without propoſing a new experiment, that near "this ſame fire in Eighth-ſtreet" there were two brick buildings, the cellars of which having been expoſed to the weather, had a great deal of water in them; this water being handed to the fire by a great number of people, was, as I take for granted, believed by them to be as effectual for extinguiſhing fire, as the ſame quantity would have been, if it had been cold water, with all the advantages of being freſh from the pump.

But to be ſerious—the matter in general at the fire alluded to was ſo combuſtible, that it did not appear to be in the power of water to extinguiſh the flames——what the "ſufficient quantities" might have been, I leave the other writer to determine——for my part, I confeſs myſelf entirely unequal to the taſk. Now I do not mean to leſſen my friend's care about public pumps; and if any of the remarks concerning the late fire ſhould be a means to prevent the extention of injury from a like calamity in future, it will be very agreeable to A Friend to Public Utility.

Meſſ. DUNLAP & CLAYPOOLE,

SEVERAL pieces having lately appeared in Hall and Sellers's Gazette, evidently calculated to inflame the minds of the citizens of Pennſylvania, and to excite a diſpoſition to the non-payment of taxes, and an oppoſition to the meaſures of government, with regard to the payment of the public debt, you will oblige one of your cuſtomers, by publiſhing the following extract from the Addreſs of the General Court of the State of Maſſachuſetts to the people, as contained in your paper of January 24th laſt, in order to give an opportunity of contraſting the ſentiments of that honorable body with thoſe of our newly adopted literary ſpeculators.

As the reaſoning contained in the lectures which I allude to, are not only falſe and inconſiſtent with truth, but even with themſelves, I could freely conſent to let them paſs unnoticed, but for the following conſideration. People who have thought but little on the ſubject, might poſſibly be thereby miſled, and ſtrangers might ſuppoſe them to be the ſentiments of the people. But for the honor of Pennſylvania, I cannot ſuppoſe there is a perſon in the ſtate that deſerves to be called a citizen or a patriot, who entertains ſuch ſentiments; and rather believe the author to be ſome inſurgent, fled from the hands of juſtice, and who more juſtly merits a ſuit of tar and feathers, than the countenance of thoſe who wiſh well to the commonwealth.

Pennſylvania may be ſaid to have taken the lead, and ſet an example worthy of imitation, in endeavouring to eſtabliſh public credit; and although all her meaſures, if viewed independent of the circumſtances by which ſhe was conſtrained to adopt them, may not be ſtrictly federal, and ſhe may have committed ſome errors with regard to herſelf, the intentions of her legiſlatures have been ſuch as will do them immortal honour.

An aſſertion which has been frequently made, viz. that the ſtate has adopted more than her proportion of the domeſtic debt, may or may not be a fact; but I much queſtion if it will be found to be the caſe upon an aggregate, and apportionment of the whole continental debt.

If the author or authors of thoſe pieces mean the welfare of this or of the United States, why deal in the cowardly language of inſinuation? why not declare themſelves, and endeavour honeſtly to point out the weakneſs or errors either of the federal or individual governments, and propoſe amendments?

A Friend to Public Credit.

Philadelphia, April 26, 1787.

"We are informed, that the public ſecurities are now ſold at a lower rate than at any former period: but ſuppoſe there was no depreciation on any of thoſe ſecurities, perhaps the ſums we have paid in taxes, in hiring men, and purchaſing ſupplies for the army, within the laſt eight years, are more than the whole amount both of our ſtate debt and our proportion of the continental debt.

"If the public had been able to prevent the depreciation of the public ſecurities, we think ſtrict juſtice would have required it: but notwithſtanding the moſt ſolemn promiſes of future payment, that depreciation has taken place, perhaps therefore a criminal breach of faith is not imputable to the public counſels: but if, when it is within our power, we refuſe to redeem the ſecurities, what excuſe ſhall we have?——Can we be willing, that the hiſtory of the American Revolution ſhall be blackened with the tale, that we refuſed to redeem the ſecurities we had given to effect it, and ſhall our poſterity bluſh to hear of the event, becauſe the perfidy of their anceſtors exceeded their glory?

"Some have obſerved, that the continental currency is not redeemed, unleſs at the rate of ſeventy-five for one, and propoſe that the whole debt be reduced by law to the preſent current value: but is there not a wide difference between the caſes? The firſt emiſſions of that currency were comparatively ſmall; after it had ſuffered a depreciation beyond what has happened to any of the public ſecurities, immenſe ſums were brought into circulation, and the public received a conſideration for them, not more than at the rate of one for forty or fifty, and perhaps more: it was therefore thought unreaſonable to redeem them at the nominal value: beſides, if the ſecurities ſhould be reduced by law to five ſhillings in the pound, they would conſtantly fall in their current value to one ſhilling; there would then be the ſame reaſon for reducing them to that ſum, and from thence to nothing.

"If an individual is involved in debt, both prudence and honeſty require him to be frugal, and pay his debts as ſoon as may be. By a long and expenſive war, we incurred a large public debt, though far leſs than that which our enemies incurred; but inſtead of uſing every effort to pay it, divers perſons have employed themſelves in deviſing methods to get rid of it, without payment: many indeed have employed much more time and money to this end, than (if better employed) might have purchaſed their whole proportion of the public ſecurities; they alledge, that many of the firſt poſſeſſors have been obliged to ſell them for little more than one third of their amount, and therefore that the preſent holders ought to receive no more: but we ſhould do well to remember, that the public have received the full value of all the notes they have iſſued, they were made transferable by law, and many of them have been ſold; but if we paid them as we promiſed, very few would have been ſold: and ſhall we take no meaſures to pay them now, becauſe we have omitted the payment ſo long?

"It is ſaid to be unreaſonable to compel the man, who has been obliged to ſell his ſecurities at a low rate, to redeem them at the nominal value; this obſervation is made with an ill grace, when every man, who has ſold his notes, can purchaſe them again at a lower rate than he ſold them.

"The nations of Europe are unable to maintain war without borrowing; much leſs could we; but in caſe of a war, who would lend us, if our neglecting ſeven years to pay the ſum borrowed, will juſtify our not paying at all?

"Policy, therefore, as well as juſtice, demand, that we do all in our power to ſatisfy our creditors. In private life, the man who avails himſelf of artifice and fraud will ſoon find his character blaſted, and himſelf the object of contempt: while he who, incompaſſed with difficulties, maintains an honeſt courſe, may hope for the friendſhip of man, and the favour of Heaven. The ſame will be the caſe in ſtates and communities, ſo long as righteouſneſs exalteth a nation."

For Sale by Public Vendue,

At the Coffee-Houſe, on *SATURDAY next, the 5th Inſtant, May, at 12 o'Clock,

(If not ſold before at Private Sale)

THAT pleaſant Seat, formerly the eſtate of Robert Hopkins, deceaſed, ſituate in the precinct of Richmond, commonly called Point-no-Point, 5 miles from the city of Philadelphia, conſiſting of a manſion houſe and 9 acres and 13 perches of excellent land.

The manſion houſe is 58 feet front, of a beautiful hewn ſtone, and 38 feet deep, with 4 rooms on each floor, elegantly finiſhed; 3 of the rooms on the ground floor wainſcotted on the ſides ſurbace high, and the fourth is wainſcotted quite up to the ceiling, with a handſome cornice in each room; the chimnies are decorated with poliſhed marble, and two of the hearths are marble; the entry is 12 feet wide, ornamented with the Dorick entablature, well executed, and pediments over the door of each room; the ſtaircaſe is ramp and twiſt with handſome brackets; the rooms on the ſecond floor are genteely finiſhed, two of them decorated with marble chimney pieces and hearths; the garret is very large and roomy: on the houſe top are iron rails and mouldings of wood by way of balcony, from whence there is a beautiful proſpect of the neighbouring ſeats, the river Delaware and the Jerſey ſhore: the front door is arched, and calculated to admit of ornaments in the higheſt degree of elegance: the kitchen is convenient and the cellars very good, with two commodious and valuable vaults adjoining the houſe.

There is on the premiſes, a coach houſe, a framed hay houſe 64 by 25 feet, a ſtone ſmoak houſe, and at a little diſtance from the manſion houſe, a ſmall tenement with a cellar under it, a waſh houſe adjoining, and a pump of good water before the door; an orchard of about 100 trees of the beſt apples, and a collection of other fruits of the beſt kind, with a good kitchen garden now planted for family uſe.

The road leading from the city to this Seat, is not only level and very pleaſant, but more uniformly good at all ſeaſons of the year than any other road near the city.

It will be ſold ſubject to the payment of one fourth part of 75 ounces of coined gold of the kingdom of Portugal, to Elizabeth Hopkins, daughter of Iſaac Hopkins, when ſhe ſhall arrive at the age of 21 years, or to her heirs, according to the will of the ſaid Robert Hopkins, deceaſed.

One half the purchaſe money to be paid in 10 days after the ſale, and the remainder in 6 months. For further particulars enquire of the ſubſcriber, on the premiſes. J. BATES.

N. B. A Plan of the Premiſes may be ſeen at the Coffee-Houſe.

* The Sale of the above Place having been poſtponed, was entirely owing to a multiplicity of buſineſs crouding on the Auctioneer, on the Day propoſed; but it will poſitively come on, and be duly attended to, on Saturday next, the 5th of May. May 1. ep

MAY-DAY, A SONG. Written by a LADY.

HOW blytheſome are the nymphs and ſwains!
What pleaſure thro' the vallies reigns!
With feſtive ſongs, and garland gay,
They celebrate the firſt of May.

View the ſylvan ſcenes around;
Daiſies ſilver o'er the ground;
Cowſlips, in their gold array,
Welcome in the blooming May.

Hark! the tuneful feather'd throng;
Their choiceſt notes, their ſweeteſt ſong,
Grateful in melodious lay,
Uſher in the genial May.

Fanning zephyrs lightly blow;
Chryſtal ſtreams in ſilence flow,
As tho' winds and ſtreams would ſay,
"Soft, 'tis now the gentle May."

The groves their infant foliage ſpread;
The new-born bloſſoms fragrance ſhed;
The tender lambkins ſportive play,
And wanton in the ſweets of May.

But ah! incautious youth beware,
In Eden's garden lay a ſnare;
Be innocent and wiſely gay,
Nor riot in the ſweets of May!

So may your winter's blaſts defy,
Its frigid air, its gloomy ſky;
If Virtue beams her golden ray,
Each month will then be blooming May.

ANECDOTE of DON PEDRO.

THIS enterpriſing Spaniard, as he ſtood viewing the conſtruction of a ſpider's web, contemplated a great undertaking, ſtudied, and became an adept in the art of conſtructing fortifications, ſolicited the king, and even projected the conqueſt of Spain—but, by chance, as he trod upon an ant's neſt, he ſaw their confuſion and diſtreſs, he felt a ſudden glow of pity and compaſſion, and compared them to mankind: it checked his daring ambition, and he gave up his grand deſign—Upon which it was ſaid, 'A ſpider had enſlaved the world, had not a piſmire prevented it.'

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

An ACT for aſcertaining and confirming to certain perſons called Connecticut claimants, the lands by them claimed within the county of Luzerne, and for other purpoſes therein mentioned.

WHEREAS an unhappy diſpute for many years ſubſiſted between the province and ſtate of Pennſylvania, on the one part, and the colony and ſtate of Connecticut on the other part, relative to certain lands within the charter boundary of Pennſylvania, but which were claimed by Connecticut, as falling within the limits of her charter; which diſpute was finally terminated by the decree of the court of commiſſioners at Trenton, on the thirtieth day of December, one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty-two, in the mode preſcribed by the articles of confederation of the United States; by which decree the queſtion between the two ſtates, was decided in favor of Pennſylvania: And whereas, before the termination of the ſaid claim of Connecticut, a number of its inhabitants, with their aſſociates, ſettled upon and improved divers tracts of land, lying on or near to the northeaſt branch of the river Suſquehanna, and the waters thereof, and now within the county of Luzerne: And whereas, parts of the ſame lands have been claimed under titles derived from the late proprietaries of Pennſylvania; and theſe interfering claims have occaſioned much contention, expence and bloodſhed: and this aſſembly being deſirous of putting an end to thoſe evils, by confirming ſuch of the Connecticut claims, as were acquired by actual ſettlers prior to the termination of the ſaid diſpute, agreeably to the petition of a number of the ſaid ſettlers, and by granting a juſt compenſation to the Pennſylvania claimants: And whereas, the lands aforeſaid, claimed by the Connecticut ſettlers, have been uſually aſſigned to them in rights, or lots, of about three hundred acres each, which rights, or lots, have either been entire, or in two or more diviſions: therefore

Be it enacted, and it it hereby enacted by the repreſentatives of the freemen of the commonwealth of Pennſylvania in general aſſembly met, and by the authority of the ſame, That all the ſaid rights or lots now lying within the county of Luzerne, which were occupied or acquired by Connecticut claimants, who were actual ſettlers there, at or before the termination of the claim of the ſtate of Connecticut, by the decree aforeſaid, and which rights, or lots, were particularly aſſigned to the ſaid ſettlers prior to the ſaid decree, agreeably to the regulations then in force among them, be, and they are hereby confirmed to them and their heirs and aſſigns: Provided, that all the claimants whoſe lots are hereby confirmed, ſhall by themſelves, guardians, or other lawful agents, within eight months, next after the paſſing of this act, prefer to the commiſſioners herein after mentioned, their reſpective claims to the lots aforeſaid, therein ſtating the grounds of their claims, and ſufficiently deſcribing the lots claimed, ſo that the ſame may be known and aſcertained, and ſupport the ſame by reaſonable proofs.

And whereas, it will be neceſſary to inſtitute a ſummary mode of aſcertaining and eſtabliſhing the right of each claimant. Be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That Peter Muhlenberg, Timothy Pickering and Joſeph Montgomery, eſquires, be and they are hereby appointed commiſſioners for the purpoſes hereinafter expreſſed and declared, and in caſe of the death, abſence or refuſal to ſerve of any or all of the ſaid commiſſioners, the ſupreme executive council, are hereby authoriſed and required to ſupply the vacancy or vacancies occaſioned thereby, by other new appointment or appointments.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall repair to the county of Luzerne, within two months next after the paſſing of this act, and at ſuch place within the ſame county, and at ſuch time as they the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall appoint to meet together, for the purpoſe of receiving and examining the claims of all perſons to the lots intended by this act to be confirmed. And the ſaid commiſſioners are hereby empowered to adjourn their meeting from time to time, and to ſuch places, within the ſaid county, as they ſhall judge beſt, for the proper and ſpeedy execution of their commiſſion. And that all perſons intereſted in the ſaid lots, may be duly notified to make and ſupport their claims thereto, within the time preſcribed by this act, the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall cauſe it to be publiſhed in one or more of the news-papers, printed in Pennſylvania and Connecticut, with an advertiſement ſubjoined, expreſſing the time and place propoſed for their firſt meeting; and copies of this act, and of the ſaid advertiſement, ſhall alſo be poſted up at ſundry places within the ſaid county, for the information of the inhabitants. And the examination of the ſaid claims ſhall be by witneſſes, on their oaths or affirmations (which the ſaid commiſſioners are ſeverally empowered to adminiſter) and ſuch other evidence as ſhall be produced to the ſaid commiſſioners, or which they can obtain. And of ſuch claims as ſhall be ſupported by evidence ſatisfactory to the ſaid commiſſioners or any two of them, there ſhall be made a fair entry, in which the lots ſo claimed ſhall be deſcribed, and in ſuch manner that the ſame may be clearly known and aſcertained. Provided, That where two or more claims of Connecticut claimants, to the ſame lot, ſhall be preſented, and it ſhall appear to the ſaid commiſſioners by ſatisfactory evidence, that the ſame lot ought to be confirmed, agreeably to the meaning of this act, they ſhall make a fair entry thereof as aforeſaid; and if the ſeveral claimants agree to ſubmit their claims to the determination of the ſaid commiſſioners, they ſhall proceed to hear and determine the ſame accordingly; but if they do not thus agree, either of the claimants may proſecute his claim in the proper court of law, as in ordinary caſes of conteſted titles.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners be, and they are hereby authoriſed to appoint a ſurveyor or ſurveyors to ſurvey all the lots aforeſaid of the Connecticut claimants: and the ſurveys thereof ſhall be returned to the ſaid commiſſioners for their information and aſſiſtance, in proſecuting their enquiries and examinations; and the ſurveys of ſuch of the ſaid lots, the claims to which ſhall be admitted by the ſaid commiſſioners, ſhall by them be afterwards returned, together with their book of entries deſcribing the ſame, to the ſupreme executive council, who ſhall cauſe patents to be iſſued for their confirmation, and each patent ſhall comprehend all the parcels of land, which are to be confirmed to the ſame claimant, or joint-claimants, to whom by the return of the commiſſioners aforeſaid, the ſame ſhall be found to belong; and for each patent there ſhall be paid to the ſecretary of the council, the ſum of twenty ſhillings. And the ſaid ſurveyors ſhall appoint proper perſons for their chain carriers and markers: and the ſurveyors, chain carriers and markers ſhall ſeverally be ſworn or affirmed before a juſtice of the peace, or one of the ſaid commiſſioners, faithfully to perform their reſpective duties; and ſhall be allowed a reaſonable compenſation for their ſervices to be fixed by the ſaid commiſſioners, and paid by the claimants, whoſe claims to the lands ſo ſurveyed ſhall be admitted as aforeſaid, and upon whom the ſame ſhall be apportioned by the ſaid commiſſioners, in the manner they ſhall judge moſt equitable.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That each of the ſaid commiſſioners, before he acts under his commiſſion, ſhall take an oath or affirmation, before one of the members of the ſupreme executive council, or a judge of the ſupreme court, diligently to proceed in the buſineſs of his commiſſion and well and truly to hear and determine upon all claims and queſtions which ſhall come before him, in purſuance of this act, without favor, affection or hope of reward.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners be, and they are hereby authoriſed to appoint a ſuitable perſon for a clerk, who ſhall before them be ſworn or affirmed, faithfully to regiſter all the proceedings of the ſaid commiſſioners in purſuance of this act.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That there be allowed and paid out of the public treaſury, to each of the ſaid commiſſioners twenty ſhillings per day, and to the ſaid clerk fifteen ſhillings per day, for each day they ſhall be employed, in performing the duties required of them by the act.

And whereas the late proprietaries and divers other perſons, have heretofore acquired titles to parcels of the lands aforeſaid, agreeably to the laws and uſages of Pennſylvania, and who will be deprived thereof by the operation of this act, and as juſtice requires that compenſation be made for the lands of which they ſhall thus be diveſted; and as the ſtate is poſſeſſed of other lands, in which an equivalent may be rendered to the claimants under Pennſylvania, and as it will be neceſſary that their claims ſhould be aſcertained by a proper examination.

Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That all perſons having ſuch claims to lands which will be affected by the operation of this act, ſhall be, and they are hereby required, by themſelves, guardians or other lawful agents, within twelve months from the paſſing of this act, to preſent the ſame to the board of property, therein clearly deſcribing thoſe lands and ſtating the grounds of their claims, and alſo adducing the proper proofs, not only of their titles, but of the ſituations, qualities and values of the lands ſo claimed, to enable the board to judge of the validity of their claims, and of the quantities of vacant lands proper to be granted as equivalents. And for every claim which ſhall be admitted by ſaid board, as duly ſupported, the equivalent by them allowed, may be taken either in the old or new purchaſe, at the option of the claimant; and warrants and patents, and all other acts of the public offices relating thereto, ſhall be performed free of expence. The ſaid board ſhall alſo allow ſuch a quantity of vacant land, to be added to ſuch equivalent, as ſhall in their judgment be equal to the expences, which muſt neceſſarily be incurred in locating and ſurveying the ſame. And that the board of property may in every caſe obtain ſatisfactory evidence of the quality and value of the land, which ſhall be claimed as aforeſaid, under the proprietary title, they may require the commiſſioners aforeſaid, during their ſitting in the ſaid county of Luzerne, to make the neceſſary enquiries, by the oaths or affirmations of lawful witneſſes, to aſcertain thoſe points; and it ſhall be the duty of the ſaid commiſſioners to enquire and report accordingly. Signed by order of the Houſe,

THOMAS MIFFLIN, Speaker.

Enacted into a Law at Philadelphia, on Wedneſday the twenty eighth day of March, in the year of Our Lord one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty ſeven.

PETER ZACHARY LLOYD, Clerk of the General Aſſembly.

Philadelphia, April 2d, 1787.

IN Purſuance of the foregoing Act of the General Aſſembly of Pennſylvania, we hereby give Public Notice, That the Commiſſioners thereby appointed will meet at the houſe of Col. Zebulon Butler, in Wilkeſborough (otherwiſe called Wilkeſbarre) in the county of Luzerne, on Monday the twenty-eighth day of May next, to receive and examine the Connecticut Claims to Lands in that county, and to perform the other duties required of them by the ſaid act.

TO BE SOLD,

(And entered on immediately)

AN agreeable Country Seat; ſituate between the Wiſſahickon or Falls road, and the road to Germantown, in Turner's lane, with 18 acres of land in high cultivation. A large garden in good order, and a young orchard of the beſt apple trees, &c.

The terms of ſale are, one third ready money, and the remainder in yearly payments; an undoubted title will be given, free from all claims whatſoever.

This Seat is in poſſeſſion of JOHN HOLKER, eſq. to whom application may be made for further particulars. Philadelphia March 22. eptf.

To be SOLD or LET,

Upon Improving Leaſes, the following

Tracts of Patented Land,

—VIZ.—

ONE tract containing 375 acres and allowance of ſix per cent. for roads, ſituated on a branch of Cox's creek, in Millford townſhip, Bedford county, adjoining lands formerly James Wilſon's. On this tract there is an excellent mill ſeat. The land good in quality, and a large proportion of meadow may be made.

One tract containing 357 acres and allowance, ſituate on the heads of Cox's creek in Quemahone townſhip, Bedford county, adjoining lands of George Shaver, James Glentworth and John Penrod. This land is of an excellent quality and affords a large proportion of meadow ground.

One tract containing 351 acres and allowance, ſituate in the head of Spruce run (a branch of Cox's creek) adjoining the laſt mentioned tract, Joſeph Heibler's, Jacob Smucker's and George Shaver's land. This is ſaid to be a capital tract, and equal (if not ſuperior) in quality to any lands in Quemahone.

One tract containing 302 acres and allowance, ſituate on a branch of Wells's creek, adjoining the laſt mentioned tract, Jacob Smucker and others. This is likewiſe good land and will afford plenty of meadow ground.

N. B. The above lands are in the middle of a German ſettlement and likely to become very valuable from the extenſion of the navigation into the weſtern country by the Virginia company, from which navigation it will not be more than a day's journey.

Likewiſe, the four following tracts of land in the county of Northampton, ſituate on the waters of Lehevaxen.

One tract containing	307	acres and allowance.
One ditto	292	ditto	ditto.
One ditto	334	ditto	ditto.
One ditto	330	ditto	ditto.

N. B. Theſe four tracts lie within eight or ten miles of the river Delaware, adjoining Robert Lettis Hooper, eſquire, and lands formerly Robert Wilſon's: they are prime lands and muſt be valuable when the navigation of the Delaware becomes an object of legiſlative attention, which undoubtedly muſt be very ſoon.

Any perſon inclinable to purchaſe, or take upon an improving leaſe, either of the ſaid tracts of land, or would wiſh to exchange merchandiſe, public ſecurities or real property in or near this city, for all or any part of them, may know the terms by applying to the owner, in Sixth ſtreet, between Market and Cheſnut ſtreets.

For Sale by Public Vendue,

At the Coffee-Houſe, on *SATURDAY next, the 5th Inſtant, May, at 12 o'Clock,
(If not ſold before at Private Sale)

THAT pleaſant Seat, formerly the eſtate of Robert Hopkins, deceaſed, ſituate in the precinct of Richmond, commonly called Point-no-Point, 5 miles from the city of Philadelphia, conſiſting of a manſion houſe and 9 acres and 13 perches of excellent land.

The manſion houſe is 58 feet front, of a beautiful hewn ſtone, and 38 feet deep, with 4 rooms on each floor, elegantly finiſhed; 3 of the rooms on the ground floor wainſcotted on the ſides ſurbace high, and the fourth is wainſcotted quite up to the ceiling, with a handſome cornice in each room; the chimnies are decorated with poliſhed marble, and two of the hearths are marble; the entry is 12 feet wide, ornamented with the Dorick entablature, well executed, and pediments over the door of each room; the ſtaircaſe is ramp and twiſt with handſome brackets; the rooms on the ſecond floor are genteely finiſhed, two of them decorated with marble chimney pieces and hearths; the garret is very large and roomy: on the houſe top are iron rails and mouldings of wood by way of balcony, from whence there is a beautiful proſpect of the neighbouring ſeats, the river Delaware and the Jerſey ſhore: the front door is arched, and calculated to admit of ornaments in the higheſt degree of elegance: the kitchen is convenient and the cellars very good, with two commodious and valuable vaults adjoining the houſe.

There is on the premiſes, a coach houſe, a framed hay houſe 64 by 25 feet, a ſtone ſmoak houſe, and at a little diſtance from the manſion houſe, a ſmall tenement with a cellar under it, a waſh houſe adjoining, and a pump of good water before the door; an orchard of about 100 trees of the beſt apples, and a collection of other fruits of the beſt kind, with a good kitchen garden now planted for family uſe.

The road leading from the city to this Seat, is not only level and very pleaſant, but more uniformly good at all ſeaſons of the year than any other road near the city.

It will be ſold ſubject to the payment of one fourth part of 75 ounces of coined gold of the kingdom of Portugal, to Elizabeth Hopkins, daughter of Iſaac Hopkins, when ſhe ſhall arrive at the age of 21 years, or to her heirs, according to the will of the ſaid Robert Hopkins, deceaſed.

One half the purchaſe money to be paid in 10 days after the ſale, and the remainder in 6 months. For further particulars enquire of the ſubſcriber, on the premiſes. J. BATES.

N. B. A Plan of the Premiſes may be ſeen at the Coffee-Houſe.

* The Sale of the above Place having been poſtponed, was entirely owing to a multiplicity of buſineſs crouding on the Auctioneer, on the Day propoſed; but it will poſitively come on, and be duly attended to, on Saturday next, the 5th of May. May 1. ep

Peter Wikoff, Auctioneer.

Foreign Intelligence.

VIENNA, December 27.

THE little difference which has lately ariſen relative to the navigation of the Scheldt, is looked upon here as quite myſterious, and the views of government in that occurrence are entirely unknown; ſome look upon it as a renewal of the old diſpute, whilſt others think differently; however, upon the whole, many apprehend it may not be ſo ſoon ſettled, as the Dutch papers announce—the emperor cannot do other than ſupport the rights of the Brabanters, which the ſhutting the Scheldt has ruined.

LEIGE, December 31.

Laſt Thurſday, Mr. Blanchard made his twenty-ſecond aſcenſion with great ſucceſs. This ſkilful aerial navigator took his departure from the citadel, and deſcended in the province of Lembourgh, in a meadow near Neaz, ſeven leagues from hence.

DUBLIN, January 21.

A melancholy accident had well nigh taken place from the late improvement in the gallery of the houſe of commons. A reverend dean, a dignitary, in the receipt of 2,500 a year, which he beſtows in acts of munificence and charity, living himſelf a life of ſuch abſtinence, that his whole body weighs but about 30 ſtone, and is not more than 3 yards about. The right reverend parſonage, anxious to know what would be done in the affair of tythes, had with infinite difficulty, waddled up the ſtairs to the gallery, and, with many a pious puff, forced, ſqueezed, preſſed, and jammed himſelf into the narrow paſſage behind the ſeats, till he found he could go no farther; the buſineſs then was to retreat, to turn about was impoſſible; to retire was certain ſuffocation—what could be done? he endeavoured to advance backward; but unluckily falling down upon a certain part, large and as elaſtic as a woolſack, he there remained the moſt imminent diſtreſs——neither ropes, pullies, nor leavers could move him; and there unto this hour he muſt have remained, had not a perſon, high in authority, and of a humane and generous nature, ordered a party of carpenters that were at work in one of the committee-rooms to ſaw him out.

Recent accounts from America give but ſmall hopes of a long continuance of our linen exports, as the ſtates of every province of the union are daily encouraging manufactures, to ſupport which they talk of laying a ſmart duty on flaxſeed. The cotton and printing buſineſs muſt thrive greatly in all parts of that continent, as they can be ſo well and cheaply ſupplied with indigo from Carolina, and the neighbouring Spaniſh ſettlements, and with cotton-wool from the French Iſlands. France has taken care of her own linen and cotton manufactures, now in a very flouriſhing ſtate, and Great Britain ſecretly rejoices, that we are likely to find no market for our linens but her own, unleſs Spain or Portugal ſhould take the middling and coarſe ſorts off our hands.

The extraordinary riſe of lands, by the ſtratagem of receiving propoſals ſealed up, declaring that the higheſt bidder ſhould be the tenant, and no ſecond offer admitted from the ſame perſon, has been one of the greateſt political wiles experienced by this kingdom, It may, in ſome reſpect, be conſidered as one cauſe at leaſt, if not the principal, of all the inſurrections that have happened ſince the laſt civil wars, as neither tithe or taxes would be ſo much complained of, were the rents more moderate. The pernicious cuſtom of receiving private offers from various people, and thus ſetting lands by auction, raiſes a bitter ſpirit among the inhabitants, when one neighbour, or the old occupier, finds himſelf outbid by another, in a farm which he and his anceſtors had enjoyed and improved for ſeveral generations.

LONDON, January 10.

Extract of a letter from Paris Dec 30.

"A courier arrived here the 25th at noon, from Madrid, with diſpatches from M La Comte de Kerfaint, the king's envoy to the Chatholic king; ſince which it is reported, that miniſter has had the addreſs to reconcile the court of Spain, who had taken umbrage at the treaty of commerce which has been concluded with England, it having been repreſented as inimical to the Bourbon family treaties, which is by no means the caſe."

The Lyceum in the Strand, has for ſeveral days paſt, become the moſt faſhionable reſort in town. The exhibition of Wax-Work has received an addition of two of the moſt capital figures, this or any other country has produced; they are exact repreſentations of their preſent majeſties of England, dreſt in the moſt ſplendid manner. They are ſeated at a table, and the ſtrong reſemblance they bear to nature, excites equally the admiration and aſtoniſhment of the ſpectators. The reſt of the exhibition conſiſt of the emperor of Germany, the empreſs of Ruſſia, the king and queen of France, the kings of Pruſſia, Portugal and Spain, &c. Voltaire, Benjamin Franklin, and almoſt every conſpicuous character in Europe.

Jan. 12 Literal copies of the treaty with France, as alſo of thoſe now negociating with Ruſſia, Portugal, America, Spain and Holland, are making out to be laid before parliament at the approaching ſeſſion.

The duke of Bedford, all circumſtances conſidered, may well be ſtiled the richeſt ſubject of this realm; having the power to ſell the fee of a clear 46,000l. per annum, out of his eſtate, any hour he thinks proper: this, at thirty years purchaſe, including the timber, would produce 1,380,000 ſterling

There is no country in the world ſo fertile in ſtrange occurrences as France; and it may be truly ſaid, that in the nation which apparently is among the moſt poliſhed in the univerſe, the moſt unheard of crimes are daily committed; and, that ſociety is continually offended by thoſe who, by their rank, ſeem born for its ornament and honor ——Comte de M——, a general officer, better known in the world by his celebrated lawſuit, than by his military atchievements, is once more the ſubject of town talk; he has entered an action againſt his own ſon, whom he accuſes of having got his natural ſiſter with child, and wants to force him to marry her. How is it poſſible that a man of great military rank, a man of family, a father, can think of compelling his legitimate ſon to marry his natural daughter?—M. Linguet, during his late ſhort ſtay in Paris, adviſed the comte to abandon every idea of proſecuting the ſhameful buſineſs which, he ſaid, whatever might be the iſſue, could never redound to his honor. This charitable advice M. de M——— thought proper to reject. The comte's firſt wife was of the illuſtrious houſe of Beauvilliers, and daughter of a duke and peer of France: when ſhe died, he married the ſuppoſed widow of a ſhoemaker: but the latter returning, after a four year's abſence, the lady preferred living with the ſon of St. Criſpin, and left the old ſoldier to ſhift for himſelf.

There is a ſingular charity at Rocheſter, for lodging ſix beggars every night, and giving them four pence each every morning. It was left by a perſon of the name of Watts, with this reſtriction, that neither Rogues or Proctors be allowed to partake of it.

The police of Paris is the moſt complete in the univerſe—and yet (ſtrange to tell) more murders are committed in it than in all the other cities of Europe. It is nearly impoſſible a man can be robbed in Paris, without a detection of the offender—The natural conſequence is, that the villain who reſolves to rob, is determined to murder, and the firſt intimation the unfortunate object gets of the deſign on his purſe, is generally a dagger in his back or throat.

Jan. 19. About ten days ago, the archbiſhop of Cambray, brother to the cardinal de Rohan, gave the finiſhing ſtroke to the grandeur of that family. Being on a party of ſhooting with ſome gentlemen of his acquaintance, they ſtrayed on the grounds belonging to another perſon; the game keeper ſeeing them, begged them to retire, or he muſt do his duty: the gentlemen refuſed, on which the game keeper ſhot the dog.

The moment the archbiſhop, who was at ſome ſmall diſtance, perceived what had happened, he levelled his gun, and fired at the game keeper.

Report ſays the man is dead.

Jan. 24. The duke of Bridgewater has expended in various navigation cuts, canals, locks, &c. no leſs than 400,000l. which, from the general utility of the work, is ſuppoſed now to give him nine per cent. intereſt, clear of all deductions.

The following regulations have been publiſhed in France, for the ſubjects of that kingdom to obſerve in their private mournings.

A wife for her huſband, one year and ſix weeks.
A huſband for his wife, ſix months.
For a father or mother, ſix months.
Uncle or aunt, three weeks.
Couſin german, fifteen days.
Uncle a la mode de Bretagne, eleven days.
Couſin, iſſue of couſin german, eight days.

Jan. 27. The earl of Maſſereene, of the kingdom of Ireland, has been confined near 27 years in the priſon of the Chatelet, at Paris. This nobleman having been ſeduced by the ſpecious arguments of a native of Tripoli, in Barbary, to enter into a plan for ſupplying the ſouth of France with the article of ſal, (which conſtitutes one of the chief revenues of the French king) was induced to join in a formal ſecurity to a conſiderable amount, for the purpoſe of carrying this lucrative trade into execution; but the wild boar having left him in the lurch, his lordſhip was arreſted for ſum he was bound to pay, and thrown into priſon, from whence endeavouring to make his eſcape, he was conveyed to the cell of a dungeon 20 feet below the ſurface of the river Seine, where he remained a conſiderable time, and is now confined in the Grand Chatelet, where he beguiles the hours of his captivity, with ſome fair and humane Pariſians, who viſit him in his gloomy abode.

His lordſhip appears like a Jew, not having been ſhaven theſe fifteen years, and makes himſelf perfectly happy in that ſituation, to which, by long habitude he is become familiariſed.

Extract of a letter from Gibraltar, Dec. 26.

'A Venetian ſhip of 18 guns, commanded by the Sieur de la Carte, has juſt arrived here from Tunis, and reports, that the ſquadron belonging to the republic of Venice has done but little damage in the bombardment, but has moſt eſſentially put a ſtop to the piratical excurſions carried on from that place. No leſs than 17 veſſels, all corſairs, with 28 merchantmen of different nations, have been taken by the Venetian ſhips, and there is little doubt remaining of an ultimate ſucceſs attending the very ſpirited endeavours uſed by the republic to chaſtiſe the inſolence, if not finally do away the villainous depredations committed by all the little ſtates of Barbary on the Chriſtian veſſels.'

A gentleman near Pontefract, in Yorkſhire, riding a very fine mare on the turnpike road, who happened to be in ſeaſon, a male of her own ſpecies, from an inſtinct implanted in thoſe animals, leaped out of the field where he was at graſs, and purſued her in full gallop. The gentleman hearing the noiſe of the horſe, turned about, and gueſſing the cauſe, clapped ſpurs, to avoid ſo dangerous a rencounter—he was, however, ſoon overtaken by the horſe, who leaped on the mare, embraced the rider's waiſt with his fore legs, and faſtened his teeth in the ſkin of his back, which, at his departure, he tore violently away, together with a large portion of the ſhirt and outward garments. The gentleman, thus delivered, made home as well as he could, and was put to bed in a condition too dreadful to deſcribe; a ſurgeon dreſſed the wound, which was ſix inches long, and near the ſame in breadth, giving hopes of a ſpeedy recovery. The gentleman was healed in a fortnight, but being ſtrongly of opinion that the rage natural to thoſe animals at certain periods, might produce the ſame effects as actual madneſs; the doctor endeavoured to argue him out of thoſe wild chimeras, but in vain; and though perfectly cured, and in good health, he inſiſted that he ſhould die with the ſame wretched ſimptoms as perſons bit by mad dogs. The horſe was brought to him, who appeared to be ſound, and as gentle as a lamb; but nothing could convince the unhappy man; he grew melancholy, reſtleſs, and, at laſt, took entirely to his bed. In a few days after, the hydrophobia, with all its train of fearful evils, began to ſhew itſelf; his throat and jaws ſwelled to a monſtrous degree, and, in the paroxiſms of a brutal rage, he exactly imitated the neighing of a horſe, 'till nature being exhauſted, he breathed his laſt, to the great joy of his family and friends.

Obſerving in the public papers ſeveral puns on the name of 'Strange,' calls to our recollection one that was made on the late ſir John Strange, who was a lawyer and a man of the ſtricteſt integrity, and the moſt exalted and irreproachable character in the time of king Charles the Second, and in our humble opinion, the only good pun that was ever made on the name. This appeared on the tomb-ſtone of the above gentleman, and was recited in the following words:

'Here lies an honeſt lawyer—
'And that's———Strange.'

Feb. 7. A letter from Rotterdam ſays, that the calm which reigns at preſent in the Low Countries will be but of ſhort duration, as from certain appearances in Brandenburgh, a flame will ſoon break out, that muſt not only involve Holland and the neighbouring provinces, but diſturb the peace of all Europe, Great Britain and France excepted, who ſeem wholly intent on their commercial aggrandizement.

Feb. 27. The ingenious Dr. Adair has lately made the following curious and intereſting remark on the ſhortneſs of human life.

Of 1000 perſons, twenty-three die in the birth; 277 from teething, convulſions and worms; eighty from ſmall pox, ſeven in the meaſles, eight women in child-bed, 191 of conſumption, aſthma, and other diſeaſes of the breaſt; 150 of fevers, twelve of apoplexy and lethargy, and 41 of dropſy, omitting other diſeaſes not ſo well aſcertained; ſo that only ſeventy-eight of 1000 attain what may be deemed old age.

Or, if our readers chuſe to take it in another point of view, of 1000 perſons, 260 die within the firſt year, eighty in the ſecond, forty in the third, twenty-four in the fourth, and within the firſt 8 years of life, 446, or almoſt one half of the number are cut off by premature deaths.

Sickly years are from one in four to one in ſix or ſeven to the healthy. December, January and April, are, from obſervation, found to be the moſt ſickly months, and June the moſt healthy in the year. January is to June as eleven to one.

A letter from Vienna, Feb. 7, ſays, 'Louis Weiſman, noble of Weiſſenſtein, knight of the Holy Roman Empire, general field-maſter of cavalry, and preſident of the hoſpital for invalids, died here on the 30th of laſt month, aged 67 years. This brave officer, the ſole author of his fortune, highly diſtinguiſhed himſelf in the laſt war with the Turks, when he ſerved in the capacity of a private ſoldier. He paſſed the ſeveral military gradations till he obtained the rank of general, and concluded a glorious career, after 32 years ſervice, under the flag of the auguſt houſe of Auſtria.'

A letter from Portſmouth, dated Feb. 20, ſays, At five this evening the tranſport with the negroes, deſtined for Africa, proceeded on her voyage. The epidemical fever which broke out among them a ſhort time ſince, made great havoc; but was put a ſtop to by frequent ventilating the hold and lower apartments of the ſhip.'

Letters from Goſport, dated February 22, mention, that the negroes on board the tranſport that is to carry them to the coaſt of Africa, mutinied the night before; but were luckily prevented from doing any conſiderable miſchief, by the activity of the officers, who put the ringleaders in irons.

Letters by way of France bring advice, that the Captain Pacha had been ſtabbed with a poignard at Cairo.

The predeceſſors of the celebrated count de Vergennes, in the high office of principal financier to the king of France, in the early ages of that monarchy, were generally made ſacrifices to popular clamour. The art of finance was in thoſe days only known to the Jews, the Lombards, and Italians, who frequently paid dear for the riches they had accumulated, which on various occaſions were forfeited to the king, who generally gave the intereſt of the ſums thoſe uſurers had hoarded, amongſt the people.

The commons of Ireland have made a greater progreſs in the public buſineſs than thoſe of this country. On the 17th inſt. a meſſage was ſent by the lords, by Mr. Juſtice Henn, and Mr. Juſtice Kelly, that they had agreed, without any amendment, to the great money bill, the poſt office bill, and to the bill for granting certain duties on licences to be taken out by ſeveral perſons therein mentioned.

On the ſame day the chancellor of the exchequer moved, 'That leave be given to bring in a bill for the encouragement of the fiſheries in the Greenland ſeas and Davis's Streights.' Alſo, 'That leave be given to bring in a bill for facilitating the trade and intercourſe between this kingdom and the United States of America.'—Leave was given.

Feb. 28. By a letter from Pekin, dated the 28th of September laſt, to the miniſter of Tuſcany, it appears, that a miſſionary who had been ſent to propagate the goſpel in that empire, had been arreſted in the province of Hunguang, from whence he was conducted to Pekin, loaded with chains, and ſuffered to ſtarve to death. His name was Atte Paſtoye.

The ſcheme of ſending two ſhips annually from China to Kamſchatka is laid aſide by the Eaſt India company for the preſent; if it is ever revived, it will not be till after a treaty of commerce with Ruſſia is finally ſigned and ſettled.

AMERICA.

AUGUSTA, March 24.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Franklin, to his Friend in this town, dated March 2, 1787.

'For once I muſt beg your attention a moment to give ear to politics. Our ſtate affairs have come to ſuch a ſerious criſis that it claims your concern: the miſunderſtanding that has for ſome time exiſted between us and North-Carolina has, at laſt terminated in an open diſpute; the ſteps which the latter have taken in their laſt ſeſſion, ſerved only to bring the people here unanimouſly to purſue meaſures of oppoſition, and to dread the conſequence of a reunion The people here condemn a certain col. Tipton for being the inſtigator of our unhappy diſturbances; they have lately hanged in effigy, with a will in his mouth, a very extraordinary will indeed! it bequeathed his ignorance, his perjury, his folly, and his ambition, to be divided among his friends, and a wooden ſword to the moſt deſerving of them. After being expoſed in that manner, a negro burned the effigy and was paid with its clothes.

"North-Carolina, has made colonel Shelby a brigadier-general; he accepted the commiſſion, but obſerved, that, if they did conjecture he would quarrel with his neighbours for the ſake of a d—d commiſſion, they would find themſelves miſtaken! A few days after he went to Syllivan, where our court of juſtice was then held, and got married to a young lady by one of our judges; and was ſaluted a friend to the ſtate of Franklin. Colonel Tipton lately attempted to hold an election for a capt. by the authority of the ſtate of North-Carolina; only three or four were found to adhere to that ſtate, and captain Sevier bid defiance to his authority, and declared, that he would kill him on the ſpot if he perſiſted, which made him to retire.

"The people feel themſelves ſenſibly hurt by the line of conduct of North-Carolina, equally ſo by the extraordinary manner uſed at the ſeparation act; as from the indignity with which their aſſembly loaded our men in office, for acting in concurrence with the ſenſe of our good citizens, the people are ſenſible of the difference between ſending twelve or fifteen thouſand pounds in taxes this year to North-Carolina, never to return, and of ſupporting their own government with the ſmall ſum of twelve hundred pounds a year, and which will remain and circulate here.

The legiſlature of this ſtate will meet ſoon, and the common topic of converſation is, to make a great ſeal of the ſtate, and to open a land-office in favour of this ſtate and the honorable Congreſs.

"The grand chief of the Chactaws, and ſeveral others from different nations, are now waiting on our governor; they have brought information that the Creeks are preparing to fall on you early this ſpring, and that they have received a great quantity of ammunition from the Spaniards.

"Laſt ſpring the Creeks were determined to deſtroy the upper part of Georgia; but one of the warriors being apprehenſive that ſo large a number would ſhare but a ſmall part of the plunder, reſolved to make a ſweep with his command, before the whole, and thereby diſconcerted the enterprize; and thus you were preſerved by the guardianſhip of Providence, the extraordinary exertions of governor Telfair as a politician, and general Clarke as an officer, and the alertneſs of your ſpirited citizens, from falling a prey to Savages."

SAVANNAH, April 5.

Early on Friday morning laſt, Jeremiah Lancaſter, John Black, alias Blackman, John Bliss, and Thomas Smith, then under ſentence of death, by raiſing a plank of the floor, and digging under the priſon, made their eſcape; but were the night following apprhended at the plantation of the hon. Joſeph Clay, Eſq. near town, by the overſeer and negroes, and again committed to gaol.

Monday laſt were executed on the South Common, Jeremiah Lancaſter, for the murder of Mr. Alexander Barclay, and John Black, alias Blackman, for the murder of Mr. Henry Keall. They made no explicit confeſſion, but manifeſted a penitent ſenſe of their crimes. Lancaſter in particular had behaved in general with great ſeriouſneſs and ſober reflection, appeared to be brought to a happy renovation, and to die in the temper and with the reſignation of a ſincere penitent. It is hoped good people will hereafter be mindful of his afflicted family, and that all who ſaw, or hear, of theſe alarming inſtances of public vengeance in behalf of the laws of the land, will 'fear, and do no more ſo wickedly.'

CHARLESTON, (S. C.) April 5.

We congratulate the public on the agreeable proſpect of regularity, ſyſtem and obedience to the law, being again eſtabliſhed, which has been effected by the perſeverance and attention of the commiſſioners, in collecting the whole of the intereſt due to the loan-office, that important buſineſs having been brought to a concluſion yeſterday, when thoſe who were defaulters, paid up their arrears a few moments prior to the mortgaged property being expoſed to ſale.

NORFOLK, April 4.

Several of our moſt reſpectable merchants are about quitting this place, it is ſaid, in conſequence of the heavy duties and reſtrictions now exiſting; and ſome do not ſcruple to aſſert, that many of theſe beneficial ſet of men intend leaving the ſtate entirely, and to ſettle where commerce ſtands more unconfined.

FREDERICK TOWN, April 11.

On Tueſday the third inſtant was committed in this town, a murder of a nature ſo horrible, that every being poſſeſſed of rational endowments, lucid intervals, a patriotic zeal for the welfare of his country and countrymen, together with an affection for his dearly beloved ſpouſe, muſt wonder how any rational man could commit a cruelty of the following nature, viz.

A certain John Oble, who could not get any recompence at his brother-in-law's, went home and had a few words with his wife, and beat her in ſuch a manner that ſhe expired in about two hours afterwards. The next day, in order the more clearly to aſcertain the perpetrator of this ſo horrible a deed, the preſence of ſundry phyſicians were requeſted by the coroner of the county, who after having fully examined the bruiſes by diſſection, and inveſtigating the matters maturely, decreed, ſaid huſband of malice and ill will did commit this act; this villain was immediately committed to gaol, from whence it is the ſincere wiſh of every individual among us, he may not be diſcharged till juſtice, the grand baſis of our happineſs, may finally put an end to his exiſtence

BOSTON, April 19.

The commercial intercourſe between the eaſtern ſtates and Virginia, having for ſome time paſt been affected by the revenue laws of that ſtate, which impoſed like duties upon the importation of New-England rum, Lynn, ſhoes, cheeſe, cordage, and a variety of other articles manufactured in the eaſtern ſtates, with thoſe laid on ſuch goods imported from foreign nations; it is with ſatisfaction that we are authoriſed to inofrm the public, that theſe duties are entirely aboliſhed, by a law, paſſed in the laſt ſeſſion of the legiſlature of Virginia, entitled, "An act to amend the ſeveral acts of aſſembly, concerning naval officers, and the collection of duties." The third ſection of which, is as follows:

"Provided always, and be it enacted, That no duties ſhall be payable on any articles, imported for the uſe of this commonwealth, or which are the property of the United States, or either of them. Provided alſo, that no duties ſhall be payable on any articles imported directly by water, in veſſels belonging to the citizens of the United States, which ſhall be proved to be of the growth, or manufacture of the ſtate from which they ſhall be imported, by a certificate thereof under the hand of a notary public, naval officer, or a chief magiſtrate, of the place of their exportation."

At a late meeting of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the following communications were made, viz.

NEW-YORK, April 25.

Laſt Monday, the anniverſary of the Thrice Renowned St. George, was celebrated by the gentlemen of the Engliſh nation, and many worthy deſcendants of Engliſhmen, at Corre's tavern, where the trueſt affection, joy and conviviality delighted fourſcore of the merrieſt mortals this ſide old Styx.

Philadelphia, May 2.

The divan at Conſtantinople have publiſhed an account, that news has been received from the captain pacha in Egypt, with advice, that two pachas at the head of twenty thouſand men, had rallied on the rebel beys, whom they defeated and obliged to leave all their baggage and camp equipage, having run to the town of Gerge, in Upper Egypt. It is ſaid at Conſtantinople, that the Baſſa Seyde is appointed to ſucceed the captain pacha in the chief command, and is going to Alexandria (where the Turkiſh fleet lay on the thirtieth of November) to take the command.

A London paper of January 10, ſays, "A general joy is diffuſed throughout the kingdom of France, on account of the grand aſſembly which is to meet on the 29th of January. There has not been a ſimilar meeting held ſince 1626. There are one hundred and forty perſons ſummoned beſides the moſt qualified of the clergy, nobility, magiſtrates of the moſt principal towns; the firſt preſidents and procureurs generale of the ſovereign courts are alſo convoked. The fundamental laws of France were eſtabliſhed in like manner in the time of Charlemagne."

To be Sold by Public Vendue,

THIS DAY, the 2d inſt. at 12 o'clock, at the Old Coffee houſe,

A Valuable Tract of Land, containing 212 acres and 110 perches, ſituate in Tinicum townſhip, county of Bucks, on which is a good log dwelling houſe, ſome cleared land, about 7 acres of which are meadow, and about 50 acres more may be made with ſmall expence. What makes this farm peculiarly valuable, is its timber, meadow ground, and ſituation, it being within two miles of the river Delaware, and about 45 miles from the city of Philadelphia, to which all the produce may be conveniently ſent by water.

Paper money of the late emiſſion of this ſtate will be received in payment, and an unexceptionable title made to the purchaſer.

A SECOND

Courſe of Lectures,

By a LADY.

THE FIRST LECTURE of this COURSE will be read in the Univerſity on Thurſday the 3d inſtant, at Half paſt Seven o'clock preciſely.

It will contain, excluſive of the preliminary diſcourſe, on the origin of language, ſuch ſelections from Milton, Shakeſpear, Thomſon, Pope, Young and Shenſtone, as have a tendency to improve the heart and enlarge the underſtanding.

The ELEGY on LAURA, tranſlated from Petrarch by Sir William Jones, will be read that evening, at the particular requeſt of ſeveral ladies, who have already heard and admired this delightful compoſition, which will doubtleſs immortalize the memory of the tranſlator, as it has already done the author.

The numerous attendance on theſe readings is ample proof of their innocence and rationality, eſpecially when it is conſidered that the audience was compoſed of gentlemen of the three learned profeſſions, ladies of the moſt elevated rank and fortune, as well as a number of eminent citizens, who introduced their wives and daughters into a ſociety, where nothing could be heard but the beauties of poetical genius, ſelected with care, and an anxiety to convey general ſatisfaction.

Tickets may be had of Meſſrs. Prichard, Seddon, Spotſwood, Peloſi, and Rice, in Market & Front ſtreets.

James Miller,

At his Store in Front-ſtreet, between Cheſnut and Walnut-ſtreets,

Has juſt received by the Polly and Hetty and Grange from Liverpool, and ſhip Harmony from London,

A neat Aſſortment of GOODS,

Suitable to the ſeaſon; among which are

JEANS and fuſtians, half ell and half yard; an elegant aſſortment of chintzes and callicoes, printed velvets, black, buff and olive ditto, 7-8, yard wide, and 3 8 cotton and linen checks, cotton and linen ſtripes, bed ticken, 6-4 and 6-4 and a half bed bunts, coloured thread, corduroys, death-head buttons and quality bindings. A handſome aſſortment of laces and edgings, Dutch lace, white and brown buckram, 3-4 and 7-8 German dowlas, brown ſileſias, 9-8 wide ſheeting, 7-8 and yard wide Iriſh linens, India perſians, red and white flannel, durants and joan's ſpinning, 4 1 2 pins; alſo large pins, Duncombe and white metal buttons, men and women's cotton hoſe, men and boys thread ditto, ivory and horn combs, ribbons, ſewing ſilk, Gunpowder F and FF, &c. &c. all of which he will diſpoſe of on the moſt reaſonable terms.

FIRST NOTICE.

In the caſe of George Way,

A BANKRUPT.

WHEREAS a commiſſion of Bankrupt is awarded and iſſued forth againſt George Way, of the city of Philadelphia, coachmaker; and he being declared a bankrupt, is hereby required to ſurrender himſelf to the commiſſioners in ſaid commiſſion named, or the major part of them on Thurſday the 3d day of May, inſt. on Thurſday the 17th day of the ſame month, and on Tueſday the 12th day of June following, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of ſaid days, at the ſtate houſe in the city of Philadelphia, and make a full diſcovery and diſcloſure of his eſtate and effects; when and where the creditors are to come prepared to prove their debts; at the ſecond meeting to chuſe Aſſignees, and at the laſt meeting the ſaid bankrupt is required to finiſh his examination.

All perſons indebted to the ſaid bankrupt, or who have any of his effects, are not to pay or deliver the ſame but to whom the commiſſioners ſhall appoint, but give notice thereof to the ſubſcriber.

By Order of the Commiſſioners,
JOHN JENNINGS, Clerk.

Office, Watkins's-alley, May 1, 1787. 2.9.23.

ON SPRING.

AGAIN the bloſſom'd hedge is ſeen,
The turf again is dreſt in green;
Again the larks aſcend the ſky,
And leſſen on the diſtant eye.

Each length'ning morn's diurnal light
Beams freſher beauties on the ſight;
The leaves hang cluſt'ring on the trees,
And health comes riding on the breeze.

The ſwallow, that the meads forſook,
Reviſits now and ſkims the brook;
The feather'd tribes on every tree
Chaunt lively carols to the day.

Where'er the goddeſs fans her way,
Creation feels her genial ſway;
The gardens moiſt with April ſhow'rs,
Teem with a family of flowers.

Not even a ray, or drop of rain
Falls from Heav'n, or ſhines in vain;
Beyond our wiſhes God is kind—
Let Gratitude then fill the mind.

ANECDOTE.

THE duke of B—— keeps an idiot whom he calls Blue Jack—who for ſome time has been perſuaded, that he every night ſaw the Devil. The chaplain undertook to argue him out of the notion. How do you know, ſays he, that it was the Devil? Know, cries Jack, I am ſure it was he; for he was a long, tall black man, as like yourſelf, as if you had been ſpit out of his mouth.

Six Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the Subſcriber the 28th inſtant, in Warrington townſhip, Bucks county, a Dutch ſervant man named Daniel Mulk, by trade a Baker; had on and took with him a dark brown looſe coat, and a tight bodied coat of the ſame colour, brown homeſpun ſhirt, black velvet breeches, a pair of half worn ſhoes with leather ſtrings, blue ribbed ſtockings; but took other cloaths with him. He is about 5 feet 6 inches high, and ſpeaks very bad Engliſh; he is of a dark complexion, and has a large mouth, with thick lips. It is ſuppoſed he is gone to Philadelphia, as he has ſeveral ſhipmates there. He is about 22 years of age. Whoever ſecures ſaid ſervant in any goal, or brings him to the ſubſcriber in Warrington townſhip, Bucks county, ſhall receive the above reward from me;

April 30 GEORGE FOSTER.

TO BE SOLD,

A Small Houſe and Lot in Dock, near Second ſtreet, now in the tenure of William M'Clure: the lot is 28 feet front on Dock ſtreet, and extends back to the middle of a brick wall about 28 or 29 feet: there is on ſaid lot a brick houſe in front, two ſtories high, and a frame in the rear alſo two ſtories high, part of the roof newly covered: the whole would, it is expected, with a little repair, let for 40 or 45l. pounds per annum.

A pleaſant Country Seat, ſituate on the banks of Schuylkill, next to George Gray's ferry, containing about 36 acres of good land, with the improvements: conſiſting of a well finiſhed brick houſe, a tenant's houſe, alſo of brick, a good ſtore, barn and ſtables, a good orchard, a garden with fruit trees, ſpring houſe, pump of good water, &c. &c.

A Piece of good Meadow on Greenwich iſland, adjoining meadows of William Shipley, and William Craig, eſq; containing about 7 or 7 and a half acres.

Two Lots of Ground on the eaſt ſide of Third, between Spruce and Union ſtreets, 41 feet front on Third ſtreet and 160 feet in depth. For terms apply to THOMAS FRANKLIN, in Third ſtreet.

Philadelphia, April 4, 1787.

City-Tavern and Coffee-Houſe.

Edward Moyſton

TAKES this method of returning his ſincere thanks to thoſe ladies and gentlemen who have been pleaſed to honor his houſe with their cuſtom, and hopes for a continuance of their favours, and the public in general. Having provided himſelf with cooks of experience, both in the French and Engliſh taſte, he flatters himſelf that he will be able to give ſatisfaction to thoſe who pleaſe to uſe his houſe, and careful attendance ſhall never be wanting to render their accommodation agreeable. Ladies and gentlemen travellers can be commodiouſly lodged at the tavern, as he hath fitted up chambers in a more convenient manner than they have heretofore been, for the reception of his gueſts. Horſes and carriages ſhall be taken the greateſt care of, and every exertion of his uſed to render their accommodation complete. He has laid in a freſh ſupply of liquors of the very firſt quality. w&ſ3m.

TO BE SOLD, A

VALUABLE Plantation, pleaſantly ſituated in Briſtol townſhip, Bucks county, two miles from the borough of Briſtol and 8 miles from Trenton, containing about 440 acres of Land: the ſoil fertile, and equal in goodneſs to any in the townſhip; 150 acres of which are cleared, and fitted for the plough, 20 acres of meadow in good graſs, and more may eaſily be made, the remainder is woodland well timbered. The above tract is well ſituated, and calculated for dividing into two Farms, there being two comfortable log dwelling houſes on the premiſes, two young orchards, with a well of good water near each houſe. The river Delaware running in front of the farm, affords a convenient and cheap way to tranſport the produce of ſaid place to the markets of this or the Jerſey ſtate, which is an object of conſiderable importance to the farmer. For further particulars apply to JOHN BOOZE, living near the premiſes, or to ROBERT WALN, in Philadelphia.

March 24. ſ&wtf COXE & FRAZIER.

Calico Printing and Bleaching.

THE ſubſcriber begs leave to inform merchants, traders and the public in general, that he has fitted up the Bleachfield in Lower Merion townſhip, ten miles from Philadelphia—(lately poſſeſſed by Daniel Burrell) and is now ready to carry on the printing and bleaching branches on the ſame principles they are conducted in Britain. Merchants and traders may be ſupplied with patterns to ſuit the fancy of their cuſtomers, and the farmer and mechanic enjoy with ſatisfaction the fruits of their domeſtic induſtry. Pattern books to be ſeen, and cloth taken in by Robert Aitkin, bookſeller, in Market-ſtreet, near the coffee houſe, and Young and M'Culloch, bookſellers, the corner of Cheſnut and Second-ſtreets, Philadelphia. At the mill of Thomas and Jehu Roberts, in Lower Merion; by Samuel Livezey, at his ſtore at Spring Mills, and at the Field, at all which places receipts will be given—Care will be taken to do the work in a ſufficient manner, and to return it in proper time, by the public's moſt humble ſervant, ROB. TAYLOR.

The prices of Bleaching are, for all plain linen yard wide, or under, wove in a 900 reed 4d. per yard, 1000 5d. 1200 6d. 1400 8d. finer in proportion; yarns and threads bleached and dyed, and all ſalt water ſtains taken out of white and dyed linens, cottons, kentings, ſtockings, &c. ſ&w3m

The Noted STALLION

E C L I P S E,

HAVING for four years ſucceſſively ſtood at the ſame place as a COVERING HORSE, and been frequently ſhewn at the Coffee-Houſe in the city of Philadelphia, and at all times and places where he has been viewed and examined by any gentleman ſportſman, or judge of that noble animal, ſtill allowed to be the moſt complete figure of a horſe they had ever ſeen; and it is as generally acknowledged, "that for beauty, carriage and ſpeed," he is not excelled by any on this continent, nor is there any more certain and noted for getting ſuperior elegant colts; many of which are now very valuable, and may be ſeen in the poſſeſſion of ſeveral gentlemen in the neighbourhood.

ECLIPSE having thus ſo juſtly ſupported the higheſt reputation of a Covering Stallion, by giving full ſatisfaction to the ſubſcriber's friends, is, for the conveniency of ſuch gentlemen as chooſe to breed elegant horſes from him, ſtill continued at the old place, the late ſeat of Mr. Robert Hopkins, deceaſed, on Point-no-Point, five miles from Philadelphia, to COVER this ſeaſon, at Three Pounds Five Shillings each Mare. The horſe is ſo generally known, that it almoſt ſeems ſuperfluous to ſay any thing as to deſcribing him, and only for cuſtom it were entirely unneceſſary: however, he is full blooded, a moſt beautiful bright bay, ſtrong black mane and tail, and well marked, full fifteen hands and an inch high, every way truly proportioned, and of ſuperior figure, riſing eight old, of great ſtrength and action, and his pedigree is up to the firſt breed of horſes ever on the continent, a Fearnought, a Herod, &c. The particular deſcent will be given to thoſe gentlemen who pleaſe to favour the ſubſcriber with their preference.

Good Paſture on reaſonable terms, and every neceſſary care taken of the mares while in the ſubſcriber's charge. The money to be paid before they are taken away,

JACOB BATES.

N. B. For the ſatisfaction of the Public, and obſervation of gentlemen ſportſmen, judges of horſes, ECLIPSE will be ſhewn at the Coffee-Houſe, on Market days, when the weather is fine, and will be ſold if a generous price is offered. Point-no-Point, April 16. tf.

Shot belts, pouches, and powder horns :
Alſo, a few elegant ſteel hilted ſmall ſwords, curiouſly ornamented,
London made ſtays, ſome of which are pack thread, of the firſt workmanſhip,
Upwards of 500 pieces of paper hangings, ſorted, ſome with ſilver :
Likewiſe, a quantity of muſic paper,
And very fine wire for muſical inſtruments ;
All which will be ſold conſiderably under coſt.

N. B. All kinds of Merchandize on Commiſſion, diſpoſed of at Private Sale.

To-Morrow, the 4th inſtant,

At Nine o'clock in the morning,
At the Northern Liberty Auction-ſtore,
Will commence the Sale of a large and general
Aſſortment of Merchandize.

And between the hours of Twelve and one will be ſold A Quantity of London made Plate, (Particularly deſcribed in hand-bills put up for that purpoſe) and may be ſeen at the Store.

THE Auctioneers return their moſt grateful thanks to thoſe who have been pleaſed to entruſt them with the ſale of their goods, and aſſure them, that every attention to their intereſt will be paid both in the ſales and payments.

They likewiſe beg leave to inform their friends and the public, (who wiſh to purchaſe goods) that Tueſdays and Fridays are the ſtated days for ſale of dry goods, and Saturday in the forenoon for houſhold and kitchen furniture: and from the encouragement hitherto received, they have no doubt of keeping up a general aſſortment. For Sale by Public Vendue,

At the Coffee-Houſe, on *SATURDAY next, the 5th Inſtant, May, at 12 o'Clock,
(If not ſold before at Private Sale)

THAT pleaſant Seat, formerly the eſtate of Robert Hopkins, deceaſed, ſituate in the precinct of Richmond, commonly called Point-no-Point, 5 miles from the city of Philadelphia, conſiſting of a manſion houſe and 9 acres and 13 perches of excellent land.

The manſion houſe is 58 feet front, of a beautiful hewn ſtone, and 38 feet deep, with 4 rooms on each floor, elegantly finiſhed ; 3 of the rooms on the ground floor wainſcotted on the ſides ſurbace high, and the fourth is wainſcotted quite up to the ceiling, with a handſome cornice in each room ; the chimnies are decorated with poliſhed marble, and two of the hearths are marble ; the entry is 12 feet wide, ornamented with the Dorick entablature, well executed, and pediments over the door of each room ; the ſtaircaſe is ramp and twiſt with handſome brackets ; the rooms on the ſecond floor are genteely finiſhed, two of them decorated with marble chimney pieces and hearths ; the garret is very large and roomy : on the houſe-top are iron rails and mouldings of wood by way of balcony, from whence there is a beautiful proſpect of the neighbouring ſeats, the river Delaware and the Jerſey ſhore : the front door is arched, and calculated to admit of ornaments in the higheſt degree of elegance : the kitchen is convenient and the cellars very good, with two commodious and valuable vaults adjoining the houſe.

There is on the premiſes, a coach houſe, a framed hay houſe 64 by 25 feet, a ſtone ſmoak houſe, and at a little diſtance from the manſion houſe, a ſmall tenement with a cellar under it, a waſh houſe adjoining, and a pump of good water before the door ; an orchard of about 100 trees of the beſt apples, and a collection of other fruits of the beſt kind, with a good kitchen garden now planted for family uſe.

The road leading from the city to this Seat, is not only level and very pleaſant, but more uniformly good at all ſeaſons of the year than any other road near the city.

It will be ſold ſubject to the payment of one fourth part of 75 ounces of coined gold of the kingdom of Portugal, to Elizabeth Hopkins, daughter of Iſaac Hopkins, when ſhe ſhall arrive at the age of 21 years, or to her heirs, according to the will of the ſaid Robert Hopkins, deceaſed,

One half the purchaſe money to be paid in 10 days after the ſale, and the remainder in 6 months. For further particulars enquire of the ſubſcriber, on the premiſes. J. BATES.

N. B. A Plan of the Premiſes may be ſeen at the Coffee-Houſe.

* The Sale of the above Place having been poſtponed, was entirely owing to a multiplicity of buſineſs crouding on the Auctioneer, on the Day propoſed ; but it will poſitively come on, and be duly attended to, on Saturday next, the 5th of May. May 1. ep

Peter Wikoff, Auctioneer.

To be Sold by Public Vendue,

On Seventh Day, May 12th, next, on the Premiſes, at Eayre's-Town, Burlington county, New-Jerſey,

A SECOND

Courſe of Lectures,

By a LADY.

THE FIRST LECTURE of this COURSE will be read in the Univerſity on Friday the 11th inſtant, at Half paſt Seven o'clock preciſely.

It will contain, excluſive of the preliminary diſcourſe, on the origin of language, ſuch ſelections from Milton, Shakeſpear, Thomſon, Pope, Young and Shenſtone, as have a tendency to improve the heart and enlarge the underſtanding.

The ELEGY on LAURA, tranſlated from Petrarch by Sir William Jones, will be read that evening, at the particular requeſt of ſeveral ladies, who have already heard and admired this delightful compoſition, which will doubtleſs immortalize the memory of the tranſlator, as it has already done the author.

The numerous attendance on theſe readings is ample proof of their innocence and rationality, eſpecially when it is conſidered that the audience was compoſed of gentlemen of the three learned profeſſions, ladies of the moſt elevated rank and fortune, as well as a number of eminent citizens, who introduced their wives and daughters into a ſociety, where nothing could be heard but the beauties of poetical genius, ſelected with care, and an anxiety to convey general ſatisfaction.

Tickets may be had of Meſſrs. Prichard, Seddon, Spotſwood, Peloſi, and Rice, in Market & Front ſtreets.

N. B. A ſlight Indiſpoſition neceſſarily obliges the Lady to poſtpone this Lecture until the 11th Inſtant.

To be SOLD or LET,

Upon Improving Leaſes, the following

Tracts of Patented Land,

—VIZ.—

ONE tract containing 375 acres and allowance of ſix per cent. for roads, ſituated on a branch of Cox's creek, in Millford townſhip, Bedford county, adjoining lands formerly James Wilſon's. On this tract there is an excellent mill ſeat. The land good in quality, and a large proportion of meadow may be made.

One tract containing 357 acres and allowance, ſituate on the heads of Cox's creek in Quemahone townſhip, Bedford county, adjoining lands of George Shaver, James Glentworth and John Penrod. This land is of an excellent quality and affords a large proportion of meadow ground.

One tract containing 351 acres and allowance, ſituate in the head of Spruce run (a branch of Cox's creek) adjoining the laſt mentioned tract, Joſeph Heibler's, Jacob Smucker's and George Shaver's land. This is ſaid to be a capital tract, and equal (if not ſuperior) in quality to any lands in Quemahone.

One tract containing 302 acres and allowance, ſituate on a branch of Wells's creek, adjoining the laſt mentioned tract, Jacob Smucker and others. This is likewiſe good land and will afford plenty of meadow ground.

N. B. The above lands are in the middle of a German ſettlement and likely to become very valuable from the extenſion of the navigation into the weſtern country by the Virginia company, from which navigation it will not be more than a day's journey.

Likewiſe, the four following tracts of land in the county of Northampton, ſituate on the waters of Lehevaxen.

One tract containing	307	acres and	allowance.
One ditto	292	ditto	ditto.
One ditto	334	ditto	ditto.
One ditto	330	ditto	ditto.

N. B. Theſe four tracts lie within eight or ten miles of the river Delaware, adjoining Robert Lettis Hooper, eſquire, and lands formerly Robert Wilſon's ; they are prime lands and muſt be valuable when the navigation of the Delaware becomes an object of legiſlative attention, which undoubtedly muſt be very ſoon.

Any perſon inclinable to purchaſe, or take upon an improving leaſe, either of the ſaid tracts of land, or would wiſh to exchange merchandiſe, public ſecurities or real property in or near this city, for all or any part of them, may know the terms by applying to the owner, in Sixth ſtreet, between Market and Cheſnut ſtreets.

PARIS, February 5.

A FAILURE has happened here to the amount of about two millions. The bankrupt, is the receiver general for the generality of Auch. This unhappy man is thought to have drowned himſelf. He ſet out as if he was going to Verſailles. His carriage ſtopped at Seve to change horſes, and he got out; but when the chaiſe was ready he was no where to be found, and it being night, all ſearch was in vain.

BERLIN, December 28

There has been ſent to all paſtors and preachers in the country, by orders of the king, directions, that they ſhould add to their catechiſm and inſtructions in chriſtianity, an account of the puniſhments inflicted by the laws on ſuch as are guilty of murder, theft, and other atrocious crimes, that all perſons may be acquainted with the pains they are to expect here, as well as hereafter, for their wickedneſs.

LONDON.

Jan. 19. By letters from Conſtantinople, dated the 3d of November, we learn, that on that day, the cannon at the gates of the Seraglio were fired, to announce the melancholy news of the death of the beloved ſultan and ſovereign Abdul Hamid ;—ſincerely regretted by the whole empire, for the care and regard he had to his ſubjects in general, and for the mildneſs with which his reign has been diſtinguiſhed. His highneſs never enjoyed a good ſtate of health, owing to a violent diſorder in the ſtomach, which often attacked him. He has left behind him 12000 favourites, whom he particularly diſtinguiſhed excluſive of the ſultanas and the prince Selim, who is preſumptive heir to the throne ; and who, with all the activity poſſible for his years, will continue the juſt war, hoping God will preſerve us from every evil that is feared through the loſs of our late ſovereign.

It is a fact, at this time affecting as it is delightful, that the Sunday ſchools now eſtabliſhed in different parts of this kingdom, amount in number to one hundred and fifty, where ſeven thouſand five hundred and upwards of young people voluntarily flock for inſtruction: as they are all of the pooreſt parents, the rewards given them for good behaviour and improvement, are ſhoes, ſtockings, a ſhirt, a ſhift, a petticoat, and ſuch like uſeful things. Every neighbourhood where they are eſtabliſhed, has become reformed into ſobriety ; and the farmers can now leave their houſes without fear of daily depredations as heretofore—the parents of the children are reformed, and have the benefit of ſetting their children good examples, and of ſeeing them improve in truth and virtue—and all this, perfectly conſiſtent with their ſtation, and not interrupting the daily labour which that ſtation requires. Nothing is taught them but the plain truths which they ought to know, and are able to comprehend.

The following is extracted from a very long letter received from an Engliſh gentleman now at Naples:

" I have been at Rome the holy, Florence the fine, Venice the rich, Genoa the ſtately, Ravenan the ancient, Milan the great, Leghorn the buſy, Caſſal the powerful, Lucca the beautiful, Verona the charming, and am now at Naples the noble."—Theſe are all Italian ſea ports. Speaking particularly of Rome, he ſays, " If you would wiſh to ſee this city in its meridian ſplendour, you muſt be there at St. Peter's feaſt. The illumination of the church begins with a gentle light, which you might eaſily miſtake for the reflection of the ſetting ſun! It then ſends forth ſome pieces of beautiful architecture, and finiſhes with waving flames, making a moving picture! All this attended with fire-works ſo brilliant that you would think the ſtars were plucked from heaven, and burſt upon the earth!"

Kiovi, in the Cherſoneſus, where the Ruſſian empreſs meditates to have a conference with the emperor of Germany, was once the capital of the Ruſſian empire, and the ſeat of royal reſidence. It is ſurrounded with Tartars, whom Peter the Great ſubdued at the beginning of the preſent century. Captain Bruce, in his account of that expedition undertaken by Peter and Catharine in the preſent century, ſays, that they are the handſomeſt people in the world, live in the moſt elegant ſtate of cleanlineſs, and poſſeſs gardens which are often fifteen miles in continuance. One of the tribes, the Degeſthans, gave the Ruſſians a formidable degree of oppoſition, but they were at length vanquiſhed on the borders of Perſia. It is probable that the preſent empreſs is excited by curioſity to ſee theſe extraordinary people, but that Joſeph the Second's complaiſance ſhould lead him ſo far from his own ſeat of empire is very improbable, though ſo confidently aſſerted in the foreign prints.

Mr. Adams, the American ambaſſador, has had ſeveral conferences with the ſecretaries of ſtate ſince the receipt of the laſt diſpatches from Mr. Temple, his majeſty's envoy at New York ; and it is the report, that the arrangement of the articles of a commercial treaty between Great-Britain and America is very near being completed.

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, December 27.

" Arrived the Two Siſters, captain Carter, from Philadelphia, for London, with the loſs of her main and mizen maſts and leaky. The captain reports, that the 20th they fell in with two Algerine xebeques, mounting 30 guns, who boarded her ; but the captain ſhewing his papers, which convinced them that ſhe was Engliſh property, they ſuffered her to paſs. They had a large American bark, ſeemingly laden with tobacco."

Letters from the Hague mention the prince having received an invitation to the court of Berlin till his affairs are ſettled.

Extract of a letter from Nimeguen, January 3.

" The viſitors to the prince of Orange at his hotel in this city, during the holidays, have been both numerous and reſpectable. All perſons of any conſideration in the neighbourhood make a point of keeping up the etiquette of the ſtadtholder as the repreſentative of the ſovereignty of the confederate provinces : three or four of the foreign miniſters are alſo now here, viz. The Engliſh, French, Pruſſian, and Daniſh."

The ſociety of Haerlem, in Holland, have propoſed the following queſtion, to be anſwered in Latin, French, Dutch, or Engliſh, before the month of April, 1788. " By what rule of conduct, founded on theory, and confirmed by experience, can the health of thoſe who go to the Eaſt-Indies, and entirely change their climate as well as their manner of living, be beſt preſerved?—Independent of general rules, can any particular ones be pointed out which will admit of variation, according to the rank of thoſe individuals to whom they are to be applied?

The low and miſerably ſtate of the French finances, ſhews that the laſt war has proved more expenſive and diſtreſſing to France than to us ; and that ſhe was, in her aſſiſtance to America, the dupe of Dr. Franklin, without gaining any ſolid advantage for the monies, fleets, and armies, ſhe ſent thither. The king of Spain, though always called a weak man, had ſenſe enough to avoid being made the dupe of his miniſters in this inſtance ; and, therefore the finances of Spain are not deranged and diſtreſſed like thoſe of France

The little living phoſphoric inſect, is probably ſimilar to the ſhining flies found in Italy, which are about the ſize of a bee——————the belly of which is ſo luminous, that three of them incloſed in a tube of white glaſs, will light a chamber. M. l'Abbe Nollet has proved, that the light of this inſect extends over the place where it has been cruſhed. An Engliſh nobleman, lately arrived from Italy, ſaw an infinite number of theſe inſects in that country. The ditches about Mantua abound with them; and the graſs and trees were covered with them, which, by night, produced a moſt luminous and agreeable effect.

St. James's, Jan. 19. This day L'Hajee Abdrahman, Aga, ambaſſador from Tripoli, had his audience of leave of his majeſty:

To which he was introduced by the right honorable lord Sydney, one of his majeſty's principal ſecretaries of ſtate, and conducted by Stephen Cottrel, Eſq aſſiſtant maſter of the ceremonies.

Extract of a letter from Paris, January 7.

" The number of proteſtants in France amounts to four millions ; before 1685 the amounted to five millions five hundred thouſand ; the political affair by which it is intended to give them an eſtabliſhment is ſet aſide to the 22d of April. The advantages ſaid to be deſigned for thoſe unfortunate, uſeful ſubjects of this kingdom are ſaid to be, 1ſt. The civil eſtate, when they will be enabled to purchaſe land and immovables. 2d. They will be admitted into the chambers of commerce, as they are at preſent at Montpelier and Rochelle. 3d. They may become lawyers and fill thoſe places at the bar where the oath is not neceſſary. 4th. They will in the military ſervice be entitled to the croſs of the order de merite as Frenchmen and not as foreigners."

Extract of a letter from Paris, January 8.

" The third of laſt month died, in the 80th year of his age, Monſ. Roſſet du Pont, an eminent ſtatuary of St Cloude, in French Compte. The late king of Pruſſia entertained the higheſt opinion of this ſculptor's abilities, and declared that no one could give life to a buſt in ſo ſuperior a manner as Roſſet."

Extract of a letter from Tunis, November 20.

" Our Bey, who depended much upon the captain pacha, and reſted his ſalvation and tranquility upon the ſuccours promiſed him by that admiral, finds himſelf moſt cruelly diſappointed, and in the moſt critical ſituation, ſince 2 of his miniſters, whom he ſent as deputies to Egypt, have received the following anſwer from the admiral: " That the orders of the divan, the troubles of Egypt, and, thoſe troubles appeaſed, a campaign to be entered upon, puts it out of his power to give the bey any ſuccours, which would certainly not have been refuſed in more peaceable times. That in the mean time he adviſed the bey to defend his eſtates, as well as he can, and that he wiſhed him all poſſible ſucceſs." This anſwer, which could not be kept long from the public, was no ſooner known than the people ſhewed evident ſigns of mutiny. The inhabitants of Suza or Sfax loudly demand peace, which is abſolutely neceſſary for them, to repair the immenſe damages they have ſuffered. Several members of government are, on the other hand, fomenting the diſcord which prevails, which has got to ſuch a pitch, that a few nights ſince, three Moors were ſeized with a quantity of combuſtible matter, with which they were endeavouring to ſet fire to the dock-yard of the regency.

" It is ſuppoſed that the paſſage in the anſwer of the captain pacha, which mentions a campaign to be entered upon, relates to the Venetians ; it is certain that the republics are perſuaded that the ſtorm is going to buſt upon them, as their fleet has quitted our ports to cruiſe nearer home."

The duke of Orleans, who may really be ſaid " to enjoy the luxury of doing good," has granted freely, with a generous heart, and without being ſolicited, penſions of 800 livres (about 35l.) to twelve literary perſons of merit ; among others to M. Bernardin de St Pierre, author of Les Etudee de la Nature, who was almoſt in indigence, owing to ſeveral unlucky incidents in the tranſactions of his affairs.

The Philanthropic Society eſtabliſhed at Orleans, under the patronage of the duke and ducheſs of Orleans, have raiſed a fund for ſupporting all the poor people above 80 years old, orphans, and widows encumbered with more than three children, eighty ſick perſons, and one hundred and ſixty lying in-women, in the town of Orleans.

It appears from hiſtory, that the French buſied themſelves but little in trade under the two firſt races of their kings, leaving it almoſt to foreigners. Spain furniſhed them with horſes and mules ; Frieſland with party coloured mantles, upper garments furſed with marten, otter, and cat-ſkin ; England with grain, iron, tin, lead, leather, and hounds; the eaſt and Africa with drugs, exquiſite wines, and Egyptian paper, the only ſort uſed in France till the 12th century, and olive oil, which at that time was ſo ſcarce in our climates, that a council held at Aix-la-Chapelle, monks were permitted to uſe bacon oil. If foreigners imported only common goods to France, its exports were anſwerable, conſiſting uſually of potter's ware, braizery, wine, honey, madder, and ſalt.

Feb. 28. Amongſt the pleaſantries of the day, is to be recorded one of young Sturt, member for Dorſetſhire. Being fond of ſailing, laſt ſummer he went over in a veſſel of his own to Dieppe, on his coming in there, the French cuſtom houſe officers came on board, to ſearch his lockers, &c. according to cuſtom, and went down for that purpoſe. It was late in the evening, and while they were thus buſily employed below, young Sturt weighed anchor, and landed the gentlemen very ſafely at Poole, in Dorſetſhire. Three weeks afterwards they were walking about the town, wiſhing the French cuſtom-houſe at the devil. As Mr. Sturt is a member he ſhould certainly move for ſomething in the commercial treaty in exchange for theſe gentlemen.

As the pope is now ſaid to be ſuppreſſing convents, we ſhould not do amiſs if we were to ſuppreſs, or at leaſt give a check to, our conventicles. It has long been complained, that in the general venality of the times, juſtice has been bought and ſold. But we now carry this corrupt principle ſtill farther ; and not content with the ſale of law, bring divinity likewiſe to the market.

It connot be ſaid that, in theſe days, " the poor have the goſpel preached to them," for while the churches are deſerted, faihion has raiſed the price of admiſſion into the meeting houſes and methodiſts chapels to ſuch a degree, that none but the rich can afford to enter.

March 1. It is an indiſputable fact, that the W. I. iſlands are, at this time, of the firſt importance to this country. Mr. Pitt himſelf cannot deny it ; for the duty on rum, in the very year that he takes his data from, that is the year 1785, amounted to a larger ſum than the land tax of all Great Britain. The land tax of the whole iſland, when at four ſhillings in the pound, produces one million, eight hundred thouſand pounds. And the duties on rum, for the year 1785, produced one million, eight hundred and ſixty ſix thouſand, four hundred and thirty two pounds. This great and growing revenue is now about to be annihilated in compliment to our old and inveterate enemies the French ; who want to deluge us with their brandy.

A report prevailed in Paris, when our laſt letters came away, that the grand ſignior had been dethroned ; and that his nephew was declared by the populace to be his ſucceſſor. This was the more readily ſubmitted, to in order to quiet the riotous diſpoſition which appeared in Conſtantinople, owing to the bads news lately received from Egypt.

AMERICA.

BOSTON, April 23.

On Thurſday laſt the anniverſary of the ever memorable nineteenth of April, the Independent Light Infantry, commanded by major Otis, made their firſt public appearance in complete uniform.—The company met at Faneuil Hall, and at 10 o'clock marched to the common, on the ground appointed for the review—the right platoon was then detached, with the enſign, to receive the ſtandard, which was preſented by Thomas Ruſſell, eſquire. The colours were then received by the company with the uſual military parade, and at twelve o'clock his excellency the governor, with his honor the lieutenant governor, the adjutant general, and ſeveral officers and gentlemen of diſtinction, reviewed the company. His excellency was pleaſed to addreſs the gentlemen as follows :

Gentlemen of the Light Infantry Company,

THE military ſpirit which has lately appeared in the town of Boſton, reflects great honor upon its citizens : and among thoſe, who poſſeſs the moſt of it, the company of Light Infantry is not the leaſt diſtinguiſhed. This has appeared upon ſeveral occaſions lately ; and has been verified by the review, which has juſt taken place.

That ſuch a ſpirit is neceſſary to the preſervation of liberty, the events that followed the memorable 19th of April, of which this day is the anniverſary, do clearly demonſtrate.

By its vigorous and unremitted exertions, it then laid the foundation of American liberty ; and has ſince defended it, againſt the attacks of internal, as well as external foes. It will therefore be an act of wiſdom in the people at large, to encourage that ſpirit, and be a proof of your patriotiſm to continue theſe exhibitions of it.

As my public relation to you, and the militia in general, will very ſoon terminate ; it is with pleaſure, gentlemen, I embrace the preſent opportunity, to wiſh you and them, both perſonally and corporately every poſſible happineſs.

JAMES BOWDOIN.

Boſton, April 19, 1787.

To which Major OTIS, in behalf of the Company, returned the following anſwer—

May it pleaſe your Excellency.

IT is eſteemed by the Independent Light Infantry, one of our moſt pleaſurable duties, to return our public thanks, for the attention with which we are honored, and for the flattering approbation of our youthful efforts, which your excellency has been pleaſed to expreſs. We are ſenſible of our very limited claim to the honor of diffuſing the military ſpirit, which has been relumined under your excellency's adminiſtration ; and our higheſt merit ariſes from the ardency of our wiſhes, that in whatever ſphere your excellency may move, the influence of your counſels may be commenſurate with the bleſſings of future generations. After which the company eſcorted the governor and his ſuite through the town, to his excellency's houſe, where an elegant collation was provided. At 2 the company marched into State ſtreet, and performed their different evolutions and firings, in the preſence of an applauding crowd of ſpectators. The gentlemen of the company then retired to dine at Whig-Hall, where a number of patriotic toaſts were drank, and the day concluded with univerſal ſatisfaction.

It is with inexpreſſible ſorrow, we relate, that about ſunſet laſt Friday evening, a fire broke out in a malt-houſe belonging to Mr. William Patten, near the Liberty Pole, at the ſouth end of this town, and was attended with a deſtruction ſimilar to which the inhabitants of this town have not experienced ſince the year 1760. The wind at N. E blowing hard, carried the flakes of fire to a great height and diſtance, by which, the houſes, being very dry, were ſet on fire in ſo many places, as rendered it impoſſible to direct the exertions of the inhabitants to any point. The ſpire of the reverend Mr. White's meeting-houſe, ſituated at the diſtance of near 50 rods from the place where the devaſtation firſt began, was obſerved to be on fire, at the ball juſt below the vane, in leſs than 15 minutes——as this could not be extinguiſhed by reaſon of its height, the fire falling therefrom, and from the houſes then in flames, in a ſhort time demoliſhed that large edifice. In the direction of the wind for a ſpace of 20 rods wide, the fire carried havoc as far as the building extended, croſſing the Main ſtreet, and deſtroying the buildings one ſide from Mr. Knapp's to Mr. Bradford's ; and on the other ſide from Mrs. Inches to Mr. Oſborn's.

The following is a liſt of the perſons who were burnt out, viz.

On the eaſt ſide of the ſtreet. William Patten, Joſiah Knapp, Samuel Heyley, Daniel Bates, Mrs. Searl, John Fenno, Spencer Voſe, Dennis Welch, Joſhua Henſhaw, eſquire, Dorothy Wharton, John Fairſervice, Widow Amory, Peter Lear, Widow Crawford, Joſeph Field, Samuel Phillips, William Stretch, Nathaniel Phillips, Widow Swift, Nathaniel Sheppard, Ebenezer Pope, Joſeph Bradford, Ebenezer Waters, Joſhua Wyeth.

On the weſt ſide. Widow Inches, Andrew Gardner, Thomas Jackſon, Thomas Foſter, Thomas Downing, Miſs Johonnots, houſe of the late Zachariah Johonnot, Joſeph Lovering, Joſeph and Robert Pope, John Pope, Andrew Kelley, Nathaniel Boſworth, pull'd down, 2. Henry Stephens, Hopſtill Foſter, Mrs. Cheever, Arthur Langford, Joſeph Pierce, Aaron May, George and Henry Guyer, Joſeph Clark, William Wyman, Joſeph Sprague, William Gooch, reverend Mr. White's meeting-houſe, Frederick Incley, Jacob Gould, Thomas Steel, Spencer Bates, William Pinniman, junr. Richard Gridley, Rob. Price, Joſiah Goddard.

There were ſeveral houſes empty, which, with the meeting-houſe, ſhops, barns and out-houſes, may be computed at 100 buldings. Providentially no lives were loſt.

Much praiſe is due to the inhabitants of Charleſtown, Roxbury, Dorcheſter, Milton, Cambridge and Medford, for their very ſpirited and chearful aſſiſtance with their engines, on this occaſion.

Yeſterday there were contributions for the above unfortunate ſufferers, in every church in this town, when conſiderable ſums of money were collected.

WORCESTER, April 19.

We hear that Shays, Day, Parſons and Wheeler, are now at St. John's, in Canada, but receive no encouragement from that government.

We hear from Weſtminſter, ſtate of Vermont, that a widow woman of that place, on Sunday morning, the eighth inſtant, went to a barn near the houſe where ſhe lived, and without any aſſiſtance, delivered herſelf of a fine male child, which ſhe afterwards carried into the houſe in her apron.

PORTSMOUTH, April 15.

We hear from the country, that ſeveral towns in this ſtate have reſolved not to ſend any repreſentatives to the enſuing general court. Among the number are Canterbury, Epping and Lee. Their reaſons for ſo doing we have not been able fully to aſcertain, but from what we can collect, they principally centre in this—that the legiſlative body is too large—that all the good the members do, to uſe their phraſe, is 'to ſit on their bottoms and eat up the proviſions,' and that they only ſerve to encreaſe the expences of the ſtate without contriving any means to leſſen them.

SPRINGFIELD, April 17

Extract of a letter from Northampton, dated April 14.

" I have but juſt time to inform you, that Mr. Joſeph Jones has received his trial; you know the crime alledged againſt him, diſcharging a piſtol at a public officer : the trial was not lengthy—the jury brought in their verdict guilty, and the court ſentenced him to ſet on the gallows one hour, pay coſt, &c. and recognize in 80l. with ſureties to keep the peace for the term of two years."

NEWBURY-PORT, April 18.

A correſpondent obſerves, that it muſt afford the higheſt ſatisfaction to every benevolent mind and well wiſher to his country, when he reflects upon that noble philanthropic diſpoſition, prevailing among the inhabitants of ſeveral ſea-ports, in aſſociating themſelves into ſocieties for the relief of the induſtrious poor, by employing them in ſpinning. The town of Portſmouth has already experienced the beneficial effects of it. The ſtreets, which a few weeks ſince, were conſtantly patrolled, by children begging in the day, and thieves ſtealing in the night, are now almoſt free from both theſe inconveniences.

HARTFORD, April 23.

ORDERS for diſbanding the Fœderal Troops.

REGIMENTAL ORDERS.

Barracks, Springfield, April 17, 1787.

CONGRESS having deemed it inexpedient to retain in ſervice any of the troops ordered to be raiſed by their reſolution of the 20th October 1786, excepting two companies of artillery, conſequently the third regiment of infantry, commanded by colonel Humphreys, is to be diſbanded.

The companies at the barracks to be muſtered tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

Colonel Humphreys has it in command, from the ſecretary at war, to preſent his thanks to the officers for their induſtry and attention in the recruiting ſervice—the colonel is happy in adding his own to both officers and men for the ſoldier-like conduct exhibited on every occaſion: particularly to the recruits for compleating the fortifications and making ſo rapid a progreſs in acquiring knowledge of military exerciſe and manœuvres. He thinks he is juſtified in ſaying that greater proficiency has not been made in the ſame ſpace of time; and that he has never ſeen, in any ſervice, a corps ſuperior in the compoſition of its men to the regiment he has had the honor to raiſe. Indeed the character of the officers, the appearance and behaviour of the men, afforded the moſt ſolid expectations of their future utility, had their continuance in ſervice been judged neceſſary.

It is however, a flattering circumſtance for the commanding officer, and an inſtance ſo novel in the military hiſtory of our country, that he takes a conſcious pride in having it known, that although the ſubſtantial part of diſcipline, which regards ſubordination and promptitude in obedience to orders, was never more firmly fixed in any veteran corps, on any perminent eſtabliſhment ; yet there is not a man belonging to the regiment, who has received corporal puniſhment by the judgment of court martial, or a blow from any of his officers. Nor, for two months paſt, ſince the inſtitution of a diſgraceful puniſhment for drunkenneſs, has there been a ſingle inſtance of intoxication.

Before the diſſolution of the corps, the arms and accoutrements (which have been kept in the beſt poſſible order) together with the camp utenſils of every kind, are to be returned into the public ſtore.

As ſoon as all the neceſſary arrangements can be made, and the two companies of artillery ſhall have arrived to take charge of the arſenal and magazines ; the officers, non-commiſſioned officers and privates are to be diſcharged from the fœderal ſervice. Colonel Humphreys takes an affectionate leave of them, and moſt ſincerely wiſhes every ſpecies of happineſs may attend his gallant fellow ſoldiers: he flatters himſelf that they have not paſſed their time altogether unprofitably, that they will carry the germe of diſcipline into civil life with them, and that, ſhould the exigencies of the public (which heaven avert) demand their military ſervices, and ſhould their preſent officers be honored with a command, they would have no reluctance to repair again to the ſtandard of their country.

We hear that ſeveral of the officers, appointed to the ſervice of the United States, under the reſolution of Congreſs of the 20th October 1786, have nearly ruined themſelves by diſpoſing of their ſtock in trade, property in veſſels, &c at a great diſadvantage in order to equip themſelves for the field. Our correſpondent goes on to obſerve, they are now totally thrown out of buſineſs. Others have leaſed their houſes and farms for three years, and find themſelves turned out of doors. The officers of general Jackſon's regiment have been at the expence of ſending to Europe for ſwords, epaulets and other articles to compleat their uniform.

After the fœderal troops at Springfield had been muſtered and informed they were to be diſbanded, the non-commiſſioned officers waited upon the commanding officer, to preſent in their own names and in behalf of the ſoldiers, their grateful acknowledgments for the treatment they had experienced, to expreſs their regrets at not having an opportunity of ſeeing the fine lands at the weſtward, and to intimate their readineſs to reinliſt in caſe their country ſhould have occaſion for their ſervices.

NEW-YORK, April 13.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman of eminence in New Haven, to his friend in Attleborough, dated March 2, 1787.

'The diſperſion of the inſurgents in Maſſachuſetts is happy for us. The ſons of fraud, rapine and licentiouſneſs in ſeveral towns, and in ſeveral counties in this ſtate, were waiting with anxious expectation to ſee Shays and his banditti victorious: had this taken place, a rebellion would in all probability have ſpeedily enſued—but now ſcarcely a man mentions the word grievance—a word more perverted in your ſtate in the late rebellion, than all the other words which can be formed from the alphabet. The ſpirited reſolves of the aſſembly in the beginning of the preſent ſeſſion, with the decided meaſures taken by your moſt excellent commander in chief, cannot be ſufficiently admired. It is only neceſſary now to carry your laws into effect with firmneſs and deciſion. I am afraid leſt the compaſſion of the legiſlature ſhould extend ſo far as to ſpare the lives of thoſe who have forfeited every thing to ſociety. Forgiveneſs, I know, is truly characteriſtic of a Chriſtian: it was that which induced the ſaviour of men to breathe forth the moſt compaſſionate and endearing language, when ſurrounded with murderers.—'Farther forgive them, for they know not what they do.' The ſame benevolent ſpirit pervades the celeſtial regions; yet it is an eternally true political maxim, that the good of the great whole (in times of eminent danger) ought to be ſecured, by ſacrificing a few individuals to the demands of public juſtice; and if ever juſtice did demand a literal compliance with that maxim, moſt certainly it does at the preſent period. I rejoice to hear that the ſpirit of oppoſition in Attleborough declines—your convention men, I ſuſpect, are filled with chagrin and diſappointment beyond conception, and muſt forever feel the horrors of guilty recollection, together with the execrations of their country, which evidently, through their means and intrigue, had been ſtained with blood. Rehoboth abounds with a great number of the moſt finiſhed literary characters, which muſt place that ancient town in the moſt honorary point of view, through the learned world, if we may juge from their petitions to the general court, and the doings of their numerous town-meetings.'

POUGHKEEPSIE, April 25.

It is reported that ſeveral ſmall houſes, &c. have been burnt in Ulſter county, oppoſite this place, by reaſon of ſome imprudent perſons ſetting fire to the leaves in the woods. The fire ſtill rages with uncommon velocity, and without a hard rain, the conſequences may be fatal to many.

BALTIMORE, April 27.

On Wedneſday laſt, the public poſt ſtages, between Philadelphia and Baltimore-town, under the direction of Meſſrs. Twining, Vanhorn and Co. performed the whole diſtance to and from the above places in one day—this exertion is comparatively equal to the performance of one hundred and ſixty miles on a firm well improved highway.

Philadelphia, May 3.

Extract of a letter from a Houſe in Tortola to a Houſe in this city, dated April 7, 1787.

"A SCHOONER called here two nights ago and got a ſupply of proviſions from us, which they paid for, and by a man they turned on ſhore on one of the quays, we find ſhe was RUNAWAY WITH from Dominica—She is called the MARY ANN, and owned by either Alexander M'Kenzie or William Buoy, or both of them, has three blacks and three whites on board. The pretended captain's name is M'DONALD, marked with ſmall-pox, a crippled hand, which we think is the left, wears his own hair ſhort, brown complexion, about five feet nine inches high. The ſchooner appeared Virginia built. The informer ſays they had 37 hogſheads ſugar, and one bale cotton on board at firſt, which they took in at Martinico for Dominica, they ſold the cotton for Proviſions, and after they got what ſupplies they ſtood in need of on ſhore, they bartered three of their hogſheads of ſugar on board the ſhipping for other goods in the night. The captain promiſed us to bring his owner on ſhore next day to barter for his cargo, and ſaid they were going a trading voyage to St. Domingo. It is uncertain whether the veſſel may appear under Engliſh or French papers, as perhaps they have both. The captain and mate are ſaid to be on ſhore at Dominica, we wiſh this may be the caſe. As this is a circumſtance which commands every enquiry, we are well convinced from your goodneſs, your aſſiduity TO DETECT THE VILLAINS will not be wanting. If you ſhould get any information, pray communicate it to Mr. Alexander M'Kenzie, Dominica, who, we do aſſure you, is a worthy character."

Extract of a letter from Newbury-Port, (Maſſachuſetts) dated April 18.

"Laſt Saturday evening came to this town a Mr. Stewart, formerly mate of a brig belonging to Savannah, Captain Clark, commander, who informs, that they took in a cargo of tobacco at Alexandria in Virginia, in 1784, bound therewith into the Mediterranean. Soon after they had paſſed Gibraltar, they were ſurrounded by three Algerine Corſairs, who took poſſeſſion of their veſſel and cargo, ſtripped the maſter, mate and ſeamen of every article of cloathing and effects, and gave them in lieu thereof a frock and a pair of trowſers. They were ſoon landed at Algiers, and immediately conducted to the Caſtle, and put to hard labour, without diſtinction, and upon a pitiful allowance of half a pint of rice per day—no bread nor meat, unleſs when they were allowed to take the inwards of creatures which were killed. After having remained ſeveral months at hard labour in the Caſtle, they were brought forth to a public ſale, when their purchaſers, beſides otherwiſe treating them in the moſt brutal manner, ſlit open an ear of each man, at the ſame time continuing the ſtroke acroſs the cheek.

"Being thus marked, they were put on board the galleys, and chained to the oars, where they remained until relieved by their generous and humane owners, who remitted a ſum of money to Leghorn, equal to their purchaſe, being 300 Louis d'ors for the captain, 60 for the mate, and 30 for each ſeaman.

"The labour and fatigue, with their ſcanty allowance and ſevere uſage, were ſo much as to make them wiſh for death, rather than life.—A cowſkin was freely exerciſed upon them without diſcrimination, and often without provocation, by their renegadoes, who ſerved alſo as interpreters for the Algerines, but would not deign to look on them.—Mr. Stewart left the crews of ſeveral veſſels behind him, whoſe only hope of redemption reſts on the exertions of Congreſs. He informs, that the captains of thoſe crews were more fortunate than Capt. Clarke, owing to the humanity of the French and Britiſh conſuls, who have hired them from ſlavery and hard labour, and taken them into their own families. He alſo informs, that the Algerines were very active in building and equipping veſſels of war, though few or none cruiſe without the Streights; and that he was informed that the Malteſe had a conſiderable force united with the Portugueſe, who were to rendezvous at Madeira, in order to take ſuch veſſels under their convoy as may be bound to the Streights."

His Excellency John Adams, Eſq; Miniſter Plenipotentiary from the United States at the Court of Great Britain, has lately publiſhed a very valuable book, entitled, "A Defence of the Conſtitutions of Government of the United States of America." In the preface is the following paragraph—well worthy the attention of every American at this important criſis of our public affairs.—"The people in America have now the beſt opportunity, and the greateſt truſt in their hands, that Providence ever committed to ſo ſmall a number ſince the tranſgreſſion of the firſt pair; if they betray their truſt, their guilt will merit even greater puniſhments than other nations have ſuffered, and the indignation of heaven. If there is one certain truth to be collected from the hiſtory of all ages, it is this: that the people's rights and liberties, and the democratical mixture in a conſtitution, can never be preſerved without a ſtrong executive, or in other words, without ſeparating the executive power from the legiſlative. If the executive power, or any conſiderable part of it, is left in the hands either of an ariſtocratical or a democratical aſſembly, it will corrupt the legiſlature as neceſſarily as ruſt corrupts iron, or as arſenic poiſons the human body; and when the legiſlature is corrupted, the people are undone."

SHIP NEWS.

By a letter from London, dated the 14th of March, intelligence had been received, that the veſſel loſt near Kinſale, in Ireland, was the Suſannah, Capt. Dury, from New-York.

Extract of a letter from Capt. Wodrow, of the Brig Eglenton, who ſailed from Baltimore for London, dated Kinſale, Feb. 6, 1787.

"On account of contrary winds, and very bad weather, we put into this port the 2d inſt. after a paſſage of 29 days to foundings, having been beating in the mouth of the channel ever ſince the middle of January.

"The weather has been exceſſively tempeſtuous at ſea, a great number of ſhips have been wrecked, and many put in here and Cork diſabled, with the loſs of men, maſts, &c. One in particular arrived with only the captain and one boy on board. Of a fleet that left Gibraltar together, conſiſting of 153 ſail, 100 were loſt on the coaſts of Spain and Portugal; one belonging to the ſame port with us, we found here without a maſt ſtanding, and her cargo in part damaged; in ſhort, the loſs of ſhipping is inconceivable, and we think ourſelves very fortunate we have ſuffered ſo little.

"A few days before our arrival, we ſpoke the Roſs Packet, Capt. Galgey, bearing away for Cork.——The letters which went by us for Ireland, and the north of England, were immediately forwarded to the different places."

The Polly, Chaſe, and Nancy, Howland, from Hiſpaniola; Friendſhip, Pierce, from Turk's Iſland, and Peggy, Lawton, from New-York, are arrived at Newport, Rhode-Iſland.

The beginning of April a Daniſh veſſel, bound to New-York, arrived at Cape Ann, after being a long time at ſea.

The Sally, Cartwright, from Cape Francois; Eliza, Craig, from Antigua; Freemaſon, Parks, from Beaufort, and Suſannah, Brown, from Providence, are arrived at Baltimore.

The Juſpou, Maria, from Peterſburg, Ruſſia; Betſey, Meſnard, from London; Sarah, Townſend, from Briſtol; Lion, Smith, from Yarmouth; ——, Lowndes, from St. Croix; Joſeph and Peggy, ——, and Patty, ——, from Baltimore; Willing Maid, Barnes, from Wilmington; New-York Packet, Hyde; Betſey, ——, and Warren, ——, from Philadelphia, are arrived at New-York.

GRATITUDE. A HYMN.

ALL bounteous Heaven! thy will be done,
The univerſe throughout;
Why ſhould ſhort-ſighted mortals frown,
Or his deep wiſdom doubt?

His judgments turn again to ſmiles,
Like ſunſbeams after rain;
He ſtill confounds man's crafty wiles,
The juſt their rights regain.

Though ſeeming evils, guile and harm,
The gen'rous man ſurround,
Benevolence doth theſe diſarm,
Nor ſuffers them to wound.

And falling in the trap he ſet,
The cunning man is caught,
The meaſure of his crimes to get,
With ſpite and malice fraught.

Whilſt the fine flowers of vernal morn,
With gliſt'ning dew drops, meet
The ſun's fair rays, no more they mourn,
Each yields an influence ſweet:

So winter's blaſts bedew the eye,
Till night doth morning bring,
Exhaling ev'ry tear and ſigh,
But thoſe which grateful ſpring.

O Gratitude! thou heart-felt good!
And rapture near divine!
If man thy virtue underſtood,
How godlike would he ſhine!

Then let our grateful thoughts ariſe
Up to the throne above!
How wond'rous are his works and wiſe!
And marv'lous is his love.

Awake to rapture with his praiſe!
Aloud in concert ſing;
With lofty ſtrains his fame to raiſe,
Let ſacred arches ring.

ANECDOTE.

A Short time ſince, the duke of N—— going on horſe-back upon a viſit to a worthy clergyman at Nacton, near Landgrave Fort, to take the diverſion of ſhooting, deſired a ſimple ruſtic about 16, who was a ſervant in the family, to 'take care and rub down his horſe, and not give him any water.' When the lad replied, 'Yes, maiſter,' 'no maiſter.' On which the groom, who ſtood by, ſeverely rebuked him for his rudeneſs, telling him the perſon who alighted was one of the greateſt men in the kingdom, 'and whenever he bids you to do any thing, you ſhould always remember to ſay your grace.' Young Hob treaſured up his fellow ſervant's advice in his memory, and a few days after, when the Duke mounting his horſe, and bid him to take the ſtirrup a hole lower, the boy with great ſolemnity anſwered——For what we are going to receive the Lord make us thankful!

☞ The City Troop of Horſe commanded by Colonel Miles, will meet at the uſual place of parade, at 3 o'clock this Afternoon. May 3.

THAT pleaſant Seat, formerly the eſtate of Robert Hopkins, deceaſed, ſituate in the precinct of Richmond, commonly called Point-no-Point, 5 miles from the city of Philadelphia, conſiſting of a manſion houſe and 9 acres and 13 perches of excellent land.

The manſion houſe is 58 feet front, of a beautiful hewn ſtone, and 38 feet deep, with 4 rooms on each floor, elegantly finiſhed; 3 of the rooms on the ground floor wainſcotted on the ſides ſurbace high, and the fourth is wainſcotted quite up to the ceiling, with a handſome cornice in each room; the chimnies are decorated with poliſhed marble, and two of the hearths are marble; the entry is 12 feet wide, ornamented with the Dorick entablature, well executed, and pediments over the door of each room; the ſtaircaſe is ramp and twiſt with handſome brackets; the rooms on the ſecond floor are genteely finiſhed, two of them decorated with marble chimney pieces and hearths; the garret is very large and roomy: on the houſe-top are iron rails and mouldings of wood by way of balcony, from whence there is a beautiful proſpect of the neighbouring ſeats, the river Delaware and the Jerſey ſhore: the front door is arched, and calculated to admit of ornaments in the higheſt degree of elegance: the kitchen is convenient and the cellars very good, with two commodious and valuable vaults adjoining the houſe.

There is on the premiſes, a coach houſe, a framed hay houſe 64 by 25 feet, a ſtone ſmoak houſe, and at a little diſtance from the manſion houſe, a ſmall tenement with a cellar under it, a waſh houſe adjoining, and a pump of good water before the door; an orchard of about 100 trees of the beſt apples, and a collection of other fruits of the beſt kind, with a good kitchen garden now planted for family uſe.

The road leading from the city to this Seat, is not only level and very pleaſant, but more uniformly good at all ſeaſons of the year than any other road near the city.

It will be ſold ſubject to the payment of one fourth part of 75 ounces of coined gold of the kingdom of Portugal, to Elizabeth Hopkins, daughter of Iſaac Hopkins, when ſhe ſhall arrive at the age of 21 years, or to her heirs, according to the will of the ſaid Robert Hopkins, deceaſed,

One half the purchaſe money to be paid in 10 days after the ſale, and the remainder in 6 months. For further particulars enquire of the ſubſcriber, on the premiſes. J. BATES.

N. B. A Plan of the Premiſes may be ſeen at the Coffee-Houſe.

* The Sale of the above Place having been poſtponed, was entirely owing to a multiplicity of buſineſs crouding on the Auctioneer, on the Day propoſed; but it will poſitively come on, and be duly attended to, on Saturday next, the 5th of May, May 1. ep

804 acres.

On the laſt aforeſaid tracts of land there are three very valuable plantations; on one of which, called the Old Quarter, there are upwards of 250 acres of cleared land, 60 acres of meadow now in graſs, and about 50 acres more may be eaſily made, of the firſt quality. This plantation is equal in value and richneſs to any in this ſtate; it is well calculated for planting and farming; has four dwelling houſes on it, two barns, two tobacco houſes, ſtables, corn houſes, and every other out-houſe neceſſary on a valuable eſtate, and is in excellent order for cropping. It has alſo ſeveral fine ſtreams of water running through it, and on one of which there is a valuable mill ſeat.

The other lands adjoining, are alſo of ſuperior quality, and will be laid off into convenient lots, from two to three hundred acres, as may ſuit purchaſers.

The above lands advertiſed for ſale on the 11th June, are ſituate about 12 miles from Frederick-Town, 40 from Baltimore-Town, on the great public road, very convenient to ſeveral merchant mills, and in every reſpect are equal to any lands in that part of the country.

The terms of ſale for the above property are, a ſmall part of the purchaſe money in hand, the particular portion will be made known on the day of ſale, and the reſidue in two annual payments, on intereſt; the purchaſer to give bond, with approved ſecurity, when poſſeſſion will be given. Plans of the lands may, in the mean time, be ſeen at Hobb's tavern, and at the Old Quarters. THOMAS DORSEY.

To be Sold by Public Vendue,

On Seventh Day, May 12th, next, on the Premiſes, at Eayre's-Town, Burlington county, New-Jerſey,

A Saw-Mill in compleat order, a valuable Mill-Seat, the Ruins of a Griſt and Merchant Mill (ſome time ſince conſumed by fire) the dam and water works whereof are in excellent condition, a Pair of Burr Stones, and all the Iron for two Mills for merchant and country work; together with about 50 Acres of Land under cedar fence; whereon are a good dwelling houſe, two wells of excellent water, ſtables, a barn, a crib houſe, a good orchard in prime bearing, and ſome other fruit trees.

The ſituation is equal to any for country cuſtom, and the creek may, with a ſmall expence, be made navigable to the mill for boats of a conſiderable burthen. Among many other advantages, the dam is maintained by the Public, and the ſtream fully ſufficient for three mills the greateſt part of the year. The terms of payment will be made eaſy.

On Saturday the 12th inſtant, at 12 o'Clock at Noon, at the Old Coffee-Houſe,

(If not ſold before at private ſale)

THAT pleaſant and agreeable COUNTRY SEAT, ſituate on the weſterly ſide of the Wiſſahickon road, in the Northern-Liberties, and nearly oppoſite the one mile ſtone, conſiſting of an elegant manſion houſe with 4 rooms on the ground floor and 5 rooms on the ſecond floor, with an excellent garret over the whole, and a very roomy cellar under the houſe, part of which is the kitchen. The houſe is 35 feet front by 40 feet deep, built of brick. There are on the premiſes, a very good brick ſmoak houſe, and a large frame ſtable, together with a very fine large garden, a few fruit trees back of the houſe, and a pump of excellent water in the yard: the ſituation of the above premiſes is high and healthy; there is alſo 4 acres of excellent land belonging to the ſame, which yields a plentiful crop of hay, very good in quality.

Terms of ſale are, one half the purchaſe money in gold or ſilver, or the new emiſſion of this ſtate, to be paid immediately, and the remaining half in 6 months from the day of ſale, when an indiſputable title will be given, and poſſeſſion may be had immediately. The premiſes are clear of every incumbrance. For further particulars enquire of JAMES M'CREA, in Front ſtreet, oppoſite the Coffee-Houſe.

HAGUE, February 5.

THE comte de Goertz purpoſing to ſet out directly from Nimeguen to Berlin, without returning to the Hague ſent his letters of recall on Thurſday laſt to the preſident of the week, of which the following is a tranſlation, viz.

Letter from the king of Pruſſia to their High Mightineſſes.

"High and mighty lords, and particularly good friends and neighbours.

"AS I ſent my miniſter of ſtate, the comte de Goertz, ſome time ſince to aſſure your high mightineſſes of my ſincere friendſhip and conſideration for the republic of the united provinces, and in order to contribute all in my power towards the re eſtabliſhment of the interior tranquility of their country, your high mightineſſes muſt, by that, be fully convinced of my ſentiments: but the principal purport of the miſſion of the comte de Goertz having, to my great regret, not anſwered the end propoſed, I cannot neglect the recall of that miniſter any longer. I charged him to aſſure your high mightineſſes again that I deſire nothing more warmly than the repoſe and proſperity of their republic. And I am, with conſideration and friendſhip, the good friend and neighbour of your high mightineſſes.

(Signed) FREDERICK WILLIAM.

And underneath

FINKSTEIN HARTZBERG."

Berlin, Jan. 22, 1787.

The following is the memorial ſent by the comte de Goertz with the above letter, viz.

"High and Mighty Lords,

"HAVING received the orders of the king my maſter, which terminate my miſſion to your high mightineſſes, and which recall me to him, I take the liberty to ſend you the letter of recall which his majeſty commiſſioned me to remit to you, and which contains freſh aſſurances of the conſtant friendſhip of the king towards the republic, the moſt ſincere wiſhes for its proſperity, and the regret felt by his majeſty at not yet ſeeing peace and tranquility re eſtabliſhed in theſe ſtates, for the happy return of which he is moſt warmly intereſted by all the ties of neighbour and friend, but more particularly in his ſituation of near relationſhip to the houſe of Orange. I ſhould have thought myſelf happy, if, during the ſhort ſpace of my miniſtry, I could have contributed to cement more and more the union of the two eſtates, and to have merited the approbation and good will of your high mightineſſes.

"Your high mightineſſes will, I hope, pardon me, that my haſte to return, the diſtance from your reſidence, and indiſpoſition in health, prevent me from having the honor of preſenting you with the letter from his majeſty, and of receiving from your hands thoſe re-credentials you might honor me with.

(Signed) The COMTE DE GOERTZ.

Nimeguen, Jan. 29, 1787.

UTRECHT, February 9, 1787.

Letter of Recredence from the States General to the King of Pruſſia by the Comte de Goertz:

"Sire, when we had the honor to receive the letter from your majeſty, dated the 2d of September laſt, appointing your miniſter of ſtate, the comte de Goertz to give an aſſurance of your majeſty's friendſhip and eſteem towards this republic, and your wiſh to contribute all in your majeſty's power towards the re eſtabliſhment of its interior tranquility, we could not but be ſenſible of thoſe particular marks of your majeſty's friendſhip to theſe eſtates and we again beg leave to teſtify our acknowledgments, and offer our ſincere thanks for the ſame.

"We could have wiſhed longer to have kept amongſt us a miniſter who ſhewed ſuch wiſdom, prudence, vigilance, and zeal in all his conduct; but as it has pleaſed your majeſty to recall him from hence, we cannot let him depart without teſtifying that he has applied himſelf in all reſpects, and with the greateſt energy, punctually to fulfill the orders of your majeſty. We do not doubt but he will, on his part, report to your majeſty, that we conſtantly manifeſted the beſt diſpoſitions to contribute every thing, that might either teſtify our veneration and reſpect for your majeſty, or for the maintenance and ſtrengthening of friendſhip and good intelligence between your majeſty and this republic, diſpoſitions of which we ſhall endeavour, upon every occaſion, to give your majeſty real proofs, &c.

ROME, December 2.

His holineſs the pope having forbidden ladies to enter the church of the Vatican with faſhionable hats on their heads, and a gentlewoman of the ducheſs of Glouceſter's chamber, accompanied with others of the Engliſh nation, having entered with a hat, tho' a clergyman had acquainted her with the prohibition, a Romiſh prieſt took off the hat and threw it on the ground, which occaſioned a great uproar. The Engliſh having complained of this pretended affront to the ſecretary of ſtate, he laid the affair before his holineſs whoſe anſwer was, that it was an act of indiſcreet zeal, but agreeable to the order he had iſſued: and there the matter reſts.

LONDON, Jan. 24.

The declining ſtate of the Dutch navy, which was fully proved in a meeting of the ſtates of Holland on the 21ſt of laſt month, has in all probability been occaſioned by the different powers of Europe, for ſome time paſt, having paid the greateſt attention to their commercial intereſts. The Hollanders are no longer the carriers and brokers for all nations. The trade which was carried on ſolely through them almoſt all kingdoms now ſupport without their intervention. The ſources of power thus continually drying up, no wonder that decay becomes every day more viſible.

The complicated form of government in the United States, too, acts like a dead weight on a declining ſtate; incapable of exertion, except when ſet in motion by a general ardour for public good, it is ill ſuited to the circumſtances of a corrupted and debilitated commonwealth, where a thouſand jarring and incompatible claims throw every thing into confuſion, and where nothing but the ſtrong arm of power can ſtill the agitated and contending elements, and bring this political chaos into order and form.

The political wiſe men differ very ſtrangely in their ſentiments with regard to India. One ſays, that he wiſhes England had never enjoyed a foot of territory therein. Another as boldly aſſerts, that when England loſes her poſſeſſions in India, ſhe loſes wealth, power, and political conſequence, and dwindles in the ſcale beneath Holland, Portugal or Venice. The moderate men are of the latter opinion, but cannot help wiſhing, that we had acquired and eſtabliſhed her dominions in India by means more reconcileable to the laws of humanity, and the eternal decrees of juſtice.

At Maeſtrich in Germany there is a remarkable ſtone quarry, which has the appearance of a vaſt ſubterraneous palace; it reaches under a large hill, ſupported by ſome thouſands of ſquare pillars 20 feet high, between which are ſpacious walks, and many private retirements of great uſe in time of war, as they ſerve as a ſure refuge to the neighbouring country people, who commonly reſort thither with their goods, when alarmed by an approaching enemy. Near Blackenburgh, in the ſame country, are two high rocks fronting one another, which repreſent two monks in their habits, as if they had been formed by art, and are therefore called the Monks Craggs.

March 5. His grace, the maſter general of the ordnance has ordered a ſupply of ordnance ſtores to be immediately got ready for the forts, &c. in Canada, and in Nova-Scotia.

Letters received from Naples mention ſeveral diſturbances of a very alarming nature having lately ariſen among the lower claſſes of the people in that kingdom, on account of ſome improper proceedings of the clergy.

Extract of a letter from New York, via France, January 22.

'Congreſs have lately concluded a negotiation with the court of Liſbon, in reſpect of trade, by which the ſhips and ſubjects of the United States are to have all the privileges and immunities of the moſt favoured nation in the ports and dominions of Portugal, but are excluded from bringing away any of the current gold coin of Portugal, under the ſame penalties as are affixed to other nations in ſuch caſes Don Ximenea Perrai is come to reſide here as conſul for the Portugueſe nation, and this treaty is to be in force ten years.'

The diſpute which has ariſen between the pope and the king of Naples, and which is likely to become very ſerious, is relative to the famous ſtatue of Hercules, of Rome, which the latter claims as heir to the late cardinal de Farneſe; and has demanded it accordingly. The pope has refuſed to deliver it up, and the king of Naples has in conſequence refuſed to pay certain rights which the pope has hitherto arrogated from him. Preparations are making on both ſides, for a termination of the diſpute.

AMERICA.

BOSTON, April 26.

Laſt Saturday ended a fortnight's ſeſſions of the ſupreme judicial court at Northampton; at which were convicted and ſentenced to death for the crime of treaſon, ſix unhappy perſons, who had taken a very active part in the late rebellion, had been concerned in captivating, plundering, bayonetting or firing upon peaceable citizens of the commonwealth, had been in arms from time to time, for ſtopping courts of juſtice, and acted as zealous officers under Shays and Day, at the time of the attack upon the Continental Arſenal. Their names are, John Wheeler, of Hardwick, Shay's aid; Henry Mc Culloch, of Pelham; Daniel Luddington, of Southampton; James White, of Colerain; Alpheus Colton, of Long-Meadow; and Jaſon Parmenter, of Bernardſton, who ſhot Walter in attempting to apprehend him for his treaſonable conduct, while flying from the commonwealth, and from juſtice.

At the ſame court was convicted of a courſe of the moſt ſeditious inflammatory words and conduct, which commenced upon his reaching home after the ſeſſions of the general court laſt ſummer, captain Moſes Harvey, repreſentative for the town of Montague, one of the prime fomenters of the rebellion, by frequently publiſhing and declaring among the people, that the general court, for allowing intereſt on ſtate ſecurities, were thieves, knaves, robbers and highwaymen, and that if the people did not beſtir themſelves, they were undone; and particularly by diſcouraging men from inliſting for the ſupport of government, by inculcating Shay's letter written to him, calling for aid to ſtop Worceſter court in December laſt, ſaying, people were bewitched if they did not ſend him men and proviſions, and that his heart was with them. His ſentence was, to ſit upon the gallows one hour, with a rope about his neck, to pay a fine of 50l. to the uſe of the commonwealth, and be bound to the peace and good behaviour for the term of 5 years.

Eli Parker, late member from Amherſt, and —— Fowler, late member of the convention, and of the general court, from Southwick, plead guilty upon an indictment for ſeditious practices, and it is ſuppoſed, had they been indicted for treaſon, they muſt have incurred ſentence of death. So that it is not ſtrange to ſee the people precipitate themſelves into riot, inſurrection and rebellion, when the men, whoſe duty it peculiarly is to explain, and by influence and example, enforce the laws, inſtead thereof, exciting jealouſies and ſpreading miſrepreſentations againſt the government—By artful and inflammatory diſcourſes, diſtracting and prejudicing the minds of the people, againſt that conſtitution which they are under the ſolemn oath of God to defend and ſupport.

Since our laſt the honorable general Lincoln, and the honorable Samuel A. Otis, eſq. two of the commiſſioners appointed by the legiſlature to receive applications for pardons from perſons concerned in the late rebellion, arrived in town from the weſtern counties.

A correſpondent obſerves, that the old arrears of taxes, remaining from year to year, have been the means of great injury to the public, and poverty to the people: Now is a proper time to complete payment of the old taxes; which may be accompliſhed with eaſe at the preſent time, as upon an average, including the new emiſſion money, they may be paid for one third the nominal ſum in ſpecie.

Yeſterday the honorable general court of this commonwealth, convened at the ſtate houſe in this town, agreeable to his excellency's proclamation.

Among the many generous friends of humanity, who have ſo generouſly contributed to the relief of the poor unhappy ſufferers by the late diſtreſſing conflagration, the officers of the late Federal Corps, are not the leaſt diſtinguiſhed. We are informed that they have ſubſcribed a very large ſum of money, to be appropriated for the purpoſe of relieving thoſe who have ſuffered by loſing their ALL; and although they have met with an unexpected diſſolution they are not void of thoſe tender feelings, which too ſeldom influence ſoldiers, under ſimilar diſappointments.

Philadelphia, May 4.

A correſpondent, while he reviews, with pride and ſatisfaction, the attention and encouragement, which have been given, by his fellow citizens, to every attempt to cultivate and adorn the human mind, deems it an honor peculiar to this country, that in the purſuit of ſcience, the fair have become diligent and ſucceſsful candidates. Whether elaborate inveſtigations on natural philoſophy, or amuſing diſſertations on language, eloquence and poetry, are preſented the public, the ladies are found in the ſociety of the ſages of the other ſex, and, as the firſt evidence of the improvement they receive, beſtowing patronage and applauſe upon literary merit. It is a neceſſary conſequence of ſuch ſtudies, and ſuch encouragement, that the female character ſhould aſſume the ſtation and command the honors due to the profeſſors of ſcience, and while Europe hears with envy that the toilet and the drawing room are deſerted for the forum and the college, her admiration muſt naturally be awakened by the picture of beauty liſtening to the voice of wiſdom.

To thoſe who have excited, or to thoſe who endeavor to gratify this noble paſſion for knowledge, the gratitude of that ſociety, which will eventually receive the benefit, ought to be preſented, and as the opportunity that now occurs, is recommended by every inducement of ſentiment and emulation, the lady who has renewed the lecture on language, eloquence and poetry, will undoubtedly receive the tribute due to her induſtry and talents, in continuance of that approbation with which the arrangement of her argument, the choice of her illuſtrations, and the accuracy of her delivery have already been honored by a judicious and brilliant audience.

On Saturday laſt the body of a man (name unknown) was taken up in the river Delaware near this this city; his head was fractured, and ſeveral ſtabs in different parts of his body. He was dreſſed in ſailor's clothes.

By the ſchooner Nancy, captain Greenway, arrived here on Sunday laſt, from Newbern, North-Carolina, we hear that the duputies to the convention were preparing to take their paſſage in the brig Newbern Packet; ſo that we may hourly expect them here.

Our paper yeſterday contained ſome account of the late dreadful conflagration at Boſton.——The following additional particulars of that diſaſter are copied from the Boſton Independent Chronicle of the 14th ult.

'About ſun-ſet, on Friday laſt, a fire broke out in the malt houſe of Mr. William Patten, in Beach-ſtreet, a little to the north eaſt of Orange-ſtreet, at the ſouth part of the town; and it is with real ſorrow we announce, that the devaſtation which enſued, within about three hours time, was never equalled in this place, excepting in the years 1711 and 1760, ſince its firſt ſettlement. The malt houſe, on the diſcovery of the fire, was almoſt inſtantly in flames, which immediately communicated to 2 or 3 of the neareſt buildings; but, theſe being conſumed, and one end of the dwelling-houſe of Mr. Peirce much burnt, the progreſs of the fire was here ſtopped. The wind blowing freſh from the northward, the coals of fire, burning ſhingles, &c. were however, carried, in great quantities, and lodged on the roofs of many of the houſes in Orange-ſtreet, ſome of which were inſtantly on fire, while a number of the interjacent buildings were preſerved. It raged on both ſides of this ſtreet, with awful fury, as long as the current of wind was nearly parallel with the direction of it; but coming to that part which inclines a little more ſouth-eaſterly, and the wind tending ſomething more to the eaſtward, the fire was ſtopped in this ſtreet, but raged on the weſt ſide of it till an opening of vacant land towards the bay, on the weſt ſide of Boſton neck, prevented farther deſtruction. Among the buildings which early took fire from the flying coals and cinders, was the rev. Mr. Wight's meeting houſe, on whoſe extended roof great quantities of them lodged; which rendered every effort to ſave it impracticable: But the fire being communicated, by means of a burning ſhingle, to the ſpire, juſt below the vane, at the height of more than 130 feet from the ground, was a ſingular circumſtance, and, by the pieces of burning wood falling from thence on the roof, facilitated the deſtruction of that large edifice, and with it that of the ſurrounding buildings.

'The place where the fire commenced being remote from moſt of the engines—the dryneſs of the weather—10 or 15 buildings being in flames in a few minutes after the fire began, which greatly divided the attention of the inhabitants—the ſcarcity of water, the tide being down, and but few pumps near at hand, were circumſtances which baffled the utmoſt efforts of the citizens for putting a ſtop to the devouring element for the ſpace of upwards of three hours.

'The deſtruction extended, on the eaſt ſide of Orange ſtreet, from Mr. Knapp's to Mr. Bradford's, and on the weſt ſide, from Mrs. Inches to Mr. Oſborne's. About 100 were deſtroyed, buildings, 60 of which were dwelling houſes. Moſt of the latter were handſome, and a number of them elegant and coſtly edifices. The loſs in houſe furniture, bedding, and other neceſſary articles, together with goods and effects of various kinds, is very great, and, with the loſs of ſo many valuable dwellings, loudly calls upon the benevolent and humane to afford their aid in alleviating the diſtreſſes of the unfortunate ſufferers.

'Many perſons, at the beginning of the fire, depoſited their goods and furniture near the meeting-houſe, which they then deemed, from its remote ſituation, to be a place of ſafety; but they were unhappily diſappointed, great quantities being deſtroyed before they could be removed a ſecond time.

'We are happy, however, in informing the public, that, amidſt the deſtruction by the fire, a curious ſpecimen of art and induſtry, which does honor to our country, was luckily preſerved; we mean the ORRERY conſtructed by Mr. Joſeph Pope. This admirable performance, the reſult of many years labour and ſtudy, is near 6 feet in diameter, and was almoſt finiſhed, when the houſe of the artiſt, with moſt of his effects, were in a few minutes reduced to aſhes. Much praiſe is due to thoſe gentlemen who, by their exertions, preſerved to the lovers of ſcience, this curious ſpecimen of philoſophic and mechanic ingenuity, and depoſited it at the houſe of his excellency the governor, where, we are told, it ſtill remains.

'The light of the fire was plainly ſeen at Newbury-Port, and at ſeveral other towns, near fifty miles diſtance.'

John Ewing.

"Meſſrs. Hall & Sellers,

FOR the information of my fellow-citizens, I muſt requeſt it of you, as a piece of juſtice, that you let the public know through your paper, that I never wrote, nor corrected, nor ever ſaw a ſingle ſentence of the piece ſigned a Pennſylvanian, in which Mr. N. Webſter is ſo roughly handled for his political publications, until it appeared in print. Mr. Webſter himſelf cannot well ſuppoſe that I was the writer of that paper, as he, in my houſe, and before a conſiderable company, who ſtill remember it, did explicitly diſavow and deny his being the author of the Addreſs to the Governor of Maſſachuſetts, for which the Pennſylvanian has addreſſed him. But whoever was the author of the unmerited abuſe, which you have printed for him, in conſequence of his groundleſs ſuſpicion that I had written that piece: It is of little importance for me to know his name. If he is not already grown callous by long practice in the infamous trade of lying and defamation, he muſt bluſh, at being detected in publiſhing ſo groſs a falſhood. For he well knew that he had not the leaſt ſhadow of evidence for my being the author of that piece, and yet with that conſciouſneſs in his breaſt, he has inſinuated in unequivocal terms that I was the author of it, and then gave vent to that torrent of abuſe which followed, every ſentence of which is as falſe as the former. However he may think, that there is but little harm in publiſhing his ungrounded ſuppoſitions, ſlanders and lies, yet from the beſt authority, I can aſſure him, whoever he may be, that he is only employed in the deteſtible drudgery of the father of lies and the accuſer of the brethren, and that the day will come, when he will find but little ſatisfaction from the work.

Yours, &c.

May 2, 1787. JOHN EWING."

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in the country to his Friend in Philadelphia.

'IT is ſo long ſince I have been in town, that if it were not for the newſpapers I ſhould ſcarcely know what the great men in the buſy world are about. After the funding act was paſſed, and we found that our taxes for the ſupport of that ſyſtem were lighter than we had expected, we, in the country, were ſatisfied that it was right, and felt ourſelves happy in the proſpect of enjoying peace, liberty and independence at ſo cheap a rate. We had ſome apprehenſions that the people of the weſtern counties would have been refractory, and have left us to bear their ſhare of the burden in addition to our own; but we have been told, that the people on the weſtern ſide of the mountains are now paying their proportion of taxes with more punctuality than thoſe in the older counties. If this be true, I hope ſome of the middle counties will be ſpurred by emulation to pay their quotas better than they have hitherto done.

You ſeem however to have got a new ſet of eſſay-writers among you lately, and I muſt confeſs I am at ſome loſs to underſtand them, at leaſt ſome of them. Pray tell me, have any of the great men who lead the parties changed ſides? I was never much of a party man, but I had a kind of leaning towards the Republicans, becauſe I was led to believe from their profeſſions that they had more liberality than their opponents, and that they meant to reſtore the public credit on the broad and ſure foundation of doing public juſtice. Hence I gave them credit for adopting and improving the funding ſyſtem, though ſome ſteps had been taken in it by the conſtitutioniſts. But I have obſerved of late, that ſome of the writers of the republican party ſpeak ill of that meaſure, and ſeem as if they wanted to ſtir up the people againſt it. Pray tell me whether this is done from a ſerious diſapprobation of men of property and ſtability, in whoſe political judgment the people have confidence, or from motives of another kind. I muſt own, if I had looked for oppoſition to ſuch a ſyſtem at all, it would have been among the people diſtant from the metropolis, where information is leſs diffuſed, and narrow notions of courſe more likely to prevail. One of my neighbours has ſuggeſted, that this oppoſition is a mere manœuvre to keep the conſtitutioniſts firmly to the point, leſt their ardor ſhould cool too ſoon; for he obſerves, that party zeal, whetted by oppoſition, operates more powerfully than deliberate judgment: But it would ſeem to me rather hazardous to oppoſe a right meaſure, in order to ſtir up other people to ſupport it. Another neighbour ſuppoſes it may be done by the Tories.

A late publication however has puzzled me more than all the reſt: I mean the one exhibited in the Gazette, entitled, THOUGHTS on the DOMESTIC DEBT of the United States; and the preſent ſtate of Maſſachuſetts. Addreſſed to the Governor of that Commonwealth. I thought at firſt it was intended to be underſtood ironically, eſpecially when the writer undertook to prove mathematically, that A, who can run twice as faſt as B, can never overtake B, who ſtarts twenty yards before him. While I was muſing on this extraordinary paper, two of my neighbours, who had alſo read it, called upon me to conſult about its meaning. I told them the idea that had occurred to me; but they did not agree with me. One of them told me, that he had heard in town of ſome ſpeculators who, ſeveral years ago, by lying in wait for diſtreſſed certificate holders, had purchaſed certificates at an under value, and by taking advantage of ſome favourable turn in public affairs, had purchaſed real eſtates with them at nearly full value. He mentioned one inſtance particularly of a man who had purchaſed a conſiderable eſtate in Connecticut in this way from a member of Congreſs, who happened to be in Philadelphia when ſome favourable accounts arrived from Europe. He ſaid there were other men in town of large eſtates, who were well enough pleaſed with the revolution, while other people bore the expence of it; but took great care that the public ſhould never get in their debt. And now that the buſineſs was over, they did not like to have their eſtates taxed, to pay thoſe who had been ſo fooliſh as to truſt the public in times of danger. Some of the certificates, theſe people ſay, have been ſold at a low rate from the original holders, either becauſe they were needy, or deſponded of the public faith, and all the reſt ought to be valued at the ſame rate, though much the greater part ſtill remain in the hands of thoſe who obtained them at full value. Such, my friend ſuppoſed, were the people who cavil at the funding ſyſtem, and endeavour to render it unpopular, by raiſing a clamour againſt ſpeculators, and ſtriving to fix that character on every one who appears to be in poſſeſſion of funded certificates, whether as an original holder or otherwiſe.

My other friend ſaid, he believed there was ſome truth in theſe obſervations: but as to this addreſs to the Governor of Maſſachuſetts, he was apprehenſive it aroſe from motives ſtill worſe. It ſhews ſo much the treaſonable ſpirit of the inſurgents in New England, that he ſuppoſed it to have been written by ſome refugee from that country, who is confederated with Shay's party: he pointed to ſeveral parts of the addreſs itſelf to prove this opinion: ſuch as

"Would the inſurgents complain of that grievance only (funding the domeſtic debt) and not take up arms, I ſhould be pleaſed with their oppoſition."

"If no compromiſing plan can be fallen upon, I could almoſt wiſh to ſee the whole debt wiped off at once."

"They (the people of Maſſachuſetts) enumerate a long catalogue of grievances, which are all trifles but one, the payment of intereſt at ſix per cent. in ſpecie on depreciated certificates."

"People here have an idea that the oppoſition conſiſts of a rabble; but I know it conſiſts of the ſubſtantial yeomanry of the ſtate."

"The majority of the people are with the inſurgents in principle."

"One of the eaſtern ſtates is decidedly oppoſed to the funding ſyſtem. Some men impute this oppoſition to a knaviſh deſign to cheat their public creditors; I aſcribe it to the ſuperior information and wiſdom of the people. Within two years moſt of the Americans will be of the ſame opinion."

"I could wiſh to ſee a law paſſed to prevent a legal recovery of more than 25 per cent. annually on private debts now due, which amount to more than ſix or eight pounds. And another to prevent all debts contracted in future for any foreign articles, from being recovered by law."

This language and theſe ſentiments, my friend obſerved, were ſo exactly in the ſtyle of the Maſſachuſetts rebellion, that they muſt have ariſen from the ſame ſource, and he thought the writer of them came within the meaning of the proclamation. And they are ſo much like the puffings of Galloway and other Britiſh adherents in the late war, that we were ſtruck with aſtoniſhment to find them in a Philadelphia paper. Party rage and perſonal abuſe we have been ſo much accuſtomed to, that we conſider them as we do the changes of weather, which the laws of nature have made neceſſary to correct the atmoſphere for the preſervation of health and the promotion of vegetation. But when ſedition rears its baneful head, and its abettors boldly aſſert its growing influence, and prognoſticate its predominancy in a ſhort time, it ſhould give an alarm like the cry of Fire, which unites the efforts of every citizen in a common cauſe.

Who the writer of this ſeditious addreſs is, we do not pretend to conjecture. We have heard of one man who, having loſt his own, threatens to write us all out of our ſenſes; and of another who has attempted to lecture you into a wilderneſs; but we were told that they found their doctrines ſo little regarded that they were diſcouraged. However, this writer pledges himſelf ſo boldly, that all America will be converted to his opinions within two years, notwithſtanding the apparent ſuppreſſion of his party in Maſſachuſetts, that if he can find printers to promulgate his doctrines, there is no knowing what effects they may have on ſome claſſes of people. The preſent unfortunate ſituation of a ſiſter ſtate ought to warn us of the danger of ſuffering the cultivators of ſedition to go on too far unregarded. Surely neither of the two great parties in this ſtate would accept of a temporary acceſſion of ſtrength by cheriſhing men whoſe aim is ſo evidently the deſtruction of the fundamental principles of ſociety.'

A SECOND

Courſe of Lectures;

By a LADY.

THE FIRST LECTURE of this COURSE will be read in the Univerſity on Friday the 11th inſtant, at Half paſt Seven o'clock preciſely.

It will contain, excluſive of the preliminary diſcourſe, on the origin of language, ſuch ſelections from Milton, Shakeſpear, Thomſon, Pope, Young and Shenſtone, as have a tendency to improve the heart and enlarge the underſtanding.

The ELEGY on LAURA, tranſlated from Petratch by Sir William Jones, will be read that evening, at the particular requeſt of ſeveral ladies, who have already heard and admired this delightful compoſition, which will doubtleſs immortalize the memory of the tranſlator, as it has already done the author.

The numerous attendance on theſe readings is ample proof of their innocence and rationality, eſpecially when it is conſidered that the audience was compoſed of gentlemen of the three learned profeſſions, ladies of the moſt elevated rank and fortune, as well as a number of eminent citizens, who introduced their wives and daughters into a ſociety, where nothing could be heard but the beauties of poetical genius, ſelected with care, and an anxiety to convey general ſatisfaction.

Tickets may be had of Meſſrs. Prichard, Seddon, Spotſwood, Peloſi, and Rice, in Market & Front ſtreets.

N. B. A ſlight Indiſpoſition neceſſarily obliges the Lady to poſtpone this Lecture until the 11th Inſtant.

Philadelphia, May 2.

The Uranian Concert,

INTENDED to have been performed on Monday evening laſt, but poſtponed on account of the rain, will be exhibited on Monday evening next, the 7th of May, in the HALL of the UNIVERSITY. The doors to be opened at Seven, and the entertainment to begin preciſely at Eight o'clock.

☞ Tickets ſtill to be had of W. Young, at the ſouth weſt corner of Second and Cheſnut ſtreets, and of all the Managers. wfm

Philadelphia, April 9, 1787.

THE ANNUAL ELECTION for DIRECTORS and a TREASURER of the Library Company of Philadelphia, will be held, at the Company's Room in Carpenter's Hall, on Monday the 7th of May next, at 3 o'Clock in the Afternoon, when the Treaſurer will attend to receive the Annual Payments.

As there are ſeveral Shares on which Fines are due, the Owners of them, or their Repreſentatives, are hereby Notified, that they will be unavoidably forfeited, agreeably to the Laws of the Company, unleſs the Arrears are paid off on the ſaid 7th of May, or within 10 days after.

By Order of the Board of Directors,
2aw WILLIAM RAWLE, Sec'ry.

TO BE LET,
(And entered on the firſt day of May next)

THAT neat Stone Houſe, ſituate on the weſt ſide of Schuylkill, adjoining the Middle ferry: nine acres of upland belongs to the houſe, of which one acre is an excellent garden, well fenced in and ſtocked with a variety of fruit ſtrees, ſtrawberries, and other valuable plants: there is above 7 acres of marſh between the upland and Schuylkill, that affords good paſture. The houſe is a licenſed tavern, with a well of excellent water near the door, and a ſtable that will hold ſeveral horſes. The ſituation is convenient for a tavern or ſtore, and ſuitable for both buſineſſes. For terms apply to the owner, William Biſpham, near 4 miles from Philadelphia, on Marſhall's road, or of Mr. Joſeph Ogden, at the Middle-ferry.

ADVICE TO YOUNG LADIES.

YE virgins attend,
Believe me your friend,
And with prudence adhere to my plan;
Ne'er let it be ſaid,
There goes an Old Maid,
But get married as faſt as you can.

As ſoon as you find
Your hearts are inclin'd
To beat quick at the ſight of a man;
Then chooſe out a youth
Of honor and truth,
And get married as faſt as you can.

For age, like a cloud,
Your charms ſoon will ſhroud,
And this whimſical life's but a ſpan;
Then, maids make your hay
While Sol darts its ray,
And get married as faſt you can.

The treacherous rake
Will artfully take
Ev'ry method poor girls to trepan!
But baffle their ſnare,
Make VIRTUE your care,
And get married as faſt as you can.

And, when Hymen's bands
Have join'd both your hands,
The bright flame ſtill continue to fan;
Ne'er harbour the ſtings
That Jealouſy brings,
But be conſtant and bleſs'd while you can.

ANECDOTE.

IN April 1759, a very uncommon affair happened: An old gentleman, purſuant to his will, was carried to a country village in the Weſt of England to be interred with his anceſtors; and four ſervants in a mourning coach, beſides the undertaker and ſix of his men, were ordered by the executors to attend the corpſe, agreeably to the will of the deceaſed. When they had got within a few miles of their journey's end, they ſtopped at a public inn to plume their hearſe, and put their trappings in order, for they had ſuch ſtormy and tempeſtuous weather the three preceding days, that they had not been able to exhibit one feather to public view.

The landlord of the houſe being a jocoſe merry fellow, and formerly a companion to the deceaſed, would inſiſt upon the company's taking part of a large bowl of punch at his expence, after the reckoning was paid. While this was preparing, the driver of the hearſe (contrary to the reſt of his brethren) told his maſter he did not like punch, and if he pleaſed he would be going gently on, till ſuch time as they ſhould overtake him. He had got not above half a mile from the place, before he came to a ſmall rivulet, which, by the heavy rains that had lately fallen, had overflowed its banks, and laid the roads, for ſeveral hundred yards, under water; and being a ſtranger in that country, he got a little out of the common track; ſo that when he was at the oppoſite ſhore, he found he had a rugged, deep dangerous rock to climb: however, he performed it though not without great difficulty; for by the ſudden jolts he met with, the coffin had unlooſed itſelf, and by toſſing too a fro had forced open the door of the hearſe, and in riſing the bank fell topſey turvey into the water, and down the ſtream it went for ſeveral yards. The driver not perceiving any thing amiſs, and the door cloſing again, he kept jogging on. He was ſoon after joined by the reſt of the mournful tribe, and a great number of his honour's tenants, who accompanied him to the church yard gate, where the whole pariſh was aſſembled to form the funeral train, and to ſing a requiem for his departed ſoul. All this while nobody perceived the corpſe was left behind, therefore every thing was conducted with great order and decency, and not a head was ſeen without a ſtreamer. The bearers being ready, and the mourners placed, the undertaker ordered the corpſe to be unhearſed: but no corpſe was there: every body was ſtruck with wonder and amazement. The undertaker ſtood aghaſt—the driver enfeebled and unable to ſupport himſelf, let looſe his reigns—the porters appeared like ſo many ſtatues, motionleſs and dumb. In this dilemma they continued for ſome time. They very well knew that it was ſafe the preceding night, and how to account for its being gone no one could conceive. After a long pauſe, one of the company recollected that the landlord of the inn where they ſtopped laſt exerciſed the trade of a plumber, as well as that of keeping a public houſe: and that nothing could be more probable than that he had ſtolen the corpſe, for the ſake of the leaden coffin. This was no ſooner obſerved to the undertaker, who was overwhelmed with ſhame and confuſion, than he mounts his ſteed, and away he hurries back, ſeized upon the landlord, and drags him before a magiſtrate, who, upon oath of the undertaker, commits him to priſon. This very ſoon alarmed the neighbourhood, and every body was in deep concern for the landlord, for he always bore the beſt character of any publican in that part of the Weſt, and was remarkable for ſelling the beſt ale and the moſt meaſure of any of his brother landlords. In the morning the waters being ſomewhat abated, they began to run clear, ſo that the nails of the coffin were ſeen to gliſten, which an old woman (who was croſſing the bridge below) obſerving, imagined them to be the ſcales of ſome enormous ſized fiſh that had come up the flood, and was ſo entangled amongſt the weeds, as not to be able to make its eſcape. This ſhe related to ſome more old women ſhe chanced to meet, one of whom ſaid it was a prediction of ſome great event, for juſt ſuch a fiſh as ſhe deſcribed was caught in the ſame river the very ſame day that king Charles I was beheaded, and that the clerk of the pariſh had a memorandum of it in writing, which he found among his great grandmother's curioſities. The report of ſo ſurpriſing a phenomenon, ſoon drew together a vaſt number of country people, who eaſily perceived the glittering in the water, but nobody was ſuffered to go any nearer, till ſuch time as the nets were fixed for preventing its eſcape. Meanwhile a noted gamekeeper, who was an expert markſman, and lived hard by, was called in to their aſſiſtance. This fellow was to load with a double quantity of powder, for (ſaid ſome of them) the fiſh that was caught here upwards of an hundred years before, a cannon ball would not pierce its ſkin. However, the keeper's ball went with a greater velocity than that of a cannon; his penetrated through the whole, whereas the cannon ball would not enter the ſkin. They then drew their nets over it, and brought it to the river ſide, when they plainly diſcovered it to be the coffin which the honeſt landlord was impriſoned for ſtealing. This lucky diſcovery cauſed the undertaker to be recalled, the publican reſtored, the body entombed and the people ſatisfied.

Will commence the Sale of a Variety of Houſhold and Kitchen Furniture.

THE Auctioneers return their moſt grateful thanks to thoſe who have been pleaſed to entruſt them with the ſale of their goods, and aſſure them, that every attention to their intereſt will be paid both in the ſales and payments.

They likewiſe beg leave to inform their friends and the public, (who wiſh to purchaſe goods) that Tueſdays and Fridays are the ſtated days for ſale of dry goods, and Saturday in the forenoon for houſhold and kitchen furniture: and from the encouragement hitherto received, they have no doubt of keeping up a general aſſortment. For Sale by Public Vendue,

At the Coffee-Houſe, *THIS DAY, the 5th Inſtant, May, at 12 o'Clock,
(If not ſold before at Private Sale)

THAT pleaſant Seat, formerly the eſtate of Robert Hopkins, deceaſed, ſituate in the precinct of Richmond, commonly called Point-no Point, 5 miles from the city of Philadelphia, conſiſting of a manſion houſe and 9 acres and 13 perches of excellent land.

The manſion houſe is 58 feet front, of a beautiful hewn ſtone, and 38 feet deep, with 4 rooms on each floor, elegantly finiſhed; 3 of the rooms on the ground floor wainſcotted on the ſides ſurbace high, and the fourth is wainſcotted quite up to the ceiling, with a handſome cornice in each room; the chimnies are decorated with poliſhed marble, and two of the hearths are marble; the entry is 12 feet wide, ornamented with the Dorick entablature, well executed, and pediments over the door of each room; the ſtaircaſe is ramp and twiſt with handſome brackets; the rooms on the ſecond floor are genteely finiſhed, two of them decorated with marble chimney pieces and hearths; the garret is very large and roomy: on the houſe-top are iron rails and mouldings of wood by way of balcony, from whence there is a beautiful proſpect of the neighbouring ſeats, the river Delaware and the Jerſey ſhore: the front door is arched, and calculated to admit of ornaments in the higheſt degree of elegance: the kitchen is convenient and the cellars very good, with two commodious and valuable vaults adjoining the houſe.

There is on the premiſes, a coach houſe, a framed hay houſe 64 by 25 feet, a ſtone ſmoak houſe, and at a little diſtance from the manſion houſe, a ſmall tenement with a cellar under it, a waſh houſe adjoining, and a pump of good water before the door; an orchard of about 100 trees of the beſt apples, and a collection of other fruits of the beſt kind, with a good kitchen garden now planted for family uſe.

The road leading from the city to this Seat, is not only level and very pleaſant, but more uniformly good at all ſeaſons of the year than any other road near the city.

It will be ſold ſubject to the payment of one fourth part of 75 ounces of coined gold of the kingdom of Portugal, to Elizabeth Hopkins, daughter of Iſaac Hopkins, when ſhe ſhall arrive at the age of 21 years, or to her heirs, according to the will of the ſaid Robert Hopkins, deceaſed,

One half the purchaſe money to be paid in 10 days after the ſale, and the remainder in 6 months. For further particulars enquire of the ſubſcriber, on the premiſes. J. BATES.

N. B. A Plan of the Premiſes may be ſeen at the Coffee-Houſe.

* The Sale of the above Place having been poſtponed, was entirely owing to a multiplicity of buſineſs crouding on the Auctioneer, on the Day propoſed; but it will poſitively come on, and be duly attended to, this day, the 5th of May. May 5. ep

Peter Wikoff, Auctioneer.

A conciſe ABSTRACT of a Britiſh ACT of Parliament for the further increaſe and encouragement of SHIPPING and NAVIGATION

A C T of 26th George III. C. 70.

SETS FORTH,

THAT the wealth, ſtrength, proſperity and ſafety of the Britiſh empire, greatly depend on the encouragement given to ſhipping and navigation — It is therefore proper, that the advantages hitherto given to ſhips owned and navigated by his majeſty's ſubjects, ſhould from henceforth be confined to ſhips wholly built and fitted out in his majeſty's dominions:

It is enacted then,

1. That from and after the firſt day of Auguſt, 1786, no veſſel foreign built (except ſuch as have been, or may hereafter be prize taken and legally condemned) nor any veſſel built, or re-built upon any foreign made keel or bottom, in the manner heretofore allowed, altho' owned by Britiſh ſubjects, and navigated according to law, ſhall be no longer entitled to any of the privileges or advantages of a Britiſh built ſhip, or of a ſhip owned by Britiſh ſubjects, and that all the ſaid privileges ſhall hereafter be confined to ſuch ſhips only as are wholly of the built of Great Britain, Ireland, Guernſey, Jerſey, Iſle of Man, or ſome of the territories in Aſia Africa or America, which now belong, or at the time of building ſuch veſſels did belong, or may hereafter belong to his majeſty, his heirs or ſucceſſors. Except ſuch foreign built ſhips as before May 1 1786, did truly, and without fraud, wholly belong to any of the people in Great Britain, &c. or territories abovementioned, and ſhall be legally navigated, and ſhall alſo be regiſtered in manner hereafter directed, which ſhips ſhall continue to enjoy all the privileges they have hitherto enjoyed, under ſuch rules and reſtrictions, and ſubject to all ſuch duties as have been impoſed on any goods imported or exported in ſuch foreign built veſſels. Except alſo ſuch veſſels which, before the paſſing of this act, have been re-built upon any foreign made keel or bottom, and which, before May 1ſt, 1786, were duly regiſtered as Britiſh ſhips: And alſo except ſuch ſhips as ſhall have been begun to be repaired or re-built before the 1ſt May 1786, which, by order under the hands of four or more commiſſioners of his majeſty's cuſtoms in England, or three or more commiſſioners in Scotland, may be regiſtered according to this act: Which orders the ſaid commiſſioners are empowered to grant, if it ſhall be made appear to their ſatisfaction, upon oath, that ſuch veſſel was ſtranded by the act of Providence, and not with a fraudulent intent, and was, when ſo ſtranded, the ſole property of foreigners, or a droit of admiralty: and it be in like manner clearly aſcertained, that ſuch veſſel, by the damage ſo received, was unfit to proceed to ſea without a thorough repair in this kingdom, and that ſhe was neceſſarily ſold for the benefit of the foreign ownery; or, being a droit of admiralty, was ſold under the authority of the court of admiralty, and openly purchaſed by a Britiſh ſubject or ſubjects, and, being the ſole property of ſuch purchaſers, hath been ſo much repaired, that two thirds of her at leaſt are Britiſh built.

2. From and after the 1ſt of Auguſt, 1786, no veſſel ſhall be deemed Britiſh built, or enjoy the privileges thereto belonging, which ſhall be repaired in any foreign port, if ſuch repairs ſhall exceed 15s. per ton of ſaid ſhip's meaſurement; except ſuch repairs be neceſſary, by reaſon of extraordinary damage ſuſtained during abſence from his majeſty's dominions, to enable her to perform the voyage then engaged for, and return in ſafety to ſome port of ſaid dominions. Particulars to be verified by oath of the commander, before a Britiſh conſul, or chief officer, at or near the place of repair, and renewed before a principal officer of the cuſtoms, at the firſt port of arrival within his majeſty's dominions. On failure in any of the premiſes, the ſhip to be deemed foreign built.

3. Every veſſel having a deck, or being fifteen tons burthen or upwards, belonging to any of his majeſty's ſubjects in Great Britain, Guernſey, Jerſey, Iſle of Man, or the colonies, ſhall, from and after the reſpective times herein after expreſſed, be regiſtered, and a certificate of ſuch regiſter be obtained from the proper officers of the cuſtoms, by the perſon or perſons claiming property in ſuch veſſel; which certificate ſhall contain the title of this act of parliament, the names, occupation and reſidence of the ſubſcribing owner or owners, who ſhall make oath, that he or they, together with ſuch others whoſe names, occupation and reſidence are there to be mentioned, are ſole owner or owners of the ſhip or veſſel, ſpecifying her name, port to which ſhe belongs, maſter's name, when and where built, or captured, and date of condemnation; name and employment of ſurveying officer; whether the ſaid veſſel is Britiſh, foreign or plantation built; number of decks and maſts; length from fore part of the main ſtem to the after part of the ſtern poſt aloft, in feet and inches; heighth between decks; depth of the hole; number of tons burthen; what kind of veſſel and how built; whether any or no gallery; what kind of head, if any—And the ſaid ſubſcribing owners having agreed to the deſcription and admeaſurement, and having cauſed ſufficient ſecurity to be given, the certificate of the regiſter, concluding with the name of the port, day of the month, and the year, in words at length, is to be given under the hands and ſeals of office, at the cuſtom houſe in the reſpective ports.

4. No regiſtry ſhall hereafter be made, or certificate thereof granted, in any other port or place than that to which the veſſel belongs.

5. The port to which any veſſel ſhall hereafter be deemed to belong, ſhall be that at which the huſband, or acting and managing owner, uſually reſides.

6. No regiſtry required for any ſhip of war, or any veſſel, being the property of his majeſty or any of the royal family, or for any veſſel whatever uſed ſolely in rivers or inland navigation.

7. No veſſel built in any of the colonies of North America, now called the United States, during the time that any act of the Britiſh parliament, prohibiting trade and intercourſe with thoſe colonies, was in force; or owned by the ſubjects of ſuch ſtates during the exiſtence of thoſe acts, and not regiſtered before the commencement thereof, ſhall be entitled to be regiſtered under this act, or to any of the privileges of a Britiſh built ſhip, unleſs prize taken and legally condemned, or having been ſtranded, ſhall have been built or re-built, and regiſtered in a manner heretofore allowed.

8. No ſubject whoſe uſual reſidence is in any country not under the dominion of his majeſty, ſhall be the owner in whole or in part of any regiſtered Britiſh veſſel, unleſs a member of ſome Britiſh factory, or agent for, or partner in any houſe or co-partnerſhip, actually carrying on trade in Great Britain or Ireland.

9. Oath required by the act of William III. 7 and 8, repealed.

10. No regiſtry to be made, or certificate granted, till oath be made before the perſon or perſons empowered to grant ſuch certificate, by a majority of the owners, not exceeding three in number, if reſident within twenty miles of the port where ſuch regiſter is required, or by one, if all ſhall live at a greater diſtance; in which oath ſhall be ſet forth all the particulars mentioned in the third ſection, with this addition, "That all the owners are truly and bona fide ſubjects of Great Britain, and have not taken the oath of allegiance to any foreign ſtate whatever, and that no foreigner, directly or indirectly, hath any ſhare, part or intereſt in the ſaid ſhip."

11. Where the number of joint owners amount to three or more, and three of them ſhall not perſonally attend to take and ſubſcribe the oath above directed, the part owner who does attend ſhall further make oath, that the abſent owners are not reſident within twenty miles, and have not willingly abſented themſelves to avoid taking the oath preſcribed, or are prevented by illneſs from attending.

12. To enable the proper officers of the cuſtoms to grant a certificate, truly and accurately deſcribing every veſſel to be regiſtered; and alſo to enable all other officers of the cuſtoms, on examination, to diſcover whether any veſſel is the ſame for which a certificate is alledged to have been granted, it is enacted, That previous to the regiſtering, or granting any certificate of regiſtry, ſome one or more proper perſons appointed by the commiſſioners of cuſtoms (taking to their aſſiſtance, if they judge it neceſſary, one or more perſons ſkilled in building and admeaſurement of ſhips) ſhall go on board, and ſtrictly meaſure and examine every ſuch veſſel, as to all particulars contained in the certificate before directed, in the preſence of the maſter or any other perſon appointed by the owners, or, in their abſence, by the maſter; and ſhall deliver a juſt account in writing, of the particulars required to the perſons authoriſed to make ſuch regiſtry; and the perſon attending on behalf of the owners, is to ſign his name to the certificate of the examining officer, provided he approves of every thing ſet forth therein.

13. If the perſons appointed to examine and meaſure ſhips, ſhall wilfully deliver a falſe deſcription of the particulars required; or if the perſon authoriſed to make ſuch regiſtry, ſhall knowingly make any falſe regiſter, or grant any falſe certificate, he ſhall forfeit the ſum of one hundred pounds, and be forever incapable of holding any office under his majeſty.

14. Aſcertains the method of meaſuring veſſels when afloat, videlicit, drop a plumb-line over the ſtern of the ſhip, and meaſure the diſtance between ſuch line and the after part of the ſtern poſt at the load water mark; then meaſure from the top of ſaid plumb-line, in a parellel direction with the water, to a perpendicular point immediately over the load-water mark, at the fore part of main ſtem, ſubtracting from ſuch meaſurement the above diſtance, the remainder will be the ſhip's extreme length, from which deduct three inches for every foot of the load draught of water, for the rake abaft, and alſo three-fifths of ſhip's breadth for the rake forward, the remainder ſhall be eſteemed the juſt length of the keel to find the tonnage; and the breadth ſhall be taken from outſide to outſide of the plank, in the broadeſt part, either above or below the main wales, excluſive of the ſheathing or doubling: the multiplying the length of the keel for tonnage, by the breadth ſo taken, and that product by half the breadth, and dividing by 94, the quotient ſhall be deemed the true contents of the tonnage. But this ſhall not alter the manner of meaſuring heretofore uſed, for aſcertaining the light duties, or any other duties payable according to the tonnage of a ſhip.

15. Bond to be given by the maſter, and ſuch owners as ſhall perſonally attend at the time of regiſtering, not to lend certificates, but that the ſame ſhall be ſolely made uſe of for the ſervice of that veſſel only for which it is granted, and returned when no longer of uſe for that purpoſe.

16 In caſe of any alteration in the property of a ſhip, there ſhall be indorſed on the certificate of regiſtry, before two witneſſes, the place where every perſon to whom ſuch property is transferred ſhall reſide, and copy of ſuch indorſement ſhall be delivered to the perſon authoriſed to make regiſtry, and grant certificates thereof, who is to cauſe an entry thereof to be indorſed on the affidavit upon which the original certificate of regiſtry was obtained; and ſhall alſo make a memorandum of the ſame in his book of regiſters.

17. So often as the property of any veſſel ſhall be transferred, in whole or in part, the certificate of regiſtry ſhall be truly recited, in words at length in the bill of ſale, otherwiſe ſuch bill of ſale ſhall be null and void.

18. So often as the maſter of any veſſel ſhall be changed, ſuch change ſhall be indorſed on the certificate of regiſtry, by the proper officer at the port where ſuch change is made: who ſhall likewiſe make a memorandum of the ſame in his book of regiſters.

19. It ſhall not be lawful to give any name to a veſſel, other than that by which ſhe was firſt regiſtered, which name, and of the port to which ſhe belongs, ſhall, within one month of ſuch regiſtry, be painted in white or yellow letters, of a length not leſs than 4 inches, upon a black ground, on ſome conſpicuous part of the ſtern, in a diſtinct and legible manner, which ſhall be ſo preſerved without eraſement or alteration, under the penalty of 100l.

20. Perſons applying for certificate of regiſtry of any veſſel, compleated after 1ſt Auguſt, 1786, ſhall produce a particular account of ſuch ſhip, under the hand of the builder, and make oath, that the ſhip for which he requires a certificate, is the ſame which is ſo deſcribed by the builder.

21. Perſons making application in the colonies for ſuch certificates, after January 1ſt, 1787, to conform to the particulars in the laſt clauſe.

22. If certificates be loſt, new ones may be granted according to act 15th Geo. II. chap. 31, upon giving freſh ſecurity, and taking a freſh oath, as by ſection 23d.

24. Veſſels, if altered in form, or burthen, by being lengthened, or built upon, or rigged in a different manner, ſhall have a new regiſter, or be deemed a foreign ſhip.

25. The condemnation of prizes, and particular deſcription of the veſſels, muſt be produced, to entitle to a certificate of regiſtry.

26 Prizes condemned in Guernſey, Jerſey, or the Iſle of Man ſhall be regiſtered either at Southampton, Weymouth, Exeter, Plymouth, Falmouth, Liverpool or Whitehaven.

27. The ſum aſcertained upon oath, for which a prize, taken and condemned in the colonies, was ſold there, ſhall be inſerted in the certificate of regiſter, that the duties payable upon the arrival of ſuch veſſel in a Britiſh port, may be the better collected.

28. Certificates which ſhall hereafter be granted, in purſuance of this act, ſhall diſtinguiſh, whether the ſhips be of the built of Great Britain or Ireland, Guernſey, Jerſey, the Iſle of Man, or the colonies, or of any foreign country; and if foreign built, ſhall be entitled to certificate of foreign ſhips' regiſtry for the European trade, Britiſh property; if Britiſh built, certificate of Britiſh plantation regiſtry.

29. Many foreign built ſhips having, by frudulent contrivances, been regiſtered, and be virtue thereof, employed in the trade to the Britiſh colonies, &c. it is therefore neceſſary, that all regiſters heretofore granted ſhall be called in, and new ones granted to ſuch ſhips as ſhall be legally entitled thereto: commiſſioners of the cuſtoms are to give public notice when ſuch certificates of regiſtry will be ready to be granted, at the ſeveral reſpective ports: and the owners of every veſſel, not heretofore required to be regiſtered, ſhall, on her firſt arrival at the port to which ſhe belongs, after the expiration of ſuch notice, cauſe ſuch veſſel to be regiſtered, and obtain a certificate, as herein before directed. Such ſhips as have been heretofore regiſtered, ſhall, in like manner, be regiſtered anew, and the former regiſter be delivered up; or if the former regiſter be loſt or miſlaid, the owner ſhall make oath thereof, and give ſecurity in the manner directed by the act 15th Geo. II. in the caſe of regiſters and certificates, de nova.

30 After the expiration of the notice herein before directed, twelve months ſhall be allowed to ſhips belonging to Great Britain, Guernſey, Jerſey, or Iſle of Man, to be regiſtered and obtain certificates, as now directed: eighteen months to veſſels belonging to the Britiſh colonies or territories in Africa or America: thirty months to ſhips trading or fiſhing beyond the Cape of Good Hope, or Cape Horn; at the expiration of which reſpective terms, no other regiſter ſhall be granted in purſuance of this act; all others ſhall thenceforth be null and void.

31. Should it happen from unavoidable neceſſity, or reaſonable cauſe, that any ſhip ſhould not return to her own port within the time limited, commiſſioners of the cuſtoms, upon proof being made to their ſatisfaction, may cauſe ſuch veſſel to be regiſtered.

32. No veſſel, which by this act is required to be hereafter regiſtered, or which is directed to take out a new regiſter, ſhall be permitted, after her firſt arrival at the port to which ſhe belongs, at the expiration of the notice herein before directed, to clear outwards to foreign parts, or coaſtwiſe, to proceed to ſea to fiſh, or for any other purpoſe; or be any wiſe entitled to the privileges of a Britiſh veſſel, unleſs the owners ſhall have obtained a certificate, according to the form herein before deſcribed. Any veſſel departing from her own port without ſuch certificate, ſhall be ſubject to forfeiture, with all her guns, ammunition, furniture, tackle and apparel.

33. If, after the expiration of the notice aforeſaid, any ſquare rigged veſſel ſhall be found in port, within twenty leagues, by water, of that to which ſhe belongs; or a veſſel not ſquare rigged, be found in any other port than that ſhe belongs to, without having obtained certificate of regiſtry, as herein directed, the principal officer of the port ſhall detain ſuch veſſel, until the commander, with one other ſufficient ſecurity (to be approved by ſuch officer) ſhall give bond to repair, as ſoon as conveniently may be, to the port to which ſhe belongs, and there cauſe her to be regiſtered; and produce to ſuch officer ſuch certificate of regiſtry, within the time limited in the condition of ſuch bond; which time ſhall be fixed according to the diſtance of the port, and the nature of the voyage, as the officer may determine: and if ſquare rigged veſſels cannot, without danger, enter the port to which they belong, certificates may be obtained, upon their being ſurveyed, &c. at the port where they touch, which ſhall be tranſmitted to the proper officers at the port to which ſuch veſſels reſpectively belong, who ſhall regiſter them accordingly.

34. After the expiration of the notice before mentioned, every commander of a regiſtered veſſel, ſhall, upon demand, produce certificate of ſuch regiſter to the principal officer at every port where ſuch veſſel may arrive, under the penalty of 100l.

35. The proper officer at every port, where regiſters and certificates are granted, ſhall number them progreſſively, beginning at the commencement of each year, and enter an exact copy of every certificate, with it number, in a book to be kept for the purpoſe; and ſhall alſo, within one month, tranſmit a true copy to the commiſſioners of the cuſtoms, upon forfeiture of 100l. for the firſt offence, and for the ſecond offence 200l. and diſmiſſion from office.

36. Commiſſioners of the cuſtoms in Scotland, ſhall, at the end of every month in each year, tranſmit to the commiſſioners of the cuſtoms in England, true copies of all certificates granted in purſuance of this act, within the limits of their commiſſion.

37. In lieu of all ſtamp duties on bonds, entered into by owners of any veſſel built before May 1ſt, 1786, upon being firſt regiſtered, ſhall be paid one ſhilling, and no more.

In lieu of all fees and perquiſites, now payable upon ſhips built before the 1ſt May, 1786, upon being firſt regiſtered, ſhall be paid the following ſums and no more.

Burthen 15 tons, and not exceeding 50 tons,	One ſhilling and ſix pence.
Above 50 tons, and not exceeding 100 tons,	Two ſhillings and ſix pence.
Above 100 tons, and not exceeding 200 tons,	Three ſhillings and ſix pence.
All above 200 tons,	Five ſhillings, and no more, to be paid to the reſpective officers, in the ſame proportions as the ſums now payable.

But upon the regiſtry of the transfer of property in any ſhip or veſſel, the ſtamp duties, fees and perquiſites, ſhall be paid as heretofore, ſave and except upon the firſt regiſtry, in purſuance of this act, of any ſhip or veſſel built before the 1ſt day of May, 1786.

38. His majeſty in council may order ſhips to be regiſtered, when ſuch regiſters have been granted, or promiſed, in conſideration of ſervices rendered to the public, though not otherwiſe entitled thereto.

39. Suits commenced in the colonies, touching regiſters granted to any veſſels under the circumſtances mentioned in the laſt ſection, may be ſtaid by the governor, till his majeſty's pleaſure be known.

40. If any perſon, required by this act to perform any thing in reſpect of his office, ſhall wilfully neglect or refuſe to perform the ſame, on being duly convicted thereof, he ſhall, for the firſt offence, forfeit 500l. and for the ſecond offence 500l, and be rendered incapable of ſerving in the revenue, or any civil capacity whatever.

41. If any perſon ſhall falſely make oath to any matters herein before required, ſhall ſuffer the like pains and penalties as for wilful and corrupt perjury; and if any perſon ſhall counterfeit, eraſe, alter, or falſify any certificate required by this law, or knowingly make uſe of ſuch certificate, ſhall, for every ſuch offence, forfeit 500l.

42. Penalties and forfeitures incurred by this act, may be recovered in ſuch courts, and diſpoſed of in ſuch manner as for any other offence committed againſt the laws of cuſtoms: and the proſecuting officer ſhall be entitled to the ſame ſhare.

43. All acts heretofore paſſed touching the trade, ſhipping and navigation of Great Britain and her colonies, not hereby expreſsly altered or repealed, ſhall continue in full force; and ſo far as the ſame relate to the regiſtry of veſſels, ſhall be deemed to extend to all veſſels required by this to have certificates of regiſtry.

44. The ſhips belonging to his majeſty's ſubjects reſiding in Ireland, being duly qualified and regiſtered according to the laws now in force, ſhall continue to enjoy the ſame privileges to which they were entitled before paſſing this act, until the end of four calendar months, from the commencement of the firſt ſeſſion of the parliament of Ireland, which ſhall hereafter ſit for four months without prorogation or diſſolution; and from the end of that time, every veſſel, which ſhall by virtue of any act, paſſed in the ſaid parliament of Ireland, be qualified and regiſtered in any port of the ſaid kingdom under ſimilar regulations and reſtrictions to thoſe herein before contained, ſhall continue to enjoy all the privileges of a Britiſh built ſhip, or foreign built ſhip, owned by his majeſty's ſubjects, as the caſe may be, according to the proviſions of this act.

Foreign Intelligence.

PARIS, February 6.

MR. BAUDART DE ST. JAMES, treaſurer to the marine, and to the queen's houſhold, has lately failed, indebted to the ſtate fifteen millions; he has been conducted to the ſame apartments in the baſtile that the cardinal lately occupied, and the king has appointed a commiſſion to examine into this extraordinary failure. To be ſure, there were three or four different means by which Mr. Baudart de St. James expended large ſums of money, but particularly a houſe full of uſeleſs ſervants, whoſe abuſes were evident to the leaſt curious eye; notwithſtanding this, there was great apparent order in his office; it is thought his creditors will loſe fifty per cent. at leaſt.

BELFAST, January 11.

The mode of watering flax by boiling water, inſtead of immerſing it in bogs, we are aſſured by a gentleman converſant in country buſineſs, is practicable. He aſſures us, that he has known one of his under-tenants, whom neceſſity obliged to have a little linen yarn ready for market, by the next day, pull the flax green, boil it in a large iron pot, ſcutch and ſpin it the ſame night; ſo that it went through every operation neceſſary to fit it for the loom, in the ſpace of eight hours. We relate the anecdote for the benefit of country gentlemen, farmers, and growers of flax. Should the practice become general, and unleſs people are blind to their own intereſt, our ſtaple manufacture will be infinitely benefited by it.

DUBLIN, January 21.

This day the houſe of commons reſolved itſelf into a committee of the whole houſe, to take into conſideration, the commotions which have diſturbed the public tranquility. The attorney-general roſe, and obſerved, that there had been many miſrepreſentations of what paſſed in the ſouth part of the kingdom, but he would ſtate ſuch facts as had come to the knowledge of government, as accurately as he could, and with the ſtricteſt regard to truth. At the beginning of theſe troubles only a few perſons aſſembled at a maſshouſe in the county of Kerry, who ſwore the people of the neighbourhood, not to pay tythes only in ſuch manner as they had preſcribed to the next pariſh, and the flame ſoon ſpread in a ſhort time all over Munſter; they all at length ſwore implicitly to obey the rules and directions of Captain Right, and went ſo far as to nominate curates and clerks for pariſhes, and to ſettle all eccleſiaſtical matters: they would not ſuffer divine ſervice to be performed in particular churches, and converted one of them to their own religious purpoſes—their object was to pay no tythes whatever, or any ceſs or pariſh taxes; to lower rents, to prevent proctors from being receivers for the clergy, and to raiſe the price of labour: the whole had the appearance of a ſyſtem, which could not be from an illiterate and ignorant peaſantry: from five hundred to ſix thouſand of them would appear together, and proceed regularly to the buſineſs for which they had aſſembled, ninety-nine out of a hundred, generally unarmed——they found the peaſantry every where willing to agree with them.

They at length acted with the moſt horrid cruelties, ſuch as dragging the unfortunate victims on ſledges ſtuck with ſpikes, burying them alive, with a long train of ſuch barbarities. This very day intelligence had been received of two of the military having been uſed in a ſhocking manner in the county of Cork, who were going to take ſome perſons charged with being whiteboys: a dog was ſet at one of them, and he in conſequence diſcharged his muſket, when a party got about him, and uſed him in ſuch a manner that his recovery is doubtful. The eſtabliſhed clergy have acted with the moſt becoming liberality, not demanding even the twentieth part of their dues, and he was of opinion the fault lay in the land holders, who raiſed their rents in ſuch a manner as to grind the poor wretches to powder; and many of theſe landholders, and thoſe of very great conſideration in thoſe parts, ſecretly ſided and abetted them in their deſign, and that the higheſt interpoſition of the legiſlature was wanting on this intereſting occaſion——but notwithſtanding their diſtreſſes (occaſioned entirely by the rapacity of the landholders) the peaſantry had no manner of right to take the means of redreſs into their own hands, and that no meaſure could be brought forward for their relief, till they were brought to a due obedience of the laws. He reprobated the ſupineneſs of the magiſtrates in thoſe parts, but praiſed the activity of Mr Maddocks and Mr. Weſt as magiſtrates, and if the behaviour of thoſe deluded creatures had been tortured into high treaſon, no jury would find the delinquents guilty of the charge. He concluded with moving that ſome proviſionary ſtatutes are indiſpenſably neceſſary to prevent tumultuous riſings and combinations, and to obviate in future the tendering of unlawful oaths.

LONDON, Jan. 24.

The mango tree and the true cinnamon are now flouriſhing in the Weſt India Iſlands, having both produced ſeeds, ſo that there is no probability of their ever being loſt there; as well as the nankeen cotton—with which we ſuppoſe moſt of our readers are in ſome meaſure acquainted. The plants of the cinnamon tree, and the nankeen cotton, were both captured laſt war on board a French Eaſt Indiaman, by lord Rodney, and preſented by him to the governor of Jamaica, where we are told they now thrive abundantly. With regard to the mango tree, we meet with two accounts, which differ in ſome reſpects ſo far, that we are at a loſs how to reconcile them. By the firſt account, we are told that Walter Maynard, a native of the iſland of Nevis, in the Weſt-Indies, and ſailing from Madras, touched at the iſland of Bourbon in his way to Europe; and having taſted the mangoes of that iſland, and finding they were a moſt delicious fruit, was induced to have ſome mango plants put into pots with earth, in order, if poſſible, to have them planted in the Weſt-Indies, and was happy enough to meet with a Weſt-India packet at ſea, which induced him, at that time, to go in her to the iſland of St. Vincent—ſince which they have fruited, and are now propagated in almoſt all the Weſt India iſlands. This happened in the year 1770. The original tree was deſtroyed by the hurricane in 1780; but we are told, that there are now many trees from the ſeeds of it that will bear this year.

By another account we are told that the mango-tree was planted at a place called the Guinea, in Barbadoes, about the year 1742, or 1743, which did not produce any fruit till the year 1760, or 1761, eighteen or nineteen years after it was planted; and that none of the young trees raiſed from its ſeed have yet produced fruit: whereas the St. Vincent's tree ſeems to have produced fruit in five or ſix years from its being planted. Are theſe different kinds of mangoes? It does not appear that the natives knew any thing of the mangoes of Barbadoes, about the year 1776; though the original tree had then carried fruit at leaſt nine years.

March 1. We learn from Holland, by the mail received on Tueſday from that country, that his excellency Don Liano, comte de Sanaſe, the Spaniſh miniſter at the Hague, has preſented to the ſtates-general a memorial, complaining and aſking exemplary juſtice againſt the conduct of the commanders of three Dutch ſhips, two of them commanded by Negroes, who ſet upon and turned adrift a Spaniſh guarda-coſta, called l'Carmen, to reſcue from the latter a ſmall Dutch veſſel taken in the actual commiſſion of ſmuggling.

March 7. The French glaſs-houſe of St. Gobin, in the Foreſt of Ferre, is the wonder of all travellers; it appears more like a town than a manufactory. The ſmelting pots are as big as wine hogſheads, and the furnace is of ſuch dimenſions, as to require an hundred cart loads of wood to heat it. The expedition with which the ciſterns, full of flaming matter, are taken out of the furnace, is very extraordinary; and ſuch is the heat of the furnace, that a bar of iron laid at either of its mouths, becomes red hot in leſs than half a minute. This ſurpriſing manufactory for caſting large looking-glaſs plates, which for ſome years paſt has made a rapid progreſs, will, by the commercial treaty, reach its ſummit of proſperity. The French painted glaſs manufactory will alſo be conſiderably promoted by the treaty; the moſt elegant and beautiful works, diſplaying a taſte in ornament even equal to the beſt paintings, are now done by the French.

Extract of a letter from Richmond, April 26.

"Saturday evening laſt, about ſeven o'clock, came on a violent wind, which occaſioned a brig to be drove on a ſand bank near Crany-Iſland; it is ſaid ſhe was from Norfolk, loaded with tobacco, outward bound.

"On the ſame evening a ferry-boat, in croſſing at the mouth of Rappahannock creek, with two horſes and three negroes, overſet; the negroes were drowned, but the horſes were ſaved by ſwimming on ſhore.

"Wedneſday ſe'nnight, a ſchooner loaded with tobacco was alſo drove an a ſhoal in the bay, and bilged; the cargo it is feared will be loſt, the crew were ſaved by a boat which was paſſing at the time ſhe ſtruck."

 Several charges and ſuſpicions, injurious to the reputation of Mr. Webſter, having been propagated and publiſhed, within a few days, he finds himſelf under the neceſſity of promiſing the public, as ſoon as his buſineſs will permit, a true ſtate of facts, ſo far as they reſpect himſelf.

†§† The owners of lands in Luzerne County, who live in or near to the city of Philadelphia, are requeſted to meet at the City Tavern This day, the 5th inſt. at 10 o'clock A. SONNET TO CLARA.

AH! why that heavy lid? that ſhining tear,
That ſadly beautifies thy lovely face?
And where gay ſmiles, and bluſhes ſhould appear,
Ah! why the tints of ſorrow do we trace?

Away, cold tear! that dulls ſo bright an eye!
With roſes freſh, I deck thy golden hair,
(Soft Clara liſtens, as I gently ſigh,)
Reject all pains, ſave Love's ſweet-painful care.

Haſt thou to fear, though all the world aſſails?
Lo! at a Lover's touch the phantoms flee!
Then haſte with me to vernal-coated vales,
For I was made for you, and you for me.

Ah! would'ſt thou love me more, and the world leſs,
Sorrow in vain ſhould come, but Peace eternal bleſs.

ANECDOTE.

THE late duke of Ancaſter paſſing over Tower-hill, London, on a very dirty day, ſtopped for the purpoſe of getting his boots cleaned. When the operation was over, on ſearching his pockets, he found he had not leſs than half a guinea, which the boy ſaid he could get changed in an inſtant, if his Honor would be ſo kind in the mean time to take care of his ſtool and blacking inſtruments. His intention was to return, but meeting a companion leſs honeſt than himſelf, and telling him his errand, the other adviſed him to make off. "Ay, but ſays the firſt, what ſhall I do for my bruſhes and tools?" "Oh! never mind that, leave the buſineſs to me, and you may depend on having them at our rendezvous in leſs than ten minutes." The fellow accordingly walked up with an impudent air to the ſpot where the duke was guarding the tools, and began to pack them up in a violent hurry. "What are you about, you raſcal, ſaid his Grace, thoſe things are not yours." "Yes but they are, ſays the fellow; the raſcal that cleaned your boots, and left you as centinel, was a debtor of mine, he is now a bankrupt, and —— I'll ſeize both ſtock and block."

Philadelphia, May 4.

In the Caſe of Manuel Noah,

A BANKRUPT.

THE Commiſſioners named and authoriſed in & by a commiſſion of bankrupt awarded and iſſued againſt Manuel Noah, having appointed the 13th of April laſt, for the creditors to prove their debts, and as many of them did not attend agreeable to the Notice given, they are hereby informed, that the commiſſioners will meet again on Thurſday the 17th day of May, inſtant, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the State houſe in the city of Philadelphia, when and where the creditors who have not already proved their debts are required to come prepared to prove the ſame.

The commiſſioners intend to meet on Thurſday the 7th day of June next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the State houſe, in order to make a dividend of the eſtate and effects of the ſaid bankrupt. Such creditors as dot not prove their debts before the 21ſt day of july next, will by law be excluded from a dividend.

By Order of the Commiſſioners,
JOHN JENNINGS, Clerk.
Office, Watkins's alley, May 4, 1787. 5.10.16

Sixteen Dollars Reward.

RAN away yeſterday evening from the ſubſcribers, two indented German ſervants, (ſuppoſed to have gone together) who came over laſt Fall in the ſhip Naſſau, from London.

JOHN REICHERT, twenty-five years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches high, of a dark complexion, ſhort brown hair, and being near-ſighted he frowns remarkably when looking at any object, which gives him a moroſe ſour countenance. He had on and took with him two round felt hats, one of them new; three dowlas ſhirts, almoſt new; a black ſilk cravat, a drab cloth coat, olive coloured jean coatee and waiſtcoat, black twilled worſted ſtuff breeches, two pair of worſted ſtockings, two pair of ſhoes, one of which were new; great coat half worn made of mill'd drab cloth, with mohair buttons; all his other clothes had metal buttons, and the waiſtcoat had two rows of them. He is a weaver by trade, ſpeaks Engliſh tolerable well, and it is expected he is gone towards Pittſburgh; he can behave ſmooth and complaiſant, does not drink to exceſs, but his natural temper is rough.

JOHN CHRISTIAN HUBNER, a baker by trade, about 21 years of age, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches high, an active, good-looking fellow, fair complexion, and light ſandy hair. He had on and took with him, a ſurtout coat of dark brown coating, ſhort ſpotted veſt, white dimity ditto, two new white ſhirts, three pair of breeches one of buckſkin, quite new; drab coloured cloth, and black cotton ditto, much worn; narrow rib'd worſted ſtockings, good ſhoes, with ſquare white metal buckles, an old brown camblet great-coat lined with green baize, and other clothes not particularly known, part of which he may probably pawn to defray his expences, he ſpeaks tolerable good Engliſh, and writes well in German; it is ſuppoſed he will endeavour to fix himſelf at ſome employment in a German ſettlement, in ſome of the back counties, or elſewhere, being an induſtrious fellow, not addicted to drink to exceſs. They are both averſe to ſervitude, and willing to embrace any ſcheme for obtaining their liberty. Sixteen Dollars will be paid to any perſon who will deliver the above ſervants to the ſubſcribers in Philadelphia, or Eight Dollars for either of them, with reaſonable charges.

THAT pleaſant and agreeable COUNTRY SEAT, ſituate on the weſterly ſide of the Wiſſahickon road, in the Northern-Liberties, and nearly oppoſite the one mile ſtone, conſiſting of an elegant manſion houſe with 4 rooms on the ground floor and 5 rooms on the ſecond floor, with an excellent garret over the whole, and a very roomy cellar under the houſe, part of which is the kitchen. The houſe is 35 feet front by 40 feet deep, built of brick. There are on the premiſes, a very good brick ſmoak houſe, and a large frame ſtable, together with a very fine large garden, a few fruit trees back of the houſe, and a pump of excellent water in the yard: the ſituation of the above premiſes is high and healthy; there is alſo 4 acres of excellent land belonging to the ſame, which yields a plentiful crop of hay, very good in quality.

Terms of ſale are, one half the purchaſe money in gold or ſilver, or the new emiſſion of this ſtate, to be paid immediately, and the remaining half in 6 months from the day of ſale, when an indiſputable title will be given, and poſſeſſion may be had immediately. The premiſes are clear of every incumbrance. For further particulars enquire of JAMES M'CREA, in Front ſtreet, oppoſite the Coffee-Houſe.

May 2. eptf

Maryland, Elk Ridge, November 14.

FOR SALE,

Upwards of Four Thouſand Acres of

Rich and valuable Land,

By the ſubſcriber, at Public Vendue, ſituated as hereafter deſcribed:

SEVEN hundred acres of Land, ſituate in Ann Arundel county, on Elk Ridge, near the dwelling houſe of the ſubſcriber, being part of the tract of land called Caleb's Purchaſe and the Anvil; on which is erected a tenement: this land is well wooded and watered, has a conſiderable quantity of good meadow ground, 20 acres whereof are cleared; it is ſituate about 4 miles from Elk Ridge landing, and 12 from Baltimore Town. The ſale of this land will be on the 11th day of June next, at Mrs. Ball's tavern, on Elk Ridge.

On the 11th day of June next, will be ſold at Hobb's tavern, on the road leading from Baltimore-Town to Frederick Town, 850 acres of Land, on which there is a tenement, being part of a tract called Pretty Sally, ſituate in Frederick county, about two miles from Hobb's tavern. This land will be laid off in parcels not exceeding 200 acres.

On the 11th day of June next will be ſold at the ſubſcriber's Plantation, commonly called the Old Quarter on Lingonore, 850 acres of Land, being part of a tract called Cold Friday; ſituate on Lingonore, in Frederick county. This land is of good quality, has an excellent mill ſeat on it, and will be ſold in parcels not exceeding 200 acres——Alſo,

427 acres, called	Brandywine Springs
230	The addition
72	The 2d addition
300	Part of Moab
50	Mount-Pleaſant
514	Reſurvey on Darby's Delight
62	Addition to ditto
43	Neceſſity
45	Omiſſion
31	Neglect
804 acres.

Theſe lands lay adjoining each other.

On the laſt aforeſaid tracts of land there are three very valuable plantations; on one of which, called the Old Quarter, there are upwards of 250 acres of cleared land, 60 acres of meadow now in graſs, and about 50 acres more may be eaſily made, of the firſt quality. This plantation is equal in value and richneſs to any in this ſtate; it is well calculated for planting and farming; has four dwelling houſes on it, two barns, two tobacco houſes, ſtables, corn houſes, and every other out houſe neceſſary on a valuable eſtate, and is in excellent order for cropping. It has alſo ſeveral fine ſtreams of water running through it, and on one of which there is a valuable mill ſeat.

The other lands adjoining, are alſo of ſuperior quality, and will be laid off into convenient lots, from two to three hundred acres, as may ſuit purchaſers.

The above lands advertiſed for ſale on the 11th June, are ſituate about 12 miles from Frederick-Town, 40 from Baltimore-Town, on the great public road, very convenient to ſeveral merchant mills, and in every reſpect are equal to any lands in that part of the country.

The terms of ſale for the above property are, a ſmall part of the purchaſe money in hand, the particular portion will be made known on the day of ſale, and the reſidue in two annual payments, on intereſt; the purchaſer to give bond, with approved ſecurity, when poſſeſſion will be given. Plans of the lands may, in the mean time, be ſeen at Hobb's tavern, and at the Old Quarters. THOMAS DORSEY.

TO-MORROW,

At Nine o'clock in the morning,

At the Northern Liberty Auction-ſtore,

Will commence the Sale of a large and general

Aſſortment of Merchandize.

Likewiſe—A QUANTITY of VERMILLION.

THE Auctioneers return their moſt grateful thanks to thoſe who have been pleaſed to entruſt them with the ſale of their goods, and aſſure them, that every attention to their intereſt will be paid both in the ſales and payments.

They likewiſe beg leave to inform their friends and the public, (who wiſh to purchaſe goods) that Tueſdays and Fridays are the ſtated days for ſale of dry goods, and Saturday in the forenoon for houſhold and kitchen furniture: and from the encouragement hitherto received, they have no doubt of keeping up a general aſſortment. May 7

C. Febiger & Co. Auctioneers.

To be Sold by Public Vendue,

On Seventh Day, May 12th, next, on the Premiſes, at Eayre's-Town, Burlington county, New-Jerſey,

A Saw-Mill in compleat order, a valuable Mill-Seat, the Ruins of a Griſt and Merchant Mill (ſome time ſince conſumed by fire) the dam and water works whereof are in excellent condition, a Pair of Burr Stones, and all the Iron for two Mills for merchant and country work; together with about 50 Acres of Land under cedar fence; whereon are a good dwelling houſe, two wells of excellent water, ſtables, a barn, a crib houſe, a good orchard in prime bearing, and ſome other fruit trees.

The ſituation is equal to any for country cuſtom, and the creek may, with a ſmall expence, be made navigable to the mill for boats of a conſiderable burthen. Among many other advantages, the dam is maintained by the Public, and the ſtream fully ſufficient for three mills the greateſt part of the year. The terms of payment will be made eaſy.

To the PUBLIC.

WIGWAM BATHS, on the banks of Schuylkill, will be opened on Monday next, where ladies and gentlemen may be furniſhed with a cold plunging, ſhower or warm bath, at a few minutes notice. And as the ſubſcriber has not ſpared pains or expence in preparing every comfort which can be deſirable for either medical or pleaſure bathing, he hopes it will be in his power to give ſatisfaction to thoſe who may pleaſe to favour him with their company. This being the firſt attempt which has been made in North America to eſtabliſh a public warm bath; the medical benefits of which are ſo great, that the Philadelphia College of Phyſicians are about to erect baths in ſome part of this city for the ſervice of the ſick.

The Wigwam water is a ſtrong chalybeate and may be drank with ſingular advantages in a variety of diſeaſes.

Every refreſhment the beſt inns of Pennſylvania can afford, may be had on the moſt reaſonable terms; and invalids and others will be provided with warm clothes and comfortable beds after their bathing.

Such perſons as may wiſh to reſide conſtantly near the Spring and Bath, will be boarded in the genteeleſt manner at a very moderate rate, by the Public's

TUNIS, January 4.

IT is no longer poſſible to conceal the diſcontent which viſibly reigns among the members of our adminiſtration, who are quite at a loſs to know how to reſtore tranquility to the ſtate. The Venetians have made their appearance again on our coaſts, and unhappily for us, have had better ſucceſs than formerly; but what in ſome degree leſſens our fear, and makes us hope their deſign is not at preſent againſt Suza, is the information we have received, that their ſole intention is to watch the Ottoman fleet, which is now in a very diſtreſſed ſituation off Alexandria. Since writing the above, we have juſt heard that the Venetian fleet have begun to fire upon Suza.

MADRID, February 20.

A fleet of ſeven ſhips, of 64 guns each, is now fitted out at Cadiz, and the command given to Don Joſeph Solano Marquis del Soccoro. The deſtination of this fleet is not yet made public, but report ſays, that it is intended to repel the attacks of the Dutch Eaſt India Company, who are endeavouring to obſtruct the trade of the new Philippine Company, by ſeizing our ſhips on their return from India. Others think that it is merely intended to protect the Mediterranean, in conſequence of our late agreement with the Algerines.

DUBLIN, January 21.

We are ſorry to declare, that it is the general opinion, that no relief will be adminiſtered to the poor of Ireland, during the preſent ſeſſion. Adminiſtration ſeem intent on removing the cauſes from whence the diſturbances originated, but upon puniſhing diſturbances themſelves! ſo that the wretched peaſantry may continue in the ſame deplorable ſtate they are in at preſent, until a total alteration of principles takes place amongſt the leading men in this kingdom.

It is the decided intention of adminiſtration to obſerve a total ſilence on the ſubject of tythes, and to take no ſtep whatever relative to it. The buſineſs, however, will be agitated by the country ſide of the houſe, and of courſe will meet the warm oppoſition of the friends of adminiſtration—but not the friends of their country

LONDON, Jan. 24.

A new hat, juſt imported from Verſailles, has been the ſubject of admiration among the ladies;—it is upon a ſmaller ſcale than thoſe which have been lately worn; and conſiſts of a fine chip, lined with pale blue velvet, turned up on one ſide with a gold button and loop; the crown rather high, with a broad band of white ribbon, embroidered on each ſide with gold, that has the effect of lace; a large bow of blue ſattin ribbons behind, and a plume of beautiful white feathers.

The little living phoſphoric inſect, is probably ſimilar to the little ſhining flies found in Italy, which are about the ſize of a bee; the belly of which is ſo luminous, that three of them, encloſed in a tube of white glaſs, will light a chamber. M. l'Abbe Nollet has proved, that the light of this inſect extends over the place where it has been cruſhed. An Engliſh nobleman, lately arrived from Italy, ſaw an infinite number of theſe inſects in that country. The ditches about Mantua abounded with them, and the graſs and trees were covered with them, which, by night, produced a moſt luminous and agreeable effect.

The moſt extraordinary inſect of this kind is the beetle, or ſcarabœus, called the Pombardier, which is to be found in the king of France's muſeum, and in ſome private collections in this metropolis. M. Rolander, the French natural hiſtorian, ſays, the firſt time he picked up this inſect, which is phoſphoric, there came a noiſe from its body like that of fire arms, and a clear blue ſmoke. Another time he pricked the inſect with a pin, and it went off twenty times ſucceſſively. He likewiſe opened the inſect, and found a vacant bladder in its body, but could not diſcover whether this was its reſervoir for air, or ſome inteſtine.

Extract of a letter from Briſtol January 20.

"A curious circumſtance happened in the neighbourhood of Calne, not many weeks ago. A certain perſon having lately had great quantities of game deſtroyed in his woods, ſent for a notorious poacher in the neighbourhood, and gave him orders to pick up as many hares as he could meet with on his manor within a limited time. The man killed near one hundred and fifty, and carrying them all round the country, diſpoſed of them to his old cuſtomers at a very reaſonable rate, taking care to mark down every purchaſer in his pocket-book. On a day agreed upon, this honeſt poacher appeared before a neighbouring juſtice, and informed againſt every one of the purchaſers. The fines amounted to above ſix hundred pounds, which are rigidly exacted, half of which go to the pocket of the informer."

March 12.

Extract of a letter from Ghent, dated March 2, 1787.

"It appears to me that you are all languid, and want fire, on a ſubject big with ruin to England; and, if I may offer my private ſentiments, a matter more fatal by far to Britain than an immediate war. France has at laſt encompaſſed you with a toil which ſhe has ſet for you this century paſt, and you have juſt adopted all her views, at a time when ſhe could only hope to dupe you by the depth of her policies. Her finances are ruined; her ſituation, as I before obſerved, with the different powers of Europe, extremely critical; and, but for this doubly damned invention of the treaty of commerce, our once powerful and ever inveterate rival would have been humbled to the duſt, without trouble on our part. The depth of the malady may be viewed in the ſteps ſhe is taking——ſelling the domains of the crown—calling for the united council of the kingdom——granting ſettlements, free uſe of religion, laws, &c.—power of conveying property to proteſtants—in ſhort nothing leſs than bankruptcy could induce ſuch a court to go ſuch lengths. I am ſo anxious on this ſubject, which I cannot ſee without horror; and I feel ſo much the ſneers and double meaning of the French here, when they talk on this ſubject, that I am induced to ſend you ſhort hints of what I ſuppoſe to be the preſent views of France. This I am the more encouraged to do, becauſe I am ſure to a certainty I am right. As an apparently indifferent bye ſtander, I hear and converſe much with men of real faſhion and condition of that nation, and pick up, from one and the other, more perhaps than could be eaſily done at Paris."

March 13. On Sunday an expreſs packet was received at baron Lynden's, the Dutch ambaſſador's houſe in Hertford-ſtreet, from the Hague: ſince which it is given out with confidence, that the commiſſioners from the ſtates-general to Nimeguen have had their firſt conference with the prince, who received them very cordially; and the reſult has been that an accommodation will take place directly, and his ſerene highneſs, with his family, will ſhortly return to the Hague.

It is now certain, that general Elliot comes home in the courſe of the enſuing ſummer. He has written to the commander in chief, to ſignify to his majeſty, that, after having put the Rock into a complete ſtate of defence, it is his intention to retire. There is no doubt but his requeſt will be complied with, and there are many very good peace generals waiting for the appointment.

In the naval eſtimates for the preſent year, 1787, the ſum of 70,000l. is fixed to be aſked for to be applied towards the purpoſes of going on with the men of war now on the ſtocks, and the ſum of 85,000l. for repairs of ſhips.

On Saturday an expreſs arrived from France with an account that the great caſſoon, juſt finiſhed at Cherbourg, had given way. This event had been occaſioned by the late violent weſterly winds, which had occaſioned an uncommon high ſea. An expreſs was gone to Paris with all the particulars of this event, when our correſpondent's letter was diſpatched from France.

Extract of a letter from James Yerill, Mate of the Bethia, Captain Blair bound from Charles Town to London, dated Fowey Harbour, March 6, 1787.

"I take the earlieſt opportunity to acquaint you of the melancholy condition of your ſhip Bethia, and the ſituation we have been in for ſome time. On the 11th of Feb. captain Blair, Mr. Anderſon, the boatſwain, James Sargen, and Robert Kelſo, were waſhed overboard, with every thing that was upon deck at that time, and they were drowned in ſpite of every effort to ſave them. The ſhip is much damaged in the hull, maſts, rigging, &c. and her cargo alſo. After we got the ſhip in the Channel, I fell in with, and ſpoke the Duke of Cumberland Packet, the captain of which immediately ſent a mate and ſeven men on board, who, with the aſſiſtance of Mr. Price, maſter, and a boat manned from his majeſty's cutter the Barracouta, brought her ſafe into this port."

A letter from Rheims, dated February 27, ſays, "About a fortnight ago, a boat, with about 40 perſons in it, croſſing the Maeſe, near Dun, in Clermontois, was overſet, and all on board, except the waterman, periſhed. There were eleven pregnant women among them. A labourer being told of the dreadful accident, mounted a ſtout horſe in an inſtant, and jumped with him into the river, from a bank twenty feet high. The moment he got above the waves, he directed his ſwimming, with his horſe, amidſt thoſe heads of the women that appeared now and then above water. He ſeized eight of them by their hair, and let them ſucceſſively go, till he found his wife, whom he carried aſhore, and afterwards on his back to a public houſe, where ſhe gave ſome ſigns of life; but Nature, by ſo violent a ſhock, forced the offspring from its mother's womb, and they both died a few minutes after. The huſband, the unhappy ſpectator of ſuch a diſmal ſcene, did not ſurvive them long. Grief had preyed ſo faſt on his heart, that he died the next morning. They were all three buried in the ſame coffin. The magiſtrates of the town would have puniſhed the waterman for his negligence, or want of ſkill, but that, among the victims of his imprudence, were his wife and ſiſter."

On Thurſday laſt died Samuel Graves of Hembury Fort, Eſq. in Devonſhire, admiral of the White in his majeſty's fleet. He was commander in chief at Boſton, when the late troubles began, and ſet fire to Charleſtown, by firing red hot balls during the attack at Bunker's-hill, and afterwards burned Falmouth, with ſtores and effects belonging to the rebels, to the mount of 150,000l.

Philadelphia, May 7.

We learn from good authority, that the Congreſs of the United States are now about to commence the ſale of the ranges which have been laid off and ſurveyed of the lands belonging to the United States. This muſt give an immediate riſe to the current value of the ſecurities of the United States, which are receivable in payment for the ſaid lands as ſpecie.

We find by late Engliſh papers, that the ſeſſions at the Old Bailey, in London, began the 22d of February, and ended the 12th of March following, in which time there were tried 110 perſons, of which number 22 were condemned to die, 47 convicted of felonies, 41 acquitted.

In the ſame ſpace of time, about 40 were committed for murder, robbery and houſe breaking. At the circuits, above 30 were condemned to die!!

Wedneſday in the forenoon, the remaining part of a brick building in Great Dock ſtreet, New-York, adjoining the houſe occupied by Mr. Andrew Otterſon, Taylor, ſuddenly gave way: by this unhappy accident, three children of Mr. Otterſon were badly wounded, the life of one of whom, being the eldeſt child, a female of 7 years, is deſpaired of, a jury of the faculty having already extracted fourteen pieces of bone taken from its tender ſkull. An accident ſo excruciatingly diſtreſſing to the parents of the little innocents, it is hoped, will prove a ſufficient warning in future to owners of houſes, not to ſuffer ſuch dangerous piles to remain unlevelled.

Abſtract from the act impoſing duties on goods and merchandiſe, imported into the State of New-York, paſſed by the legiſlature on the 11th April.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That all goods and merchandiſe, which ſhall be imported or brought into this ſtate, after the ſaid firſt day of Auguſt next, in any ſhip or veſſel, not built within any of the United States, ſhall be ſubject to the following additional duties, that is to ſay, on all the herein before enumerated articles, other than thoſe ſubject to a duty ad valorem, at and after the rate of one fourth part of the duties in and by this act impoſed on ſuch articles reſpectively: and on all goods and merchandiſe, ſubject to a duty ad volorem, the further ſum of two pounds ten ſhillings per centum ad valorem, to be computed on the prime coſt.

⁂ Former acts relative to duties are repealed after the firſt of Auguſt next. And, this act to ceaſe when the United States in Congreſs aſſembled, accept the impoſt as given to them by a law of this ſtate.

From the INDEPENDENT GAZETTEER.

Mr. OSWALD,

For the information and ſatisfaction of thoſe who are enterested in the fate of the officers and crews of the ſhip Congreſs, belonging to this port, and the ſhip Prince Frederick, bound from New-York to London, both of which foundered at ſea in the months of November and December laſt, I have ſent you the following narrative, to be communicated to the public through the medium of your paper, and therefore requeſt you to publiſh it in your next Gazetteer. I am, Sir, your's, &c

GEORGE CURWEN.

ON the fifteenth day of October laſt, I left Bourdeaux, in the ſhip Congreſs, bound to Philadelphia, and on the ſeventeenth of November following, in latitude 37; 20 north, and longitude 39: 30 weſt, a heavy gale of wind from the weſtward carried away my main ſail, and at the ſame time the ſhip ſprung a leak, the water getting over my ballaſt, and the pumps being choaked, we were three days and three nights conſtantly employed in bailing out water with buckets, but ſtill it gained upon us, we found too, that the main poſt of the rudder was gone, which rendered the ſhip incapable of being ſteered. This loſs we attempted to remedy, by ſubſtituting in its place a ſpare main-yard, which we had on board; it, however did not anſwer the purpoſe. In this ſituation, the gale ſtill violent, and the ſea running extremely high, we lay until the twenty-ſecond in the morning, when we fortunately fell in with the ſhip Prince Frederick, captain Richard Davy, who was nine days out from New York, and bound to London. The gale now in ſome degree abating, we ſent our boat to this ſhip for ſome materials, with which we might make a rudder—captain Davy was friendly enough to come on board, and to offer us every aſſiſtance in his power. In this deplorable ſituation we could not for a moment balance what was to be done, deciſive we muſt be on the inſtant—the ſhip continued making water much faſter than we could diſcharge it—our men were worn down with fatigue, and our rudder irrepairably loſt; we conſulted with each other, and determined—indeed it was the only aletrnative left us—to abandon the ſhip, which we accordingly did immediately, and with the aſſiſtance of captain Davy's boats we got ſome proviſions, water, &c. out of her, for our ſubſiſtence—— by this time it was juſt night, and appearances indicating the approach of another ſtorm, which ſoon after we realized, although we wiſhed to have ſtayed longer by the Congreſs, in hopes of recovering ſomething more from on board of her, we were then obliged to leave her, at 11 o'clock at night, with ſeven feet water in her hold.

On the fifth of December, in lat. 38: 30, N. long. 32: 30 weſt, being then on board the Prince Frederick, a violent gale of wind came on from the weſtward; in this ſtorm we loſt our main maſt, fore maſt and tiller, which was ſoon after followed by the loſs of the rudder, and the ſhip making ſo much water, that we were on the eve of ſinking; we were reduced to the melancholy, uncertain, and dernier reſource of taking to our boats, there were in all forty eight of us, thirty-eight of whom got into the long boat, and the other ten in the yawl; we had then pretty moderate weather, but the day following we had a high wind and a heavy ſea, ſo that, to lighten our boats, we were obliged to throw over board what little baggage we had taken with us. On the eighth, however, fortunately, without the loſs of a man, we landed ſafe on the iſland of Flores. Here again, we were in a diſagreeable ſituation; for, as this is one of the Weſtern Iſles, ſmall, and with little or no trade, it is of courſe ſeldom frequented by veſſels; we were obliged to wait ſix weeks before we could procure a conveyance from thence; a laſt we got a Portugueſe ſchooner for two hundred dollars, to carry us to Fayal; here I became acquainted with Mr. Dent, the American conſul, and Mr. Graham, the Britiſh conſul—from theſe gentlemen we experienced polite, friendly, and humane treatment.

A principal of duty, as well as the dictates of humanity, called upon me to pay every attention in my power to my unfortunate companions in diſtreſs; I therefore determined not to leave this iſland until I could take with me all my ſeamen. At Fayal there was, at this time, but one veſſel bound to the United States; this was the ſhip Hetty, captain Walch, a gentleman, who treated us with every kindneſs and civility in his power; on board of this ſhip was one Duncan Roſs, ſaid to be the owner: to this Duncan Roſs I applied for a paſſage for myſelf and my mates to Philadelphia, for which port he was bound, and I agreed with him, at ten guineas for myſelf, and half that ſum for each of my mates; my people he was likewiſe to take, on their aſſiſting to work the ſhip, and my laying in for them a ſufficient quantity of proviſions, &c. The next difficulty which aroſe to us was the time of payment; we offered to him our notes of hand jointly and ſeverally for the payment of our paſſage money the moment we ſhould arrive in America—a propoſition, which, in our ſituation, twice ſhipwrecked—ſtrangers in a foreign country—deſtitute of money, and without recources, and no man, who had not altogether renounced the common feelings of humanity would have rejected. This Duncan Roſs, however, did reject it, and inſiſted on being paid in advance, though he knew perfectly well we muſt borrow the money from ſome one whoſe heart was generous and benevolent as his own was mean, illiberal and ſordid. I mentioned before that he had agreed to take my ſailors, and upon what terms, but after all the neceſſary ſtores, &c. were on board, and the ſhip ready to ſail, this Duncan Roſs, deſtitute of every principle of juſtice, and callous to the finer feelings of ſentiment and philanthropy, declared that he would not take any of them, unleſs I would pay him one hundred dollars for their paſſage, and that too in advance; and upon Mr. Dent and Mr. Graham expoſtulating with him on the injuſtice and cruelty of ſuch conduct, and repreſenting to him the diſappointment, hardſhip and diſtreſs theſe unfortunate men would be ſubject to, he replied, that thoſe of them who were Britiſh ſubjects he would take, on condition that Mr. Graham would give him an order on the Britiſh conſul in America for their paſſage money; but for the Americans, he would have nothing to do with them. Mr. Dent then informed him, that unleſs he fulfiled his engagement to me, he would complain to the chief magiſtrate of the iſland, who he did not doubt would compel him to do it; he however, rather than wait until ſuch meaſures ſhould be taken, complied, though involuntarily.

This Duncan Roſs is now in this city, and he may, if he chooſes, call upon captain Curwen, who is alſo here, and ready to ſupport the truths contained in the foregoing narrative.

Philadelphia, May 3, 1787.

PITTSBURGH.

TO BE SOLD,

A NEW two ſtory HOUSE, juſt finiſhed, pleaſantly ſituate in Water ſtreet, fronting upon the Monongahela river, nearly oppoſite the Old ferry, and only two lots diſtant from Ferry ſtreet.

The plan of the houſe is very commodious, has 4 rooms on a floor, and is one of the beſt and neateſt finiſhed houſes in that town, built upon a lot of 60 feet by 140: there is an excellent cellar under the whole houſe 9 feet in the clear; the firſt and ſecond ſtories are about 10 feet each in the clear, with an exceeding good garret, the inſide partitions (except thoſe on each ſide the ſtaircaſe) are wainſcot pannel work, well finiſhed and painted; and as high as the ſur-baſe the houſe is pannelled around, except a part of the lower ſtory, which is now occupied as a ſtore.

At the back of the houſe is a Kitchen two ſtories high and a garret; it is 20 feet by 18 and a fire-place in each ſtory. The whole is rented at 70l. per ann. and has two families living therein, but the purchaſer may have poſſeſſion of the lower part immediately, and of the whole premiſes in 6 months.

If a good ſituation for trade and buſineſs are objects of any advantage, there is not one in Pittſburgh which enjoys a preference to this: it commands a firſt choice of all the cuſtom from Waſhington and Fayette counties; and as a demonſtration of the worth of the ſituation, the lots contiguous to it are rated at treble the value of any others of the ſame ſize the in town. Pittſburgh is at preſent a very conſiderable and flouriſhing place; and as little doubt remains but it will become a county town ſhortly, that circumſtance alone will greatly inhance the value of every foot of property in the place. Nature has alſo fitted it with ſo many excellent and peculiar advantages, that it is next to impoſſible but that it will in time grow much both in ſize and opulence. Particulars may be known by applying to MATTHEW M'CONNELL, at the Exchang -Offi, in Second, near Cheſnut ſtreet, Philadelphia. 2awtf April 20

TO BE SOLD, A

VALUABLE Plantation, pleaſantly ſituated in Briſtol townſhip, Bucks county, two miles from the borough of Briſtol and 8 miles from Trenton, containing about 440 acres of Land: the ſoil fertile, and equal in goodneſs to any in the townſhip; 150 acres of which are cleared, and fitted for the plough, 20 acres of meadow in good graſs, and more may eaſily be made, the remainder is woodland well timbered. The above tract is well ſituated, and calculated for dividing into two Farms, there being two comfortable log dwelling houſes on the premiſes, two young orchards, with a well of good water near each houſe. The river Delaware running in front of the farm, affords a convenient and cheap way to tranſport the produce of ſaid place to the markets of this or the Jerſey ſtate, which is an object of conſiderable importance to the farmer. For further particulars apply to JOHN BOOZE, living near the premiſes, or to ROBERT WALN, in Philadelphia.

A FINE faſt ſailing ſhip, with good accommodations for paſſengers—is expected to ſail about the firſt of June. For freight or paſſage apply to the maſter on board, at Clifford's wharf, to Richard Wells & Son, or to JOHN CLIFFORD,

Who has choice fine SALT and a quantity of other Merchandize (as uſual) for ſale. etf

A quantity of Saſſafras Root wanted.

To be Sold by Public Vendue,

At the Old Coffee Houſe, on Wedneſday the 30th Inſtant, at 12 o'clock at Noon,
(If not before diſpoſed of at private ſale)

A Two ſtory Brick Meſſuage, Kitchen, and Lot of Ground, ſituate on the weſt ſide of Second ſtreet from Delaware, in the Northern-Liberties of the city of Philadelphia; the lot contains in breadth on Second ſtreet 80 feet, and in length or depth on the ſouth ſido thereof 48 feet, and on Cohockſink creek 25 feet, with a gradual decreaſe from the front on Second ſtreet to a line of land late of Samuel Wallace, deceaſed, where it contains in breadth 60 feet: the buildings are new and compleatly finiſhed; the houſe is 20 feet in breadth by 20 feet in depth with two rooms on a floor; the kitchen is 20 feet in breadth by 22 feet in depth: the whole is ſubject to a ground rent of 15l. 16s. 8d. current money of Pennſylvania, per annum: as the lot bounds upon Cohockſink creek, the whole length, it will ſuit either for a tanyard, diſtillery, or ſtarch works, which laſt has been carried on there ever ſince the houſe was built. Any perſon inclining to purchaſe may be informed of the terms and view the premiſes, by applying to ANTHONY HUBBART, living at the upper end of Second ſtreet, near Germantown road. May 5

A Lot for a Country-Seat.

THE City Lot is on the north ſide of Cherry alley, 40 feet front and 80 feet deep, adjoining the yard of John Thompſon's Pot-houſe, on the weſt ſide of Fourth ſtreet.

The Country Lot is on the weſt ſide of Fourth ſtreet continued, as the road now runs, adjoining lands late of Charles Meredith on the ſouth, and William Maſters on the north. On this lot, called Bloomſbury, there was erected before the war, a genteel houſe, part of the foundation ſtill remains, alſo the vault and well. Its high ſituation, agreeable proſpect, and vicinity to the city, render it a very eligible ſpot for re-improvement. It contains about 4 acres. For terms apply to CHARLES MOORE, HENRY HILL, or RICHARD WELLS, Third ſtreet. Feb. 10 2awtf

TO VENUS.

VENUS, queen of dimpled ſmiles,
Quit, O quit, thy fav'rite iles;
Thee, fond Glycera invites,
To ſweet incenſe, and delights:
Grace with mirth, her votive bow'r,
Deck'd with every fragrant flow'r.
Bring the glowing boy with thee;
Bring the nymphs and Mercury:
With the Graces in thy train,
Flowing zone, to glad the ſwain;
Wit and youth but ill agree,
Charming Venus! without thee.

From a late London Newſpaper.

Anecdote of a diſtinguiſhed Lord Chief Juſtice.

THIS celebrated Judge being on the Midland Circuit, a Mr. Shirley, of the county of Leiceſter, was brought before him, charged with having committed a rape on the body of one of his tenant's daughters. The Judge was remarkable for poſſeſſing an uncommon ſhare of delicacy, and therefore on the day preceding that of the intended trial, ordered the crier of the court to give public notice, that it would come on the next morning at ſeven o'clock; thereby truſting that the female ſex would abſent themſelves on ſuch an occaſion. Inſtead of which, the ladies came pouring in numbers into the court, and filled the gallery by ſix o'clock. At length the Judge having heard all that the witneſſes had to ſay in ſupport of the charge, deſired the priſoner would enter upon his defence. Mr. Shirley, therefore, informed the court, that as he was one evening walking over his grounds, he eſpied his proſecutrix carrying away a bundle of faggots from a pile that belonged to him, and obſerving ſhe was a handſome girl, he jocoſely told her, if ever he caught her repeating the tranſgreſſion, he would aſſuredly repay himſelf in a way moſt agreeable to his wiſhes. Buſineſs calling him the next day to town, he was abſent about a fortnight; and on his return home, one of his ſervants deſired to know whether he had given permiſſion to a young woman to carry away faggots from ſuch a pile, for that ſhe had done it every evening ſince his departure. It immediately occurred to him, that it muſt be the girl he had ſeen before, and about the ſame hour he repaired to the old ſpot, where he had not waited long before ſhe made her appearance. To be brief—he jocularly deſired the girl to make perſonal reſtitution, which without heſitation or reluctance ſhe complied with. Mr. Shirley, in ſhort, was honourably acquitted; but before he departed the court, the Judge deſired to give him one piece of advice. If, ſays his lordſhip, you ſhould ever find a woman ſtealing your faggots again, do not threaten her with ſuch a puniſhment, for if you do, believe me that the ladies in the gallery won't leave you a ſtake in your hedge.

Thomas Forreſt.

Sixteen Dollars Reward.

RAN away yeſterday evening from the ſubſcribers, two indented German ſervants, (ſuppoſed to have gone together) who came over laſt Fall in the ſhip Naſſau, from London.

JOHN REICHERT, twenty-five years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches high, of a dark complexion, ſhort brown hair, and being near-ſighted he frowns remarkably when looking at any object, which gives him a moroſe ſour countenance. He had on and took with him two round felt hats, one of them new; three dowlas ſhirts, almoſt new; a black ſilk cravat, a drab cloth coat, olive coloured jean coatee and waiſtcoat, black twilled worſted ſtuff breeches, two pair of worſted ſtockings, two pair of ſhoes, one of which were new; great-coat half worn made of mill'd drab cloth, with mohair buttons; all his other clothes had metal buttons, and the waiſtcoat had two rows of them. He is a weaver by trade, ſpeaks Engliſh tolerable well, and it is expected he is gone towards Pittſburgh; he can behave ſmooth and complaiſant, does not drink to exceſs, but his natural temper is rough.

JOHN CHRISTIAN HUBNER, a baker by trade, about 21 years of age, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches high, an active, good-looking fellow, fair complexion, and light ſandy hair. He had on and took with him, a ſurtout coat of dark brown coating, ſhort ſpotted veſt, white dimity ditto, two new white ſhirts, three pair of breeches one of buckſkin, quite new; drab coloured cloth, and black cotton ditto, much worn; narrow rib'd worſted ſtockings, good ſhoes, with ſquare white metal buckles, an old brown camblet great-coat lined with green baize, and other clothes not particularly known, part of which he may probably pawn to defray his expences, he ſpeaks tolerable good Engliſh, and writes well in German; it is ſuppoſed he will endeavour to fix himſelf at ſome employment in a German ſettlement, in ſome of the back counties, or elſewhere, being an induſtrious fellow, not addicted to drink to exceſs. They are both averſe to ſervitude, and willing to embrace any ſcheme for obtaining their liberty. Sixteen Dollars will be paid to any perſon who will deliver the above ſervants to the ſubſcribers in Philadelphia, or Eight Dollars for either of them, with reaſonable charges.

MEDICINAL WATERS,

For Drinking and Bathing, at

HARROWGATE,

Within four miles of Philadelphia, near the Frankfort Road.

THE Author of nature having provided the abovenamed ſpot with three different kinds of mineral waters, the ſubſcriber has at a conſiderable expence erected ſuch buildings over them as will render them fit to be uſed either internally or externally, according to the diſeaſes of perſons who require them.

Theſe waters have been examined by Doctors RUSH and Moyes.

The firſt ſpring contains a quantity of ſulphurous, or what thoſe gentlemen call hepatic air, and a ſmall quantity of iron. It is remarkable light, and reſembles, both in compoſition and medicinal qualities, the famous Harrowgate water in England.

The ſecond ſpring contains a quantity of fixed air, with a ſmall quantity of iron and calcareous earth, and poſſeſſes many of the virtues of the Pyrmont waters, ſo well known, and as juſtly celebrated all over the world.

The third ſpring is a common chalybeate water, and reſembles the Briſtol, in this ſtate.

The ſubſcriber ſubmits it to the judgment of the phyſicians of Philadelphia, when, in what diſeaſes, and in what quantity to recommend the uſe of theſe mineral waters. He will only obſerve, that the Harrowgate waters have rendered eſſential ſervice to perſons afflicted with diſeaſes and obſtructions of the ſtomach, bowels and kidnies. It has alſo removed worms, and relieved the irregular gout and chronic rheumatiſm. Externally applied, theſe waters have in many inſtances cured ulcers and other eruptions of the ſkin.

In the houſe erected over the Harrowgate waters are two ſhower baths, and two dreſſing rooms; and at the chalybeate ſpring is a convenient bath for plunging or ſwimming. Breakfaſt, dinner and lodgings may be had at the dwelling houſe adjoining the ſprings; and for the convenience of invalids, a light waggon will ſet off the 14th of May, and run while the ſeaſon continues, from Michael Hay's, inn-keeper, at the ſign of the King of Pruſſia, in Race-ſtreet, between Third and Fourth ſtreets: and thoſe who engage ſeats previous to the hours of ſix in the morning and half paſt two in the afternoon, the time fixed for the ſtage to ſet off, without delay, ſhould they not attend, muſt be anſwerable for the price of their ſeats.

The public may be aſſured, that no expence or trouble ſhall be ſpared to render theſe waters and baths both convenient and uſeful, by their humble ſervant,

GEORGE ESTERLY.

May 4.

N. B. For the uſe of theſe baths the price will be four dollars for the ſeaſon, two dollars for one month, five ſhillings for one week, and one ſhilling for each time theſe baths are uſed leſs than a week. Nothing will be demanded from thoſe people who only drink the waters. The price for each ſeat in the ſtage going and coming will be two ſhillings and ſixpence. ſtf&1awtf

MR. DONNELLY, under the patronage of thoſe Ladies and Gentlemen who have hitherto encouraged his little Seminary, and relying on the continuation of that encouragement, which it ſhall ever be his moſt aſſiduous endeavour to deſerve, propoſes immediately to open an Afternoon School, for the inſtruction of Young Ladies in reading, writing, Engliſh grammar, arithmetic, and merchants accounts, epiſtolary compoſition, geography, and chronology, with the outlines of ancient and modern hiſtory

As far as it may fall within the ſphere of his duty, a particular attention will be paid to that decorum and propriety of behaviour in his pupils, which is at once the greateſt intereſt and ornament of the ſex.

The price of tuition will be 30*ſ*. a quarter, without entrance; and 20 ſcholars only will be admitted.

In order to create, and promote a ſpirit of laudable emulation among his pupils, Mr Donnelly will hold a General Examination of his School ſome time in the month of July next, when premiums will be conferred on thoſe who ſhall be found to excel in the reſpective branches in which they ſhall have been inſtructed. On this occaſion he hopes to be honoured with the company of thoſe Ladies and Gentlemen who have intruſted him with the care of their children, that they may judge for themſelves, whether or not this Seminary be worthy of the patronage with which they have been pleaſed to honour it. May 7 3tawtf

CONSTANTINOPLE, February 18.

A Dreadful fire broke out here a few days ago, and laſted ſix hours, during which, 200 houſes were reduced to aſhes. It is not poſſible even to average the loſs ſuſtained, as the dwelling houſes deſtroyed conſiſted moſtly of ſhops and warehouſes.

PARIS, March 3.

At a meeting of the notables yeſterday, M. de Calonne informed the aſſembly, that an additional revenue of one hundred million [4,200,000l] was neceſſary to put his majeſty's affairs in proper order, To ſupply this ſum, the land tax was propoſed, not to be taken from the nominal rent of the lands, but from the nett produce. He owned, that the national income was not equal to the annual expenditure. At the cloſe of the year 1776, there was a deficiency of 37 millions [8 628,000l.] and from time to the end of 1786, there have been borrowed 1250 millions [55 millions ſterling] and to make good that deficiency, as well as to prevent it in future, 100 millions per annum, at leaſt muſt be added to the revenues.

The proceedings of the aſſembly of notables on the 12th are tolerably well known. It was expected that the ſtate of the accounts would be laid before them, but there was only found an order from the king that it was uſeleſs to ſee the accounts, it being ſufficient to know that it was 113,000,000, and that his majeſty deſired the aſſembly would only examine whether the land tax ſhould be paid in kind or in money. The members debated according to this order, and determined that the ſubſidy ſhould be paid in money, and that the king ſhould be requeſted to change the name of it, by calling it a dixieme (tenth), and at the ſame time to lay it in proportion to the greater or leſs product of each diſtrict.

VERSAILLES, March 16.

The notables are going on; the comptroller general explained the eight cauſes upon which they are to deliberate this week, the reformation of the provincial duties, the abolition of the inland turnpikes, and the ſuppreſſion of ſeveral duties in the exciſe, are the chief points.

In conſequence of the oppoſition made by ſome of the notables, the princes have all had a ſpecial meeting; and the king has held a conſultation with the five archbiſhops, reſpecting the intended land tax. Their chief argument in favour of it is, that England, which is the moſt free nation, ſubmits to it.

HAGUE, March 13.

We are aſſured, that the court of Madrid, perceiving that the requiſition ſhe has made to the republic of Holland, for a paſſage by the Cape of Good Hope, will meet with many difficulties, has determined that her ſhips ſhall paſs, notwithſtanding every oppoſition that may be made by the republic.

AMSTERDAM, March 8.

The ſtates general have juſt ſent an account to the five colleges of admiralty, directing the amount of the expences of the ſeveral naval equipments for the year 1787, which will amount in the whole to 17,000l. ſterling. This republic is now building 14 ſhips of war, of which number nine are from 86 to 56 guns, and many of them in forwardneſs.

CHERBOURG, March 9.

There are no more than four cones in our harbour now, the fifth having been deſtroyed by the ſtorm in December, and is entirely waſhed away.

BRISTOL, March 31.

At Dorcheſter aſſizes a cauſe was tried, wherein Jane ſhort, a mantua-maker, of Maiden Newton) was plaintiff, and a Mr. Wightman, a farmer in that neigbourhood, was defendant. The action was brought for non-performance of a marriage contract. It was proved that repeated promiſes of marriage had been made by the defendant, and the day fixed on for the wedding, but that he was ſince married to another perſon. A verdict was given for the plaintiff with 100l. damages, beſides coſts of ſuit.

LONDON.

March 10. The Sieur Leorier de L'Iſle, at Paris, has brought to great perfection, the invention of making a ſtrong, ſolid, and white paper from different vegetables, cheaper than any paper made from rags, and better for drawings hangings, &c. The Royal Academy of Sciences have examined and approved. March 13.

Heſſe Caſſel, Feb. 27. The poſſeſſion that our landgrave has taken of the county of Schoumbourg, with his troops, has occaſioned great fermentation. The counteſs dowager of the count de Lippe Buekburg, is in fact impriſoned in her palace: it is affirmed that the king of Pruſſia has been requeſted to take charge of the education of the hereditary count, who is only two years of age. Meſſengers have been ſent to Berlin and Vienna to carry advices of this ſinglar event; and it is expected that ſeveral of the European cabinets will conſider it in the moſt ſerious manner, and act accordingly. Our court defend their conduct, by declaring, that the late prince was not the legitimate heir to the principality, as his mother was not born of parents ſufficiently ſplendid from alliance with his father; but to this argument the houſe of Buckeburg replied, by alledging that the right of ſucceſſion had been decided in favour of the late count, by two ſentences of the tribunal of the empire.

March 14. A meeting of privy council was held at St. James's to-day, relative to American affairs, after the drawing-room was over.

For want of better employment, a quarrel has been contrived in London, between General Elliot and colonel Pringle at Gibraltar. But with no better foundation than many other quarrels and reports raiſed for the amuſement of quidnuncs, in the hours of retirement.

Extract of a letter from Hanover, March 3.

"Orders are given for all the regiments of foot, of which the Electoral military force is compoſed, to be completed to their full eſtabliſhment; and recruiting parties are going out for that purpoſe. The league among the electors of the empire is likely to be rendered more ſtrong, by an addition of ſome articles to the former treaty now in agitation. The courts of Berlin and Dreſden are now in the cloſeſt connection with the electorate"

When our laſt advices came from Peterſburgh, which were dated the ninth of February, a great fire was then raging in the grand magazines belonging to the crown, which contained great quantities of brandy, lime, and ſalt; and there was not any hope of preventing the whole edifice from being reduced to aſhes. During the day, news arrived from Smolenſko, that the empreſs had nearly eſcaped being burnt, the houſe next where ſhe reſided having been conſumed in the night. Her majeſty has ordered a ſtone one to be built at her expence for the proprietor, and ſet out for Kiow, where ſhe arrived on the 30th of January.

A letter from Cork has the following article:

"The number of white boys daily increaſe, and we have gained intelligence, that large bodies of them were on their march towards this city. A conſiderable number of young gentlemen and tradeſmen joined with a party of ſoldiers, marched out to meet them, but their lookers out, as they are called, ſeeing ſo large a force coming againſt them, turned back to their main body to give intelligence to them, which threw them into the greateſt confuſion ſome ran one way, ſome another. However, we picked up ſix of their ſtragglers, who were ſo fatigued, that they had not power to eſcape; by theſe we are in hopes of finding out their hiding places, that we may come upon them by ſurprize. We lodged the ſix ſafe in our gaol, and they ſeem willing to anſwer any queſtions that are aſked them, in hopes of ſaving their lives.

Yeſterday was finally decided in the court of ſeſſion, a cauſe of conſiderable importance. In ſpring 1784, the late captain Maclean, of Lochbuy, married, at New-York, Miſs Barbara Lowther, daughter of —— Lowther, Eſq. merchant there; but there was no marriage contract between them. In about three months after their marriage, they took their paſſage in a veſſel bound for England; but in the courſe of the voyage captain Maclean was unfortunately killed. He left a very conſiderable land eſtate to a diſtant relation; but having been cut off before he made any proviſion for his wife, and the marriage having been diſſolved within a year and a day without any iſſue, ſhe had, by the law of Scotland, no right to the liferent of the third of his land, properly called the terce, nor to her ſhare of the moveables called the jus relictæ. In this unhappy ſituation, ſhe was adviſed to bring before the court of ſeſſion an action againſt the gentleman who had ſucceeded her huſband, claiming an allowance out of the eſtate for her aliment. The point being new, the court heard counſel at great length in their own preſence, and afterwards ordered memorials. The plea ſtated in defence was, that, by the law of Scotland, it was an eſtabliſhed rule, that marriage being diſſolved within a year and day, without iſſue, all things returned into the ſame ſituation as if no marriage had ever taken place, and the ſurviving wife loſt right to all her proviſions, whether legal or conventional. To this, however, it was anſwered, that the rule of a year and day was in itſelf moſt unreaſonable, and had been introduced by ſome ambient deciſions of the court from the principles of the Roman law, without perceiving that theſe principles were altogether inapplicable to our own law. It was farther contended, that the rule was confined merely to the conventional proviſions in marriage contracts, and the legal proviſions of terce jus relictæ, without any view to exclude a claim for aliment, which aroſe the moment a marriage once exiſted, and was a natural obligation upon the huſband, totally independent of the conventional proviſions of the marriage contract, or the legal proviſions impoſed by poſitive law. It would be ſtrange to ſay, that the law of Scotland was ſo defective, as not to provide for the aliment of a deſtitute widow; where at the ſame time, the huſband had left an eſtate, which would eaſily afford her ſupport. The court in December laſt, ſuſtained the claim of the widow for an aliment, and yeſterday adhered to that judgment, upon a petition from the defendant, and anſwers for the purſuer.

A rumour runs thus:——A few days ago Mr. E. the Britiſh plenipotentiary at Paris, waited on the miniſter, the comte de Montmorin, and talked to him of ſome ſecret article to be introduced in the treaty, greatly in favour of England, and which, he ſaid, had been agreed to privately between him and the late comte de Vergennes. To this he was anſwered, that the latter had never mentioned any thing about this ſubject, and that no trace of ſuch an intention could be found in the offices, or amongſt the papers of the deceaſed. As this language conveyed a tacit impeachment of Mr. E's veracity, he grew warm, and ſignified to the miniſter, that unleſs the conditions he had pointed out were inſerted in the treaty, the negociation was entirely at an end. Lond. Chron.

The queen of Portugal has refuſed to deliver up the ſieur de Rinquet, who fled from France for forgery; but her majeſty has agreed his papers ſhall be carried away to France, in order to examine properly into the affair.

March 20. The board of commiſſioners for enquiring into the American claims will be continued by another act, as they have not yet ſettled all the buſineſs. They are now buſied in examining the moſt important caſe of all, that of Mr. Harford, whoſe claims amount to 18,000l. a year; his immenſe eſtate in Maryland, with all the patronage, having been confiſcated.

It is ſaid that a convention has lately been ſigned between their moſt Catholic and Chriſtian majeſties, relative to a mutual guarantee of trade & commerce in the Weſt Indies and America.

The profits of the Eaſt India trade are at this time ſuperior to what they ever were before; laſt year they ſold near 17 million pounds of tea, which at a profit of only nine pence in the pound, muſt nett 630,000l.

Extract of a letter from Arcott, July 26, 1786.

'The Marattoes and Tippo Saib are at war, and the company are rather afraid that it will cauſe a rupture between us and our old enemies the French, who have lately landed at Pondicherry and the Mauritius near 5000 troops from France; the Dutch have alſo ceded the harbour and fort of Trincomale to the French; ſo that they are gaining ſtrength in this country every day; and ſhould hoſtilities commence, there will be a violent conteſt, as they will ſtrain every nerve to recover their former poſſeſſions. However, I truſt our ſuperiority by ſea will enable us to cope with them.

'This country now wears the face of plenty, and ſhould the peace continue a few years more, the company's finances would be in a flouriſhing ſtate.'

March 22. Miniſters have at length diſcovered the important ſecret that the French and Portugueſe have entered into a commercial treaty, one of the articles of which is, that France is to have the whole of their Brazil cotton. What ſtep will be taken in conſequence of that diſcovery we know not: but miniſters have been for ſeveral days ſo very much occupied, that the lord chancellor has not been able to attend in Lincoln's Inn Hall.

The idea of a commutation for Gibraltar is once more brought forward; but ſure no miniſter, poſſeſſed of a truly Engliſh heart, will venture to part with that which ſecures our Mediterranean trade, and procures to our navigation in that ſea, a ſafety unknown to any other nation in Europe—the people of Africa may be conſidered by every nation but England, as piratical and cruel, but towards England they have behaved, in general, with reſpect and friendſhip. The cauſe of this behaviour, let the ſeptic read in the annals of the Britiſh navy and the glorious defence of Gibraltar.

Amongſt the ſavings of this year will be the poſt-office, whoſe revenues are increaſing in a very conſiderable degree ſince the new mode of franking.

If a laſting and honorable peace could be ſecured by the public meaſures of any miniſter, it undoubtedly would be the wiſh of every man of virtue, to ſee thoſe meaſures enforced; but ſuch is the nature of man, that rivalſhip between ſtates will always produce war: ſuperiority (eſpecially in commerce) will never be borne by any power for one moment, after it feels itſelf ſtrong enough to enter into a new conteſt.

By exciſing the duties on tobacco alone, inſtead of the preſent imperfect mode of collection, the revenue on it will be augmented above three hundred thouſand pounds.

The ſtates of Bourgogue and Rouſſillon in France have lately purchaſed a great quantity of fine rams and ſheep, for the purpoſe of extending the growth of wool; and a ſociety is formed, which advertiſes premiums to be given to ſuch farmers as produce the greateſt quantity.

Letters from Dijon mention, that 23 of the forgemen at Mount Cenis having refuſed to work any longer, on account of the loſs of pay they had ſuſtained through Mr. James's bankruptcy, were put in priſon; but 600 of their workmen aſſembled, broke open the priſon, releaſed them, and then impriſoned the Marechauſſee, two of whom they put alive into the furnaces. A detachment of the regiment of Anſonne artillery is gone to Mount Cenis.

March 24. The return of the ſtadtholder to Loo, is a matter finally decided on, preparatory to a reconciliation. The dragoons, Swiſs guards and other troops, which attend him at Nimeguen, have received orders to prepare their camp equipage, to form a camp at Loo, in the ſame manner they did laſt year—and his highneſs and family go from Nimeguen the beginning of April.

A report was circulated upon 'Change yeſterday, which was brought by the Dutch mail, and generally believed, that there has been a dreadful riot in Holland. The mob proceeded to outrages, in which ſeveral houſes were demoliſhed, and many obnoxious characters to the rioters had been very roughly treated: but the particulars have not yet publicly tranſpired.

Vaſt quantities of wool have been lately ſmuggled from Ireland to France.

We hear that lord North's illneſs ſtill continues, The faculty, however, entertain hopes from ſea air, riding, and a bracing regimen. From one of his eyes viſion is utterly loſt, and it is ſo imperfect in the other as to be able only to diſtinguiſh light and darkneſs.

The emperor of Morocco is reported to have made a very ſingular demand on our government, in conſequence of the war ſubſiſting between his Mooriſh majeſty and the Malteſe. He has ſent an ambaſſador to Gibraltar to demand from our court, two ſhips of 50, two of 60, and two of 70 guns, to be hired for an unlimited time, offering 150,000 piaſtres for the firſt year: that is to ſay, 100,000 piaſtres in ready money, and 50,000 in duties on freſh proviſions, which the Engliſh ſhall have a right to load at Tetuan. The emperor's miniſter is to remain at Gibraltar till an anſwer arrives from the the Britiſh court. This curious requiſition will probably be the means of ſhutting the port of Tangiers, &c. againſt our cruiſers in the Mediterranean, as it is impoſſible his majeſty's miniſters can comply with it.

March 27. Yeſterday the anniverſary dinner of the Humane Society was held at the London Tavern, when a very numerous and elegant company partook of an excellent entertainment—but the feaſt of reaſon, of humanity, and philanthropy came afterwards; when the objects ſaved from drowning made their appearance to expreſs their gratitude to their numerous benefactors, and give a ſtriking teſtimony of the utility of this inſtitution.

March 29. The Eaſt India Company, have, at this time, near four millions of tea at market.

Accounts from the Hague mention, that an ambaſſador is juſt arrived there from Peterſburgh, to negociate a new treaty of amity, &c. with the States General.

HOUSE of COMMONS.

Wedneſday, March 14. Mr. William Grenville obſerved, than when the Americans had been excluded from ſupplying the Weſt India iſlands with articles neceſſary for their conſumption, in American bottoms, gentlemen apprehended theſe iſlands would be reduced to great diſtreſs but experience had proved that theſe fears were ill-founded.

There were two ſpecies of articles, the produce of the United States of America, which were allowed to be imported into our iſlands: but the importation had been made legal only in Britiſh bottoms.—Theſe were wheat, flour and lumber. This country had derived great benefit from the policy that confined the intercourſe between the United States and our iſlands in the Weſt Indies to Britiſh bottoms; our navigation had been highly improved, for this intercourſe alone employed 58000 tons of ſhipping, and nearly five thouſand ſeamen. During the laſt year, indeed, this tonnage had decreaſed to about 5000, the Americans had ſent their lumber, grain, &c. to the neutral iſlands, and then ſhipped them in foreign bottoms for the Britiſh iſlands. But he propoſed a remedy to this, which was, that the importation of grain, lumber, &c. from the United States, ſhould be confined to Britiſh ſhips, to the excluſion of other European, as well as American bottoms.

He then moved, 'that the chairman be directed to move the houſe for leave to bring in a bill to veſt in his majeſty for one year more the power of regulating by his royal proclamation, the commercial intercourſe between his majeſty's dominions and the United States in America

Lord Penrhyn obſerved, that the Weſt-India iſlands ſhould not only be amply ſupplied with neceſſaries, but they ought alſo to have the liberty of procuring them on the cheapeſt terms.

Mr. Dempſter ſaid, the only objection he had to the bill was, that it would give to the crown a power to regulate by proclamation the trade of the country, which ought to be regulated only by act of parliament.

Mr. Grenville admitted, that where any ſpecific plan could be adopted, it ought to be under the authority of the legiſlature, but while poſſibly negociations with America might be pending, or while there might be no government at all in the United States, he thought it much ſounder policy that the intercourſe ſhould be regulated by a diſcretionary power to be veſted in the king, than by a decided plan to be adopted by the legiſlature.

The queſtion was now put, and carried without a diviſion.

AMERICA.

On every gallon of Windward iſland and other rum, three pence.

On every gallon of brandy, gin, arrack, anniſeed, and other cordials and liquors, three pence.

On every gallon of wine, the growth and produce of the dominions of France, two pence.

On every gallon of wine, the growth and produce of the dominions of Portugal, five pence.

On every gallon of wine, the growth and produce of Spain, three pence.

On every gallon of wine imported from the dominions of Great Britain, eight pence.

On every gallon of beer, porter, or other malt liquor, one penny half penny.

On every gallon of cyder, one pence.

On every gallon of molaſſes, one pence.

On every pack of playing cards, ſix pence.

On every hundred weight of brown or clayed ſugars, imported from any part of the Britiſh iſlands or plantations, two ſhillings and ſix pence.

On every pound of refined ſugar imported from any part of the Britiſh dominions, one penny half penny.

On every hundred weight of brown or clayed ſugars imported from any of the dominions of France, Spain, Holland, Denmark, Pruſſia, or Sweden, one ſhilling and ſix pence.

On every pound of refined ſugar from any of the laſt mentioned dominions, one half penny.

On every hundred weight of cocoa, ſix ſhillings.

On all kinds of ſlops and ready made cloaths, except gloves, mitts and ſtockings, and all manufactured leather, five per cent.

That an additional duty of twenty ſhillings per head be laid on all negroes liable to pay duty according to the act for levying and collecting certain impoſts and duties paſſed the 26th day of March, one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty-four.

PETERSBURG, April 26.

A correſpondent wiſhes thoſe concerned in the exportation of tobacco, to attend to the following circumſtance in the law laying an additional duty of ſix ſhillings per hogſhead on that article—Section the 2d ſays, "That from and after the 10th of January, 1787, an additional duty of ſix ſhillings per hogſhead ſhall be paid on every hogſhead paſſed at and ſhipped from any warehouſe, &c."—He thinks the words 'paſſed at and' implies that the tobacco muſt be paſſed at the warehouſes after the 10th of January, as well as ſhipped after that date, to be ſubject to the additional duty. Unleſs this was the intention of the legiſlature, thoſe words have no meaning at all, for the ſentence would have read juſt as well to have left them out; and then all tobacco ſhipped after the 10th of January, would have been ſubject to the duty of ſix ſhillings.—As the aſſembly ſanctioned the taking three ſhillings per hogſhead on all tobacco ſhipped between May and October laſt, which they had no right to, it is hoped the merchants will now be guarded, and only pay the additional duty on the tobacco that has paſſed at the different inſpections ſince the 10th of January laſt.

Philadelphia, May 8.

On the 2d inſtant a well dreſſed man was ſeen taking off his hat and ſome of his wearing apparel, at Smith's wharf, with an intent, as was ſuppoſed, to drown himſelf, and notwithſtanding the endeavours of people preſent, to hinder him from committing ſo horrid a crime, he jumped into the water, and was drowned before any proper aſſiſtance could be given to ſave him.

Laſt Wedneſday night the ſtore of Mr. Joſhua Yarnall, in Middletown townſhip, Cheſter county, was broke open and robbed of a quantity of dry goods, &c. and about 50l in caſh—The robbery was perpetrated by three men, two of whom entered in; and are ſuppoſed to be about five feet ten inches high; their faces were ſmutted, but appeared to be young men; they had on light-coloured great coats, and one of them a claret coloured body coat.

Thurſday laſt the gentlemen compoſing the regiment of artillery of the city and liberties went into the choice of a commandant, in the room of Colonel Marſh, who reſigned; the ballots were taken at the State-houſe, and on counting them up a very conſiderable majority appeared in favour of the hon. Thomas Mifflin, eſquire. Such judicious appointments canno fail affording the higheſt ſatisfaction to every patriot and friend to government and good order

On the 22d of March, in the Engliſh Houſe of Commons, the charges againſt Mr. Haſtings being then before the houſe, after ſome converſation the queſtion was called for and the houſe divided.

Mr. Burke then ſaid that he would on the Monday following move that the report of the committee appointed to prepare the charges, be brought up.

Died, at Newcaſtle (Delaware ſtate) laſt Saturday morning Mr. —— Van Gazell, aged 100 years.

Meſſrs Dunlap and Claypoole,

IN one of your late papers, Dr. Ewing has ſtated one fact reſpecting me rather inaccurately. He ſays, I 'diſavowed being the author of the addreſs to the governor of Maſſachuſetts.' The truth is—A gentleman in company, informed that ſome remarks had appeared, that day, againſt paying the certificates and that I was ſuppoſed to be the author. I aſſured the gentleman that I had publiſhed nothing of the kind and I did not know to what he alluded. This was true. I had no concern in the publication—I had not ſeen it at the time of the converſation—nor did I ſee it for ſeveral days afterwards. It was impoſſible for me to know whether the ſentiments were mine or not. I have no doubt Dr. Ewing has ſtated the matter, as he underſtood it; and had the addreſs been before me, I might have diſavowed it with propriety. As a private letter, I was the author; as a publication, I was not—a citizen of Philadelphia was the author—he publiſhed the ſentiments as his own. As the ſentiments were novel, I felt diffident of publiſhing them, altho' I was confident they were juſt. I am now backed by ſo many reſpectable men, that I am convinced ſome plan, ſimilar to that I have ſketched out, is the only expedient to ſave the credit of the United States and preſerve public tranquility. I am, Gentlemen, your's,

Philad. May 8, 1787. N. WEBSTER.

A quantity of 2 and 3 buſhel bags. March 5 1awtf

Baltimore, March 31.

To be ſold for Caſh & Merchandize,

A LARGE, commodious, three ſtory Brick HOUSE, Kitchen, and Lot of Ground, ſituate on the northweſt corner of Market ſtreet and Liberty ſtreet, Baltimore: the houſe is 30 feet front on Market ſtreet, and 41 feet on Liberty ſtreet; the kitchen and piazza are 28 feet by 20 feet, two ſtories high; there is an excellent cellar under the houſe and kitchen; it is eſteemed to be the beſt ſituation in town for the wet good and flour trade, as the waggons from Hagertown, Fredericktown, Chamberſburgh, Carliſle and York, all paſs this ſtand either on Market ſtreet or Liberty ſtreet, and the houſe is extenſively and conveniently planned for buſineſs, either as a wholeſale dry or wet good ſtore

Alſo, a valuable TRACT of LAND, ſituate on Muncey creek, Northumberland county, containing 331 ½ acres, whereof a large proportion is rich bottom land, and 50 acres of meadow may be made: This tract is in a good ſettlement, and very convenient to the weſt branch of the Suſquehanna.

The title of the houſe and lot abovementioned is a fee ſimple, and not ſubject to any incumbrance whatever.

A patent will be delivered to the purchaſer of the land in Northumberland county. For terms of ſale apply to Mr. John Field, merchant; Meſſrs. Francis and John Weſt, merchants, Philadelphia; or to the ſubſcriber in Baltimore. JOHN HEAP. eo4w

THE Subſcriber having removed to that old, noted tavern and inn, the White Horſe and Fountain, in Cheſnut ſtreet, between Second and Third ſtreets, begs leave to inform the Public in general and his Friends in particular, that, at a conſiderable expence, he has papered and furniſhed the rooms ſo as to render them fit to entertain and lodge his Cuſtomers in the moſt elegant manner.

The Stables are alſo repaired; and his houſe being ſituated in the centre of the city, he flatters himſelf Gentlemen Travellers will find it very convenient.

Having a large and commodious Yard near the market, Country People who attend it, and chuſe to favour him with their cuſtom, are welcome to the Uſe of the Yard gratis, for their horſes and waggons.

Gentlemen in the city, and from other parts, may depend upon the beſt of Liquors and Proviſions, and that their favours will be gratefully acknowledged by their humble ſervant, DAVID JONES.

¶§¶ He has for ſale by the quantity, home brewed Welch ale, Taunton and Burton ale, cyder, porter, &c. &c.

HORSES alſo taken in at LIVERY.

Philadelphia, May 4. 3ſp

To the Right Reverend Biſhop WHITE,

On hearing delivered his excellent DISCOURSE in praiſe of EXEMPLARY PIETY, May 6th, 1787.

THY voice to hear—the pious life commend,
Is but attention—to thy own to lend.
From early youth—this lovely plant it bore,
And, as it grew—it ſtill to Heav'n would ſoar.
A life illuſtrious—which the mind may teach
A love of virtue—words—could never reach.
Oh! long be peace—and health—and pleaſure thine,
Till, like the ſun's—thy uſeful day decline;
Till like that orb—which gilds thy deſtin'd ſkies,
Its light to gladden other worlds ariſe.
Mean while thy name ſhall here remain the theme
Of fond affection—and of juſt eſteem:
Through future ages, ſhall unminiſh'd ſhine,
And lead—and decorate—our Prelate's line.—

An extraordinary inſtance of the effects of FEAR.

REMARKABLE in the hiſtories of France is the ſtory of John de Poictiers, count de St Valier: Convicted of being an aſſociate in the conſpiracy of the conſtable of Bourbon, againſt Francis I. and condemned to loſe his head at Lyons, the fear, and other violent paſſions with which his mind was diſtracted, had ſuch an effect, that in one night his hair was turned ſo entirely grey, that the officers of the priſon took him, next morning, for another perſon. But this is not all; he was ſeized with ſo violent a fever, that though his daughter, Diana, famous under the name of ducheſs de Valentinois, had, by her charms, procured his pardon from the king, no remedies, though all that phyſic could dictate were applied, proved ſufficient to prevent his death.

WHEREAS the underwritten Joſeph Carmo, of the city of Philadelphia, mariner, and Martha, his wife, have agreed, by mutual conſent, to live ſeparate and apart from each other: this is to give Notice to all perſons, not to truſt in future the ſaid Martha Carmo on the ſubſcriber's account, as he will not pay any debts of her contracting from the day of the date hereof.

JOSEPH CARMO.

Philadelphia, May 7, 1787.

TAKEN up by the ſubſcriber, on the 26th January laſt, near Cheſter, a two maſt SAIL BOAT. The owner, proving property within 12 days from this date, and paying charges, may have it again; otherwiſe it will be ſold. GEORGE PSEIFFERHELT, in Third ſtreet, near Poplar lane.

Philadelphia, April 28.

WANTED,

To reſide in a genteel family a little way out of town,

AN elderly WOMAN, who is above the common claſs, and can be well recommended.

The duty required of her will be, to ſuperintend the nurſery, and take charge of the keys. As it is intended the perſon that may ſuit ſhall be treated rather as a companion when the family are alone than as a ſervant. None need apply that cannot produce the higheſt recommendation. April 26, 1787. eptf

To be Sold or Let,

(And may be entered upon immediately)

THAT elegant Country Seat, ſituate on the Banks of Schuylkill, in the Northern-Liberties, below the Falls; together with a Coach Houſe, Stables, and a large Garden with excellent fruit trees. For terms apply to

April 16. 3tawtf PETER MILLER.

N. B. This Place was formerly occupied by his Excellency the Chevalier Luzerne.

Likewiſe, to be Let—A large, commodious HOUSE, the corner of Arch and Fourth ſtreets, with Garden, Stable, and Coach-houſe, in excellent repair, and one of the beſt houſes in this city. Enquire as above.

WANTED,

A YOUNG Lad, as a ſervant in a family, who can bring a good character of his honeſty and ſobriety. Any ſuch perſon applying to the Printers will meet with encouragement. 3trfw

TO BE SOLD,

(And entered on immediately)

AN agreeable Country Seat; ſituate between the Wiſſahickon or Falls road, and the road to Germantown, in Turner's lane, with 18 acres of land in high cultivation. A large garden in good order, and a young orchard of the beſt apple trees, &c.

The terms of ſale are, one third ready money, and the remainder in yearly payments; an undoubted title will be given, free from all claims whatſoever.

This Seat is in poſſeſſion of JOHN HOLKER, eſq. to whom application may be made for further particulars. Philadelphia, March 22. eptf.

Sixteen Dollars Reward.

RAN away yeſterday evening from the ſubſcribers, two indented German ſervants, (ſuppoſed to have gone together) who came over laſt Fall in the ſhip Naſſau, from London.

JOHN REICHERT, twenty-five years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches high, of a dark complexion, ſhort brown hair, and being near-ſighted he frowns remarkably when looking at any object, which gives him a moroſe ſour countenance. He had on and took with him two round felt hats, one of them new; three dowlas ſhirts, almoſt new; a black ſilk cravat, a drab cloth coat, olive coloured jean coatee and waiſtcoat, black twilled worſted ſtuff breeches, two pair of worſted ſtockings, two pair of ſhoes, one of which were new; great-coat half worn made of mill'd drab cloth, with mohair buttons; all his other clothes had metal buttons, and the waiſtcoat had two rows of them. He is a weaver by trade, ſpeaks Engliſh tolerable well, and it is expected he is gone towards Pittſburgh; he can behave ſmooth and complaiſant, does not drink to exceſs, but his natural temper is rough

JOHN CHRISTIAN HUBNER, a baker by trade, about 21 years of age, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches high, an active, good-looking fellow, fair complexion, and light ſandy hair. He had on and took with him, a ſurtout coat of dark brown coating, ſhort ſpotted veſt, white dimity ditto, two new white ſhirts, three pair of breeches one of buckſkin, quite new; drab coloured cloth, and black cotton ditto, much worn; narrow rib'd worſted ſtockings, good ſhoes, with ſquare white metal buckles, an old brown camblet great-coat lined with green baize, and other clothes not particularly known, part of which he may probably pawn to defray his expences, he ſpeaks tolerable good Engliſh, and writes well in German; it is ſuppoſed he will endeavour to fix himſelf at ſome employment in a German ſettlement, in ſome of the back counties, or elſewhere, being an induſtrious fellow, not addicted to drink to exceſs. They are both averſe to ſervitude, and willing to embrace any ſcheme for obtaining their liberty. Sixteen Dollars will be paid to any perſon who will deliver the above ſervants to the ſubſcribers in Philadelphia, or Eight Dollars for either of them, with reaſonable charges.

One tract containing 351 acres and allowance, ſituate in the head of Spruce run (a branch of Cox's creek) adjoining the laſt mentioned tract, Joſeph Heibler's, Jacob Smucker's and George Shaver's land. This is ſaid to be a capital tract, and equal (if not ſuperior) in quality to any lands in Quemahone.

One tract containing 302 acres and allowance, ſituate on a branch of Wells's creek, adjoining the laſt mentioned tract, Jacob Smucker and others. This is likewiſe good land and will afford plenty of meadow ground.

N. B. The above lands are in the middle of a German ſettlement and likely to become very valuable from the extenſion of the navigation into the weſtern country by the Virginia company, from which navigation it will not be more than a day's journey.

Likewiſe, the four following tracts of land in the county of Northampton, ſituate on the waters of Lehevaxen.

One tract containing	307	acres and allowance.
One ditto	292	ditto	ditto.
One ditto	334	ditto	ditto.
One ditto	330	ditto	ditto.

N. B. Theſe four tracts lie within eight or ten miles of the river Delaware, adjoining Robert Lettis Hooper, eſquire, and lands formerly Robert Wilſon's: they are prime lands and muſt be valuable when the navigation of the Delaware becomes an object of legiſlative attention, which undoubtedly muſt be very ſoon.

Any perſon inclinable to purchaſe, or take upon an improving leaſe, either of the ſaid tracts of land, or would wiſh to exchange merchandiſe, public ſecurities or real property in or near this city, for all or any part of them, may know the terms by applying to the owner, in Sixth ſtreet, between Market and Cheſnut ſtreets.

Foreign Intelligence.

LISBON, January 20.

IN the night between the 27th and 28th of laſt month a dreadful fire broke out in this city, during which thirty perſons are eſtimated to have loſt their lives, and fourteen of them are already buried. Many people were under the neceſſity of jumping from the windows. By this calamity eight families have loſt all their furniture, apparel, and other effects to a large amount.

Jan. 23 The province of Allantejo, one of the moſt beautiful and fertile in the kingdom of Portugal, and alone ſufficient to furniſh corn for the whole monarchy, having been for ſome years almoſt entirely uncultivated for want of people, government have reſolved to augment population of it by ſending for ſeveral families from the iſland of St. Michael, to whom portions of ground will be allotted, together with two oxen and a cow to each family, beſides which they will be exempt from taxes for 20 years.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 11.

They write from Alexandria, that ſo great a ſcarcity prevails in that country as to threaten a general famine.———An alarming revolt has taken place towards the borders of Syria, where an adventurer named Hadſchi Dere Begh, is at the head of a very formidable body of rebels, who attack and ſeize all the caravans that fall in their way, to the great annoyance of commerce. The 29th of laſt month the grand ſignoir diſpatched a firman, commanding all the troops in Romelia immediately to unite under the command of general Beghlerbegh Bekin Pacha.

VIENNA, February 14.

Joſeph de Pfeilheim died the 30th of laſt month at Clagenfort. He was diſtinguiſhed through life for his humanity to the poor, for whoſe relief he appropriated during the laſt ten years the intereſt of 50,000 florins.

COPENHAGEN, February 10.

The exchange in the Spaniſh iſland of Boriquen, oppoſite the Daniſh fort of Fredericksburg, having been propoſed to our miniſtry, it has been reſolved to refer the negociation of this affair to the Guinea company, eſtabliſhed here. The Spaniſh Philippine company appears diſpoſed to this exchange, as a means whereby they may be enabled to procure negroes.

MUTARO, (in Catalonia) January 31.

From the 13th to the 16th current, we have had a continued ſtorm here, accompanied by heavy rains—many perſons have loſt their lives—houſes have been blown down, and many accidents have happened both by ſea and land. We hear from Blanes, that a French brigantine, belonging to Marſeilles, captain Boyer, in her voyage from Mogadore, was wrecked on the coaſt The crew ſaved, but the cargo loſt. A Spaniſh ſhip met with the ſame fate near Pineda; ſhe was coming from Carthagena, laden with wine and other goods, which were loſt; the crew eſcaped all but one ſailor, and an officer of marines, who was a paſſenger. An Engliſh brigantine, the Province, captain Robert Waxter, from Newfoundland, was alſo wrecked near Vilaſar, in her way to Liorna; the crew were in the greateſt danger, when one of them undertook to ſwim with a cable rope and endeavour to gain land. He was about to fail in his attempt, and would have been drowned, if two inhabitants of Vilaſar had not ſwam to him, and brought him on ſhore. They moored the ſhip and ſaved the crew, but the ſhip and cargo were loſt.

LONDON,

March 6. A letter from St. Kitts, by the Leeward iſland mail, has the following article: "The ſcarcity of ſugar laſt year in this iſland, will this ſeaſon be made up to us; there is a proſpect of the moſt plentiful crop we have had for many years, and ſhall be able to load more ſhips than will arrive from England. We hear from Guadaloupe, that their ſugar plantations are almoſt deſtroyed by a hurricane; we felt a little of it here, though it did no damage. We have an account from St. Lucia, that a peſtilential diſorder is broke out there among the ſlaves, on which account we have cut off all communication with that iſland."

March 7. The emperor has refuſed the petition of his clergy to be permitted to marry, as in the Greek church; and has rather, to uſe a very intelligible term, ſcouted the meaſure. What reaſons his Imperial majeſty might have to oppoſe ſuch a ſource of population we cannot tell, but we are rather diſpoſed to imagine them Catholic ones. For it is well known, that, in one of the general councils, when it was propoſed to allow of marriage to the prieſthood, the queſtion was carried by a great majority againſt Hymen; and what is moſt ſingular in the buſineſs, the elder members of the council voted for the queſtion, and the younger ones againſt it. This circumſtance can only be accounted for on the principle, that 'young men love miſtreſſes, and old men want wives.'

Letters from Paris, dated February 18, ſay, 'We have not yet ſeen the particulars of our treaty with Ruſſia, but we learn from good authority that we are favoured by it; and indeed this ſhould ſeem to be the fact, as our court, to ſhow their ſatisfaction, have ſent to each of the four Ruſſian miniſters who ſigned it, a gold box with the king's portrait ſet with brilliants, and containing bank bills to the amount of 80 000 livres.

March 8. Orders were ſent from the war-office, for the embarkation of a number of troops, on board tranſports, now in preparation to ſail for the Weſt Indies and America.

The court of Verſailles have laid a prohibition on the exportation of kid ſkins; in conſequence of which, an Iriſh correſpondent obſerves, the ladies hands muſt go barefoot.

Much as is ſaid about this degenerate age, there are ſome good examples to be met with. A man in Bond ſtreet has fitted up his ſhop in ſuch a manner, that one ſide ſerves for the buſineſs of a wetchmaker, and the other for that of an undertaker; by which he exhibits the double duty of providing, at once, both for time and eternity.

A match, for twenty pounds a ſide, betwixt a poney, carrying its owner, who weighs about fifteen ſtone, and a man on foot, was determined on Tueſday.—They were to go to Grantham, 52 miles, and back to the mile ſtone on this ſide Roſington-bridge, which made the whole diſtance 100 miles. They ſtarted on Monday morning at nine o'clock, and both arrived at Grantham in little more than twelve hours. The man on foot left Grantham before the poney, but was overtook about four miles on this ſide, ſoon after which he gave up the race. The odds at Grantham were three and four to one on the walker. The poney arrived at Roſington-bridge, on Tueſday about twelve o'clock, having performed his taſk in twenty-ſeven hours.

March 9 Letters juſt received from Berlin, mention his Pruſſian majeſty's having given orders for the code of laws, inflicting penalties in caſes of felonies, to undergo a reviſion by four judges, who are already appointed for that purpoſe.

March 11. An eſtimate of the amount of the value of preſents annually made to the ſtates of Barbary is ordered to be made out, to be laid before parliament.

A letter from Naples mentions a violent political conteſt having lately manifeſted itſelf at that court on account of predilection, moſt of the efficient miniſtry being at this time Spaniards.

Advices from Smyrna ſay, that ſeveral American ſhips have arrived at that Port with French goods, and have found a very good market.

Accounts from Civita-Vecchia mention two large ſloops of war, compleatly fitted out, having lately arrived there, as preſents from the king of Spain to his holineſs.

The French have formed an offenſive and defenſive alliance with the Porte; with Spain, which has covenanted to ſupply them with ten thouſand horſe; with Sardinia, with Sweden, and with Denmark. They have alſo detached emiſſaries into Poland, to endeavour to create diſturbances in that country. They have abſolutely detached Ruſſia from the emperor, by meditating a peace between them and the Porte, which the emperor could not accompliſh.

The diſpatches received at the ſecretary of ſtate's office on Wedneſday, from Mr. Fitzherbert, his majeſty's ambaſſador at Peterſburgh, bring a very favourable account of the progreſs of the treaty, which the envoy is buſied in negociating with the miniſters of her Czariniſh majeſty, and which is now in a train of being concluded very ſpeedily.

Extract of a letter from Toulon, Feb. 2.

"The Penthievre, Carſonne, belonging to this port, laſt from Conſtantinople, has juſt arrived here, with a confirmation of the new treaty between the courts of France and the Ottoman empire, having received the aſſent of the grand ſignior and his miniſters The operation of this treaty will go principally to the eſtabliſhment of French factories in ſeveral parts of his ſublime higneſs's dominions, where ſettlements of that nature have not been made: and very diſtinguiſhing marks of condeſcenſion have been given in this treaty to France, on conſideration of binding herſelf to ſupply a nominated quantity of naval and military ſtores to the different arſenals belonging to the Turks."

The following ſingular and melancholy circumſtance lately happened at Mr. Divers's, a farmer at Kingſdown, Sittingbourn, in Kent. On Sunday the 25th ult. a decent looking man came to Mr. Divers's houſe, and aſked the ſervants to let him ſleep in the ſtable, which they conſented to. When they got up next morning they ſpoke to the man, who ſeemed to be very well; they gave him ſome beer, and went to work; but on their return home about two o'clock they found him lying dead in the bed he had made, having ſtrangled himſelf in a very extraordinary manner. He had tied two pieces of cord, one end of each round each foot, and one end of a third piece round his neck, the other ends of all the other three cords he had tied together, and then ſtretching down his feet, had drawn that part of the cord which was round his neck ſo tight as to ſtrangle him. The coroner's inqueſt brought in their verdict felo de ſe, and the body was accordingly buried in the highway.

Mr. Hewett, butcher, at Henfield, in Suſſex, a few days ſince having a diſeaſed cow that was near her time of calving, and which ſeemed to labour under extreme pain, he humanely diſpatched her with his pole axe, and immediately afterwards cut her open, with a view of ſaving the calf, which he effected beyond his expectation; for on dividing the matrix, he found that it contained two very lively ones, which he took out ſo ſkilfully as to preſerve them both, and they are now in a fair way of being reared.

An extraordinary expreſs arrived from Gibraltar on Friday morning, brought over by Mr. Skinner, of the artillery, relative to a diſpute between ſir Geo. Elliot and colonel Pringle, the chief engineer. The general complains, that he had ordered an enlargement of the fortifications, for the ſafety of the place, in caſe of any attack: and that his orders have been diſobeyed. The colonel on his part, alledges, that the fortifications which the general intended could not, in any poſſible caſe, be of the ſmalleſt utility, that the works would coſt an immenſe ſum of money to the nation, without any other benefit than the emolument which muſt accrue to the contractors and jobbers; and that unleſs he had orders from the board of ordnance in Great Britain, he ſhould not undertake ſo heavy a piece of unneceſſary buſineſs; and that he was the more confirmed in his own opinion, by the plan being reprobated by every man of experience in the garriſon. Both parties have written home, and the matter will, undergo an inveſtigation of a general court martial, which muſt, of courſe, bring ſir George and the colonel to England.

Letters by the ſame expreſs mention, that the communication between Spain and Gibraltar is at laſt opened: and that it was not, by any means, the fault of the Spaniards, that it has been ſo long ſhut up. The inhabitants of Gibraltar rejoice at this event as it will ſtop the extenſion of monopolizers, and make a free and eaſy paſſage for their complaints to Great Britain.

March 22 The queen of France has recently commenced huntreſs, and in the character of a modern Diana, enjoys the pleaſures of the chace with a pack of ſmall deer hounds, lately eſtabliſhed for her majeſty.

A remarkable account of a diſeaſed heart has lately been communicated in a letter to Dr. Simmons, by Mr. N. Chavaſſe, ſurgeon at Walſall, and inſerted in the London Medical Journal. This curious caſe is that of a clergyman, Mr. Noah Jones, who died at the age of ſixty-one years, after having for near twenty years laboured under ſymptoms of aſthma His pulſe was remarkably ſlow, but the leaſt quickneſs of motion brought on a palpitation of the heart. He died ſuddenly; and after death, his heart, which was ſmaller than that of a new born infant, was found oſſified to the extent of a ſhilling, at the lower part of the left ventricle, and ruptured at the edge of this bony concretion.

Extract of a letter from Cherbourg, February 26.

"Great preparations are making here for the launching of another caiſſoon, which will be the fifth, and will be launched off towards the latter end of next month. The weather being now fine, the gally ſlaves will ſhortly go on board the Bilanders to work in clearing the harbour; the ſand which is raiſed will help as a cement, and to fill the caiſſoons. Vaſt quantities of ſtones are brought down from the quarries of Kerſaint to carry on theſe works."

Extract of a letter from Hanover, February 18.

"The lords of the regency of this electorate have ordered an exact account of all the troops now employed in the ſervice, to be given in, with an eſtimate of the yearly expence for their maintenance, in order to accompliſh a reduction by which conſiderable ſavings will be made, and the community largely benefited. Other reforms are talked of; but the whole buſineſs has given offence to many, as it has come, by way of direction, from a certain court, which is thought to have very little, if any right, in the management of the electoral concerns. A great number of the ſoldiers, who were laſt war employed in America, and who were ſuppoſed to have been ſettled there have returned to their native country, not having received the advantages promiſed them."

An edict has been juſt publiſhed in France, dated the 17th of February, 1787, forbidding the uſe of ceruſe, white lead, litharge, or any compoſition of lead or copper in fining of wines or cyder, on penalty of 1000 livres for each offence, and being ſent to work in the gallies for three years.

March 30 The impoſition practiſed on the marquis of Lanſdown has been for ſome days the ſubject of merriment in the political circles.—The circumſtances are as follow:—That the marquis received a letter in the well known hand of Mr. Pitt, and ſealed with his coat of arms, the purport of which was, that his majeſty's miniſters finding from his lordſhip's converſation in the houſe of lords that he was not indiſpoſed towards them, and anxious to have his valuable aſſiſtance, were deſirous to know if his lordſhip would accept a reſpectable ſituation in the cabinet This letter was delivered by a footman in the livery of Mr. Pitt. The marquis wrote an anſwer to Mr. Pitt, in which he acknowledged the honor of his letter, and ſaid that he certainly had no indiſpoſition towards his majeſty's miniſters: on the contrary, he had high reſpect for their talents and virtue; that for his own part he was by no means ſolicitous of high diſtinction, but if his majeſty ſhould be graciouſly pleaſed to demand his ſervices he ſhould chearfully hold himſelf ready to obey his ſovereign, and he had no terms to make in ſuch caſe. Mr. Pitt was very much aſtoniſhed at this letter, and after conſulting with his friends he went to Lanſdown-houſe. The marquis was from home, and Mr Pitt's name taken by the porter. The marquis returned the viſit, and Mr. Pitt was from home. The ſame day the marquis ſent a note to the chancellor of the exchequer, which he received in the houſe of commons, profeſſing his unhappineſs at being from home when Mr. Pitt did him the honor to call, but ſaying that he ſhould be happy, if convenient, to have an interview with him that evening. Mr. Pitt returned a ſhort anſwer, that he ſhould certainly do himſelf the honor to ſee him at Lanſdown houſe. They accordingly met, when Mr. Pitt aſſured him that the firſt letter was an impoſition on his lordſhip, and an impudent forgery—that he had no authority either from his majeſty, or his colleagues, to ſignify to his lordſhip any wiſh for his confidential aſſiſtance; but having thus accidentally learnt his lordſhip's diſpoſition, if he gave him leave he ſhould make the king and his colleagues acquainted with the ſame. The marquis then politely bowed the miniſter out of the room.

The Angleſea company has iſſued a ſpecies of promiſſory coin for one penny, ſtruck upon copper, for the convenience of paying their men, in number above two thouſand. The execution of the die is moſt beautifully conceived and executed, and the intrinſic value of the copper is nearly a penny. A Druid, encircled with a wreath of oak, occupies one ſide. The reverſe has a cypher, P. M. Co.—i. e. 'Parry's Mine Company'—over which are the letter (D) Denarius, encircled with the following words, 'we promiſe to pay the bearer one penny:' on the outſide of the rim, are the words 'On demand, in London, Liverpool, or Angleſea."——There are ſeveral of theſe pieces in town, but they are picked up with great avidity. This has given riſe to the report of a new copper coinage going on for government.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

Monday, March 24.

Lord Rawdon recommended the conſideration of the fourteenth article of the convention with Spain, "in which his Catholic majeſty, prompted ſolely by motives of humanity, promiſes to the king of England, that he will not exerciſe any act of ſeverity againſt the Muſquitos." This he viewed as a ſhameful ſacrifice of honor, by abandoning our allies to the diſpoſition of an enemy; he therefore moved,—"That the terms of the convention between his Britannic majeſty and the king of Spain, ſigned at London on the 14th of July, 1786, did not meet the favorable opinion of that houſe."

Lord Stormont agreed to the declaration that we had ſacrificed every advantage to Spain without receiving any equivalent; and could never approve of the ſhameful manner in which we had abandoned our allies to the mercy of a hoſtile power.

The lord chancellor inſiſted, that the Muſquitos were never ſtrictly conſidered in alliance with us, conſequently could not be ſaid to be under our protection; that we might have lived with them on peaceable terms, was admiſſible; but it could not be called an alliance, no act ever having acknowledged ſuch a principle. He then gave a geographical account of the Muſquitos, and repreſented them as a miſerable enervated race, without any regular form of government; and that this country could never with propriety be conſidered as bound to protect them; therefore what had been aſſerted with regard to ſurrender of honor, was unjuſtifiable in every point of view.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Wedneſday, March 28

Mr. Beaufoy ſtated the hardſhips which the diſſenters at preſent labour under from reſtrictions of various kinds: And it was his object to ſubmit to their conſideration a motion, preparatory to a repeal of the obnoxious laws. He entered deeply into the ſubject, and ſaid that in 1672, in the reign of Charles II. it was enacted, "That all and every perſon or perſons, that ſhall be admitted into any office, civil or military, or in any employment into his majeſty's houſhold, ſhall receive the ſacrament of the Lord's ſupper, according to the uſage of the church of England, within three months after their admittance into their ſaid employment, in ſome public church, upon ſome Lord's Day, immediately after divine ſervice."

The circumſtances of the time when this bill paſſed were very remarkable. The king himſelf was ſuſpected of popery, and the duke of York, his preſumptive heir, had openly declared himſelf of that religion. This bill was introduced in direct oppoſition to the court; the penal laws having been ſuſpended, contrary to acts of parliament, by the royal proclamation. On theſe accounts proteſtants were in the utmoſt fear and conſternation, and accordingly the deſign of the act was, as the preamble declares, "to quiet the minds of his majeſty's good ſubjects, by preventing dangers which might happen from popiſh recuſants."

The proteſtant diſſenters apprehend, therefore, that this act, as the title ſets forth, was made wholly againſt papiſts, and not to prevent any danger which could happen to the nation or church from the diſſenters.

He concluded by moving, "That a committee be appointed to take the complaints into conſideration, in order that a bill might be introduced to remedy their grievances."

Sir H. Houghton ſeconded the motion.

Lord Beauchamp, ſir James Johnſtone, and Mr. Smith were of a ſimilar opinion.

Lord North, Mr. Pitt, Mr. Fox, ſir Wm. Dolben, and ſeveral others oppoſed the motion.

The queſtion was then put, when the houſe divided,

March 31. A letter from Liſbon, by a ſhip juſt arrived in the river, ſays, that the United States, an American veſſel, bound to Liſbon, loaded with wheat and flour, was taken on the coaſt of Portugal by an Algerine galley, and was carrying off for Algiers, but falling in with a Venetian man of war, the American was re-taken, but the galley, by the help of oars, ſheered off. The United States was brought into Liſbon by the man of war, the commander of which claimed the value of a third part of her cargo as ſalvage for retaking her; but the queen, to eaſe the Americans of that burthen, has ordered that the Venetian captain be paid out of her treaſury, as the Americans had been requeſted to ſupply the inhabitants of that city with corn and flour, and promiſed to be protected by her men of war from being taken by the Barbarians

AMERICA.

KINGSTON, (Jamaica) March 24.

We are informed, that the ſchooner St. Andreas, captain Van Aſſendelft, ſailed about three months ago from the Muſquito Shore, with a number of male and female paſſengers on board for this iſland; but being overtaken by a heavy gale of wind, in which the ſchooner loſt her maſts, rigging and ſails, captain Van Aſſendelft was obliged to bear away for Carthagena, after keeping the ſea ſeveral weeks and exhauſting almoſt his whole ſtock of proviſions, where he arrived in the greateſt diſtreſs, and immediately made known his helpleſs ſituation to the officers of the Spaniſh government, whom he ſatisfied to the truth of his relation; upon which the viceroy of the kingdom of Santa Fee, Don Cavilliero, who was then at Carthagena, with ſingular humanity, gave orders that the veſſel ſhould be compleatly refitted and victualled out of the king's ſtores; and that the paſſengers ſhould be entertained in apartments belonging to his own palace, and his orders were ſtrictly complied with. When the veſſel was once more ready for ſea, captain Van Aſſendelft, waited on the viceroy, and offered him bills upon this iſland, to defray the expence of her repairs; but the noble Spaniard, with unexampled magnanimity, refuſed any compenſation whatever, by ſaying, in ſubſtance, 'that he would not accept of any pecuniary acknowledgment: for it was ſufficient (to be relieved) that any ſtranger came to Carthagena in diſtreſs, and he was ſure his royal maſter would highly approve his conduct on the occaſion.'

Captain Leary of the Nancy, from the Muſquito Shore, has brought diſpatches for his honor the lieutenant governor; and reports that many of the inhabitants had quitted that place, 30 of whom he had landed at the Grand Caymanas.———At the time of the Nancy's departure, the Swan, and a Spaniſh ſhip of 20 guns, had failed for Cape Gracios a Dios. The Camilla, and a Spaniſh 40 gun ſhip, were at Black river.

The Indians on the Shore are ſaid to have parted with the Engliſh with extreme regret, and in the moſt friendly manner; but denounced vengeance againſt any Spaniard who might attempt to penetrate into the interior part of their country.

From the Independent Gazetteer.

Mr. OSWALD, Philadelphia, 7th May, 1787.

CAPT. Curwen, by his publication in your Independent Gazetteer of laſt Saturday, ſhews a diſpoſition to call the attention of the public to his misfortunes, and to arraign my conduct, for taking twenty guineas for his own paſſage and that of his two mates, from Fayal to this place, kindly endeavouring to impreſs the idea of a want of feeling and humanity in me for receiving this mighty ſum. I am ſorry Capt. Curwen ſhould employ his time ſo improperly on his ſafe arrival here—the motive he beſt knows.

I am a ſtranger here, Mr. Oſwald, and have other objects than that of employing my time in a paper controverſy with him, or with any other perſon; far, therefore, from wiſhing to impreſs an unfavourable idea of him, if his repreſentation in that paper tends in any degree to fix a more exalted opinion of him with his fellow citizens, let him enjoy its good effects to the utmoſt of his wiſhes and views Mr. Graham did certainly pay me twenty guineas for his two mates paſſage and his own; I took on board at Fayal ſeventeen of his crew beſides, for this port, without any compenſation; and for Capt. Curwen's accommodation and their's, I have ſacrificed four times the ſum in queſtion, in the freight of wines offered to me at Fayal for this place. Had my ſhip been in ballaſt, and bound hither, Capt. Curwen could with much more propriety complain of me to the public—and whether he or thoſe with him chuſe to acknowledge it, or not, Mr. Graham and Mr. Dent both know, that from a deſire to accommodate him and crew (of whom he pretends to have been ſo careful) prevented my having got a full load of wine for this port.

Permit me, therefore, Mr. Oſwald, to aſk this gentleman who holds me up to the public.—If any owner in Philadelphia, who had a veſſel bound to Fayal or Liſbon, would accommodate twenty Portugueſe in a paſſage from hence for twenty guineas, and loſe the freight of ſuch a proportion of a cargo as I have done for theſe men? I believe not—and it would be abſurd to expect it:—Yet I am arraigned and accuſed of the want of humanity for having done more than I believe any owner of a ſhip in Philadelphia would do in a ſimilar caſe. This captain repreſents that I had been threatened with an application to a magiſtrate; the authority of the magiſtrates of that iſland could not force me to take him or his crew on board as paſſengers, without being paid, ſo that ſuch an application could not be favourable to the ſaid GENTLEMAN, who attempts to come forward with ill-grounded complaints, which may at ſome period or other prove injurious to many whoſe ſituations may be worſe than his—who had money at command. I ſhall therefore leave Capt. Curwen to his own reflections, without contradicting him, or intruding further on the patience of the public

Your humble Servant, DUNCAN ROSS.

City-Tavern and Coffee-Houſe.

Edward Moyſton

TAKES this method of returning his ſincere thanks to thoſe ladies and gentlemen who have been pleaſed to honor his houſe with their cuſtom, and hopes for a continuance of their favours, and the public in general. Having provided himſelf with cooks of experience, both in the French and Engliſh taſte, he flatters himſelf that he will be able to give ſatisfaction to thoſe who pleaſe to uſe his houſe, and careful attendance ſhall never be wanting to render their accommodation agreeable. Ladies and gentlemen travellers can be commodiouſly lodged at the tavern, as he hath fitted up chambers in a more convenient manner than they have heretofore been, for the reception of his gueſts. Horſes and carriages ſhall be taken the greateſt care of, and every exertion of his uſed to render their accommodation complete. He has laid in a freſh ſupply of liquors of the very firſt quality.

As many of the ſubſcriber's cuſtomers have often mentioned their deſire of taking proper ſtabling to accommodate their horſes, and coach-houſes to keep their carriages: this is therefore to inform them, that he hath taken the Livery-Stables at the back of the City-Tavern, where his cuſtomers may aſſure themſelves of the greateſt care being taken of both their horſes and carriages, at as moderate a rate as at any other livery ſtables in the city.

Four Dollars Reward.

WAS ſtolen laſt night, a Black HORSE; 14 hands high, low carriaged, paces altogether, newly ſhod all round, his fore ſhoes ſteeled, galled on on the near ſhoulder under the collar, the hair worn off his rump by the britch-band. Any perſon taking up ſaid horſe and thief ſhall have the above reward, or Two Dollars for the horſe only, and reaſonable charges paid, by the ſubſcriber, living in Pine ſtreet, near the corner of Fourth ſtreet.

May 5 wſtu JOHN SCANLAN.

A SECOND

Courſe of Lectures,

By a LADY.

THE FIRST LECTURE of this COURSE will be read in the Univerſity To-Morrow Evening, the 10th inſtant, at Half paſt Seven o'clock preciſely.

It will contain, excluſive of the preliminary diſcourſe, on the origin of language, ſuch ſelections from Milton, Shakeſpear, Thomſon, Pope, Young and Shenſtone, as have a tendency to improve the heart and enlarge the underſtanding.

The ELEGY on LAURA, tranſlated from Petrarch by Sir William Jones, will be read that evening, at the particular requeſt of ſeveral ladies, who have already heard and admired this delightful compoſition, which will doubtleſs immortalize the memory of the tranſlator, as it has already done the author.

The numerous attendance on theſe readings is ample proof of their innocence and rationality, eſpecially when it is conſidered that the audience was compoſed of gentlemen of the three learned profeſſions, ladies of the moſt elevated rank and fortune, as well as a number of eminent citizens, who introduced their wives and daughters into a ſociety, where nothing could be heard but the beauties of poetical genius, ſelected with care, and an anxiety to convey general ſatisfaction.

Tickets may be had of Meſſrs. Prichard, Seddon, Spotſwood, Peloſi, and Rice, in Market & Front ſtreets.

N. B. A ſlight Indiſpoſition neceſſarily obliges the Lady to poſtpone this Lecture until the 10th Inſtant.

On a WATCH.

COULD but our tempers move like this machine,
Not urg'd by paſſion, nor delay'd by ſpleen;
And, true to nature's regulating power,
By virtuous acts diſtinguiſh every hour;
Then health and joy would follow, as they ought,
The laws of motion, and the laws of thought;
Sweet health to paſs the preſent moments o'er,
And everlaſting joy, when time ſhall be no more.

From a late Dublin Paper.

MATRIMONY.

THE public may rely on it from undoubted authority, that I, the reverend Patrick Fay, having accumulated a ſufficient fortune, have reſigned buſineſs in favour of a friend, and am determined in future not to marry people of any deſcription whatever; therefore it will be fruitleſs to apply to me. In the Houſe of Aſſembly,

Monday, A. M. February 5, 1787.

THE Houſe having reſumed the petition of James Hathaway, and the affidavits accompanying the ſame, read the ſecond time on the 19th of January laſt;

Reſolved, That the ſaid James Hathaway have leave to bring in a Bill to annul his marriage with his wife Mary, formerly Mary Siddenham, and to enable him to marry again; giving ſix weeks notice thereof in two of the moſt public newſpapers publiſhed in Philadelphia, and alſo in the newſpapers publiſhed in Wilmington; in order that any perſons concerned may appear before the General Aſſembly, and offer their objections, if any they have, to ſuch bill.

Extract from the minutes,

James Booth, Clerk of Aſſembly.

In purſuance of the above reſolution, I James Hathaway, of the county of Suſſex, in the ſtate of Delaware, do intend to exhibit a bill for the purpoſes aforeſaid, to the Honorable the General Aſſembly of the ſaid ſtate, on Monday the fourth day of June next, at their ſeſſions of Aſſembly to be held at Dover, whereof all perſons concerned, who have any objections to ſuch bill, are deſired to take notice, and to appear at the time and place aforeſaid, to offer ſuch their objections.

Calico Printing and Bleaching.

THE ſubſcriber begs leave to inform merchants, traders and the public in general, that he has fitted up the Bleachfield in Lower Merion townſhip, ten miles from Philadelphia—(lately poſſeſſed by Daniel Burrell) and is now ready to carry on the printing and bleaching branches on the ſame principles they are conducted in Britain. Merchants and traders may be ſupplied with patterns to ſuit the fancy of their cuſtomers, and the farmer and mechanic enjoy with ſatisfaction the fruits of their domeſtic induſtry. Pattern books to be ſeen, and cloth taken in by Robert Aitkin, bookſeller, in Market-ſtreet, near the coffee houſe, and Young and M'Culloch, bookſellers, the corner of Cheſnut and Second-ſtreets, Philadelphia. At the mill of Thomas and John Roberts, in Lower Merion; by Samuel Livezey, at his ſtore at Spring Mills, and at the Field at all which places receipts will be given—Care will be taken to do the work in a ſufficient manner, and to return it in proper time, by the public's moſt humble ſervant, ROB. TAYLOR.

The prices of Bleaching are, for all plain linen yard wide, or under, wove in a 900 reed 4d. per yard, 1000 5d. 1200 6d. 1400 8d. finer in proportion; yarns and threads bleached and dyed, and all ſalt water ſtains taken out of white and dyed linens, cottons, kentings, ſtockings, &c. ſ&w3m

A SECOND

Courſe of Lectures,

By a LADY.

THE FIRST LECTURE of this COURSE will be read in the Univerſity This Evening, the 10th inſtant, at Half paſt Seven o'clock preciſely.

It will contain, excluſive of the preliminary diſcourſe, on the origin of language, ſuch ſelections from Milton, Shakeſpear, Thomſon, Pope, Young and Shenſtone, as have a tendency to improve the heart and enlarge the underſtanding.

The ELEGY on LAURA, tranſlated from Petrarch by Sir William Jones, will be read that evening, at the particular requeſt of ſeveral ladies, who have already heard and admired this delightful compoſition, which will doubtleſs immortalize the memory of the tranſlator, as it has already done the author.

The numerous attendance on theſe readings is ample proof of their innocence and rationality, eſpecially when it is conſidered that the audience was compoſed of gentlemen of the three learned profeſſions, ladies of the moſt elevated rank and fortune, as well as a number of eminent citizens, who introduced their wives and daughters into a ſociety, where nothing could be heard but the beauties of poetical genius, ſelected with care, and an anxiety to convey general ſatisfaction.

Tickets may be had of Meſſrs. Prichard, Seddon, Spotſwood, Peloſi, and Rice, in Market & Front ſtreets.

A Correſpondent recommends the publication of the following letter, from Mr. Hartley, to the ommiſſioners of the Britiſh navy, reſpecting Mr. ORT's Proceſs for converting Caſt Iron into Malle- ble Iron. The ſubject is important to this coun- y. and the proceſs is intereſting.

Gentlemen, Golden-Square, June 19, 1786.

' I BEG your permiſſion to tranſmit to you ſome bſervations upon Mr. Cort's method of converting ig iron into good and malleable metal. I under- and that your board has inſtituted an enquiry into he proof of the facts, and that is my apology for reſuming to offer to you the following obſervations pon the ſame ſubject, which were made upon the pot. The enquiry cannot be lodged in better hands han yours. I ſhall be glad if the following remarks nay in any degree contribute to illuſtrate the principles of this important diſcovery. The compariſon f facts and principles together, is in every caſe, he ſureſt and ſafeſt road to proof.

' Having heard laſt ſummer at Portſmouth yard, hat Mr. Cort had diſcovered a method of making he very beſt of iron out of common iron ballaſt, by a ſhort and ſimple proceſs, and that your board was diſpoſed to give encouragement to him, I went to his works, and as far as I could judge, his invention appeared to me to be founded on ſimple principles, for reducing iron, to its natural and beſt ſtate, by the expulſion of all heterogeneous and unmetallic particles; the fundamental principle being, that iron is itſelf a ſimple homogeneous metal, and that all iron is equally good when purified from heterogeneous and unmetallic particles.

' The ordinary mode of converting caſt iron into malleable iron, is by the uſe of a very great quantity of charcoal; which contains what the chymiſts call the phlogiſton, and which has the quality of remetallizing demetallized particles, which are mixed up with iron while in fuſion. The method uſed by Mr. Cort is not by charcoal. He uſes ſea coal entirely, becauſe it is not his principle to remetallize any of the demetallized particles, but to expel them.

' The proceſs as I ſaw it three or four times over, is ſomething to this effect:—Between two and three hundred weight of common iron ballaſt is melted in an air furnace with ſea coal. When melted, it ſpits out in blue ſparks the ſulphur which is mixed with it. The workman keeps conſtantly ſtirring it about, which helps to diſengage the ſulphurous particles; and when thus diſengaged they burn away in blue ſparks. In about an hour after melting, the ſpitting of theſe blue ſparks begins to abate, (the workman ſtirring all the time) and the melted metal begins to curdle and to loſe its fuſibility, juſt like ſodder when it begins to ſet. The cauſe of which I take to be this: the ſtirring not only diſentangles the ſulphur, but it gives opportunity for like to meet with like; by which means metallic particles meet and coaleſce, never to ſeparate again, and then they become unfuſible. The unmetallic particles, which, being of a vitrifiable nature, contribute to flux the whole maſs, are partly calcined, and partly burnt away. The whole maſs at the end of the firſt part of the proceſs conſiſts of metallic particles and droſs ſticking together, but not incorporated. The clotting of the metallic particles by the ſtirring about, may be compared to churning. As the ſtirring of cream inſtead of mixing and uniting the whole together, ſeparates like particles to like, ſo it is with the iron:—what was at firſt melted, comes out of the furnace in clotted lumps, about as ſoft as welding heat, with metallic parts and droſs mixed together, but not incorporated. Thoſe lumps, when cold, reſemble great cinders of iron. They are called loops.

' The next part of the proceſs is to heat theſe loops to the hotteſt welding heat in an air furnace, and put them under a great forge hammer, which by a few ſtrokes at the very higheſt point of the welding heat, conſolidates the metallic parts into a ſlab of malleable iron, about three feet and a half long and three inches ſquare. The hammer at the ſame time expels and ſcatters the unmetallic droſs. Theſe ſlabs are brought to a wedge point at one end. They are malleable iron, but ſtill with a conſiderable mixture of droſs.

' The laſt part of the proceſs is to heat theſe ſlabs to the hotteſt welding heat in an air furnace, and then to paſs them through the rollers of a rolling mill, the ſlabs being extremely ſoft at the higheſt point of welding heat, the force of the rollers conſolidates the metallic parts into bar iron, and the droſs is ſqueezed out, and falls under the rollers. This is the whole proceſs; and thus in about ſix hours I have ſeen a piece of common iron ballaſt rolled into a ſhip's bolt. I have then ſeen this bolt laid hollow acroſs the eye of a large forge hammer, and receive two hundred and fifty ſtrokes of the heavieſt ſledge hammer; and thus bent double, but without breaking, or ſuffering the leaſt apparent injury.

' I conceive the two principles of this invention to be, firſt burning off and calcining the ſuphur and the demetallized particle of ballaſt iron, inſtead of endeavouring to reſtore the demetallized parts with charcoal, at a great expence, and ſtill leaving the buſineſs undone; and ſecondly, expelling the droſs and conſolidating the metal by ſqueezing it through the rollers, inſtead of the common mode of hammering, which requires a conſiderable length of time, during which time the metal loſes the ſoftneſs of a welding heat, and becomes too hard to ſuffer the expulſion of the unmetallic parts. The common mode therefore, operates with much leſs effect than Mr. Cort's mode, becauſe it operates upon a leſs degree of heat and ſoftneſs. It conſolidates heterogeneous particles into the body of the iron, inſtead of expelling them by the expeditious and forcible impreſſion of the rollers in the ſofteſt ſtate of welding heat. It is to be obſerved, likewiſe, that the common blooms, as they are called, in ordinary forges of iron, are nearly three times as thick, and ſolid as the ſlabs in Mr Cort's proceſs, and therefore much leſs affected by the blow of an hammer than his ſlabs are under the effects of the rollers. His ſlabs are ſmall, ſoft and ductile, and therefore eaſily ſuffer the expulſion of the droſs by the ſqueezing of the rollers.

' Theſe appear to me to be the principles of Mr. Cort's diſcovery. They appear to be conformable to chemical reaſoning and to the general principles of metallurgy. The demetallized particles of ballaſt iron, ſo demetallized by the ſulphur in the ore, form the alloy of iron; when the ſulphur is carried off by the fire, and by ſtirring the metal about while in fuſion, and when the alloy of unmetallick particles is expelled by the application of the hammer and rollers of welding heat; the metallic parts thus kneaded and conſolidated together, form the refined and homogeneous metal iron. Mr. Cort may therefore be ſaid to have diſcovered for this country, an immenſe iron mine above ground, as all pig iron and common ballaſt iron, may by his proceſs be purified into good metal. It is not improbable that this diſcovery may produce a great revolution in iron matters between imported and home-made iron.

' The proof of facts which are ſtated to your board, from the proper officers employed by you in tois inquiry, form the baſis of the caſe. The illuſtration which flows from the diſcuſſion of principles confirms the interpretation of facts into proof of the merit of the invention; becauſe thoſe facts proceed through every ſtage of the proceſs coherently with the principles which conſtitute the invention, and conſiſtently with the general and acknowledged principles of metallurgy, and becauſe the perfection of the metal reſults from the ſtrict adherents in the operation of the principles of the proceſs.

I have the honor to be, Gentlmen,
Your moſt obedient humble ſervant, D. Hartley.
' To the principal Officers, and Commiſſioners of his majeſty's Navy.'

UTRECHT, March 5.

IN vain do thoſe who wiſh for the reſtoration of peace to theſe unhappy provinces repreſent the alarming conſequences which muſt follow the anarchy which prevails at this time; in vain do they ſet the example of ſubmiſſion to thoſe laws which ought to unite the citizens of the ſame country, and of that moderation which ought to guide all their proceedings and all their examinations into the privileges of each particular claſs. The minds of people are too much agitated to liſten to the voice of reaſon, and they ſeem to get daily more and more out of bounds; all the provinces, all the towns, all the villages, are unhappily divided into two parties, violently exaſperated againſt each other, and ready to come to the moſt deplorable extremities, in ſupport of what they each think right; and beſides the grand cauſe of difference of opinion, new pretentions ſeem to ſtart up daily on each ſide, as if the ferment was not ſufficient before.

PARIS, March 1.

The effigy of the late king of Pruſſia, which is exhibited here in the cloaths he wore when alive, may be looked upon as an excellent leſſon. The wardrobe of that ſovereign, whoſe actions were the moſt brilliant, cannot fail to ſurprize thoſe who ſee it. It conſiſts of three ſuits of uniform; one a dreſſed ſuit, which had been worn but three times in eighteen years; and the two others are in ſo indifferent a ſtate, that it requires the authentic atteſtations of their being genuine, which the man who ſhews them has taken care to obtain, for the public to credit their being really the wardrobe of the Great Frederic.

FLORENCE, Dec. 16.

The great duke of Tuſcany has juſt iſſued a new code of criminal laws, which is ordered to be obſerved in his dominions. It conſiſts of one hundred and nineteen articles, by which capital puniſhments are aboliſhed, as having been found to leave too ſlight an impreſſion on the minds of the people for the prevention of crimes, and more viſible and permanent ſufferings ordained in their ſtead. Torture is prohibited. Confiſcations are declared unjuſt, as involving the innocent with the guilty. Proportionable penalties are inflicted for ſlight offences, and a more equitable mode of trial is eſtabliſhed, particularly with regard to evidences.

Soon after the publication of this new code, a man condemned to the gallies for a moſt inhuman murder, endeavoured to perſuade his companion to whom he was chained to eſcape with him; but on refuſal, he took an opportunity of picking up a large ſtone, with which, notwithſtanding his chains, he maſſacre ed his companion, in the preſence of the guard. So horrible a deed, under ſuch circumſtances, almoſt overcome the Great Duke's humane temper. He immediately ordered a gallows in the moſt public part of Piſa; but his Imperial highneſs countermanded the order for his execution, and the criminal was ſentenced to a more excruciating and laſting puniſhment, that of being immured between four walls, where, almoſt unable to move, he muſt end his life in the utmoſt miſery. As a more flagrant offence cannot be committed, puniſhments by death, are not expected to be revived in this country.

LONDON,

Feb. 22. The head of the Algerine captain, who took an Engliſh ſhip off St. Vincent, was elevated on a pole, after it was ſevered from his body. Here it ſtood three days, and then was ſuffer ed to be buried. The Engliſh captain generouſly made interceſſion for the Algerine; but the dey would not liſten to it, as the Engliſhman had ſhewn his paſſport, and proved he was bound to England.

Feb. 23. Major Scott, on Monday, in the houſe of commons, avowed, upon his honor, that the whole of Mr. Haſtings's fortune, taken together, did not exceed fifty thouſand pounds, and he was confident, that he was well acquainted with the whole amount of his fortune.

If Mr. Haſtings is worth only 50,000l. how comes it that Mrs. Haſtings carries diamonds about her to the value of 60,000? How comes it that Mr. Haſtings can afford to make preſents of a cradle and a bulſe worth 70,000? How comes it that he can afford to give ſplendid enterteinments, that he thought himſelf qualified to ſupport the dignity of a peer? In ſhort, if he has only 50,000l. what has he done with all the money he received in India? What has become of the riches of Cheit Seing, and the property of the Begums?

On a moderate computation, there are more men and women executed and ſentenced to tranſportation in Great Britain and Ireland than in all Europe together; and, by the ſame diſpationate and impartial calculation, there are more perſons confined for debt in the two kingdoms than in the whole world. To what then, in the name of heaven, can this be imputed, but to radical imperfection in our laws!—To charge it to national depravity would be paying ourſelves an ill compliment; to ſink the obſervation would be inhuman and impolitic.

Feb. 27. A few weeks ago a circumſtance occurred in the neighbourhood of Fullwood's rents, Holborn, which is a malady (the rapidity of which has baffled the power of medicine) has excited general ſurpriſe. A young married woman, about the age of 24 years, was ſuddenly ſeized with a painful ſenſation in one eye, as if duſt, &c. had been thrown into it, which was ſoon followed by a violent pain in the head; which, notwithſtanding the aſſiſtance of an eminent occuliſt, terminated in the courſe of a fortnight with a total extinction of ſight: but what rendered this misfortune more ſingular, the huſband was then alſo attacked with the ſame ſymptoms, which ended likewiſe in the entire loſs of his eyes.

Feb. 28. Upon the trial at the Old Bailey on Friday laſt, of William Wealch, a boy of 14 years, and Henry Conway, a boy of nine years of age, a ſcene of ſuch unparalleled profligacy and wickedneſs was unveiled to the court, as ſtruck every perſon preſent with horror and aſtoniſhment. The indictment was for highway robbery, in taking from Mary Davis, an infant of 7 years of age, a bundle of linen, at the end of Coventry Court, St. Giles's. To ſcreen her own infamy, an old bawd, named Mrs. Hickey, appeared againſt the lives of theſe unfortunate boys; but the ſagacity of the recorder, who tried the cauſe after conſiderable labour and addreſs, at length extracted the truth, and Mrs. Hickey was committed to Newgate for the falſehoods ſhe had before ſworn to in the face of the court. It appeared to have been the practice of this infamous woman to ſeduce children from their parents, or to pick them up from the ſtreets, and by a regular courſe of inſtruction, to train them up in every ſpecies of villainy and debauchery, firſt deſtroying, as a perparatory ſtep, all ſenſe of ſhame and decency, by putting a great many different ſexes naked and in one bed together, and encouraging ſcenes too painful to relate.

March 10. A letter from on board the Duke of Cumberland Packet boat, arrived at Falmouth from New York, ſays, that they touched at Madeira, where they only ſtaid about three hours, and on their coming out fell in with a Portugueſe man of war, with an Algerine galley in tow, which they had juſt taken, after an engagement of half an hour, in which the Algerine captain and two other officers were killed, and moſt of the men wounded.

March 12. The following is an accurate ſtatement of the navy, made on the 23d ult. viz. 157 ſhips of the line, 19 fifties, 149 frigates, and 129 ſloops of war. The number of ſeamen including marines, borne on the books of the ſhips in commiſſion, was ſtated at 27,390 men.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, March 15.

TRADE WITH AMERICA.

Mr. W. Grenville moved the order of the day for the houſe to reſolve itſelf into a committee of the whole houſe, to take into conſideration the ſtate of the trade of the United States of America. The order being read, and the queſtion put, the ſpeaker left the chair, and Mr. Steele took his ſeat at the table.

The acts 23 and 24 being read,

Mr. Grenville roſe, and in a ſpeech of conſiderable length, ſtated the ground upon which it was deemed expedient to apply to parliament for an act to authorſe the continuance of the trade with the United States of America, ſubject to the diſcretion of the privy council, for another year. Mr. Grenville ſaid, the nature of our intercourſe with America, had been ſo amply detailed laſt ſeſſion, that it was unneceſſary to take up the time of the houſe by going again over the matter. He would therefore confine himſelf to ſuch points as more particularly called for explanation, in order that the houſe might know the true ſituation of our commerce with America, as far as it reſpected the trade carried on between the Britiſh Weſt-India Iſlands and Great Britain and the American continent, and between the Britiſh Weſt India Iſlands and America. He began his detail with a ſtatement of the manner in which the Weſt-India iſlands had been ſupplied with flour and grain, and lumber, the two articles which he conſidered as the moſt important of the whole ſupply furniſhed to the Weſt-India Iſlands. He enlarged upon this head of his ſubject and ſtated the quantity which Great Britain had been able to ſupply Jamaica and the other iſlands with, and aſſerted, that it was a ſpecies of commerce highly uſeful to our navigation, as it employed 50,000 ton of ſhipping, and 4000 ſeamen annually. He admitted that the price of proviſions, ſlaves, &c. purchaſed in America had riſen far above all former precedent, but imputed it not ſo much to the want the iſlands felt of ſuch articles, as to the peculiar ſtate of the American provinces and to a variety of other circumſtances. He next went into an enumeration of rice, ſhingles, and the various other articles of ſupply furniſhed to the Weſt-India iſlands, ſtating the quantity exported from the United States of America, and from the neutral iſlands. In this part of his ſpeech he ſpoke from a document in his hand. We cannot therefore pretend to follow him with any hope of accuracy, and for that reaſon ſhall not attempt to report in detail, what he ſaid. After going through the ſtatement of the different articles, he proceeded to ſpeak of the market that our remaining American provinces offered for rums, and ſaid, the commerce of our colonies was growing, and that it promiſed a rapid increaſe, a circumſtance that could not but prove extremely beneficial to the merchants and planters of the Weſt-India iſlands. He recapitulated the quantity of puncheons of rum imported in the courſe of the laſt year into America, and the Britiſh colonies on that continent, reaſoned upon the fact, as corroborative of his preceding argument. One thing, he ſaid, he was obliged to mention, and reſpecting which he meant to apply to the houſe to adminiſter ſuch a remedy as to their wiſdom ſhould ſeem fit. What he alluded to was, that upon a compariſon of the quantity of tons of ſhipping employed, in the years 1785 and 1786, in the year 1785 we employed 58,000 tons, and in the laſt year only 50,000 tons. He accounted for this falling off, and ſtated the ſort of remedy he meant to propoſe. He next ſtated why it had been judged more proper to apply for an act of another year's continuance, veſting the power in his majeſty in council, than for a permanent bill, declaring that, at preſent it was ſo difficult to decide whether the United States of America were under one government, whether they conſiſted of many diſcordant governments, or whether they were under no government at all, that it was deemed more expedient to wait till their government aſſumed ſome ſettled and eſtabliſhed form, than to offer any terms of commercial intercourſe at preſent. After much perſpicuous ſtatement, and a neceſſary ſhare of elucidatory reaſoning, Mr. Grenville concluded with moving, that the chairman be directed to move.

" That leave be given to bring in a bill for further continuing, and more effectually enforcing the proviſions of the ſaid acts of the 23d and 24th years of his preſent majeſty."

Lord Penhryn roſe to obſerve, upon that part of the right honorable gentleman's ſpeech in which he had ſtated the quantity of gallons of rum exported from the Britiſh Weſt-India iſlands to America, and declared he did not think the right hon. gentleman's ſtatement accurate. His lordſhip alſo took notice of the acknowledged advanced price of articles neceſſarily purchaſed in America for the uſe of the Britiſh Weſt-India iſlands, and argued upon it, as a proof that the merchants and planters were entitled to the conſideration and favour of parliament, wherever either could be ſhewn, without diſadvantage to the general intereſts of the empire. He obſerved likewiſe, that although the right hon. gentleman had in the early part of his ſpeech talked of our continuing the intercourſe between Great Britain and the Weſt-India iſlands, as highly flattering, with a view to our navigation, towards the cloſe of it, he had been under the neceſſity of admitting, that in reſpect of tonnage of ſhipping employed, we had diminiſhed 8000 tons upon a compariſon of the laſt year preceding. His lordſhip ſhortly commented upon theſe particulars.

Mr. Grenville aſſured the noble lord, that he had every reaſon to believe the ſtatements contained in the paper, from which he had ſpoken, to be accurate; and as to the deficiency in reſpect to the quantity of tonnage of ſhipping employed, he begged the noble lord to recollect, that he had in his former ſpeech declared, he ſhould propoſe a means of preventing the cauſe of that deficiency continuing. But, without adverting to that, it was evident, that although we had not in 1786 uſed 58,000 tons of ſhipping, as in 1785, we had uſed 50,000 tons, which employed 4000 ſeamen; and was, on that account, a great and ſolid ground of ſatisfaction to the country.

Mr. Dempſter ſaid, when he had originally given his conſent that the government of the trade with America ſhould be veſted in his majeſty in council, he had done it reluctantly, being conſcious that he reſigned the powers of that houſe in an unconſtitutional manner, but the unſettled condition of the United States of America, and the peculiar circumſtances of the times appeared to him to warrant ſuch a reſignation of his own right, as a member of parliament, and to juſtify it. The caſe was, however, now different, and he ſaw no reaſon why the houſe ſhould not reaſſume their powers, and return as ſoon as poſſible to the exerciſe of their own functions. Every friend to the conſtitution he conceived muſt feel with him upon the ſubject, and as the perſons who originally aſked for the act, confeſſed themſelves at the time, to be conſcious that they were unavoidably obliged to deſire what was obviouſly unconſtitutional, he ſaw no reaſon why they ſhould not be as anxious as himſelf to do that by act of parliament, which had hitherto been done by of proclamation of the king in council.

Mr. Grenville replied, and ſtated, that the paſſing an act from year to year, equally ſpoke the ſenſe and caution of that houſe, and of the adminiſtration upon the ſubject, and while America remained in the preſent unſettled ſtate, it did not appear to him that the matter could, with any ſort of public convenience, be better regulated. The conduct of the privy council was, he ſaid, amenable to parliament, and therefore he ſaw not any danger to the conſtitution from the buſineſs continuing another year in their hands.

Mr. Dempſter ſaid, annual acts were no novelty; they had repeated inſtances of them. Why not, therefore, put the intercourſe between Great Britain and the Weſt India iſlands, under the authority of an act of parliament? As to the United States of America, he had no objection to the matter reſpecting them remaining in the hands of the privy council, till the government of the United States were ſettled; but the ſooner the houſe returned to the ancient practice, and the leſs they truſted to the diſcretion of the executive government the better.

The queſtion was put and agreed to.

The ſpeech of Mr. Ogilvie in the Iriſh parliament in favour of the commercial treaty, is admired by all ranks, for its candour, its ſolidity, its arrangement, and its plain unaffected elegance. This gentleman, who is a native of the North of Scotland, has raiſed himſelf to a ſeat in that parliament and to a matrimonial connection with the firſt families in Britain and Ireland by his learning, his genius, and what is more, by his integrity and his virtues. He is father in law to the duke of Leinſter, brother-in law to the duke of Richmond, uncle to Mr. Fox, and huſband to the ducheſs dowager of Leinſter. Though Mr. Ogilvie approves of the treaty, however, as an Iriſhman, he totally diſapproves of it as a Briton. This gentleman's opinion will conſequently have conſiderable effect on the minds of the landed intereſt here, if not on the manufacturers themſelves as it is free from all party, and given in the utmoſt candour, with ſenſibility and judgment.

PORTSMOUTH, March 10.

On Friday laſt 6 waggons, with about 300 convicts, came in here. The weather being tempeſtuous, they were put on board the Gorgon, in Blockhouſe Hole, and on Sunday they were removed to to the different tranſports at the Motherbank, and ſail in few days for Botany Bay.

AMERICA.

KINGSTON, (Jamaica) March 24.

We learn from N. Providence, that ſeveral American veſſels having landed their cargoes on the Caucaſes, for the purpoſe of being conveyed in Britiſh bottoms to the iſland of Bermuda; the captain of a cruizer on the New Providence ſtation, receiving intimation of it waited until the goods were re-ſhipped, and then intercepted the veſſels, and conducted them ſafe into the harbour of Naſſau.

Wedneſday arrived the ſchooner Eagle, captain Wilſon, from New York and Bermuda. Captain Wilſon was obliged to put into Bermuda, having ſprung a dangerous leak, in a very heavy gale of wind, which forced him to throw all the lumber off the deck, and part of the cargo, bread and flour, overboard to lighten the veſſel.

BERMUDA, April 7.

Monday the general aſſembly met in St. George's, and on Thurſday adjourned to the 23d of April inſt. after chuſing a committee to take into conſideration the depredations committed on our veſſels at the Caucaſes by the Providence people, in order to ſend proper repreſentations of theſe matters home, to be laid before the king.

Yeſterday morning arrived the ſloop Caladonian, captain Brangham, and the ſloop Fanny, capt. Fox, from the Caucaſes.——By theſe veſſels were learn, that the ſloop Hawk, captain Loogan was ſeized by Dryſdale, and carried to Providence: as ſoon as ſhe was ſeized, (before even any ſham form of trial) the captors loaded her out of a French wreck then on the banks. All our veſſels are obliged to return, as they might as well meet the Algerine rovers without a paſs, as any armed veſſel near thoſe parts; and if we tamely ſubmit to theſe inſults, we ſhall not be able ſoon to ſend a veſſel from Bermuda, as they may with equal juſtice ſeize all our ſhipping within a mile of ſhore, or in the open ſeas.

By accounts from Turk's Iſland, we learn, that there was but a very indifferent proſpect of the ſalt turning to account this ſeaſon; and proviſions very ſcarce and dear; Indian corn at 10s. per buſhel, and expected to be higher: two whales have been taken there this ſeaſon.

It is ſaid, that in conſequence of ſome informations ſent down to Jamaica by a ſet of people at N. Providence, who call themſelves loyaliſts, on the Turk's Iſland inhabitants carrying on an illicit trade, that an inſpector general (Fourmouſe) was to ſail from Jamaica in February, to Turk's Iſland, &c to make enquiry reſpecting the foundation of ſaid information.

BOSTON, April 27.

Yeſterday a boy, having ſome powder, loaded one of thoſe ſmall guns that are continually firing about the ſtreets, and having placed it not far from a window, the gun (which appeared to be the noſe of a large bellows) flew back, and entered the ſide of the caſement, carried in the lower ſaſh, broke 6 ſquares of glaſs: and, had any unlucky wight been in the way, muſt have ended his exiſtence, Parents and maſters are now called upon, as they regard the lives and limbs of their families, to put a ſtop to thoſe dangerous practices, that are become ſo very general throughout the town. In my hurry, I had forgot to mention two balls, with which the gun was charged, that croſſed a walk frequently uſed, and went through a barn and chaiſe. We may impute the late languiſhment and death of an amiable lady of this town to a fright ſhe received from the diſcharge of a gun within the invirons of the town. Though we have good laws, with reſpect to the regulation of our internal police, lately publiſhed, yet they are like moſt of our town acts,

'Kick'd and trampled in the dirt.'

Friday laſt an order paſſed in the hon. houſe of repreſentatives, expelling therefrom Moſes Harvey, repreſentative of Montague, in Hampſhire county, who ſtands convicted upon an indictment for ſedition, and is ſentenced to an ignominious puniſhment, by the honorable ſupreme judicial court.

Yeſterday morning a fire broke out at the ſouth part of this town, one or two houſes from where the late fire terminated; but by the alacrity of the inhabitants it was got under after the houſe being about half deſtroyed.

NEW-YORK, May 8.

In the houſe of commons of Ireland, on the 27th of Feb. leave was given to the chancellor of the exchequer to bring in a bill for facilitating the trade and intercourſe between that kingdom and the United States of America.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Canada, to his friend in Boſton, dated March 28.

'I am exceeding ſorry to hear of the confuſed ſtate you are involved in at preſent, in Maſſachuſetts, and, for my part, much fear the conſequences. I ſaw your hero, Shays, in Canada, with a number of his attendants. I hope, for my part, he and they will meet the juſt rewards of their demerit. I think they are treated with ſuitable contempt in Canada. The poor fellow was obliged to leave his horſe and ſleigh in pawn for his tavern-bill.'

Philadelphia, May 10.

By late accounts from the counties of Hampſhire and Berkſhire, Maſſachuſetts, we find, that there is yet remaining a number of ſneaking rebels, whoſe chief glory conſiſts in aſſaſſinating, or deſtroying their neighbours property, themſelves concealed behind the ſable veil of inſurrection. A conſiderable number of anonymous letters, wrote with a pen that had been immerſed in the gall of the infernal pit—menacing life, and threatning the deſtruction of property—have been lodged at the dwellings of ſeveral of the government officers. ——————Several houſes, ſtores, &c. have been actually burnt, and a number of others ſet fire to, but ſaved by a timely diſcovery.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Halifax, dated April 5.

"We have had a very hard and tedious winter indeed—The oldeſt man in the place ſcarcely ever experienced one like it.

"There was great diſtreſs in this province, the winter paſt, for want of proviſions, among the new ſettlements. Some of the ſettlers have come very near periſhing for want of food; and this muſt have been the caſe with many, had not government afforded them relief. So great a ſcarcity of proviſions I have never known ſince I have been in this place."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in New-York to his friend, of rank, in one of the ſouthern ſtates.

"Europe is in a profound calm; the Venetians, Ruſſians and Auſtrians, indeed, are pecking at the Turks, but I ſuppoſe it is only to keep alive pretentions which may authoriſe the commencement of hoſtilities when it ſhall ſuit them. Great-Britain ſeems to have an eye upon us, and not a friendly one, we do not hope, even, for civilities from her; while France, on the contrary, has lately made ſome regulations very favourable for our commerce, and the king has appointed commiſſioners to examine and report to him ſuch further favourable regulations as may be moſt beneficial to us. The United Netherlands are friendly to us; their money lenders have unbounded confidence in the juſtice and uprightneſs of our views; and the miniſter here, Mr. Van Berkel, is very deſirous of doing every thing in his power to facilitate a moſt intimate and friendly connection between us."

SHIP NEWS.

Extract of a letter from New-Haven, dated May 2.

"Yeſterday arrived the brig hope, in 21 days from Cape-Francois, John Miller, maſter; who on the 26th ult. in lat 37 19, long. 71 39, W. ſpoke the ſhip Triumph, John Dalling, maſter, from Portſmouth, in England, bound to Baltimore, 9 weeks out, deſtitute of proviſions, with which he was ſupplied by captain Miller."

The 30th ult arrived at Boſton, captain Foſter Williams, in a ſhip, in 65 days from Liverpool, with the loſs of her head and main-top-maſt, in a gale of wind in the Iriſh channel.

THE wicked wits, as fancy hits, all ſatirize the fair,
In proſe and rhyme, and ſtrains ſublime, their foibles they declare.
The kind are bold, the chaſte are cold, theſe prudiſh, thoſe too free,
Ye curious men! come tell us then, what muſt a woman be?
But hard's the taſk, and vain to aſk, where optics are untrue,
The muſe ſhall bear, the indicted clear, and prove the crime on you;
The rake is cloy'd, when ſhe's enjoy'd, on whom his wiſh was plac'd,
The fool deny'd, affects the pride, and rails to be in taſte.
But not like theſe, the men of bliſs, their ſure criterion fix,
For Wiſdom cries, my ſon ariſe, and vindicate the ſex:
'Tis their's to prove the ſweets of love, which others never ſhare;
An evidence, that none have ſenſe, but who adore the fair.
With ev'ry art to win the heart, ye dear inſpirers try,
Each native charm with paſſion warm, and let love's lightning fly;
And hence, ye grave, your counſels ſave, which youth but ſet at naught,
For women ſtill will have their will, and ſo I think they ought. Z.

A Potter preſented himſelf to Schahroch, one of the ſons of the famous Tamerlane, who had amaſſed immenſe treaſures, and aſked him if he did not believe in that article of the Mahometan faith which teaches, that Muſſelmen are brothers? The Prince replied, that he was fully convinced of this doctrine. Since we are all brethren then, ſaid the Potter, why do you keep poſſeſſion of ſuch vaſt treaſures, while I remain in indigence? Give me at leaſt the portion which belongs to me as a brother. Schahroch ordered him a piece of money of ſmall value. What! added the Potter, is this all that you allow me of the great wealth you enjoy? Retire as faſt as poſſible, replied Schahroch, and do not mention to any one what I have given thee, for thy portion would be much leſs, if all our other brothers were to come and demand theirs.

To be SOLD or LET,

Upon Improving Leaſes, the following

Tracts of Patented Land,

—VIZ.—

ONE tract containing 375 acres and allowance of ſix per cent. for roads, ſituated on a branch of Cox's creek, in Millford townſhip, Bedford county, adjoining lands formerly James Wilſon's. On this tract there is an excellent mill ſeat. The land good in quality, and a large proportion of meadow may be made.

One tract containing 357 acres and allowance, ſituate on the heads of Cox's creek in Quemahone townſhip, Bedford county, adjoining lands of George Shaver, James Glentworth and John Penrod. This land is of an excellent quality and affords a large proportion of meadow ground.

One tract containing 351 acres and allowance, ſituate in the head of Spruce run (a branch of Cox's creek) adjoining the laſt mentioned tract, Joſeph Heibler's, Jacob Smucker's and George Shaver's land. This is ſaid to be a capital tract, and equal (if not ſuperior) in quality to any lands in Quemahone.

One tract containing 302 acres and allowance, ſituate on a branch of Wells's creek, adjoining the laſt mentioned tract, Jacob Smucker and others. This is likewiſe good land and will afford plenty of meadow ground.

N. B. The above lands are in the middle of a German ſettlement and likely to become very valuable from the extenſion of the navigation into the weſtern country by the Virginia company, from which navigation it will not be more than a day's journey.

Likewiſe, the four following tracts of land in the county of Northampton, ſituate on the waters of Lehevaxen.

One tract containing	307	acres and allowance.
One ditto	292	ditto	ditto.
One ditto	334	ditto	ditto.
One ditto	330	ditto	ditto.

N. B. Theſe four tracts lie within eight or ten miles of the river Delaware, adjoining Robert Lettis Hooper, eſquire, and lands formerly Robert Wilſon's: they are prime lands and muſt be valuable when the navigation of the Delaware becomes an object of legiſlative attention, which undoubtedly muſt be very ſoon.

Any perſon inclinable to purchaſe, or take upon an improving leaſe, either of the ſaid tracts of land, or would wiſh to exchange merchandiſe, public ſecurities or real property in or near this city, for all or any part of them, may know the terms by applying to the owner, in Sixth ſtreet, between Market and Cheſnut ſtreets.

Maryland, Elk Ridge, November 14.

FOR SALE,

Upwards of Four Thouſand Acres of

Rich and valuable Land,

By the ſubſcriber, at Public Vendue, ſituated as hereafter deſcribed:

SEVEN hundred acres of Land, ſituate in Ann Arundel county, on Elk Ridge, near the dwelling houſe of the ſubſcriber, being part of the tract of land called Caleb's Purchaſe and the Anvil; on which is erected a tenement; this land is well wooded and watered, has a conſiderable quantity of good meadow ground, 20 acres whereof are cleared; it is ſituate about 4 miles from Elk Ridge landing, and 12 from Baltimore Town. The ſale of this land will be on the 11th day of June next, at Mrs. Ball's tavern, on Elk Ridge.

On the 11th day of June next, will be ſold a Hobb's tavern, on the road leading from Baltimore-Town to Frederick Town, 850 acres of Land, on which there is a tenement, being part of a tract called Pretty Sally; ſituate in Frederick county, about two miles from Hobb's tavern. This land will be laid off in parcels not exceeding 200 acres.

On the 11th day of June next will be ſold at the ſubſcriber's Plantation, commonly called the Old Quarter on Lingonore, 850 acres of Land, being part of a tract called Cold Friday; ſituate on Lingonore, in Frederick county. This land is of good quality, has an excellent mill ſeat on it, and will be ſold in parcels not exceeding 200 acres——Alſo,

427	acres, called Brandywine Springs
230	The addition
72	The 2d addition
300	Part of Moab
50	Mount-Pleaſant
544	Reſurvey on Darby's Delight
62	Addition to ditto
43	Neceſſity
45	Omiſſion
31	Neglect
804	acres.

Theſe lands lay adjoining each other.

On the laſt aforeſaid tracts of land there are three very valuable plantations; on one of which, called the Old Quarter, there are upwards of 250 acres of cleared land, 60 acres of meadow now in graſs, and about 50 acres more may be eaſily made, of the firſt quality. This plantation is equal in value and richneſs to any in this ſtate; it is well calculated for planting and farming; has four dwelling houſes on it, two barns, two tobacco houſes, ſtables, corn houſes, and every other out-houſe neceſſary on a valuable eſtate, and is in excellent order for cropping. It has alſo ſeveral fine ſtreams of water running through it, and on one of which there is a valuable mill ſeat.

The other lands adjoining, are alſo of ſuperior quality, and will be laid off into convenient lots, from two to three hundred acres, as may ſuit purchaſers.

The above lands advertiſed for ſale on the 11th June, are ſituate about 12 miles from Frederick-Town, 40 from Baltimore-Town, on the great public road, very convenient to ſeveral merchant mills, and in every reſpect are equal to any lands in that part of the country.

The terms of ſale for the above property are, a ſmall part of the purchaſe money in hand, the particular portion will be made known on the day of ſale, and the reſidue in two annual payments, on intereſt; the purchaſer to give bond, with approved ſecurity, when poſſeſſion will be given. Plans of the lands may, in the mean time, be ſeen at Hobb's tavern, and at the Old Quarters. THOMAS DORSEY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, December 7.

THE plague ſtill continues here with little variation. Among the ſufferers is the preſident of the Ottoman chancery, Raſhid Effendi, who, in a very ſhort interval, has had the misfortune to loſe his wife, one of his children, and eight ſervants by this cruel diſorder.

O S T E N D, January 8.

An Imperial edict was iſſued on the 11th ult. repealing all edicts, ordinances, and regulations, concerning the corn trade in the provinces, and declaring that henceforward every one ſhall be at liberty to export or import all kinds of grain and meal, without being ſubjected to the inſpection of the police, or any other reſtriction or formality whatever, except the payment of the duties hitherto paid on the exportation or importation of thoſe articles.

L O N D O N, January 5.

An action of a moſt extraordinary kind is now in proſecution, and will probably be brought to trial in the courſe of the enſuing term. It is an action upon a breach of a promiſe of marriage, brought by a lieutenant of marines, againſt a foreign counteſs, poſſeſſed of fixteen thouſand pounds in the Britiſh funds, excluſive of other property to a very conſiderable amount. The lady has been held to bail in a very large ſum, and the facts ſet forth in the affidavits, read before the judge, who granted the order, were of a very glaring and extraordinary nature. By thoſe facts it appeared, that the lady was widow to a French count, who had bequeathed her an opulent fortune. That in the life time of her lord, ſhe became acquainted with the lieutenant, then on the continent, who frequently viſited at her houſe. That after the death of her lord, ſhe came into England, renewed her acquaintance with the lieutenant, promiſed to marry him, fixed the day, invited the bridal gueſts, and inſiſted that her lover ſhould ſell his commiſſion, that ſhe might place him in a ſituation conſiſtent with the dignity of her ſtation. That he accordingly ſold his commiſſion—but the lady inſtead of accelerating his happineſs, poſtponed the marriage from time to time, till not only his money was ſpent, but a conſiderable ſum with which ſhe ſupplied him, for ſupporting the expences of various excurſions they made into the outlets of London, and in different meetings within the metropolis. The lieutenant being thus reduced, the lady's paſſion cooled; and being preſſed for the performance of her promiſe, returned a peremptory denial.

An article dated Vienna, Dec. 11, ſays, that a chymiſt has found out a method of making a ſtone to reſemble the diamond, ſo exactly in all its qualities, that it cannot eaſily be diſcovered from the real ones; and in conſequence to imitate other precious ſtones; but that the emperor has obliged him to deſiſt from purſuing his courſe in order to prevent frauds in the ſale of diamonds, and alſo to prevent their decreaſing conſiderably in value

Extract of a letter from Gibraltar, Nov. 29.

'A Venetian ſhip of 18 guns, commanded by the Signior de la Carte, has juſt arrived here from Tunis, and reports, that the ſquadron belonging to the republic of Venice has done but little damage in the bombardment, but has moſt eſſentially put a ſtop to the piratical excurſions carried on from that place. No leſs than 17 veſſels, all corſairs, with 28 merchantmen of different nations, have been taken by the Venetian ſhips, and there is little remaining doubt of an ultimate ſucceſs attending the very ſpirited endeavours uſed by the Republic to chaſtiſe the inſolence, if not finally to do away the villainous depredations committed by all the little ſtates of Barbary on the Chriſtian veſſels.'

Jan. 25. Notwithſtanding the confidential contradiction, in a morning paper, reſpecting the act of bigamy in a certain monarch, it is a well known fact among the diplomatic body, and every perſon who pretends to elegant and real political information. He has publiſhed likewiſe, a declaration to this ſubjects, owning the ſecond marriage, but forbidding them to follow his example, as he had done it for ſeveral weighty reaſons, which it becomes them not to inveſtigate or comment upon, on pain of his diſpleaſure and reſentment. It is a moſt curious production, and we hope ſoon to be enabled to lay it before our readers.

Extract of a letter from Berlin, Jan 6.

'The king has ordered a total change in the regimentals of his infantry, and in February they are to appear with a new uniform; which is, a blue coat turned up with read, and white waiſtcoats and breeches.

'His majeſty has conſented to give up to the duke of Mecklenburg Schwerin, the baliwick of his Duchy, which the crown of Pruſſia has held ſome time on mortgage, and the regiment of Black Huſſars have evacuated their quarters in thoſe parts, and are gone to Cottbus and Storekow.'

His Pruſſian majeſty has laid an impoſt of ten thouſand rix-dollars annually on the Jeſuits, which is to be given to the univerſities of that kingdom, in the following proportions—Halle is to have 7000, Koningſberg, 2000, and Frankfort 1000

Feb. 18. On Saturday Samuel Hoare, eſquire, chairman of the committee for relieving and providing a ſettlement for the black poor, had an interview with Mr. Pitt, when he laid before him the proceedings of the committee in this humane undertaking, from their eſtabliſhment; at which the miniſter expreſſed his ſatisfaction. The two ſhips, having on board as many of thoſe people as could be collected, failed from Graveſend on Thurſday laſt, with a fair wind, for Sierra Leona, on the coaſt of Africa, where they are to be landed, in order to form the intended new ſettlement. We cannot diſmiſs this article, without repeating our warmeſt approbation of the conduct of government and the committee, jointly, in thus providing for theſe miſerable vagrants, whoſe appearance, in ſuch numbers about the ſtreets of this metropolis, for many months back, have done no credit to our national character, as a humane and generous people.

March 13. All the goals in the metropolis. particularly Newgate and the Marſhalſea, are crowded with naval officers, who, from their habits of life being incapable of turning their hands to any thing by which they might earn a penny, are driven to the moſt excruciating diſtreſs, and muſt of courſe feel an abhorrence to that country by whoſe laws they may remain in their wretched captivity for life, on account, very probably of debts contracted in their abſence on ſervice, for the ſupport of their wives and families.

Some politicians pretend that the Eaſt India company's hiring ſo numerous a body of German troops ſhews that they expect ſoon to be engaged in a war with ſome of the powers in that country —— Whether this be really the caſe, or that they think they hire theſe troops cheaper than they can raiſe an equal number of troops in this country, time only can diſcover. One thing, however, is certain, than the prince of Heſſe always ſold his ſoldiers to our government at a very high price, and as it has been computed that the troops ſent to India muſt be entirely removed every five years, this method will anually drain the kingdom of vaſt ſums into the ever-yawning gulph of Germany, from which not a ſhilling returns.

Some blind children, educated and ſupported by a Philanthropic Society at Paris, have lately been preſented to the king and queen at Verſailles, and exhibited in the royal preſence, great knowledge of ſeveral arts. Some of them diſcovered the greateſt facility in the various branches of printing and book-binding, &c. others gave the moſt evident proofs of the ſucceſs of their applications to geography, arithmetic and mathematical calculations. Their majeſties expreſſed the higheſt ſatisfaction at their efforts, and ſpoke in very high terms of commendation of Mr. Hawy, who, by exemplary diligence and induſtry, has reſtored ſo many members to ſociety—there remains not a doubt but his deſerts, in the end, will be fully recompenced.

March 15. Men, (ſays a correſpondent) call themſelves of the ſame religion for quietneſs ſake—but if the matter were well examined, you will ſcarce find three of the ſame religion in all points.—Religion is like the faſhion—— one man wears his doublet ſlaſhed, another laced, another plain; but every man has a doublet, ſo every man has his religion—but we differ about the trimming.

Mr. Havein, receiver general of the French finances for the province of Tours, (is in next rank and as lucrative as Paris) has abſconded, after declaring himſelf a bankrupt; this has occaſioned the greateſt aſtoniſhment to the public in general: his deficiencies are ſaid to be 4,000,000 livres, owing to his enterprizes in the public funds. The king's aunts, to whom he was treaſurer, will be conſiderable ſufferers, and Mr. Choat, another receiver, will loſe 360 000 livres. The chamber of accounts have ſeized upon all he has left behind, and advertiſed him to be apprehended as a runaway bankrupt.

To the PRINTER of the MORNING CHRONICLE.

S I R,

MR. Glover's abilities in his profeſſion were univerſally acknowledged, and the following inſtance of ſucceſs in a ſtate of apparent death, at a time when ſo important a ſubject was not attended to either by the faculty or the public, ought to immortalize his name. Mr. Glover being in company with Dr. Sleigh, Mr. Sullivan and others, the converſation turned on the moſt effectual relief to drowned or hanged perſons in conſequence of a criminal being to be executed the next morning: Mr. Sullivan expatiated much on the utility of experiments on the dead, for the benefit of the living, and thus prevailed on Mr. Glover to promiſe to attempt every thing poſſible for his recovery. The body ſhewed no ſigns after the firſt four minutes, and having hung twenty-nine minutes, he was cut down, and carried to an adjacent field; where Mr. Glover employed various judicious means for ſeveral hours, which at length reſtored the culprit to life, and on the ſecond day from his execution, his patient regained ſufficient ſtrength and ſpirits to walk eight miles up the country to elude the ſearch of the officers of juſtice; he afterwards retired to the county of Clare, and continued in health for ſeveral years, and the fact was well known to the faculty, as well as many reſpectable perſons.

B O S T O N, May 3.

We learn from undoubted authority, that moſt of the leaders in the rebellion, who fled into Canada, have returned to Vermont, and that on Wedneſday laſt, about forty of thoſe characters had a meeting at Shaſtbury—That the ſheriff of the county of Bennington, with judge Robinſon, the ſelectmen of Bennington, Shaftſbury, and ſome other gentlemen, made a viſit to the rebel body, and ordered them to diſperſe, which they obeyed, after appointing a meeting to be held at Breadport, near Lake Champlain, on the firſt of May inſt. where Shays was to meet them from Canada.

The following letter was written by Eli Parſons, and brought by the perſon therein mentioned, to Keene, where it fell into the hands of a gentleman of this ſtate, who, being aſſured by Mr. Moore, that it was written by Parſons, opened it, and ſent it to one of the members of the general court. The hand writing beſides, is known by ſeveral gentlemen now in town, to be Parſons's; ſo that there is no doubt but the letter actually came from him, although his ſignature was not affixed to it.

St. John's, 25th March, 1787.

S I R S,

THIS is forwarded by Mr. Moore of Keene, in which you may aſſure yourſelf that we are not inactive in this province—we have many friends who wiſh us ſucceſs; but our preſent ſituation renders us in many inſtances very unhappy—we are deſtitute of caſh, or any other property, except our cloths, to ſubſiſt upon however, our landlord is very kind, in hopes that our friends will ſend us ſome relief, which I as earneſtly wiſh for as he can—If any of you could give aſſiſtance, and wait upon us for remittance until we are able to make amends, I ſhall receive it as a particular favour. It is not long we wiſh to tarry in this province, for as ſoon as the ſpring opens, we wiſh immediately to beat the buſh, and * * * * * (I dare not mention it) I am gentlemen, your humble ſervant, —— ——

To Meſſrs. Pat. Shays, Elijah Barnes,
Abner Perkins.

A caution to ſervants not to place kettles of hot water on the floor or hearth, where they have ſinks or linters for that purpoſe. Laſt Saturday afternoon, a melancholy accident happened in the family of Mr. William White of this town—the maid had juſt lifted a ſmall kettle of boiling water from off the fire, and inſtead of putting it in the place provided for that purpoſe, ſat it on the floor, when by accident, a very engaging and promiſing child of his, about four years old, fell againſt the ſame, and turned the whole contents over its body, which ſcalded it to ſuch a degree, that in a moſt affecting manner it died in 36 hours after.

This, we are informed, is the third accident of the kind which has happened in this place within a ſhort time paſt.

W O R C E S T E R, May 1.

On Tueſday laſt week, the ſupreme judicial court was opened in this town, agreeably to adjournment: this court is now holding; three perſons are indicted for treaſon, viz. Henry Gale, of Princeton; Silas Livermore, of Paxton, and Jacob Chamberlain, of Dudley; their trials are now in hearing.

A large number have applied, and are ſtill applying to the commiſſioners, who are authoriſed to pardon perſons of certain deſcriptions, concerned in the late rebellion.

By accounts from Rhode-Iſland, we learn, that that unfortunate ſtate is likely to be hampered with an adminiſtration, who, in all probability will add, if poſſible, to the confuſion and diſtreſs of that republick. The meaſures of their late adminiſtration have been pronounced infamous throughout America, as well as in Europe.

Sterling, April 5, 1787.

Yeſterday, between four and five o'clock, P. M. a fire was diſcovered in a barn belonging to captain Timothy Brown. There was a ton or more of hay therein, and the wind being very high, the flames burſt through the roof immediately, and inſtantaneouſly communicated to the captain's houſe, a ſtore of Engliſh and Weſt-India goods, and two other barns; at the ſame inſtant caught in another place, among a quantity of boards, ſhingles and other lumber, which was collected for building, and threatened a general conflagration of all the buildings in that part of the ſtreet; but happily, by the very active exertions of the inhabitants, every building was ſaved, except the firſt, which was conſumed. The ladies, who collected on the firſt alarm, exerted themſelves exceedingly, by drawing and carrying water to thoſe on the buildings; they really deſerve praiſe. The fire was ſo rapid that but few hands could be informed ſeaſonably. The fire was conveyed from a blackſmith's ſhop, which ſtood near the barn—— A caution for people who live in places where the houſes are thick, not to allow of ſmith's ſhops being placed among them, unleſs their chimnies are made with two funnels or draughts, the firſt leading from the fire about eight feet in height, then turning an arch over the top, make another paſſage for the ſparks, duſt, &c. right down by the ſide of the firſt, either over the fire or to the left of the forge, which would ſecure the ſhop and other adjoining buildings, which are much expoſed in dry weather.

N E W - Y O R K, May 4.

Tueſday laſt being St. Tammany's Day, (the Tutelar St. of America) the St. Tammany Society of this city held their anniverſary meeting at the Wigwam at Hall's.

At eight o'clock, P. M. the Society ſat down to an elegant ſupper, provided by Mr. Hall, after which the following toaſts were drank, viz.

1ſt The Day, all who honor it. 2d The land of Liberty. 3d Congreſs and their Allies. 4th The State of New-York and all who wiſh its proſperity. 5th His Excellency the truly great and virtuous George Waſhington, Eſquire. 6th Lewis XVI. King of France, his amiable Queen and Royal Family. 7th Perpetual unanimity and proſperity to the ſons of St. Tammany, throughout the world. 8th The noble Patriots who fell in the cauſe of American Liberty. 9th May the war hatchet be buried, and the pipe of peace be ſmoaked, till time ſhall be no more. 10th May the induſtry of the beaver, the frugality of the ant, the conſtancy of the dove, be the perpetual characteriſticks of the ſons of St. Tammany. 11th The daughters of St. Tammany and their paupouces. 12th May the American chain never be tarniſhed by the ruſt of diſcord. 13th May honor, virtue and true ſenſe of liberty, and a deteſtation of ſlavery, be characteriſticks of Americans, and all their adopted brethern.

The evening being ſpent with that cordiality, good humor and love, that always prevails when ſons of St. Tammany meet, after drinking the above toaſts, and ſinging ſome excellent ſongs in honor of their Tutelar Saint, and ſmoaking the pipe of peace, every man departed to his own wigwam and hunting ground——

In hopes the enſuing year to ſpend,
In peace and love with every friend.

A correſpondent obſerves, that the eſtabliſhing the St. Tammany Society, does honor to the promoters, and makes not the leaſt doubt but it will be the moſt reſpectable ſociety in the city, in the courſe of a little time.

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held on Tueſday evening laſt, the following gentlemen were elected officers of that important inſtitution for the enſuing year, viz.

John Broome, eſquire, Preſident.
Paſchal N. Smith } Vice Preſidents
William Conſtable }
Joſhua Sands, Treaſurer,
William Laight, Secretary.

Philadelphia, May 11.

An antient woman reſiding near the New-market in this city, whoſe name is not at preſent recollected, was treated exceedingly ill on Saturday laſt, by ſome perſons of the vicinity. Upon a ſuppoſition ſhe was a witch, ſhe was cut in the forehead, according to antient and immemorial cuſtom, by thoſe perſons. This old body long ſince laboured under ſuſpicions of ſorcery, and was viewed as the peſt and night-mare of ſociety in thoſe parts of the town where ſhe has hitherto lived; ſhe was commonly called, at Spring-Garden, Korbmacher, by the Germans: and on that ſcore, on the preſent and other occaſions, unfortunately became the victim of vengeance of ſome individuals, who afforded her the moſt pointed abuſe which ſo miſlead a paſſion and reſentment, could poſſibly impoſe and inflict.

As ſhe has now appealed to the laws of her country for protection and countenance, apprehending her life in danger, it muſt be the wiſh of every liberal character, that the abſurd and abominable notions of witchcraft and ſorcery, will no more predominate in an empire like ours, that has emancipated itſelf from the ſuperſtitions of authority, and in fact, every other ſpecies of ſuperſtition conſiſting in the bondage of the body or the mind! The doctrine of witches, ghoſts and fairies, continues our correſpondent, has obtained too general a prevalence in the old world, inſomuch, in many remarkable inſtances (in mournful ſtory) that it has been productive of many miſchievous effects and conſequences imaginable. Let us not adopt theſe doctrines in the free and civilized parts of independent America, which has no good reaſon to boaſt like the famous ſoil of Endor!

The diſpoſition of Providence is very little felt or underſtood in the days of ignorance, or in young-ſettled and infant countries; and it is generally obſerved, never doth wickedneſs and cruelty ſo much abound as in dark and gloomy times. For from indulging proper notions that the "Great Governor of the world" conducts himſelf by general laws, which are inflexible becauſe the beſt poſſible, every trivial event is attributed to the Almighty and commanding power. Yet, to ſuppoſe any man or woman ſhould have abſolute dominion to annoy and injure their fellow-creatures, and make them miſerable "at will and pleaſure," is undoubtedly impious to an extreme, and at once removing God himſelf from his exalted ſtation in the celeſtial ſyſtem and arrangement of affairs!

A belief ſo horrid is a picture of the greateſt weakneſs in human nature, and can only ſource from a mind coiled up in its ſcanty orbit, replete with dormant prejudices, and thick with the groſſeſt original ignorance.

It would deprive us of our hopes and fears, of our pleaſures and ſerious anxieties, and leave nothing to contemplate upon, nor any poſitive end to purſue—it would deſtroy our free agency and activity, the offſprings of the Divinity itſelf, and reduce man to a paſſive, inanimate, and ſtupid Being—— in fine, it would controul the grand courſe of Providence, and abuſe the ſacred and ſublime decrees of Heaven, which have directed man (if he chooſes) like Mary of old, to take the better part, and be both ſociable and happy!

Abſurd opinions, thoſe of ſo diſmal complexion ſhould be ſurrendered as the eyes of ſuperſtition have opened and owned its errors, from inſtruction, experience, and civilization.—But prejudices, worm-eaten prejudices, as our old companions, are hard to be parted with.

On Sunday morning laſt, a perſon paſſing over a vacant lot, on the upper end of Walnut ſtreet, obſerved on the graſs ſome freſh dug clay; ſeeing no breach on the ground near, curioſity led him to examine the place, and found a ſod had been taken up, and carefully replaced again, this he dug up, and on digging a few inches below the ſurface, found a ſmall box, containing the corpſe of an infant.—On examination, they found marks of violence on the hinder parts of the babe's head. We have not learnt whether the perpetrators of this horrid deed are yet diſcovered.

A correſpondent obſerves, that as the time approaches for opening the buſineſs of the fœderal convention, it is natural that every lover of his country ſhould experience ſome anxiety for the fate of an expedient ſo neceſſary, yet ſo precarious. Upon the event of this great council, indeed, depends every thing that can be eſſential to the dignity and ſtability of the national character. The Veteran who has toiled in the field, the Stateſman who has laboured in the cabinet, and every man who participates in the bleſſings of American Independence, muſt feel that all the glory of the paſt, and all the fortune of the future, are involved in this momentous undertaking. The imperfections and debility of the league, framed during a ſtruggle for liberty and political exiſtence, were obſcured and concealed by the ardor of enterprize, and the proximity of danger. The feelings of the people were then more obligatory than the poſitive injunction of law; and men, in the purſuit of an important object, required no conſideration to diſcharge their duty, but their intereſts and their paſſions. Though the fœderal compact, therefore, thus fortified, might be adequate to the acquiſition, yet from the nature and diſpoſition of human affairs, it becomes inadequate to the preſervation of ſovereign power. Unleſs ſome rule is preſcribed, ſome motive introduced, which in a ſtate of tranquility will enforce a regard to the general intereſt, equal to the voluntary enthuſiaſm ariſing from common ſufferings and apprehenſions, we have only exchanged tyranny for anarchy——we have idly preferred the proſpect to the poſſeſſion of a jewel, and have waſted our ſtrength and riches in accompliſhing the revolution, merely to furniſh another memorable tale for the hiſtorian's pen.

JOHN PHILIP SAVARY, a French Baker, in the city of Philadelphia, informs the Public, that Nicholas Elexis Grevin, a ſurgeon by trade (as he calls himſelf) came to him about 18 months ago in great diſtreſs, and requeſted the ſubſcriber to allow him to live with him in his houſe, and that for the conſideration of meat, lodging and cloathing, he would keep his books, make out his bills, and do the out door buſineſs, ſuch as collecting money from the cuſtomers, &c. That the ſubſcriber, unfortunately not knowing how to read and write, accepted of his propoſals, and allowed him to come into his houſe on the above terms: that the ſaid Grevin, taking advantage of his ſuperior knowledge and abilities (although entirely ignorant of the buſineſs of a baker) impoſed himſelf upon the cuſtomers and the Public, ſometimes for the ſubſcriber's partner, and ſometimes for his maſter, and at the ſame time never kept any regular accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the houſe; ſo that the ſubſcriber, on theſe conſiderations, has been obliged to part with him: he therefore gives this public Notice to all his cuſtomers, not to pay in future any money which they may owe to the ſubſcriber for bread or flour delivered by him or the ſaid Grevin, as he will not coſider it as payment, but will compel ſuch cuſtomers to make payment to himſelf again.

THE ROSE.

WOULD Jove appoint ſome flower to reign
In matchleſs beauty on the plain,
The Roſe (mankind would all agree)
The Roſe the queen of flowers ſhou'd be:
The pride of plants, the grace of bowers,
The bluſh of meads, the eye of flowers;
Its beauties charm the Gods above,
Its fragrance is the breath of love;
Its foliage wantons in the air
Luxuriant, like the flowing hair;
It ſhines in blooming ſplendor gay,
While zephyrs on its boſom play.

ANECDOTE.

DURING the late inrode of the rebels under Perez Hamlin, at Stockbridge, in Maſſachuſetts, in February, 1787, after plundering and captivating the inhabitants, they marched on to Great Barrington, and, among other houſes and places there, they went to the goal, and directed Mrs. Bemont, the goal-keeper's wife (her huſband having gone to Sheffield to join colonel Aſhley, to oppoſe them) to open the priſon doors, that they might examine the rooms for arms and plunder; upon which ſhe took the keys, and began to hum over the tune and hymn called Funeral Thoughts; coming to the third line of the firſt verſe, ſhe unlocked the door, and turning round to them, ſung out diſtinctly, pronouncing the words,

"Ye living men come view the ground
"Where you muſt ſhortly lie."

The rebels the ſame day went to Sheffield, attacked col. Aſhley, were entirely defeated, and divers of them were taken priſoners, and in the evening were put into the ſame goal, where they had an opportunity to reflect on Mrs. Bemont's morning application.

MR. DONNELLY, under the patronage of thoſe Ladies and Gentlemen who have hitherto encouraged his little Seminary, and relying on the continuation of that encouragement, which it ſhall ever be his moſt aſſiduous endeavour to deſerve, propoſes immediately to open an Afternoon School, for the inſtruction of Young Ladies in reading, writing, Engliſh grammar, arithmetic, and merchants accounts, epiſtolary compoſition, geography, and chronology, with the outlines of ancient and modern hiſtory.

As far as it may fall within the ſphere of his duty, a particular attention will be paid to that decorum and propriety of behaviour in his pupils, which is at once the greateſt intereſt and ornament of the ſex.

The price of tuition will be 30*ſ.* a quarter, without entrance; and 20 ſcholars only will be admitted.

In order to create, and promote a ſpirit of laudable emulation among his pupils, Mr. Donnelly will hold a General Examination of his School ſome time in the month of July next, when premiums will be conferred on thoſe who ſhall be found to excel in the reſpective branches in which they ſhall have been inſtructed. On this occaſion he hopes to be honoured with the company of thoſe Ladies and Gentlemen who have intruſted him with the care of their children, that they may judge for themſelves, whether or not this Seminary be worthy of the patronage with which they have been pleaſed to honour it. May 7. 3tawtf

KIOW, Feb. 10.

THE journey of the empreſs by White Ruſſia and the Ukraine has proved as favourable as could be wiſhed. Including the circuits we were under the neceſſity of making, we have travelled about two thouſand miles; and at each ſtation we found five hundred and fifty cavalry, making in the whole fifty thouſand. The Tartars, and even the Mahometans, are emulous to ſupply us with every accommodation in their power; they have often furniſhed us with horſes, and even with their own carriages. The Popes, the Coſſacks, and the Greeks, where we have lodged, have ſumptuouſly entertained us. Reckoning from yeſterday we ſhall remain here two months and a half, and then to continue our route for Cherſon, &c.

PARIS, March 20.

The 22d of laſt month a fire broke out in the village of Bougey, in the bailiwick of Vezoul, which conſumed 22 houſes, and all the furniture and other effects they contained.

According to the ſame letters there is living in the above town, a man aged 122 years, who enjoys perfect health, and frequently goes to the neighbouring foreſt in ſearch of fire-wood.

LONDON, March 22.

Extract of a letter from Dublin, March 17.

'Yeſterday his grace the lord lieutenant went in ſtate to the houſe of peers, and gave the royal aſſent to eleven bills.

'The right honorable Mr. Speaker's ſpeech to his grace the lord lieutenant, in the houſe of peers yeſterday evening, on preſenting the bills.

'May it pleaſe your grace,

'The wiſdom of the principle which the commons have eſtabliſhed and perſevered in, under your grace's auſpices, of preventing the further accumulation of national debt, is now powerfully felt thro'-out this kingdom, in its many beneficial conſequences; public credit has gradually riſen to a height unknown for many years: agriculture has brought in new ſupplies of wealth: and the merchants and manufacturers are each encouraged to extend their efforts, by the ſecurity it has given them, that no new taxes will obſtruct the progreſs of their works, or impede the ſucceſs of their ſpeculations.

'Such is the happy ſituation of this kingdom from the ſupport which your grace's conſtant and zealous care has given to the operation of that principle: and this ſituation is peculiarly fortunate at the preſent period, when his majeſty's gracious attention to the intereſt of his people has opened new objects of manufacture, and new channels of commerce to their induſtry.

'Happy, however, as our ſituation is, we know that all its bleſſings will be a vain expectation if a ſpirit of outrage and oppoſition to law ſhall prevent internal induſtry, and depreciate the national character; we have, therefore, applied ourſelves to form ſuch laws as muſt, under the firmneſs and juſtice of your grace's government, effectually and ſpeedily ſuppreſs that lawleſs ſpirit.

'His majeſty's faithful commons do now cheerfully continue all the preſent taxes, and having conſtantly experienced how well founded their confidence has been in your grace's prudent adminiſtration of the public treaſure, they do with the greater ſatisfaction to declare, that they give and grant them in the moſt decided expectation, that by your grace's frugal and juſt management of the public revenue, they will be rendered ſufficient to anſwer the public expence without the further accumulation of debt or increaſe of taxes.'

'On Thurſday a riotous mob of more than one hundred aſſembled at Palmerſtown, in Fingal, 12 miles from Dublin, in order to prevent ſome perſons from executing a decree which had been obtained at Kilmainham for tythes due to the reverend Mr. Kenny, of Clonemethan; and, as ſoon as the conſtables had taken Patrick Weſton, againſt whom the decree was iſſued, the ſaid mob attacked the party, cut, hacked, and dreadfully abuſed them; broke their arms in pieces; deſtroyed a coach which was brought to carry way the priſoner; and after leaving four bailiffs for dead, they ſwore they ſwore that no tythes ſhould be levied there. The buſineſs is only a continuation of riots for ſome time in that part of the country—no tythes have been obtained by Mr. Kenny from thoſe lands for ſome years.'

Regulations and Obſervations at the laſt Meeting of Notables

Monſieur, preſiding in the general aſſembly, without demanding any deciſion on the great queſtion, the territorial impoſt, ſpoke briefly in praiſe of their zeal——in the name of the king thanked them for their conſultations and advice— of which the reſult ſhould occupy his attention, and his council.

Monſieur then adverted to other memoirs, to the growth of tobacco and flax, of the latter, the culture in Hainault, Flanders and Franche Comte, the growth is encouraged by premiums. Alſace has an excluſive preference as to tobacco, by an excluſive ſale to the fermiers generaux.

All ſubordinate ſalt offices are to be aboliſhed—each province is to have ſingle depot—from whence at a ſettled rate, through the Syndics, &c. this neceſſary is to iſſue. A reform that will economiſe a revenue of 10,491,000 livres.

In Paris, the loſs of the revenue, three millions is to be made up, on import duties.

Twelve millions are to be ſaved by ſuppreſſing every cuſtom houſe, and all cuſtom houſe officers, but at the frontiers.

This increaſe of revenue is to afford a ſuppreſſion of duties, on imports from the colonies—on exported manufactures—on oils and ſoap—and on all iron work—with encouragements to the fiſheries on their coaſts.

The notables, ſtruck with ſome expreſſions in M de Calonne's ſpeech, requeſted a printed copy—with permiſſion to print with it, their opinions.

Mirabeau has publiſhed a tract againſt Agiotage, to which a reply is preparing by Neckar.

March 26. The report current at the Hague laſt week, gives an alarming account of the ſituation of North Holland——in many of the villages, and at Horn and Enkhuyſen in particular, the two parties of patriots and ſtadholderians had riſen to ſuch a height that vi & armies was wielded on both ſides with great fury and devaſtation. Much blood had been ſpilt in conſequence, and the magiſtrates had been obliged to abandon their reſpective towns.—The ſtates of Holland have ordered general Ryſell to ſend a detachment of cavalry and infantry, to eſtabliſh peace and harmony amongſt theſe terrible Mynheers. The patriots it ſeems have been themſelves the cauſe of this confuſion, in endeavouring to promote what they call a juſt repreſentation of the people in the government; which being evidently calculated to weaken the prince of Orange's power, rouſed the attention of his friends, who not to be behind hand, aſſailed them from all quarters, and obliged theſe renowned patriots to act, not as they begun, on the offenſive, but on the defenſive!

Other letters by the laſt Dutch mail mention a quarrel to have happened at Haerlem, between the friends of the ſtadtholder and ſome of his opponents, which proceeding to blows, terminated in a general riot. The ſame was with great difficulty ſuppreſſed by the magiſtrates, but not until four or five houſes had been pulled down, and totally domoliſhed. Theſe advices getting on Saturday into general circulation, made ſome trifling impreſſion on the funds.

Six naval officers, at the deſire of Monſ. Soderini, the Venetian ambaſſador, lately received permiſſion of the admiralty board, to ſerve on board the fleet of the Venetian Republic. One of them is to receive the compliment of an admiral's flag in the Venetian ſervice, and the others are promiſed very liberal rewards for their ſervices.

At a meeting of the Academy at Berlin on the twenty fifth of January laſt, the count de Hertſberg declared, that he meant to inſpect the publication of the works of the late king, which ſhould be done without alteration, and publiſhed in the following order, in 12 vols. 8vo. and to be printed from Baſkerville's types.

1ſt, Memoirs of the Times, being the political & military hiſtory of all that paſſed ſince 1740, to the peace at Dreſden.
2d, Hiſtory of the Seven Years War.
3d, Hiſtory of all that paſſed ſince the Peace of Hertſbourg to that of Teſchen.
4th, Eſſay on the Forms of Government, and on the Duties of Sovereigns.
5th, A Search into the Syſtem of Nature.
6th, Remarks on the Syſtem of Nature.
7th, On Innocence, Sin and the Spirit.
8th, Three Dialogues of the Dead.
9th, Three Volumes of Poems.
10th, Preliminary Diſcourſe to the Henriade.
11th, Conſiderations on the preſent Political State of Europe.
12th, Above 100 letters of his majeſty to the moſt celebrated writers——Voltaire, Fontenelle, Rollin, Le Marquis d'Agens, d'Alembert, Le Preſident Henault, Algarotti, Concordet, &c. with their anſwers.

'The plague, ſo terrible in is viſitation here, is wholly at an end; and every appearance of infection or peſtilence entirely diſappeared——you will therefore receive bills of health with the next ſhips, which are preparing to ſail.——Trade is, however, very far from being briſk here, as the mart fails much.'

Extract of a letter from Stockholm. Feb. 27.

'The weather has been the moſt mild this winter in this part of Europe that has ever been remembered. In Norway the roads have not been filled with ſnow, as uſual, and the lakes but thinly frozen over, in compariſon of the two laſt ſeaſons—A fleet, conſiſting of four ſhips of war, is fitting out here to go on a cruiſe to the ſouthward, to exerciſe the officers and men, who grow ruſty for want of ſome ſuch undertaking.'

March 29. Tueſday afternoon an expreſs came to government from Plymouth with account of the arrival there of a ſloop of war from Halifax in America, from whence ſhe has brought diſpatches: as alſo from lord Dorcheſter, governor of Canada, on whoſe account ſhe was ſent home, he having diſpatched a courier over land to Halifax, as the ſpeedieſt conveyance to England. No intelligence as yet tranſpires from Quebec; but the winter in Nova Scotia has been one of the moſt mild ever remembered, the harbour not having been once ſhut up.

The rumour ran at Paris on the 23d inſtant, when our laſt intelligence came away, that the duc de Fitz-James, and Monſ. de Maupeon, chancellor de France, were both dead. But our correſpondent had not aſcertained it.

By letters from Czarnowitz, dated February 12, 1787, we learn, that the ſultan having unexpectedly diſmiſſed the hoſpodar, or governor of Moldavia, Alexander Mauro Cordatto, the greateſt conſternation ſpread through the town of Jaſſy, and that though he had the liberty of his palace, on being informed that the ſultan had diſpatched the pacha of Chockzim to ſend his head and 110 purſes of gold to Conſtantinople, he found it neceſſary to eſcape in the night of the 7th, accompanied only by his chamberlain and a few faithful ſervants. The news of his flight being known the next day, ſoldiers were ſent in ſearch of him, but in vain. It is preſumed that this unfortunate prince has retired with his money and jewels, which he took care to take with him to Mohilow, where he remains perfectly ſecure againſt his enemies.

Extract of a letter from Paris, March 22.

"The following articles are certainly paſſed at the laſt general aſſembly of the notables at Verſailles:

"1ſt. All cuſtom-houſe and viſiting offices, which were generally in principal towns and at turnpikes, are removed to frontier towns, ſo that merchandiſes and travellers will paſs through all his majeſty's dominions unviſited and unmoleſted.

"2d. The ſalt exciſe ſhall be no longer with the farmer's general. Every province will have an office for the purpoſe, and the reſpective collectors will diſtribute the uſual portion at 3d per pound (as it is thought) to the individuals.

"3d. All tobacco plantations are to be deſtroyed, and encouraging premiums given to the huſbandmen for cultivation of hemp."

March 30. The Dutch mail which arrived on Tueſday at the poſt-office, fell into the ſea, when putting on board in Holland, and was with great difficulty recovered; the letters were all thoroughly ſoaked.

A letter, dated Conſtantinople, the 18th of February, and received by Tueſday's Dutch mail, hath the following paſſage:—"A moſt dreadful fire broke out here a few days ago, and raged ſix hours, during which, 200 houſes have been reduced to aſhes. Notwithſtanding the ſpeedy aſſiſtance adminiſtered on the occaſion, under the encouraging eye of the ſovereign, who never quitted the neighbourhood till the flames were got under, the conflagration could not be ſtopped in its deſtructive progreſs. It is not poſſible even to average the loſs ſuſtained through the means of this calamity, as all the dwellings conſumed conſiſted moſtly of ſhops and warehouſes."

The ſame letter adds, that no news had been received from Cairo, and it was publicly rumoured, that the captain pacha did not dare to return home, leſt he ſhould pay with his head a miſcarriage which may perhaps more juſtly be imputed to misfortune, than to any want of courage or good conduct.

Letters from Venice ſay, that a new armament is now fitting out there, to be principally employed againſt the Algerines,

Accounts from Turin mention the abolition of ſeveral eccleſiaſtical foundations, by order of his Sardinian majeſty.

A letter from Leghorn has the following article: I am happy to inform you, that the largeſt of the galleys belonging to the dey of Algiers, which has a long time infeſted theſe ſeas, and was ſo daring as to cruize cloſe to the mouth of our harbour, is at length taken after a ſevere conteſt, by a Malteſe man of war, and is brought in here; the ſlaughter on both ſides is great, and the hulls of both veſſels are much ſhattered; the captain of the Malteſe and moſt of his officers are wounded; the Algerine captain and the two next officers in command were killed or wounded; there is on board the galley a valuable cargo, of which they had plundered ſhips of different nations, and a conſiderable ſum of Portugal money.

A board of admiralty is ſummoned by order of the preſident to meet this day at the admiralty office, Whitehall, on buſineſs of importance, in conſequence of a meſſage from the miniſter, relative to ſome buſineſs more immediately in that department. The particulars are not known, but are ſaid to be relating to ſomething that paſſed lately between a frigate, one of commodore Coſby's ſquadron now in the Mediterranean, and a French man of war, of which complaint has been made to government.

The lord lieutenant of Ireland has ſent over a requiſition for two frigates, to be ſtationed on the Weſt coaſt of that kingdom, for the better prevention of ſmuggling.

AMERICA.

NEW-YORK, May 7.

Extract from an Inquiry into the Effects of public Puniſhments upon Criminals, and upon Society. Read in the Society for promoting political Inquiries, convened at the Houſe of his Excellency Benjamin Franklin, Eſq. in Philadelphia, March 9, 1787.

"I have ſaid nothing upon the manner of inflicting death as a puniſhment for crimes, becauſe I conſider it as an improper puniſhment for any crime. Even murder itſelf is propagated by the puniſhment of death for murder. Of this we have a remarkable proof in Italy. The duke of Tuſcany, after the publicaton of the marquis of Beccaria's treatiſe upon this ſubject, aboliſhed death as a puniſhment for murder. A gentleman who reſided five years at Piſa, informed me, that only five murders had been perpetrated in his dominions in twenty years. The ſame gentleman added, that after his reſidence in Tuſcany, he ſpent three months in Rome, where death is ſtill the puniſhment of murder, and where executions, according to Dr. Moore, are conducted with peculiar circumſtances of public parade. During this ſhort period, there were ſixty murders committed in the precincts of that city.—It is remarkable, the manners, principles, and religion of the inhabitants of Tuſcany and Rome, are exactly the ſame. The abolition of death alone, as a puniſhment for murder, produced this difference in the moral character of the two nations.

"I ſuſpect the attachment to death, as a puniſhment for murder, in minds otherwiſe enlightened, upon the ſubject of capital puniſhments, ariſes from a falſe interpretation of a paſſage contained in the Old Teſtament, and that is, "he that ſheds the blood of man, by man ſhall his blood be ſhed." This has been ſuppoſed to imply, that blood could only be expiated by blood. But I am diſpoſed to believe, with a late commentator (The reverend Mr. William Turner, in the ſecond volume of the Memoirs of the Literary and Philoſophical Society of Mancheſter) upon this text of ſcripture, that it is rather a prediction than a law. The language of it is ſimply, that ſuch will be the depravity and folly of man, that murder in every age, ſhould beget murder, are, in my opinion, as unchriſtian as thoſe which juſtify or tolerate revenge; for the obligations of chriſtianity upon individuals, to promote repentance, to forgive injuries, and to diſcharge the duties of univerſal benevolence, are equally binding upon ſtates.

"The power over human life is the ſole prerogative of Him who gave it. Human laws, therefore, riſe in rebellion againſt this prerogative, when they transfer it to human hands.

"If ſociety can be ſecured from violence, by confining the murderer, ſo as to prevent a repetition of his crime, the end of extirpation will be anſwered. In confinement he may be reformed——and if this ſhould prove impracticable, he may be reſtrained for a term of years, that will probably be coeval with his life."

By the United States in Congreſs aſſembled, Feb. 21ſt, 1787.

Whereas there is proviſion in the articles of confederation and perpetual union, for making alterations therein, by the aſſent of a Congreſs of the United States, and of the legiſlatures of the ſeveral ſtates; and whereas experience hath evinced, that there are defects in the preſent confederation, as a mean to remedy which, ſeveral of the ſtates, and particularly the ſtate of New York, by expreſs inſtructions to their delegates in Congreſs, have ſuggeſted a convention for the purpoſes expreſſed in the following reſolution; and ſuch convention appearing to be the moſt probable mean of eſtabliſhing in theſe ſtates a firm national government.

Reſolved, That in the opinion of Congreſs, it is expedient, that on the ſecond Monday in May next, a convention of delegates, who ſhall have been appointed by the ſeveral ſtates, be held at Philadelphia, for the ſole and expreſs purpoſe of reviſing the articles of confederation, and reporting to Congreſs and the ſeveral legiſlatures, ſuch alterations and proviſions therein, as ſhall, when agreed to in Congreſs, and confirmed by the ſtates, render the federal conſtitution adequate to the exigencies of government, and the preſervation of the union.

April 21ſt, 1787.

ON a report of the board of treaſury, to whom it was referred to report a plan for ſelling, for public ſecurities, the townſhips ſurveyed in the weſtern territory,

Reſolved, That after the ſecretary at war ſhall have drawn for the proportionate quantity of the lands already ſurveyed, which were aſſigned to the late army, agreeably to the order of the 20th May, 1785, the remainder ſhall be advertiſed for ſale in one of the newſpapers at leaſt of each of the ſtates, and at the expiration of five months from this day, the ſale of the land ſhall commence in the place where Congreſs ſhall ſit, and continue from day to day until the ſame ſhall be diſpoſed of; provided that none of the lands ſhall be ſold at a leſs price than one dollar per acre, and that the ſale ſhall be made agreeably to the mode pointed out by the ordinance aforeſaid.

Reſolved, that one-third of the purchaſe money, ſhall be immediately paid in any of the public ſecurities of the United ſtates, to the treaſurer of the ſaid ſtates, and that the remaining two-thirds ſhall be paid in like manner in three months after the date of the ſale, on which payment (a certificate thereof being previouſly furniſhed by the treaſurer to the board of treaſury) titles to the lands ſhall be given to the purchaſers by the board of treaſury, agreeably to the terms preſcribed by the ſaid ordinance; provided that if the ſecond payment ſhall not be made in three months, as aforeſaid, the firſt payment ſhall be forfeited, and the land ſhall be again expoſed to ſale.

Ordered, that the board of treaſury take the neceſſary meaſures for carrying the aforeſaid reſolutions into effect, and alſo for exhibiting the ſurveys of the lands.

NORFOLK, April 25.

On Thurſday laſt a main of cocks was fought at Smithfield, (for five pounds a battle, and one hundred the main) by the gentlemen of the county of the Iſle of Wight, againſt thoſe of Charles-city and Glouceſter counties; when the Iſle of Wight birds proved themſelves ſo highly pre-eminent as to beat their antagoniſts fifteen battles out of nineteen, notwithſtanding the beſt feeders and heelers in the different parts of the ſtate had been employed by the gentlemen of Charles-city and Glouceſter counties—It is ſaid another main will ſhortly be fought for a very conſiderable ſum, when much ſport may be expected.

PETERSBURG, May 3.

By captain Lander, of the ſchooner Eſſex, arrived in James river, in 20 days from Aux-Cayes, we learn, that a fleet of ſeven ſail of the line, and 10,000 troops are arrived at Cape Francois from France. Soon after captain Lander left Aux Cayes, he met with a Spaniſh frigate from Havanna, the captain of which ſent to him a very preſſing invitation to go on board the frigate, which he accordingly did——and found, from the captain's enquiries, he was apprehenſive war was declared between France and Spain——and he aſſured captain Lander that his buſineſs with him was to obtain ſome information reſpecting it. Captain Lander informed him that he had heard nothing of it; but the captain of the frigate believed that a war had already commenced, ſaid to be in conſequence of a connection having taken place between France and England.

The dead bodies of ſeveral white perſons who were lately diſcovered floating down the river, have been taken up and buried at City-Point; but we are not acquainted with the names of thoſe whoſe misfortune it has been to fall victims to ſo ſad a cataſtrophe.

There has been already exported from South-Carolina, of the crop of 1786, 36,874 barrels of rice, 2,158 caſks of indigo and 2,571 hogſheads of tobacco.

Philadelphia, May 12.

On Monday laſt the 2d battalion of Philadelphia County Militia paraded on the Common, near Germantown, with the county troop of light dragoons. The battalion was commanded by col. Holgate, the troops by captain Hopkins; and it is with pleaſure we aſſure the public that the battalion and troop went through the different manœuvres and firing with the greateſt ſkill and ability. Such an example ought to influence the other counties to qualify themſelves for the ſervice of their country, which in the preſent ſtate of things, may demand the aſſiſtance of every friend to good government.

SHIP NEWS.

The Siſters, Gibs, from Briſtol; Friendſhip, M'Lean, from Montego Bay; Agnes, Allen, from Jamaica; Induſtry, Horan, from Nevis; Lamb, Brooks, from Currituck; Good Intent, Chadwick, from Beaufort; Polly, Childs, from Newport, and Betſey, Wales, from Boſton, are arrived at Baltimore.

The Mary, Robertſon, from Jamaica; Jane, Young, from Montego Bay; Eſopus, Wynkoop; William, Cogſnall, and Happy, Denning, from St. Croix; Induſtry, Chapman, from St. Thomas, and Patty, ——, from St. Peters, are arrived at New-York.

Saturday laſt the Liberty, Frears, for Liverpool, and May, Montgomery, for St. Euſtatia, ſailed from Wilmington.

Captain William Gibbs, of the brig Siſters, in his paſſage from Briſtol to Baltimore, in lat. 34 46, north, and long. 49 30, weſt, ſpoke the brig Hibernia, capt. James Parks, from Charleſton, bound to Briſtol, who had unfortunately, in lat. 43 30, north, and long. 49 6, weſt, fallen in with a large field of ice, which he was ſix days in getting clear of; during which time he run 130 miles, having his boat in the tackles, expecting every minute ſhe would go down, as her cutwater was very much ſhaken, and a vaſt deal of her ſheathing cut off. When captain Gibbs ſpoke her, ſhe was ſo exceeding leaky, that it was with the greateſt difficulty that captain Parks and company could keep her above water, and was then making the beſt of their way for Antigua, or the firſt iſland they could make in the Weſt-Indies.

THE NUPTIALS. A CANTATA.

RECITATIVE.

HENCE care and ſorrow—hence all jarring ſtrife,
Let mirth abound, now Suſan is my wife;
And may henceforward each conſenting pair
Such ſatisfaction in their nuptials ſhare.

AIR.

May the joyous and gay,
Who are preſent this day,
Be ſtrangers to ſorrowful thinking;
Our meaning's to be
Good-humour'd and free,
Whilſt prudence directs us in drinking

Ye bucks then declare,
Who to conquer the fair,
New ſchemes are continually trying,
How ſoon they are cloy'd,
When the object's enjoy'd,
And condemn the weak maid for complying.

Then ſwains learn to love,
If you'd happineſs prove,
Not the blooming young maiden for beauty;
But her who with care,
Has avoided the ſnare,
Nor yields till commanded by duty.

Come fill up the glaſs,
May each ſwain find his laſs,
Like Suſan conſenting and tender;
May the fair learn to ſtay,
Till the prieſt ſays obey,
And ſtern Virtue applauds the ſurrender.

ANECDOTE.

WHEN Sir Robert Walpole began to manifeſt ſymptoms of a declining power, the firſt of his old friends who began to ſhrink from him were the Biſhops. Having however a queſtion to carry in the Houſe of Lords, to the ſucceſs of which the epiſcopal votes were eſſentially requiſite, he applied to his firm and faithful friend the Archbiſhop of York, to aſſiſt him in procuring the ſupport of the Right Rev. Bench. The prelate ſhook his head when the miniſter urged the neceſſity of perſonal application.—My good friend, ſaid he, there is but one way to proceed with my Right Rev. Brethren; and you may be aſſured I will put it in practice. Trouble yourſelf no further about the matter, and be as ſecure of their votes as if they had already given them. The miniſter went away perfectly ſatisfied, and the archbiſhop took immediately to his bed, ordered the knocker to be tied up, the ſtreet to be covered with ſtraw, and deſired his confidential phyſician to convey, by ſhrugs of his ſhoulders and ſhakes of his head, that he was in very great danger. The ſickneſs of the archbiſhop was ſoon known—the Archiepiſcopal mitre danced before the Right Rev. Bench—the biſhops returned to miniſterial duty—Sir Robert gained his end—and the ſick archbiſhop, on being informed of his ſucceſs, immediately quitted his ſick bed, in order to dine with the miniſter, and laugh in their ſleeves at the trick they had put upon lawn ſleeves.

Thomas Forreſt.

MR. DONNELLY, under the patronage of thoſe Ladies and Gentlemen who have hitherto encouraged his little Seminary, and relying on the continuation of that encouragement, which it ſhall ever be his moſt aſſiduous endeavour to deſerve, propoſes immediately to open an Afternoon School, for the inſtruction of Young Ladies in reading, writing, Engliſh grammar, arithmetic, and merchants accounts, epiſtolary compoſition, geography, and chronology, with the outlines of ancient and modern hiſtory.

As far as it may fall within the ſphere of his duty, a particular attention will be paid to that decorum and propriety of behaviour in his pupils, which is at once the greateſt intereſt and ornament of the ſex.

The price of tuition will be 30ſ. a quarter, without entrance; and 20 ſcholars only will be admitted.

In order to create, and promote a ſpirit of laudable emulation among his pupils, Mr. Donnelly will hold a General Examination of his School ſome time in the month of July next, when premiums will be conferred on thoſe who ſhall be found to excel in the reſpective branches in which they ſhall have been inſtructed. On this occaſion he hopes to be honoured with h ccompany of thoſe Ladies and Gentlemen who have intruſted him with the care of their children, that they may judge for themſelves, whether or not this Seminary be worthy of the patronage with which they have been pleaſed to honour it. May 7. 3tawtf

Reading Howell,

LAND SURVEYOR and DRAFTSMAN,

INFORMS gentlemen intereſted in real eſtates, that he receives commands, for the purpoſe of executing the abovementioned buſineſs of his profeſſion. Applications will be attended to, at his houſe, corner of Arch and Sixth ſtreets. Gentlemen intereſted in Land, may there examine extenſive plans of ſurvey, of many parts of this ſtate; as a ſtudious application, and conſiderable practice for the ſtate, as well as individuals, has enabled him to make a large collection; from which he is compiling, and has in forwardneſs a MAP of PENNSYLVANIA, to be laid down, principally, from actual ſurvey, which, from the materials now in his poſſeſſion, and thoſe in proſpect, flatters himſelf, that his Map will be rendered much more uſeful than any yet publiſhed. Philadelphia, May 8, 1787.

City-Tavern and Coffee-Houſe.

Edward Moyſton

TAKES this method of returning his ſincere thanks to thoſe ladies and gentlemen who have been pleaſed to honor his houſe with their cuſtom, and hopes for a continuance of their favours, and the public in general. Having provided himſelf with cooks of experience, both in the French and Engliſh taſte, he flatters himſelf that he will be able to give ſatisfaction to thoſe who pleaſe to uſe his houſe, and careful attendance ſhall never be wanting to render their accommodation agreeable. Ladies and gentlemen travellers can be commodiouſly lodged at the tavern, as he hath fitted up chambers in a more convenient manner than they have heretofore been, for the reception of his gueſts. Horſes and carriages ſhall be taken the greateſt care of, and every exertion of his uſed to render their accommodation complete. He has laid in a freſh ſupply of liquors of the very firſt quality.

As many of the ſubſcriber's cuſtomers have often mentioned their deſire of taking proper ſtabling to accommodate their horſes and coach-houſes to keep their carriages: this is therefore to inform them, that he hath taken the Livery-Stables at the back of the City-Tavern, where his cuſtomers may aſſure themſelves of the greateſt care being taken of both their horſes and carriages, at as moderate a rate as at any other livery ſtables in the city.

C. Febiger & Co. Auctioneers.

Maryland, Elk Ridge, November 14.

FOR SALE,

Upwards of Four Thouſand Acres of

Rich and valuable Land,

By the ſubſcriber, at Public Vendue, ſituated as hereafter deſcribed:

SEVEN hundred acres of Land, ſituate in Ann Arundel county, on Elk Ridge, near the dwelling houſe of the ſubſcriber, being part of the tract of land called Caleb's Purchaſe and the Anvil; on which is erected a tenement: this land is well wooded and watered, has a conſiderable quantity of good meadow ground, 20 acres whereof are cleared; it is ſituate about 4 miles from Elk Ridge landing, and 12 from Baltimore Town. The ſale of this land will be on the 11th day of June next, at Mrs. Ball's tavern, on Elk Ridge.

On the 11th day of June next, will be ſold a Hobb's tavern, on the road leading from Baltimore-Town to Frederick Town, 850 acres of Land, on which there is a tenement, being part of a tract called Pretty Sally, ſituate in Frederick county, about two miles from Hobb's tavern. This land will be laid off in parcels not exceeding 200 acres.

On the 11th day of June next will be ſold at the ſubſcriber's Plantation, commonly called the Old Quarter on Lingonore, 850 acres of Land, being part of a tract called Cold Friday; ſituate on Lingonore, in Frederick county. This land is of good quality, has an excellent mill ſeat on it, and will be ſold in parcels not exceeding 200 acres——Alſo,

427	acres, called Brandywine Springs	Theſe lands lay adjoining each other.
230	The addition
72	The 2d addition
300	Part of Moab
50	Mount-Pleaſant
544	Reſurvey on Darby's Delight
62	Addition to ditto
43	Neceſſity
45	Omiſſion
31	Neglect
804	acres.

On the laſt aforeſaid tracts of land there are three very valuable plantations; on one of which, called the Old Quarter, there are upwards of 250 acres of cleared land, 60 acres of meadow now in graſs, and about 50 acres more may be eaſily made, of the firſt quality. This plantation is equal in value and richneſs to any in this ſtate; it is well calculated for planting and farming; has four dwelling houſes on it, two barns, two tobacco houſes, ſtables, corn houſes, and every other out-houſe neceſſary on a valuable eſtate, and is in excellent order for cropping. It has alſo ſeveral fine ſtreams of water running through it, and on one of which there is a valuable mill ſeat.

The other lands adjoining, are alſo of ſuperior quality, and will be laid off into convenient lots, from two to three hundred acres, as may ſuit purchaſers.

The above lands advertiſed for ſale on the 11th June, are ſituate about 12 miles from Frederick-Town, 40 from Baltimore-Town, on the great public road, very convenient to ſeveral merchant mills, and in every reſpect are equal to any lands in that part of the country.

The terms of ſale for the above property are, a ſmall part of the purchaſe money in hand, the particular portion will be made known on the day of ſale, and the reſidue in two annual payments, on intereſt; the purchaſer to give bond, with approved ſecurity; when poſſeſſion will be given. Plans of the lands may, in the mean time, be ſeen at Hobb's tavern, and at the Old Quarters. THOMAS DORSEY.

To be Sold at the Coffee-Houſe,

By Public Sale, on Saturday the 19th Inſtant, May, at 12 o'Clock,

PITTSBURGH.

TO BE SOLD,

A NEW two ſtory HOUSE, juſt finiſhed, pleaſantly ſituate in Water ſtreet, fronting upon the Monongahela river, nearly oppoſite the Old ferry, and only two lots diſtant from Ferry ſtreet.

The plan of the houſe is very commodious, has 4 rooms on a floor, and is one of the beſt and neateſt finiſhed houſes in that town, built upon a lot of 60 feet by 140: there is an excellent cellar under the whole houſe 9 feet in the clear; the firſt and ſecond ſtories are about 10 feet each in the clear, with an exceeding good garret, the inſide partitions (except thoſe on each ſide the ſtaircaſe) are wainſcot pannel work, well finiſhed and painted; and as high as the ſur-baſe the houſe is pannelled around, except a part of the lower ſtory, which is now occupied as a ſtore.

At the back of the houſe is a Kitchen two ſtories high and a garret; it is 20 feet by 18 and a fire-place in each ſtory. The whole is rented at 70l. per ann. and has two families living therein, but the purchaſer may have poſſeſſion of the lower part immediately, and of the whole premiſes in 6 months.

If a good ſituation for trade and buſineſs are objects of any advantage, there is not one in Pittſburgh which enjoys a preference to this: it commands a firſt choice of all the cuſtom from Waſhington and Fayette counties; and as a demonſtration of the worth of the ſituation, the lots contiguous to it are rated at treble the value of any others of the ſame ſize the in town. Pittſburgh is at preſent a very conſiderable and flouriſhing place; and as little doubt remains but it will become a county town ſhortly, that circumſtance alone will greatly inhance the value of every foot of property in the place. Nature has alſo fitted it with ſo many excellent and peculiar advantages, that it is next to impoſſible but that it will in time grow much both in ſize and opulence. Particulars may be known by applying to MATTHEW M'CONNELL, at the Exchange-Office, in Second, near Cheſnut ſtreet, Philadelphia. 2awtf April 20

To the PUBLIC.

WIGWAM BATHS, on the banks of Schuylkill, will be opened on Monday next, where ladies and gentlemen may be furniſhed with a cold plunging, ſhower or warm bath, at a few minutes notice. And as the ſubſcriber has not ſpared pains or expence in preparing every comfort which can be deſirable for either medical or pleaſure bathing, he hopes it will be in his power to give ſatiſfaction to thoſe who may pleaſe to favour him with their company. This being the firſt attempt which has been made in North America to eſtabliſh a public warm bath; the medical benefits of which are ſo great, that the Philadelphia College of Phyſicians are about to erect baths in ſome part of this city for the ſervice of the ſick.

The Wigwam water is a ſtrong chalybeate and may be drank with ſingular advantages in a variety of diſeaſes.

Every refreſhment the beſt inns of Pennſylvania can afford, may be had on the moſt reaſonable terms; and invalids and others will be provided with warm clothes and comfortable beds after their bathing.

Such perſons as may wiſh to reſide conſtantly near the Spring and Bath, will be boarded in the genteeleſt manner at a very moderate rate, by the Public's

Moſt obedient humble ſervant,

ADDRESS TO FRIENDSHIP.

THE giddy blaze of life is o'er,
Tumultuous pleaſure charms no more,
Calm reaſon hath prevail'd.
Friendſhip alone can ſoothe the breaſt,
Where deep reflections are impreſt,
And ſorrows have aſſail'd.

Retir'd—with thee I wiſh to dwell,
Corroding cares thou doſt diſpel,
And baneful fears deſtroy;
No ſting thy pleaſures leave behind,
Virtue, with innocence combin'd,
Alone thy peace enjoy!

Come then, thou gentle, gen'rous pow'r,
Attend me to my lateſt hour,
Grateful ſhall be my heart!
To thee my peaceful ſoul ſhall bend;
Oh! change the Lover to the Friend,
And temper'd joys impart!

ANECDOTE.

MOLIERE, the great comic poet of France, was eſteemed an excellent actor; he died in performing the part of the Hypochondriac in a comedy of his own writing, called Le Malade Imaginaire (which is a part of a comedy in England called the Mother-in-Law) on the 17th of February, 1679, in his grand climacterick. The archbiſhop of Paris would not allow his body to be buried in conſecrated ground, which the King being informed of, ſent for the Archbiſhop, and expoſtulated with him; but he was an obſtinate churchman, and would not willingly condeſcend to his Majeſty's perſuaſions. The King, finding him unwilling to comply, aſked him how many feet deep the holy ground reached? the Biſhop replied, about eight; Well, returned the King, I find there is no getting the better of your ſcruples, therefore let his grave be dug twelve feet deep, that is four below your conſecrated ground, and there let them bury him. The Archbiſhop was obliged to comply, for Lewis the XIVth would be obeyed.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

NOTABLES.

VERSAILLES.

ON Monday another general aſſembly was held, at which the different committees made their reports. Proper meaſures are agreed on for carrying into execution all the propoſals of the king, except that of the territorial impoſt.

This——as it affects the two great bodies of the nobility and clergy—meets with great oppoſition—but this oppoſition muſt give way to the pleaſure of his majeſty, and the wiſhes of the country.

The propoſed alteration in the exciſe of ſalt will affect the eſtate of the duke d'Orleans to the amount of 12,000l. a year. While this matter was agitated, he begged the king's permiſſion to retire from the committee, which was granted.

LONDON.

Feb. 6. It is ſaid, that Stephen Sayer, eſquire, formerly ſheriff of this metropolis, and late miniſter from the United States of America to the court of Spain, has formed an extenſive commercial connection in ſeveral of the ſea ports in France.

It may be a truth, that the Chineſe are no longer inclined to find a market for the watches and clocks of the nations ſituate on the Atlantic, and yet Britain be no loſer by the circumſtance. The American accounts alledge, that if the demand for the above articles be leſſened, that for furs is increaſed. In trading in this laſt commodity, we are likely to be very conſiderable gainers: indeed we may reaſonably look for more ſucceſs than any of our neighbours. Canada is the very repoſitory of fine furs; and what it cannot afford, may be had in bartering with the Indians who viſit our North American ſettlements. In regard to China, therefore the Britiſh trade, ſo happily and amazingly extended ſince the preſent miniſters were veſted with the management of public affairs, is likely to ſuſtain no ſort of damage. By the wiſdom of miniſtry the Indies have been ſaved, and the credit of the India Company is eſtabliſhed. The people, therefore, truſt that they will watch over the other valuable concerns of the empire.

On Saturday laſt a wealthy ſugar baker, of Francis ſtreet, was put upon his trial for an aſſault, at an adjournment of the quarter ſeſſions at the Tholſel, and as the judge was giving charge to the jury, the traverſer contrived to make his eſcape out of court, and when the jury brought in their verdict guilty, the priſoner was not to be found.

It is probable, that if earl Bathurſt's plan for a commutation of tithes, ſhould be adopted by the Engliſh parliament, the ſame will be eſtabliſhed in Ireland. At all events, a proviſion for the clergy muſt be ſecured; for it is a lamentable circumſtance to ſee ſuch numbers of the eſtabliſhed clergy left, at the preſent time, ſtruggling with difficulties—without a poſſible remedy except what may be deviſed by the wiſdom and humanity of Parliament.

Mr. Grenville ſeldom gets up to ſpeak in the houſe of commons, unleſs in a violent paſſion, ſo that if he poſſeſſes any talents as an orator, they are loſt in the whirlwind of an ungovernable temper. His brother, the marquis, acts in a quite contrary direction. He ſtudies his ſpeech ſo well, that he ſometimes takes one, and very frequently two minutes between each word. Nor does he uſe any art in his deliberate mode. It is the real effect of nature. When in council on the ſtate of the nation over a bottle at the treaſury, the one appears as the cogg wheel of a tuck-mill, and the other as tiflers of a jackhe.

A miniſterial paper informs us, that by authentic letters juſt received from Paris, we learn, that a conſiderable reduction in the French army is now about to take place. It would have been a much more pleaſing intelligence to this country, if they could have informed us that there was 'a conſiderable reduction in the French navy about to take place.' But unluckily the firſt is in conſequence of the great increaſe of the laſt. They are providing for the vaſt augmentation of expence, the extenſion of their marine, by a proportionate dim inution of their army expenditures; they are encouraging Spain to do the ſame: they are preparing, at enormous profuſion of labour and treaſure, for a new reception for their fleet, in what was once juſtly termed the Engliſh Channel: and the Engliſh miniſtry are, by a natural conſequence of the infamous treaty of commerce, preparing a nurſery of ſeamen to man their fleet. Such is modern policy: ſuch the conduct of the ſon of the great Chatham.

The lords of the treaſury have ſent orders to the bank for 58,000l. of the ſilver coinage of the late reign to be immediately iſſued into circulation, for the purpoſe of ready changes in the preſent ſcarcity of good ſilver.

We have good authority for ſaying, that the commercial treaty concluded between France and the Empreſs of Ruſſia, gives a bounty of five per cent. on the part of France to Ruſſian articles carried in in Ruſſian ſhips coming from the Baltic: and it alſo makes France ſubſcribe to the neutral code. By this means France gains her great point of keeping Ruſſia out of the Mediterranean, and ſhe makes thoſe ſacrifices ſimply for political purpoſes.

There is a rumour, and which we merely give as ſuch, that the arrangement for Spain is changed—that after all lord Walſingham does not go, but that Mr. Eden, after being rewarded by miniſters with an Engliſh peerage, on account of the treaty, is to be ambaſſador to Madrid.

Feb. 16. The particular ſums of money ſold out of the funds laſt week by Mr. Haſtings and ſir Elijah Impey are not publicly aſcertained, but they were ſo conſiderable as to cauſe a temporary fall of one and a quarter per cent. on the news becoming general in the alley.

Among the memorabilia of church yard literature, the following has been ſent us as deſervedly curious; it is copied from a tomb-ſtone in the church yard at Cheſter.—"Here lies Miſs Mary Richards, the only ſurviving daughter of Mr. John Richards."

A very extraordinary circumſtance happened at Covent Garden theatre on Saturday night, or rather Sunday morning. About one o'clock Mr. Brandon, who reſides at the theatre, heard a violent noiſe in the houſe, and ſome perſon calling very loud, as from the interior part of the theatre; he procured a light, and went to the place where he heard the noiſe, and found a gentleman in the pit, much bruiſed and his finger broken. On enquiring how he came there, the only account he could give was, that he remembered coming to the play in the evening, and hanging by his finger on ſome place, but had no recollection where or when. His hat and cane were found in the upper boxes. There is no doubt but that he fell aſleep during the performance, and was locked into the houſe, and walking in his ſleep, fell out of the boxes into the pit. As it is probable, from the ſituation of his hat and cane, that he fell from the upper boxes, it was highly fortunate that he did not receive much more injury.

The aſſembly of Notables in France, has, we are informed, already produced an avowal on the part of the French king, which does honor to his humanity, evincing, that even decided deſpotiſm can entertain regrets for its inability to redreſs wrongs which deſpotiſm had cauſed: he therefore pathetically laments that circumſtances, or reaſons of ſtate, prevented for the preſent his aboliſhing ſuch a grievance as was reproachable on the Gabille, being a moſt iniquitous duty upon ſalt, that neceſſary of life.

Extract of a letter from Paris, March 1.

'L'Abbe de Bologne, one of the lent preachers to his Majeſty at the Royal Chapel at Verſailles, paid a very high and elegant compliment to the king for having convened the national aſſembly.——'How great, ſire, how auguſt is majeſty, (ſays he addreſſing the monarch) when it receives an additional luſtre from the virtues and lights of ſubjects ſo nearly approaching the throne! You have proved, great king, that the welfare of a nation is the only ſecret in politics. What would your noble and generous heart do with politics? It is the reſource of feeble and common minds; true greatneſs wants no veil, and all the art conſiſts in ſhewing it as it is. A good and upright prince, like you, ſire, has won the cauſe the moment he ſtands confeſſed before his ſubjects, and diſplays the ineffable qualities of his virtuous mind. The time is come that your faithful people, filled with an irreſiſtable and everlaſting attachment to the houſe of Bourbon, and entirely devoted to your royal family, will form but one heart in that of the beneficent Lewis the XVIth."

March 22. In addition to the maſs of abſurdity and nonſenſe reſpecting the French being hereditary enemies, natural enemies, and ſo forth to the Engliſh, we are now told that the ocean is the natural element of Engliſhmen! Now if ſuch an idea be admitted, John Bull cannot long expect to be reſpected either at home or abroad, more eſpecially abroad; as it is probable that a foreigner will no ſooner ſee a porpoiſe or a ſea-calf in the ſea, than he will exclaim there goes an Engliſhman.

Extract of a letter from Algiers, Feb. 20.

'The peſtilential diſeaſe with which this city, and kingdom in general had been ſo long troubled, has at length ceaſed: yet it has been found that the ſmall pox has been nearly as fatal as the plague: upwards of 35,000 perſons, chiefly adults, have died of that diſtemper in twelve months. The dey has ſent a dragoman to the Sublime Porte, to make the uſual preſents to the divan, and to renew the treaties with the ſovereign of the Ottomans.'

Extract of a letter from Paris, March 16.

'The Notables are expected to ſit no longer than till the beginning of next month at the fartheſt—Several argumentative expreſſions have been uſed in the council at Verſailles, diametrically oppoſite to the conſtitution of this country, as they are in oppoſition to the pleaſure of the ſovereign. The plans of national reform will, however, by no means be ſtayed, as the royal commands forego every oppoſition here.'

March 22. Frederick the Great is daily viſited in Cockſpur ſtreet, by perſons of the firſt diſtinction. On Friday laſt his royal highneſs the prince of Wales was there, and ſeveral of the firſt perſonages in this kingdom, who expreſſed the very higheſt ſatisfaction at the noble preſence of the brave old king. What makes this royal ſpectacle moſt truly valuable, is the very accurate and ſtriking reſemblance of the great original (abſolutely taken from his own ſculpture) and in the very cloaths which he laſt wore, as is ſufficiently proved to the ſatisfaction of every ſpectator.

March 29. While Mary, queen of Scots was a priſoner in Fotheringhay Caſtle, juſt before her execution, ſhe made a preſent of her watch to the governor of the caſtle, as a token of gratitude for his civil treatment of her. That governor is ſaid to have been an anceſtor of the preſent earl Fitz William. The watch has been in the poſſeſſion of ſo many different perſons ſince, that it was ſcarcely known who had it; till, on a late occaſion, lady Godolphin reſtored it to the family that originally poſſeſſed it, for the ſtood ſponcer to lord Fitz William's ſon and heir, and made the infant a preſent of the watch.

March 30.

Extract of a letter from Bruſſels, March 23.

'The diſturbances which were expected to have taken place by the ſudden removal of the Apoſtolic envoy (of whom many more things deragatory to the honor and intereſt of this court have come to light) did not occur, which is to be attributed to the wiſe meaſures which this government have adopted for preventing diſorders. The affair at Louvain is at an end. The ringleaders go to Vienna to recant their late aſſertion, and make due ſubmiſſion.'

A freſh inſtance of love and madneſs happened at Enfield on Saturday laſt. A young couple of that place had been aſked in church, ere the ceremony could be performed, the woman changed her mind, and refuſed to complete the holy ceremony. Oft did the lover intreat, but in vain. On Saturday laſt he went and formally demanded marriage, which was as formally refuſed. The unfortunate man, in a fit of frenzy, took a piſtol from his pocket, and exclaiming, 'If you will not have me, the devil ſhall,' diſcharged the contents into his head, and died on the ſpot.

AMERICA.

KINGSTON, (Jamaica) March 24.

Barbadoes, (ſays a writer in one of our lateſt Engliſh prints) ſeems to be devoted to all the calamity of the elements, and this is the more ſenſibly felt, as it has been long on the decline of trade, owing to ſuch diſaſters, and the ſterility of the ſoil, which is ſo exhauſted, that the ſupply of its manure for the ſugar growth has been formed from the ſea rock. The preſent Creole families of that iſland (continues he) are chiefly the offspring of the 10,000 Roman Catholics of both ſexes baniſhed by Cromwell, when he over-ran Ireland. The abbe Reynal remarks, that this ſmall iſland was once the moſt populous ſpot on the face of the earth, containing, within its ſmall circumference, 10,000 whites, beſides treble the number of negroes.

RICHMOND, May 3.

On Monday laſt the honorable court of appeals met in this city, but adjourned without proceeding to buſineſs as the judges of the high court of chancery could not attend. This was occaſioned by the appointment of two of the judges to attend the convention to be held in Philadelphia, during the preſent month, for the purpoſe of reviſing the federal conſtitution; the ſame circumſtance muſt alſo prevent the meeting of the high court of chancery on the 5th day of the preſent month.

BALTIMORE, May 8.

"The proceedings of the phyſical faculty at Paris, claim our attention," ſays Monſ. Polier de St. Germaine,—'on the firſt day of every month, a committee, compoſed of twelve doctors, two cenſors, two ſecretaries, and four commiſſaries, form, a board of inquiry and council. The firſt object of their diſcuſſion is the reigning diſeaſes, and to aſcertain the beſt remedies to oppoſe or remove their ravages on the human frame. The medicines of any efficacy already diſcovered, are deſcanted on with penetration, and the poſſibility of preparing new applications, more powerful to eradicate a variety of diſorders, occupies their time and contemplation. All eſſays of this nature are carefully analized, and every effort is made to bring medicine to the utmoſt purity and virtue. Cricular letters are addreſſed to the faculty through the whole kingdom, and to the profeſſors of all the celebrated univerſities in Europe, requeſting a communication of their diſcoveries and experiments, as well as their reflections in the progreſs of their operations, in order to render an eſtabliſhment for the uſe of man more productive of general advantage. Theſe invitations are well underſtood, and reciprocal communications are the conſequence. Thus the learned and induſtrious, in every ſeat of ſcience in Europe, have eſtabliſhed an intercourſe to which war and ambition can give no interruption.

Chemiſts in all countries ſeem to ſhake friendly hands in the intellectual world, regardleſs of any tempeſt which may diſturb the political hemiſphere.

The obſtetric art has alſo received many improvements, and probably there is no branch of phyſical ſcience ſo materially beneficial to human nature. If we conſider the numberleſs afflictions which it has pleaſed God to connect with our generation and introduction into this world, and that all thoſe tortures and infirmities are borne by thoſe whom we call the weaker ſex, ſurely there is no exercise of our faculties more honorable and praiſe-worthy, than the diſpenſation of every aid to diminiſh their pains in labor, and facilitate the admiſſion of the ſpeechleſs ſtranger into this life of various ſcenes and changes."

NEW-YORK, May 11.

We hear from Boſton, that of the twelve Rebels now under ſentence of death, the ſupreme executive council have been pleaſed to order four of them, viz. Auſtin and Willcox, in Berkſhire, and Parmeter and M'Cullock, in Hampſhire, to be executed on the 24th inſtant. The other eight, is ſaid will be pardoned.

We hear from Northfield, Maſſachuſetts, that on Monday ſe'nnight, about eleven o'clock at night, a body of the inſurgents, to the number of about 250 aſſembled in arms on the weſt ſide of the river, s ſuppoſed to alarm the town: they fired ſeveral guns, and appeared with drums beating, &c. Soon after the alarm was given, the troops ſtationed there, together with a number of the valiant inhabitants, proceeded with military caution to make what diſcoveries they could. Some of the inſurgents having croſſed the river in boats, were diſcovered and known; among whom was M. Dickenſon, jun. who was tried for high treaſon, and acquitted, before the ſupreme judicial court lately held in that town.

BOSTON, May 4.

The legiſlature, on Monday laſt paſſed an act, repealing ſuch acts, or parts of acts, of this commonwealth, as may be repugnant to the treaty of peace between the United States and his Britannic majeſty, agreeably to the recommendation of Congreſs.

The general court having completed the buſineſs for which they were convened, were yeſterday adjourned to the Tueſday preceding the laſt Wedneſday of this month.

May 7. The commiſſioners appointed by the honorable general court to promiſe pardons, &c. to a certain deſcription of perſons, concerned in the late rebellion, have given notice, That ' ſeven hundred and ninety, whoſe names will be lodged in the ſecretary's office, have received a promiſe of indemnity, and the chief of them, without any reſervation whatever:'—That ' the commiſſioners in the proſecution of their buſineſs, have directed their enquiries to the occaſion of the inſurrection and rebellion which have taken place. The reſult of this enquiry has been a conviction, that among a variety of cauſes which have been co-operating to produce ſo much evil, public and private debts, and the latter eſpecially, have been the moſt operative;—That an undue uſe of articles of foreign growth and manufacture, has been the principal cauſe of this accumulation of debts:'—And that ' from what appeared of the diſpoſition of the people with whom they had buſineſs to tranſact, there is a flattering proſpect, if an uniform ſyſtem of government ſhould be purſued, if ſo many examples, and ſo many only, ſhould be made, as will be neceſſary to produce a conviction, that government muſt and will be ſupported; and if the mercy of government ſhould be extended to the qualified ſubjects of it, that in thoſe counties, which have been lately torn by diſſention, government will be more firmly eſtabliſhed, than it has been at any period ſince the revolution.'

Laſt Wedneſday the general aſſembly of Rhode-Iſland make choice of the following gentlemen as delegates to repreſent that ſtate in Congreſs—Hon. Peleg Arnold, eſq. hon. Jonathan J. Hazard, eſq hon. Daniel Manton, eſq. Hon. Sylveſter Gardner, eſquire.

On Saturday laſt the ſupreme judicial court at Worceſter, adjourned without day: having ſet there two weeks. On Wedneſday laſt Henry Gale of Princetown, and a captain Chamberlain of Dudley, were tried at that court for treaſon in the late rebellion.—Chamberlain was acquitted, but Gale, who was convicted, is now under ſentence of death.

On Friday laſt, at the ſame court, Silas Livermore was tried for the ſame crime, but was acquitted.

There were indictments againſt ſeveral other perſons for miſdemeanours; but their trials are continued until the next term.

SALEM, May 5.

The brig Betſey, captain Clifford Byrne, arrived in this port on Wedneſday laſt, in 47 days from Cadiz.

On the 11th of March captain Byrne was in company with the maſter of an Engliſh veſſel (captain Seagrove) in Cadiz bay, who left Algiers in January, and who informed him, that while he lay at Algiers, captains Stephens and Obrien (American gentlemen in captivity at that place) dined on board with him; that they lived at the houſe of a French merchant, and paid 2 dollars a month for their liberty; and that captain Stevens's crew were all in the king's houſehold, waiting men to his majeſty, who is exceeding fond of them.

Captain Seagrove further informed capt. Byrne, that he went to Mazagan (in the emperor of Morocco's dominions) to load with corn, but was ordered to quit that place within 12 hours, as it was a free port for the Americans only.

Philadelphia, May 14.

Yeſterday His Excellency General WASHINGTON, a member of the grand convention, arrived here.—He was met at ſome diſtance and eſcorted into the city by the troop of horſe, and ſaluted at his entrance by the artillery. The joy of the people on the coming of this great and good man was ſhewn by their acclamations and the ringing of bells.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Rhode-Iſland, to his Friend in this City, May 1, 1787.

" This ſtate is likely to be not only in a ſimilar, but if poſſible, a more deplorable ſituation than it was the year paſt. Where there have been any alterations among our rulers, thoſe alterations have been for the worſe. Our ſituation for this year will be but one remove from the ſtate of the d——d."

The Gazette de Sante, publiſhed in France by authority, under the ſanction of the college of phyſicians, has lately made public an infallible cure againſt all ſcrophulous diſorders commonly called the King's Evil, which has frequently baffled the moſt ſkilful of the medical tribe, It conſiſts of the following:

R. common aqua vitæ, or brandy, 20 oz. of fixed volatile alkali concrete and genſang root, otherwiſe called ſelworth of Balmody, of each one dram and an half. Let theſe infuſe in the liquor for the ſpace of 14 hours before you uſe it, and let it remain on the root, as it will get ſtrength the more it is in that ſituation.—The doſe is, faſting, before dinner and ſupper, at each time a table ſpoonful of the mixture.

The progreſſion of human felicity is now acknowledged, and it is evident that the acquiſitions to human knowledge have increaſed, and are continually augmenting. The mind has extended its powers, and the phyſical happineſs of man has expanded with his moral excellence. It cannot be controverted, that all our attainments have in ſome degree, multiplied in the two laſt centuries. The diſcoveries which have been, and are daily making inſpire hopes of approaching the ſummit of perfection; provided that the philoſopher will not relax his exertions. What arts have been invented in this period? What voyages and diſcoveries? What improvements in navigation, in trade, commerce, and legiſlation? The collected views of theſe new lights for the human intellect, inſpire the rational inference, that morality, and conſequently happineſs will obtain univerſal dominion through all the regions of the earth. A multitude of ineſtimable treaſures, unknown in former times, have opened on the world for its acceptance. In conſequence of civilization, the induſtry of man has penetrated the ſecrets of nature, and expoſed productions long concealed in her capacious womb. A thouſand momentous ſatisfactions, producing the moſt pleaſing and agreeable ſenſations, have been ſubmitted to our acceptance in the ingenuity of modern diſcoveries. Even our pleaſures have been infinitely diverſified. Wares, merchandize, and a thouſand commercial means and reſources have multiplied. New gratifications to our taſte and genius have been invented, and the road to ſcience has been facilitated and abridged, while the thorny walks of life have been ſtrewed with flowers. If even theſe bleſſings are not, like rays of the ſun; or the rain of heaven, diſtributed in equal proportions among the children of men, yet this very inequality forms a new bond of love to connect mankind to the indiſpenſible obligation of humanity, order and juſtice. A reciprocal dependance ariſes from this variety of our condition; for the opulent are ſupplied and ſupported by the labourer or the artiſt, while they interchangeably receive the value of their time from the treaſures of the rich.

Will commence the Sale of a large and general

Aſſortment of Merchandize.

THE Auctioneers return their moſt grateful thanks to thoſe who have been pleaſed to entruſt them with the ſale of their goods, and aſſure them, that every attention to their intereſt will be paid both in the ſales and payments. May 12

C. Febiger & Co. Auctioneers.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

PETER WIKOFF.

MR. DONNELLY, under the patronage of thoſe Ladies and Gentlemen who have hitherto encouraged his little Seminary, and relying on the continuation of that encouragement, which it ſhall ever be his moſt aſſiduous endeavour to deſerve, propoſes immediately to open an Afternoon School, for the inſtruction of Young Ladies in reading, writing, Engliſh grammar, arithmetic, and merchants accounts, epiſtolary compoſition, geography, and chronology, with the outlines of ancient and modern hiſtory.

As far as it may fall within the ſphere of his duty, a particular attention will be paid to that decorum and propriety of behaviour in his pupils, which is at once the greateſt intereſt and ornament of the ſex.

The price of tuition will be 30/ a quarter, without entrance; and 20 ſcholars only will be admitted.

In order to create, and promote a ſpirit of laudable emulation among his pupils, Mr. Donnelly will hold a General Examination of his School ſome time in the month of July next, when premiums will be conferred on thoſe who ſhall be found to excel in the reſpective branches in which they ſhall have been inſtructed. On this occaſion he hopes to be honored with the company of thoſe Ladies and Gentlemen who have intruſted him with the care of their children, that they may judge for themſelves, whether or not this Seminary be worthy of the patronage with which they have been pleaſed to honour it. May 7. 3tawtf

JOHN PHILIP SAVARY, a French Baker, in the city of Philadelphia, informs the Public, that Nicholas Elexis Grevin, a ſurgeon by trade (as he calls himſelf) came to him about 18 months ago in great diſtreſs, and requeſted the ſubſcriber to allow him to live with him in his houſe, and that for the conſideration of meat, lodging and cloathing, he would keep his books, make out his bills, and do the out door buſineſs, ſuch as collecting money from the cuſtomers, &c. That the ſubſcriber, unfortunately not knowing how to read and write, accepted of his propoſals, and allowed him to come into his houſe on the above terms: that the ſaid Grevin taking advantage of his ſuperior knowledge and abilities (although entirely ignorant of the buſineſs of a baker) impoſed himſelf upon the cuſtomers and the Public, ſometimes for the ſubſcriber's partner, and ſometimes for his maſter, and at the ſame time never kept any regular accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the houſe; ſo that the ſubſcriber on theſe conſiderations, has been obliged to part with him: he therefore gives this public Notice to all his cuſtomers, not to pay in future any money which they may owe to the ſubſcriber for bread or flour delivered by him or the ſaid Grevin, as he will not coſider it as payment, but will compel ſuch cuſtomers to make payment to himſelf again.

WITH open face, and features plain,
I'm void of guile or art,
My cheeks no fading colours ſtain,
Their bloom will ne'er depart.

A cheerful ſmile, addreſs and eaſe,
Eyes raviſhing to view,
With Grace and Beauty all might pleaſe,
I reign but o'er a few.

T' obey my laws, proteſting ſtill
One half mankind engage,
Yet few whoſe hearts confeſs my will,
So fickle is the age.

But where a laſting flame I raiſe,
Such make me all their care,
Grown old, the object of their praiſe,
I'm ever young and fair.

Tho' ſaid my favours oft to ſell,
And follow Fortune's track,
'Tis certain none can know me well,
Till ſhe has turn'd her back.

ANECDOTE.

WHEN the wife of Adrian the Roman Emperor ſolicited a veſture of Perſian ſilk, as the higheſt gratification which the faſhion of the times could afford, he mildly put her off, by ſaying, You ſhall have the fineſt Iberian wool, dyed with the Tyrian purple. Do not introduce to my court the effeminate glare of Perſian ornaments. You are no more a Roman, when you neglect the native product.—A fine leſſon for thoſe who have not yet attained to be Emperors wives.

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, Dec. 20.

THE enlarged views and liberal policy of the preſent times, contraſted with the ſelfiſh, narrow prejudices of thoſe not very remote, muſt afford to perſons who feel themſelves intereſted in the welfare of mankind, a ſource of unſpeakable ſatisfaction. The two nations of Europe, whoſe feuds and animoſities, for the two laſt centuries, occaſionally involved the greater part of the world in the horrors of war, forgetting their ancient rivalſhip in arms, ſeem now eagar to out do each other in cultivating the arts of peace, and in removing all grounds of enmity in future. Auſtria, the mother of bigotry and perſecution, is now diſtinguiſhed by the mild ſpirit of toleration. Spain, alſo breaking aſunder the fetters of ſuperſtition, has already commenced a ſyſtem of curtailing the exorbitant powers of the clergy, and removing the other cauſes which have hitherto prevented her ſubjects from keeping pace with other nations, in the career of improvement. Ruſſia, from a ſavage ſtate, has, within the preſent century, attained a degree of civilization, improvement and conſequence in the ſcale of nations, which has no precedent in the hiſtory of the world. Turning our views homeward, their appears evident cauſe of exultation to every honeſt Briton. After a complicated and unfortunate war, the credit of our country is unimpeached, and her commerce is greater than in any former period; while in the arts and ſciences, ſhe confeſſedly takes the lead of Europe.

February 16.

The king of Pruſſia has prohibited the publication of any thing prejudicial to the intereſts of religion. In this inſtance he treads not the footſteps of his predeceſſors.

Private letters from Bengal, brought over land, mention the great ſurpriſe the arrival of lord Cornwallis occaſioned among the members of the council; that circumſtance having, with reſpect to certain individuals, deranged all their proſpects of reaping a golden harveſt. The natives, however, and the military in the ſervice of Great Britain, expreſſed the moſt unbounded joy at his preſence; which, it is probable, will reſtore the reputation of the Engliſh to that reſpectable rank it formerly held in the Oriential part of the globe.

The infamous lie, lately propagated through all Europe, againſt the king of Pruſſia, as if a patron of polygamy, muſt reflect diſgrace on the abandoned inventor. His Pruſſian majeſty, ſince his acceſſion to the throne, has giving ſtriking proofs how far ſuperior he is to the breach of any laws, human or divine. Knowing that there are three prevailing ſyſtems of religious worſhip in his dominions, the Preſbyterian, Lutheran, and the Roman Catholic; and that, as their ſovereign, he challenges equal allegiance from all; he determined to give equal countenance to all. He accordingly went firſt to hear divine ſervice performed in the Chapel Royal, at Berlin, where the doctrine of Calvin (the Preſbyterian) is profeſſed; and next to the church of St. Mary, belonging to the Lutherans, where he heard divine ſervice, and a ſermon preached by Dr. Soliner, one of the clergymen who ſerve that church. On the Sunday ſe'nnight after, he aſſiſted at a high maſs and ſermon in the Roman Catholic church at Berlin. This condeſcention has endeared him to all his ſubjects.

March 2.

An extraordinary inſect has lately been tranſmitted from Dr. Zona (firſt phyſician to the king of Spain) to the Royal Society. It is of the claſs of Scarabeus, as thick as the little finger, two inches long, and ſo luminous, that when it flies by night, it ſpreads a great light. Some ſay, that if the face is rubbed with the humidity which iſſues in ſhining ſpots, or ſtars from this little living phoſphorus, it will appear reſplendant. Before the arrival of the Spaniards the Indians made no uſe of candles, but of theſe inſects to light their houſes; by one of which, a perſon may read or write as eaſily as by a lighted candle.

When the Indians walked in the night, they fixed one of them to each toe of the foot, and others in the hand. When taken, theſe inſects do not live above three weeks at moſt; while they are in good health, they are very luminous, but their light decreaſes with their powers, and after they are dead they ſhine no more. They are ſaid to be doubly uſeful, for they fly about the houſes and devour the gnats.

Few proofs of connubial love can equal the affectionate attachments conceived by the wife of ſwindling major Semple. Though a woman of family, delicacy, and poliſhed education, yet ſhe has petitioned the ſecretaries of ſtate for permiſſion to accompany her huſband to Botany Bay—a circumſtance the more extraordinary, as his conduct has been marked by a ſcene of ill uſage to this deſerving woman. Her petition is ſupported by ſtrong arguments of religion and morality, founded upon the indiſſoluble and ſacred nature of matrimonial union, and is drawn up in language of great elegance.

A very extraordinary, and at the ſame time melancholy accident happened on Tueſday, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon—A man who drove a cart loaded with hay, as he was paſſing through Cornhill by chance ran againſt a gentleman's carriage, and although no damage aroſe from it, put the owner in ſo violent a paſſion, that he jumped out of his coach, abuſed the man in very opprobrious terms, and taking the number of his cart, told him, that he would puniſh him in the ſevereſt manner. This had ſuch an effect upon the poor fellow (who appeared to be a raw countryman) that he inſtantly fell into a fit, and not recovering for ſome time, he was taken to St. Bartholomew's hoſpital, where he expired in a few minutes after he was received into the houſe.—This melancholy event ſhould operate as a caution to perſons in the higher line of life, and warn them againſt exerting a ſavage authority over men, who, though inferior in rank, yet poſſeſs feelings more exquiſite than their ſuperiors.

March 10. The part which the count de Vergennes took in the Swediſh and American revolutions, and his being trained up ſince his firſt apprenticeſhip as miniſter in Turkey, by a regular gradation through the great offices of ſtate, muſt place him in the light of one of the ableſt politicians of our days. His diſpoſition being moderate and pacific, at leaſt during his latter years; his death may be conſidered as a drawback from the general repoſe and tranquility of Europe.

March 12. Of the objects moſt vigorouſly oppoſed in the aſſembly of Notables, none it ſeems met with more contradiction than the land tax or territorial impoſt. The attorney general of Provence was bold enough to ſay, that neither the notables, the parliament, nor the king himſelf could aſſeſs ſuch impoſt, eſpecially in the country he repreſented, which, amongſt other privileges, the inhabitants claimed an indefeaſable and ſpecific right of paying no tax of the kind propoſed.

It is a matter of aſtoniſhment to the people in general, that the board of admiralty do not cauſe men of war to be conſtructed after thoſe of the French, which were abſolutely conſidered as the crack (or favorite) ſhips of the navy, during the late war, particularly the Foudroyant, Courageux, and Hebe frigate. Even the Spaniards excell us in the art of ſhip building, for the Gibraltar (formerly El Phenice or Phœnix) taken by lord Rodney near Cadiz, is ſuch a ſhip as England cannot boaſt.

The greateſt part of our Newfoundland trade will be loſt by the commercial treaty. The French are already encroaching upon it, and make no ſecret of their intentions to monopolize it all to themſelves in a very ſhort time. They have now near forty ſail of ſhips in that buſineſs, to which twenty more will be added this year. This is at leaſt ten above the number that Great Britain ever employed: but we ſhall have French wines and French caps.—— The elegant taſte of the repreſentatives of Madam Bertrin, the queen's late milliner in Paris, is of more value to this country, than a ſchool for 3000 ſeamen annually.

March 15. By a private letter from Bruſſels, we have received the following particulars, which ſerve to demonſtrate the contempt with which the emperor views the authority of the pope. Among other theological books which the emperor ordered to be uſed at Louvain, is one which militates againſt certain opinions of the church of Rome. The pope, on hearing this, diſpatched a bull excommunicating all who ſhould read this book. This bull was privately printed at Bruſſels: the procurator general has diſcovered the printer, and found three copies of it in the poſſeſſion of the cardinal archbiſhop of Meliner: the magiſtrate requeſted his eminence not to appear any more at court, and ſent off to Vienna an account of this affair to be laid before the emperor. The cardinal has conſequently retired to Malines. He is ſuſpected to have a hand in exciting the late diſturbances at Louvain: the pope's nuncio, and all the biſhops, except the biſhop of Bruges, lie under the ſame ſuſpicion. On the 14th of laſt month the nuncio received orders from government to depart from Bruſſels within four days, and to leave the emperor's dominions within eight. He took his departure on the 5th of this mouth, and retired to Liege to the Abbey de Lobbe. The cardinal archbiſhop was at the ſame time ordered to make his appearance at Vienna, to give an account of his conduct. Notice was alſo ſent to Mr. Tullen, preſident of the ſeminary at Malines, to leave the emperor's dominions within 24 hours. Meſſrs. Serveſtors, at whoſe houſe the bill was printed, received a citation to make their perſonal appearance—their plea that it was printed during their abſence, was not admitted. In ſuch contempt does the liberal and enlightened mind of the emperor hold the power of the greateſt of all impoſtors, the biſhop of Rome.

March 30. An infallible cure for the ague—One ſcruple of a clean cob web, got in a houſe or among wood, one drachm of mirthridate, made up in a bolus, a large cup of warm water, with a large ſpoonfull of treacle in it; the patients are to take it a few hours before they expect the fit, to go to bed, and lie till the ſweat is quite off, then to get up in a room with a fire. One bolus generally effects a cure; if not, a ſecond muſt be repeated, a few hours before the fit is expected.

Countries are not cultivated in proportion to their extent and fertility, but to their liberty; and if we make an imaginary diviſion of the earth, we ſhall be aſtoniſhed to ſee in moſt ages, deſarts in the moſt fruitful parts, and great nations where nature ſeems to refuſe every thing. If we look for the wealth of a country, we muſt not enquire after its hills, mountains, woods and plains, but for the number of its induſtrious free inhabitants.

BOSTON, May 4.

At the ſupreme judicial court, holden at Northampton, within and for the county of Hampſhire, on the ninth ult. the perſons hereafter named, were ſentenced as follows.

Joſeph Jones, for an aſſault made by firing a piſtol at a deputy ſheriff in the execution of his office, with an intent to kill and murder him, to ſet one hour on the gallows with a rope about his neck, and to recognize in the ſum of eighty pounds with ſufficient ſurety, to keep the peace and be of good behaviour for the term of two years.—Silas Hamilton, eſquire, of Whitingham, in the ſtate of Vermont, to ſtand one hour in the pillory, and be publicly whipped on the naked back, twenty ſtripes, for exciting and ſtirring up ſedition and inſurrection in this commonwealth.—Abel Patridge, to pay a fine of 100l. to the uſe of the commonwealth, and to recognize in the ſum of 300l. with ſufficient ſurety to keep the peace and be of good behaviour for the term of five years, for a like crime.—John Severance, to pay a fine of 30l. and recognize in the ſum of 100l. with ſufficient ſurety to keep the peace, &c. for the term of three years, for a like crime.—Abner Fowler, to pay a fine of 30l. to ſuffer twelve months impriſonment, and recognize with ſufficient ſurety, to keep the peace, &c. for the term of five years, for a like crime.—Thomas Killam, to pay a fine of 20l. and recognize in the ſum of 50l. with ſurety to keep the paace, &c. for three years, for a like crime.—Samuel Roſe, to ſtand one hour in the pillory, and be publicly whipped on the naked back, twenty ſtripes for a like crime.

May 5. On Thurſday laſt the Independent Cadets, commanded by colonel Bradford, made another public appearance—and in the performance of various evolutions, manœuvres, and firings, exhibited to a large concourſe of ſpectators, a very pleaſing ſpecimen of their progreſs in the military art. At one o'clock, the corps began their march to Roxbury, where, at the Gun-houſe, they partook of a collation—and returning into town about ſunſet, they finiſhed the day at Whig-Hall with thoſe convivial marks of urbanity and true decorum, which are characteriſtick of the members of inſtitutions originating like this in principles of patriotiſm and general good—and which, we are happy to add, have, under the influence and encouragement of our preſent worthy commander in chief, been of late greatly encreaſed in every part of the commonwealth.

The 17th ult. the general court paſſed a reſolve directing the collectors of the tax granted March 1786, to receive one third of ſaid tax in continental, and one third in ſtate certificates, provided the ſame, with a ſum in ſpecie equal to one half ſuch certificates, are paid on or before the firſt day of July next.

May 7. LOOK OUT.—There have been ſince the late great fire, about ten ſmall fires, chiefly occaſioned by very foul chimnies. Six perſons in conſequence thereof, were preſented, and obliged to pay the fine of ten ſhillings, agreeable to law. The inhabitants would do well to preſent all for the future who ſuffer their chimnies to be foul, when they may be ſwept for the ſmall price of one ſhil ing and two pence a quarter.

On Saturday laſt a jury of inqueſt ſat on the body of Mr. Jonathan Donnels, which lay on the beach near Winniſimmit ferry. It appeared to the jury that the ſaid Jonathan Donnels, on the evening of the 4th of December laſt, coming to Boſton from Deer Iſland Point, in a lighter, with ballaſt; ſaid Donnels having the helm, it being very ſtormy and dark, the boom of ſaid lighter ſtruck ſaid Donnels, by which he was knock'd overboard. The jury's verdict was, that he came to his death by misfortune.

CHARLESTOWN, (Maſſ.) May 4.

A gentleman, who has taken great pains to collect returns of the votes in the ſeveral towns of this commonwealth, informs, that the whole number for governor collected in ſeveral counties, is about 18,500, of which 15,300 are for Mr. Hancock; for lieutenant governor, total number 16,500, of which Mr. Cuſhing has 7,600.

NEWPORT, May 3.

At the annual general election held in this town yeſterday, the following gentlemen were elected to the offices affixed to their names. His excellency John Collins, eſquire, governor. The honorable Daniel Owen, eſquire, deputy governor.

NEW-YORK, May 9.

It is poſitively aſſerted, that the book imported laſt week, of which many thouſands have been lately ſold, entitled, A Short Review of the Political State of Great Britain, at the Commencement of the Year 1787, is a compoſition of that diſtinguiſhed writer who often publiſhed under the ſignature of Junius; and the better to conceal himſelf, has repeatedly quoted paſſages from Junius's Letters, although himſelf the author of the ſhort view. This gentleman was, through the means of his grace of Richmond, diſcovered ; and proved to be the right honorable William Gerard Hamilton, a privy counſellor of Ireland, and a member of the Engliſh parliament. The following anecdote led to the diſcovery of the hitherto inſcrutable Junius.

Anecdote of Junius.——The letters of Junius having excited the admiration of all Europe, it may not be unacceptable to our readers to make them acquainted with the elegant author of them. Not long before Junius terminated his literary career, the duke of Richmond was one day taking a morning walk, when he accidentally met with the right hon. William Gerard Hamilton, who aſked his grace if he had that day read Junius, for that he was greater than ever. Mr. H—— then began to recite ſeveral parts of the letter, which led the duke to return home in order to peruſe the remainder, when to his great ſurpriſe he found that no ſuch letter had made its appearance in the Public Advertiſer of that day. His grace mentioned the circumſtance to ſeveral of his friends, and on the day following the identical letter appeared ; having by accident or miſtake been omitted to be inſerted, as intended by Mr. H—— the preceding day. This led to the long-wiſhed-for diſcovery of the author of Junius, and a cabinet council was forthwith aſſembled, to determine what was neceſſary to be done. The earl of Suffolk, at that time one of his majeſty's principal ſecretaries of ſtate, was very violent on the occaſion, and recommended committing Mr. H——— (he being a member of parliament, and privy counſellor in Ireland) cloſe priſoner to the tower. This meaſure the ſagacious lord Mansfield as violently oppoſed ; wiſely obſerving, that the letters of Junius had already ſufficiently rouſed and alarmed the ſpirit of the nation, and the ſooner it was quieted the better. In conſequence of this ſalutary counſel, a meſſage was ſent to Mr. H——, to acquaint him that he was known, and that it was his majeſty's pleaſure, he ſhould continue to hold for life, the apartments which he has ever ſince occupied on the palace of Hampton Court.

RICHMOND, May 5.

This day his excellency the Governor and the honorable James M'Clurg, ſet out upon their journey to Philadelphia, having been appointed members of the convention about to meet there for the purpoſe of reviſing the federal conſtitution. And we are told, that in the abſence of his excellency, the honorable Beverley Randolph, will preſide at lieutenant governor.

Philadelphia, May 15.

Yeſterday a number of the honorable the delegates from the ſtates of Pennſylvania, Delaware, Virginia and North-Carolina, to the federal convention, appointed to be held in this city, met at the State-houſe.—The South Carolina members have arrived, and from every information we have reaſon to conclude that the repreſentation will be complete in a few days.

At a meeting of the Medical Society of London, held at their houſe in Crane Court, Fleet-ſtreet, London, on Thurſday March 8, being the anniverſary of the birth-day of the late Dr. John Fothergill, the gold medal, value ten guineas, called the Fothergillian medal, given annually to the author of the beſt eſſay on a ſubject propoſed by the ſociety, was adjudged to Dr. William Falconer, of Bath ; author of the beſt diſſertation on the following prize-queſtion, viz.

"That diſeaſes may be mitigated or cured, by exciting particular paſſions or affections of the mind."

Mr. Adams, in his "Defence of the American Conſtitutions," page 362, treating of Congreſs, ſays, ——"the people of America, and their delegates in Congreſs, were of opinion, that a ſingle aſſembly was every way adequate to the management of all their federal concerns ; and with very good reaſon, becauſe Congreſs is not a legiſlative aſſembly, nor a repreſentative aſſembly, but only a diplomatic aſſembly. A ſingle council been found to anſwer the purpoſes of confederacies very well. But in all ſuch caſes the deputies are reſponſible to the ſtates ; their authority is clearly aſcertained ; and the ſtates in their ſeveral capacities are the checks. Theſe are able to form an effectual balance, and at all times to controul their delegates. The ſecurity againſt the dangers of this kind of government will depend upon the accuracy and deciſion with which the governments of the ſeparate ſtates have their own orders arranged and balanced. The neceſſity we are under of ſubmitting to a federal government, is an additional and a very powerful argument for three branches, and a balance by an equal negative, in all the ſeparate governments. Congreſs will always be compoſed of members from the natural and artificial ariſtocratical body in every ſtate, even in the northern, as well as in the middle and ſouthern ſtates. Their natural diſpoſitions then in general will be (whether they ſhall be ſenſible of it or not, and whatever integrity or abilities they may be poſſeſſed of) to diminiſh the prerogative of the governors, and the privileges of the people, and to augment the influence of the ariſtocratical parties. There have been cauſes enough to prevent the appearance of this inclination hitherto ; but a calm courſe of proſperity would very ſoon bring it forth, if effectual proviſion againſt it be not made in ſeaſon. It will be found abſolutely neceſſary, therefore to give negatives to the governors to defend the executives againſt the influence of this body, as well as the ſenates and repreſentatives in their ſeveral ſtates, the neceſſity of a negative in the houſe of repreſentatives will be called in queſtion by nobody.

"Dr. Price and the abbe de Mably are zealous for additional powers to Congreſs.—Full power in in all foreign affairs, and over foreign commerce, and perhaps ſome authority over the commerce of the ſtates with one another, may be neceſſary ; and it is hard to ſay that more authority in other things is not wanted ; yet the ſubject is of ſuch extreme delicacy and difficulty, that the people are much to be applauded for their caution.——To collect together the ancient and modern leagues—the Amphyctyonic, the Olynthian, the Argive, the Arcadian, and the Achæan confederacies among the Greeks——the general diet of the Swiſs cantons, and the ſtates general of the United Netherlands——The union of the Hanſe towns, &c. which have been found to anſwer the purpoſes both of government and liberty ; to compare them all, with the circumſtances, the ſituation, the geography, commerce, the population, and the forms of government, as well as the climate, the ſoil, and manners of the people, and conſider what further federal powers are wanted, and may be ſafely given, would be a uſeful work."

⁂ The ſhip Harmony, for London, will fall down the River on Thurſday next, and Captain Willet will follow on Saturday morning. May 14.

AN agreeable Country Seat ; ſituate between the Wiſſahickon or Falls road, and the road to Germantown, in Turner's lane, with 18 acres of land in high cultivation. A large garden in good order, and a young orchard of the beſt apple trees, &c.

The terms of ſale are, one third ready money, and the remainder in yearly payments ; an undoubted title will be given, free from all claims whatſoever.

This Seat is in poſſeſſion of JOHN HOLKER, eſq. to whom application may be made for further particulars. Philadelphia, March 22. eptf.

Thirty Dollars Reward.

A ROBBERY.

LAST Night the Store of the ſubſcriber, in Middletown, Cheſter county, was violently BROKE OPEN by three men, two of whom came in ; and are ſuppoſed to be about 5 feet 10 inches high ; their faces were ſmutted, but appeared to be young men : they had on light coloured great coats, and one of them a claret coloured body coat ; and forcibly took away the following Articles, viz. ſeveral pieces of jeans and fuſtians, mens worſted and thread ſtockings, ſundry pieces of Iriſh linen and holland, a number of ſilk handkerchiefs of different kinds, plated buckles, penknives, &c. a new gun with a piece broke out of the ſtock about the middle of the barrel, and about 50l. in caſh.

Whoever ſecures ſaid Robbers, ſo that the owner may recover his property and they be brought to juſtice, ſhall receive the above Reward, or Fifteen Dollars for the robbers only, and in proportion for any part of the Property recovered, by

May 3. JOSHUA YARNALL.

THE Subſcriber having removed to that old, noted tavern and inn, the White Horſe and Fountain, in Cheſnut ſtreet, between Second and Third ſtreets, begs leave to inform the Public in general and his Friends in particular, that, at a conſiderable expence, he has papered and furniſhed the rooms ſo as to render them fit to entertain and lodge his Cuſtomers in the moſt elegant manner.

The Stables are alſo repaired ; and his houſe being ſituated in the centre of the city, he flatters himſelf Gentlemen Travellers will find it very convenient.

Having a large and commodious Yard near the market, Country People who attend it, and chuſe to favour him with their cuſtom, are welcome to the Uſe of the Yard gratis, for their horſes and waggons.

Gentlemen in the city, and from other parts, may depend upon the beſt of Liquors and Proviſions, and that their favours will be gratefully acknowledged by their humble ſervant, DAVID JONES.

¶§¶ He has for ſale by the quantity, home brewed Welch ale, Taunton and Burton ale, cyder, porter, &c. &c.

HORSES alſo taken in at LIVERY.

MEDICINAL WATERS,

For Drinking and Bathing, at

HARROWGATE,

Within four miles of Philadelphia, near the Frankfort Road.

THE Author of nature having provided the above-named ſpot with three different kinds of mineral waters, the ſubſcriber has at a conſiderable expence erected ſuch buildings over them as will render them fit to be uſed either internally or externally, according to the diſeaſes of perſons who require them.

Theſe waters have been examined by Doctors RUSH and MOYES.

The firſt ſpring contains a quantity of ſulphurous, or what thoſe gentlemen call hepatic air, and a ſmall quantity of iron. It is remarkable light, and reſembles, both in compoſition and medicinal qualities, the famous Harrowgate water in England.

The ſecond ſpring contains a quantity of fixed air, with a ſmall quantity of iron and calcareous earth, and poſſeſſes many of the virtues of the Pyrmont waters, ſo well known, and as juſtly celebrated all over the world.

The third ſpring is a common chalybeate water, and reſembles the Briſtol, in this ſtate.

The ſubſcriber ſubmits it to the judgment of the phyſicians of Philadelphia, when, in what diſeaſes, and in what quantity to recommend the uſe of theſe mineral waters. He will only obſerve, that the Harrowgate waters have rendered eſſential ſervice to perſons afflicted with diſeaſes and obſtructions of the ſtomach, bowels and kidnies. It has alſo removed worms, and relieved the irregular gout and chronic rheumatiſm. Externally applied, theſe waters have in many inſtances cured ulcers and other eruptions of the ſkin.

In the houſe erected over the Harrowgate waters are two ſhower baths, and two dreſſing rooms ; and at the chalybeate ſpring is a convenient bath for plunging or ſwimming. Breakfaſt, dinner and lodgings may be had at the dwelling houſe adjoining the ſprings ; and for the convenience of invalids, a light waggon will ſet off the 14th of May, and run while the ſeaſon continues, from Michael Hay's, inn-keeper, at the ſign of the King of Pruſſia, in Race-ſtreet, between Third and Fourth ſtreets : and thoſe who engage ſeats previous to the hours of ſix in the morning and half paſt two in the afternoon, the time fixed for the ſtage to ſet off, without delay, ſhould they not attend, muſt be anſwerable for the price of their ſeats.

The public may be aſſured, that no expence or trouble ſhall be ſpared to render theſe waters and baths both convenient and uſeful, by their humble ſervant,

May 4. GEORGE ESTERLY.

N. B. For the uſe of theſe baths the price will be four dollars for the ſeaſon, two dollars for one month, five ſhillings for one week, and one ſhilling for each time theſe baths are uſed leſs than a week. Nothing will be demanded from thoſe people who only drink the waters. The price for each ſeat in the ſtage going and coming will be two ſhillings and ſixpence. ſtf&1awtf

Southwark Auction-Store,
Will Commence the ſale of a Large and Freſh
Aſſortment of Merchandize.
Monday and Thurſday (as formerly) are the ſtated Days of Sale. JOHN MEASE, Auctioneer.

On Hand at Private Sale.

An aſſortment of articles in the ſportſman's ſtile—
Conſiſting of, ſingle and double barrel fowling pieces, of exquiſite workmanſhip,
Shot belts, pouches, and powder horns:
Alſo, a few elegant ſteel hilted ſmall ſwords, curiouſly ornamented,
London made ſtays, ſome of which are pack thread, of the firſt workmanſhip,
Upwards of 500 pieces of paper hangings, ſorted, ſome with ſilver:
Likewiſe, a quantity of muſic paper,
And very fine wire for muſical inſtruments;
All which will be ſold conſiderably under coſt.

N. B. All kinds of Merchandize on Commiſſion, diſpoſed of at Private Sale.

To be Sold by Public Vendue,

On Saturday next, the 19th inſtant, at 12 o'Clock at Noon, at the Old Coffee-Houſe,
(If not ſold before at private ſale)

THAT pleaſant and agreeable COUNTRY SEAT, ſituate on the weſterly ſide of the Wiſſahickon road, in the Northern-Liberties, and nearly oppoſite the one mile ſtone, conſiſting of an elegant manſion houſe with 4 rooms on the ground floor and 5 rooms on the ſecond floor, with an excellent garret over the whole, and a very roomy cellar under the houſe, part of which is the kitchen. The houſe is 35 feet front by 40 feet deep, built of brick. There are on the premiſes, a very good brick ſmoak houſe, and a large frame ſtable, together with a very fine large garden, a few fruit trees back of the houſe, and a pump of excellent water in the yard: the ſituation of the above premiſes is high and healthy; there is alſo 4 acres of excellent land belonging to the ſame, which yields a plentiful crop of hay, very good in quality.

Terms of ſale are, one half the purchaſe money in gold or ſilver, or the new emiſſion of this ſtate, to be paid immediately, and the remaining half in 6 months from the day of ſale, when an indiſputable title will be given, and poſſeſſion may be had immediately. The premiſes are clear of every incumbrance. For further particulars enquire of JAMES M'CREA, in Front ſtreet, oppoſite the Coffee-Houſe. May 14

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

Foreign Intelligence.

EDINBURGH, January 4.

A FEW days ago arrived in this city, from the northern tour, the truly patriotic Mr. Knox.

The accounts he brings of the ſituation of the people in the Highlands are extremely diſtreſſing, ſome thouſands of whom are quite impatient to quit their native country and embark for the deſarts of North-America. He repreſents ſome of the reaſons of theſe poor people wanting to ſhift the ſcene to be, the almoſt general failure of their crops; the high duty on coals, in many parts, there being ſuch a ſcarcity of wood or peat, that the people pare the ſurface of the earth for fuel, which nature meant to produce the means of their ſubſiſtence, and the want of ſalt, a ſad ſource of calamity to thoſe unhappy people, as it renders their fiſheries unprofitable, and their lives miſerable; for, having nothing to ſubſiſt on all the year but fiſh, fluxes and various other diſorders carry off numbers.

MADRID, January 20.

The Spaniſh government ſpare no pains to favor and extend their interior commerce throughout every province of the kingdom, for which purpoſe they encourage the digging of canals, the building of bridges, and other public works which can in any wiſe contribute to the fertilizing and improvement of the country. At Ronda, in Andaluſia, a moſt ſuperb bridge is building, and already very far advanced: this work was attempted in the beginning of this century, but given up in its infancy by reaſon of the great difficulties that occurred; all theſe have, however, been ſurmounted by Don Diego de Canas, a captain in the navy, and Don Joſeph Martin, an experienced architect, who have the direction of the work: this bridge is intended to unite the two mountains upon which the town of Ronda ſtands, and will croſs a moſt tremendous precipice called Tazo; from the ſurface of the water, at its greateſt height, to the bridge, there is an elevation of 296 feet and an half; the width of the ſpring is 115 feet and an half, and one ſingle arch is already thrown over that ſpace; the whole will be finiſhed in 1787.

PARIS, February 15.

If November is the gloomy month of deſpondency in England, January is become notorious for ſuicide in Paris. A creditable houſekeeper in the Fauxbourgh St. Antonie, being in appearance quite good humoured and gay with his wife and children, roſe up ſuddenly, and retired to an adjacent room, where he cut his throat, after having written theſe few words: 'Let nobody be moleſted on my account: I am overwhelmed with debts, and can hope for no reſource for my family.'

M. de Vergennes, who died on Tueſday laſt, after having, by the phyſician's order, taken ipecacuanha, a preſcription which every body cenſures, for the gout, was viſited by his majeſty, who ſtaid with him for two hours on the Sunday, and wept bitterly the moment he heard of his death. He was upwards of ſixty-eight years of age, and for many months dangerouſly ill.

February 18.

This day compte de Montmorin took the uſual oaths, in conſequence of being appointed ſecretary of ſtate for foreign affairs.

The queſtion for granting a civil exiſtence to the Proteſtants, and perhaps re-enacting the edict of Nantz, and the ſuppreſſion of monaſteries and convents, will not be diſcuſſed in the grand aſſembly, nor in the committees. The king can do it by his own royal authority, with a ſimple fiat; and ſome deep politicians pretend that this grand coup de main will be after the aſſembly, and thus the piece will end with an eclat which will aſtoniſh all Europe. It It is certain, that if ſuch a thing was propoſed in the auguſt aſſembly, where there are ſo many archbiſhops and biſhops, the very word Proteſtant would make them bounce, and become truly tempeſtuous.

LONDON, Jan. 24.

Yeſterday morning, as the prince of Wales was approaching Hyde Park gate on horſeback, he obſerved general Carpenter coming out of the Park. His highneſs with his uſual complacency addreſſed him, 'General Carpenter I hope you are well!'—The general bowed, but the ceremony was ſcarce returned, when the king appeared, who, it ſeems, had been taking the air in company with the general. The prince immediately curbed his horſe, and, taking off his hat, bowed with the moſt ſubmiſſive marks of reſpect to his majeſty. How will the public gaze at the ſequel of this event,—when they are informed, that the monarch paſſed on—without that diſplay of politeneſs which on every occaſion diſtinguiſhes a gentleman. The prince recovering himſelf from the alarm, which this circumſtance may naturally be ſuppoſed to have created, ſpoke to the duc de Lauſan, and another French nobleman, who was riding by his ſide, but whoſe name we could not learn; and according to the report of the French club, attempted to paliate this treatment. However amiable this conduct may appear in his highneſs, the treatment will be reported to a nation, who make refined manners the ſtandard of the man, and will draw their concluſions agreeably thereto. We are ſorry, incloſing this account, that we have occaſion to reprove the conduct of thoſe perſons who, while they witneſſed this proceeding, were ſo forgetful of the high reſpect due to majeſty, as to mingle hiſſing and groans with their commentaries.

A few days ſince, a woman of Deviſces, labouring under a rheumatic complaint to ſo violent a degree, as to be unable to ſtand without the aſſiſtance of two perſons, was electrified by one of the faculty, who gave her five ſhocks, each charge proved to the electrometer to be the ſame, the ſenſation by each ſhock proved more conſiderable, and the laſt ſhock, ſhe got out of the chair perfectly recovered, and has continued ſo ever ſince.

Feb. 8. On Thurſday ſe'nnight died in Liffey-ſtreet, Dublin, ——— Barry, eſquire, of the county of Cork. His death was occaſioned by a total ſuppreſſion of all evacuation, though he was attended by moſt of the faculty in Dublin. Mr. Barry was ſuppoſed to have been the fatteſt man ever ſeen in Ireland, being 41 ſtone weight; the famous Edward Bright, of Malden, in Eſſex, being only two ſtone heavier. It was with difficulty ſixteen men could manage the corpſe to the hearſe and the grave, in committing him to which, the rope broke, and the coffin tumbled in. It is evident that his wonderful accumulation of fleſh plugged up the viſcera, and deſtroyed the periſtaltic motion of the inteſtines.

Extract of a letter from Knighton, Radnorſhire, January 12.

'Mr. John Turner, junr. of Manaughty, in the pariſh of Bleathvaugh, near this town, ſet out on Wedneſday morning laſt, in company with another young man, to kill a few cocks; and on beating up by the ſide of the river they fluſhed a ſnipe.—Mr. Turner's companion took aim, but his piece miſſed fire; and as he was hacking the flint, Mr. Turner came up to him, reſted his gun upon the ground, the muzzle reclining againſt his ſhoulder: in this poſture he imprudently took out his flaſk, which contained half a pound or powder, and attempted to prime his friend's gun. the whole flaſk blew up, and the exploſion fired Mr. Turner's own gun, the contents of which carried away a part of his ſkull, and he dropped down dead. His companion was ſo terribly burnt that he is dangerouſly ill. This accident, however unfortunate, was attended with a circumſtance ſtill more affecting.——Mr. Turner's ſiſter, a very amiable young woman, was that morning at Knighton, to which place the news was firſt brought. No ſooner was ſhe acquainted with her brother's fate, than ſhe haſtened home to her mother; but, on entering the houſe, overpowered with the misfortune, ſhe fell on her knees, and bathing her mother's hands with her tears, ſaid, O mother, this is more than I am able to bear! ſunk down and inſtantly expired.

'The diſtreſs of the family upon this melancholy occaſion, is truly pitiable. The brother and ſiſter are to be buried on Saturday in the ſame grave.—

What a weight of affliction has one day brought on a very reſpectable family.

Feb. 28. So acceptable to the court of Verſailles is the late treaty of commerce, concluded on the 11th ult. with the czarina, that his moſt Chriſtian majeſty has ordered gold boxes, with his portrait ſet round with diamonds, to be preſented to the four Ruſſian plenipos, who ſigned the ſaid treaty with the comte de Segur, the French ambaſſador.——Each of thoſe boxes is to contain in bills, on the Caiſſe d'Eſcompte, to the value of 120,000 livres, [about 5,000l.

March 2. Samuel Burt, condemned to die for a forgery on Mr. Evans, a gold beater on Long Acre, to whom he was an apprentice, was yeſterday, at the concluſion of the ſeſſion, brought up and informed by the recorder, that his majeſty had remitted his ſentence of death, on condition of tranſportation—which mercy, in a ſpeech of ſome length, he begged leave to decline.

The biſhop of Peterborough having elected a man a choriſter of Trinity College, who had no talents for ſinging, merely becauſe he had a vote in his Grace's dioceſe, the following, which is dignified by the title of Vince's Epigram, is handed about on the occaſion.

A ſinging man, and yet not ſing!
Come, juſtify your patron's bounty;
Give us a ſong—excuſe me, ſir,
My voice is in another county.

SINGULAR CEREMONY.

When ſir Edward Blackett's agent meets the new biſhop of Durham, he preſents the faulchion to the biſhop, and addreſſes him in the following words:

'May it pleaſe your lordſhip,

'Sir Edward Blackett, bart. now the owner of Sockburne, repreſents the perſon of ſir John Conyers, who with this ſword did kill a monſtrous creature, a worm, a dragon, or a flying ſerpent, which devoured men, women and children; and the king then being, for his reward did give him the manor of Sockburne, with the privilege of keeping this ſword, to be preſented to the biſhop of Durham, and his ſucceſſors for ever.'

This ceremony has been performed on the middle of Croft-bridge, ſince the road was made a turnpike.

March 12. There is a man of fortune, who has a wife in London, and a miſtreſs at Paris, and a two-fold family of children. He divides the year equally between them, and contrives to live happy with both. The miſtreſs not capricious, nor is the wife jealous. The birth day ſuit of the latter has more than once been a preſent from the Pariſian rival, and the elegant riding-dreſs which the former ſports in the Bois du Boulegne, was a gift from the Britiſh dame. Who will ſay that the Engliſh nation is not in a ſtate of improvement?

March 30. A revolution ſeems to be taking place in the characters and employments of princes. Inſtead of moving at all times like butchers, and marking their ſteps with blood, they now ſeek information, and viſit each other on terms of polite humanity. The emperor has furniſhed the example. The rumour at Vienna is, that he will viſit England this ſummer. The king and queen of Naples are alſo expected in England.

In April 1782, a Laſcar Indian engaged as cook on board a veſſel bound from England to the coaſt of Guinea, upon a trading voyage, particularly for ſlaves. After trading a few weeks upon the coaſt, the captain came on board one day, and having an altercation with his Laſcar cook, ordered the mate to ſet him immediately on ſhore, with his cheſt and cloaths. This cruel ſentence was inſtantly executed: the wretched Laſcar was hurried into the boat, and landed on one of the Plantain iſlands. This iſland was inhabited ſolely by ſavages, who were, however, under the government of a negro, who had been a conſiderable time in England, and had erected a fort here, for the purpoſe of defending his people from the ſavages of the continent, upon whom he made frequent depredations, by carrying off the people and ſelling them into ſlavery. This Laſcar well knew that death or ſlavery muſt be his fate. For ſeveral nights he wandered on the iſland, hiding himſelf in the day. On the 9th day the continental ſavages made a decent upon this iſland in great numbers, attacked the fort, and having carried it, put the commander to death, with every creature found in his garriſon, and all the other inhabitants on the iſland able to bear arms. The Laſcar, during this confuſion, ſeized a canoe, and truſting himſelf to the mercy of the ſea, departed from the iſland——and hunger compelling him to land upon the continent, he was there diſcovered by a party of 30 ſavages, who tied his hands behind his back, and marched him 14 miles to one of their villages. Here a conſultation was held upon his fate. It was propoſed to put him to death; but one of the ſavages diſcovering that his hair was like their own, they reſolved to ſell him for a ſlave. For this purpoſe he was carried to the coaſt, and ſold to the captain of a Weſt India trader, and by him ſold again to the captain of a Liverpool veſſel, who brought him back to England, where he is now ſuing for juſtice.

The commercial treaty begins to operate ſo far already, as to make the old Britiſh traders give way to the throngs of Frenchmen, who now daily infeſt the Royal Exchange, in the new charectars of Anglo Gallic merchants!

April 2.

Friday the claims of the inhabitants of St. Euſtatius was finally argued before his majeſty's moſt honorable privy council; and the council being heard on both ſides, it was decreed, that lord Rodney and general Vaughan are to refund the money to the ſaid claimants.

It is confidently ſaid, that a certain great perſonage is uſing every influence to prevent the impeachment now carrying on in a popular aſſembly, againſt a late governor, from being taken up to another high tribunal of juſtice.

An affecting circumſtance took place at Paris in the courſe of laſt week, which has been much talked of in that city: Monſieur Dupre, who ſerved with great reputation during the late war, conceived a violent attachment to the daughter of a gentleman of rank and fortune in Provence, and by the conſent of the young lady, aſked permiſſion of the father to pay his addreſſes to her. The latter told him, he had no objection to his family or character; but as an equivalent to the young man's want of fortune, the father told him he would not conſent to the marriage until he was honored with ſome mark of military diſtinction. Monſieur Dupre, anxious to bring his wiſhes to an immediate accompliſhment, adopted the fatal reſolution of aſſuming the order of the Croix de St. Louis, and appeared in public with the croſs affixed to his button hole. The father of the young lady not doubting but that the diſtinction had been properly beſtowed upon Dupre, gave him his daughter in marriage, with a handſome fortune. The marriage ceremony having brought together a concourſe of people, there happened to be preſent, a junior officer to the unfortunate young man, who immediately made a complaint to the marine miniſter that he had a prior claim to the croſs. This brought on an inveſtigation into the matter; and poor Dupre, on the very evening deſtined for the communication of his happineſs, was torn from the embraces of his maiden wife, and ſent to the gallies for life, (the puniſhment allotted for ſuch offences) to the great regret of all who had the pleaſure to know him. His miſerable wife is the moſt wretched of her ſex; and the father in law almoſt diſtracted, conſidering himſelf the cauſe of the melancholy diſaſter.

A letter from Dover ſays, that a French gentleman, who landed there from Paris, reports, that the knights of Malta had ſolicited aſſiſtance from the court of France, the emperor of Morocco having declared war againſt them; they requeſt a fleet of eight men of war, for which they are willing to pay annual ſum ſo long as the war continues. Whether their requeſt will be complied with he could not tell, as it was under conſideration when he left the city.

The French are making, at this time, large fine baſon at Havre; which when finiſhed, will contain 70 or 80 ſhips of the line.

According to letters of the very firſt and beſt authority from Gibraltar, the piratical ſtates of Barbary are on the very point of entering into a meaſure, which may finally effect what not all the oppoſition againſt their lawleſs proceedings has hitherto been able to accompliſh. A war among themſelves is the matter alluded to, the cauſe of which is briefly related as follows; the preſent emperor of Morocco, the moſt pacific of all the Infidel ſovereigns, who is in treaty of alliance with moſt of the Chriſtian powers, for the purpoſe of conſcientiouſly diſcharging his part, did ſome months ſince command, that no corſair, frigate or galley, ſhould be permitted to bring or ſend in any veſſel, being a prize from any of the Chriſtian powers, into any of the ports of Morocco. An Algerine frigate laſt ſummer, in defiance of this carried a veſſel, bound from Malaga to Liſbon, of which ſhe made prize, into Larrache, where the captain attempted to ſell veſſel and cargo, but was prevented by the Mooriſh governor of Larrache, who obliged the frigate to ſail again without his prize, which was reſtored, by order of the emperor, to the conſul of the Portugueſe nation, for the benefit of the owners. This is the foundation of diſputes which are likely to embroil the Moors with the dey of Algiers, Tripoli and Tunis.

CHESTER, February 27.

The following awful and ſtriking circumſtance happened lately in the county of Hertford: About three weeks ſince, a man waited upon a magiſtrate in the vicinity of Hitchen, and informed him, that upon the preceding Tueſday evening, he was ſtopped by a young gentleman in Hitchen, who knocked him down, and ſearched his pockets, but not finding any thing therein, ſuffered him to depart. The magiſtrate, aſtoniſhed at this piece of intelligence, diſpatched a meſſenger to the young gentleman, ordering him to appear immediately before him, and anſwer to the complaint lodged againſt him. The youth inſtantly obeyed the ſummons, accompanied by his guardian and an intimate friend. Upon their arrival at the ſeat of juſtice, the accuſed and the accuſer were confronted, when the magiſtrate hinted to the man, he was fearful he had made the charge with no other view than that of extorting a ſum of money from the young gentleman, and bade him, if that was the caſe, to take care how he proceeded in the buſineſs, cautioning him, in the moſt earneſt and pathetic manner, to beware of the dreadful train of deſtructive conſequences attending perjury; but all his arguments were in vain, for he was too old a diſciple to the ſchool of vice, to be diverted from his purpoſe, by any advice that could be given him: He inſiſted upon making oath to what he advanced, which at laſt was adminiſtered unto him, and the buſineſs fully entered upon, when the young gentleman's innocence was manifeſtly proved, he having, by the moſt incontrovertible evidence, clearly eſtabliſhed an alibi. Upon this, the magiſtrate diſmiſſed the parties, having firſt obtained a promiſe from the young gentleman's guardians, that they would indict the man for perjury at the next aſſizes for the county. The infamous wretch, finding his infernal intentions thus fruſtrated, he returned home, much chagrined, and meeting ſoon afterwards with one of his neighbours, he declared to him he had not ſworn to any thing but facts, and called God to witneſs the ſame, in the moſt ſolemn manner, and wiſhed, if it was not as he had aſſerted, that his jaws might be locked, and his fleſh rot upon his bones, when—terrible to relate!—(Liſten ye ſons of impiety, while the horrid tale is told; ye, who affect to doubt the exiſtence of a Supreme Being, and ſcoff at his judgments)—his jaws were inſtantly arreſted, the uſe of ſpeech denied him for ever, and after lingering near a fortnight in great agonies, he expired, his fleſh literally rotting upon his bones.

AMERICA.

NASSAU, (N. Providence) April 14.

By the Diana, capt. Ruther which arrived here on Tueſday from London, we have letters of the 7th of February. It was then ſuppoſed, that lord Dunmore would not leave England before the middle of this month.

The Diana's cargo conſiſts chiefly of proviſions, ſent out by government, for the American loyaliſts.

On Tueſday laſt, a very fine ſhip, named the Concord, and built for Meſſrs. Falconer, Shirreff and Co. of this town, was launched at Mr. Ruſſell's ſhip-yard.

BOSTON, April 28.

The debates in the houſe of commons of England, on the commercial treaty with France, have been very lengthy—The miniſterial junto, oppoſing their numbers to the eloquence and nervous reaſonings, of what is there ſtiled oppoſition, at whoſe head we ſee a Burke, a Fox and a Sheridan. Mr. Burke ſpeaking of the above mentioned treaty, in reply to ſome obſervations on the peaceable intentions of our allies, towards Britain, aſks, "With regard to her peaceable intentions towards Great-Britain, in what were they viſible? Had ſhe opened her arms to receive us with friendly embraces? Yes; ſhe had extended her arms to embrace our commerce and navigation. In Cherbourg, we ſhould find ſhe had extended her arms in ſuch a manner as to command advantages, which nature before ſeemed to have forbidden ſhe ſhould poſſeſs. She was wreſtling with the ocean: Indeed ſhe appeared to be contending with Providence in the limits aſſigned her. She exhibited a work, beyond which the moſt famous labours of the world could not extend for celebrity. Thoſe wonderful exertions of human labour, the pyramids of Egypt, dwindled into nihility, compared with this undertaking. She extended, indeed, her arms, as if to protect your docks and arſenals of Plymouth and Portſmouth. She was now the guardian of the narrow ſeas, ſince ſhe had indentified this country with herſelf. Like the Trojans, we were admiring the beauty and workmanſhip of the horſe—regardleſs of the engines it contained within its bowels for our deſtruction. Our commerce and navy ſhe would now command. Our ports ſhe had now within her power. And our navy, that before was the guardian and protection of our commerce with foreign markets, ſhe has a power of thus rendering inefficient."

NEW-YORK, May 10.

The academy at Flatbuſh, to which the truſtees have given the name of Eraſmus Hall, was opened on Monday laſt.

His excellency governor Bowdoin, by requeſt of the general court, has been pleaſed to iſſue a brief, moſt earneſtly recommending it to the good people throughout that commonwealth, to exerciſe their chriſtian benevolence, by contributing to the relief of the unfortunate ſufferers in the late deſtructive fire in Boſton.

The 25th of laſt month the general court of Maſſachuſetts met at Boſton, purſuant to the governor's proclamation, but there was not a houſe. On the 26th a ſufficient number were aſſembled to form a quorum, when his excellency met the two branches in the ſenate chamber, and addreſſed them in a ſolemn manner. In this addreſs he recapitulated the urgent purpoſe for which they were expreſsly convened, mentioned in his proclamation, viz. to appoint a treaſurer. He urged, that ſince they were convened, ſeveral other matters might take up a proportion of their ſerious conſideration—reſpecting the ſtate of the certificates receivable by Congreſs in diſcharge of the requiſition of 1785, the time for receiving them at the treaſury having expired—reſpecting the juriſdiction line between that ſtate and New-York, wiſhing that this important matter might be expeditiouſly completed——reſpecting the fœderal and ſtate troops ſtationed at Springfield, &c.—reſpecting the proceedings of the ſupreme court, and the commiſſioners empowered to promiſe indemnity, &c. to certain claſſes, now ſitting in the rebel counties—congratulating the commonwealth on the ſucceſs of the plans of government in quelling the late rebellion thus far. He mentioned the ſatisfaction with which he could take a review of the ſeveral grades of his political life, in the ſolitary hour of reflection—the ſhare of the honors of his country with which he had been favoured—his wiſh to retire, and the pleaſure it gave him to find, that the voices of the people coincided with his deſire. He thanked them for that general confidence and approbation he and his conduct had been honored with, and requeſted they would accept his ardent wiſhes for their welfare and happineſs——that the people may always entertain juſt ideas of liberty, and not loſe it in licentiouſneſs, and its natural conſequent, deſpotiſm—that they may revere the conſtitution of their own framing—that the delegates to the powers of government may never be the violaters, but the guardians of our liberty and proſperity, pay a ſacred regard to public faith, &c. &c.

To his excellency's addreſs, the two branches of the legiſlature concurred in a reply, on the firſt inſtant, coinciding with the ideas and ſentiments therein expreſſed in every particular, excepting his wiſh to reſign.

Philadelphia, May 16.

We had in our paper of yeſterday the pleaſure to announce the meeting of ſeveral delegates to the federal convention:—in addition to whom, members from the ſtates of New-York and New Jerſey are arrived, ſo that there are repreſentatives now in town from ſeven ſtates, viz. New York, New-Jerſey, Pennſylvania, Delaware, Virginia, North-Carolina and South-Carolina.

The Harveian Society of Edinburgh have adjudged their annual prize, for 1786, to Mr. BENJAMIN SMITH BARTON, of Philadelphia, for his diſſertation containing 'An experimental enquiry into the nature and properties of the Hyoſcyamus niger, of Linnæus; its effects on the human ſyſtem; its uſe in the cure of diſeaſes; and the comparative power of different parts of the plant.'—The prize medal was to be publicly delivered to Mr. Barton, on the 12th of laſt month.

We learn that Congreſs have reſolved that all letters and packets to and from the members of convention, at Philadelphia, go free of poſtage.

Extract of a letter from New York, dated April 22.

"A contract is entered into for the coinage of 280 tons of copper, in halfpence, for which privilege the ſtate are to receive 15 per cent."

An accompliſhed orator ſpeaking, before the revolution, of the enterpriſing genius of the Americans, delivered the following eulogium:

"Whilſt we trace them among the tumbling mountains of ice, and behold them penetrating into the deepeſt frozen receſſes of Hudſon's Bay, and Davis's Streights; whilſt we are looking for them beneath the arctic circle, we hear that they have pierced into the oppoſite region of polar cold, that they are at the Antipodes, and engaged under the frozen ſerpent of the ſouth. Falkland Iſland, which ſeemed too remote and romantic an object for the graſp of national ambition, is but a ſtage and reſting-place in the progreſs of their victorious induſtry. Nor is the equinoctial heat more diſcouraging to them, than the accumulated winter of both the poles. We know that whilſt ſome of them draw the line and ſtrike the harpoon upon the coaſt of Africa, others run the longitude, and purſue their gigantic game along the coaſt of Brazil. No ſea but what is vexed by their fiſheries: no climate that is not witneſs to their toils: neither the perſeverance of Holland, nor the activity of France, nor the dextrous and firm ſagacity of Engliſh enterprize, ever carried this moſt perilous mode of hardy induſtry to the extent to which it has been puſhed by this recent people: a people who are ſtill, as it were, but in the griſtle, and not yet hardened into the bone of manhood." To this eloquent but juſt picture of the enterprizing genius of America, may be added one trait from a ſcene, to which her citizens could only have been introduced by their emancipation from the Britiſh dominion. India, hitherto the excluſive and productive reſource of European avarice, has extended her invitations to this country, and promiſes, by a diligent cultivation of her favours, to render ample compenſation for the vigorous prohibitions of the Britiſh navigation act.

Within a few weeks paſt, it is painful to reflect, how many inſtances have been diſcovered of murders committed on new-born infants—ſo ſuperior is the dread of ſhame to the force of natural affection! As the ſenſe of honour is oftener acceſſary to the perpetration of this horrid crime, than the ſpur of indigence: in moſt capitals, inſtitutions have been wiſely eſtabliſhed to enſure the ſafety of the unhappy offspring, by affording a ſhelter for the reputation of the deluded mother. The Foundling hoſpitals of Paris, London, and Dublin, are open, like the temple of Saturn, for the reception of every human offspring; not indeed to deſtroy, but to cheriſh and preſerve them. Their records are not idle and unprofitable memorials, but while they prove, in every item, the ſalvation of the life of one being, and of the character of another, ſerve likewiſe, when time ſhall have removed the barriers of female delicacy, to renew the tender ties of parent and of child. The benevolence of this city, though happily exerted in other reſpects, might perhaps be well directed to this important object; and either by laying a new foundation, or by attaching the charity to an old one, furniſh an opportunity to avoid the commiſſion of an offence, which, as it originates in the apprehenſion of public ſcandal, is peculiarly entitled to public conſideration.

Extract of a letter from Worceſter, Maſſachuſetts, May 7.

"Laſt Saturday the ſupreme judicial court ended their buſineſs for the ſeſſion. Henry Gale of Princeton, convicted of treaſon and rebellion, received ſentence of death accordingly; Jacob Chamberlain of Dudley, and Silas Livermore of Paxton, were acquitted by the jury; Chamberlain was diſcharged, but Livermore is now indicted for ſeditious conduct, &c. One Billings of Northborough was indicted for a like offence, and plead guilty; his ſentence is ſuſpended until next term; Caleb Curtis of Charlton, and a great number of others, are indicted for like offences, but their trials are put off until next term.

"We learn from Woodſtock, that on Wedneſday laſt week the meeting houſe in the old pariſh was ſtruck by lightning, and greatly damaged."

A letter from an eminent mercantile houſe in London, dated March 12, ſays, "We truſt the day is not far diſtant, when ſome permanent ſyſtem may be eſtabliſhed for the reſtoration of your commerce, wh has of late been moſt ſadly deranged."

Meſſ. Dunlap and Claypoole,

AT a time when the funding ſyſtems of the different ſtates are the ſubject of ſo much converſation, it is incumbent upon every citizen, and more eſpecially upon the members of Congreſs—Convention—and of the ſeveral Legiſlatures, to make themſelves acquainted with the Debts of their country. In a pamphlet entitled 'An Eſſay on the Domeſtic Debts of the United States of America,' which was put into my hand a few days ago, written by a gentleman of this city, I find a very accurate account of theſe debts, ſtated with great clearneſs and ingenuity. I am particularly pleaſed with his fœderal principles—for it is by ſupporting theſe principles only that the original holder and purchaſer of certificates can expect to be paid the intereſt and principal of their debts. The ſtate ſyſtems of finance can only be temporary, and from the influence of parties and individuals in ſmall communities, muſt ever be inſtable—As a proof of the good ſenſe of our author upon the ſubject of a fœderal treaſury, I ſhall tranſcribe the following paſſages from the 50, 51 and 52 pages of the pamphlet.

"The great national object ſhould be, to eſtabliſh public credit, and much leſs money raiſed and applied in a fœderal way would produce the effect; for it is moſt evident that ſuch divided meaſures proclaim to the world our extreme weakneſs.

"However, all theſe diſorders would have been effectually remedied, and others of a worſe nature prevented, if the ſtates had in due time agreed upon a ſyſtem of general revenue, and enabled the fœderal government to draw forth their united reſources for diſcharging the national engagements.

"As the mode provided by the confederation for ſupplying a common treaſury was found from experience to be inadequate and inapplicable to the payment of the national debt, it became the duty of Congreſs to ſuggeſt and propoſe ſuch other proviſion as to them might appear proper. They therefore recommended the general impoſt and ſupplementary funds as a meaſure of indiſpenſible neceſſity, and which if it was not within the letter, was clearly within the ſpirit of the confederation, and conceived to be the leaſt objectionable, and beſt calculated to anſwer the end propoſed of any that could be deviſed, and therefore merited the moſt ſerious attention.

"It is ridiculous to ſuppoſe that ſufficient power cannot be given to that body, without endangering the liberty of the ſubject, when that liberty is ſo well ſecured by the frequent election and conſtant rotation of the members; ſince by the right of recall, the ſtates may diſſolve the authority wherever it is abuſed. In a republic, where legiſlators are alternately both governors and governed, there is an effectual check againſt uſurpation. Many things have become our duty with which we were unacquainted at the time we aſſumed our preſent rank and character. As individual ſtates, we will not be known to foreign nations, and muſt neceſſarily be directed in many parts of our conduct by the relative ſituation in which we ſtand with other ſovereign powers."

The WITTY PEASANT.

A POOR peaſant boy, paſſing heedleſs one day,
Pick'd up an old horſe ſhoe, and bore it away:
A ſmart ſoon came up, and enquir'd with an air,
What he held in his hand?—and the boy gave a ſtare;
Then archly reply'd, By my troth I don't know.
What! not know a horſe ſhoe! return'd the pert beau,
O la! ſays the boy, what it is to have learning,
It gives you fine folks ſuch a world of diſcerning!
For my part, I knew not before, I declare,
If it rightly belong'd to a horſe or a mare.

ANECDOTE.

BY the end of the year 1754, Johnſon had compleated his copy of the Dictionary, not more to his own eaſe and ſatisfaction, than to the joy of Millar, the bookſeller, the principal proprietor of the work, and the guardian or treaſurer of the fund out of which the payments were from time to time iſſued. To ſay the truth, his joy on the occaſion was ſo great, that he could not refrain from expreſſing it ſomewhat intemperately, as appears by the following acknowledgment of the receipt of the laſt ſheet of the manuſcript.

'Andrew Millar ſends his compliments to Mr. Samuel Johnſon, with the money for the laſt ſheet of the copy of the Dictionary, and thanks God he has done with him.'

To which Johnſon returned this good-humoured and brief anſwer:

'Samuel Johnſon returns his compliments to Mr. Andrew Millar, and is very glad to find, as he does by his note, that Andrew Millar has the grace to thank God for any thing.'

Philadelphia, May 8, 1787.

City-Tavern and Coffee-Houſe.

Edward Moyſton

TAKES this method of returning his ſincere thanks to thoſe ladies and gentlemen who have been pleaſed to honor his houſe with their cuſtom, and hopes for a continuance of their favours, and the public in general. Having provided himſelf with cooks of experience, both in the French and Engliſh taſte, he flatters himſelf that he will be able to give ſatisfaction to thoſe who pleaſe to uſe his houſe, and careful attendance ſhall never be wanting to render their accommodation agreeable. Ladies and gentlemen travellers can be commodiouſly lodged at the tavern, as he hath fitted up chambers in a more convenient manner than they have heretofore been, for the reception of his gueſts. Horſes and carriages ſhall be taken the greateſt care of, and every exertion of his uſed to render their accommodation complete. He has laid in a freſh ſupply of liquors of the very firſt quality.

As many of the ſubſcriber's cuſtomers have often mentioned their deſire of taking proper ſtabling to accommodate their horſes, and coach-houſes to keep their carriages: this is therefore to inform them, that he hath taken the Livery-Stables at the back of the City-Tavern, where his cuſtomers may aſſure themſelves of the greateſt care being taken of both their horſes and carriages, at as moderate a rate as at any other livery ſtables in the city.

w&ſ3m. E. MOYSTON.

To be Sold or Let,

A Good Brick HOUSE about 24 feet front, ſituate in Front ſtreet, nearly oppoſite the City Vendue Store: it is three ſtories in Front and five in Water ſtreet, with a cellar under it, and a large vault: both fronts are excellent ſtands for buſineſs. Any ſpecies of money, bank ſtock or public ſecurities will be taken in payment for the whole or part.

Alſo, to be Let—A Houſe in Third ſtreet, below Cheſnut ſtreet, in the tenure of Mrs. Carter; late the property of Mr. Iſrael Pemberton Apply to

March 24 ſ&wtf COXE & FRAZIER.

TO BE SOLD,

TO BE SOLD, A

VALUABLE Plantation, pleaſantly ſituated in Briſtol townſhip, Bucks county, two miles from the borough of Briſtol and 8 miles from Trenton, containing about 440 acres of Land: the ſoil fertile, and equal in goodneſs to any in the townſhip; 150 acres of which are cleared, and fitted for the plough, 20 acres of meadow in good graſs, and more may eaſily be made, the remainder is woodland well timbered. The above tract is well ſituated, and calculated for dividing into two Farms, there being two comfortable log dwelling houſes on the premiſes, two young orchards, with a well of good water near each houſe. The river Delaware running in front of the farm, affords a convenient and cheap way to tranſport the produce of ſaid place to the markets of this or the Jerſey ſtate, which is an object of conſiderable importance to the farmer. For further particulars apply to JOHN BOOZE, living near the premiſes, or to ROBERT WALN, in Philadelphia.

To be Sold at Public Vendue,

At the Old Coffee-Houſe, in the City of Philadelphia, on Wedneſday the 30th Inſtant, at 12 o'Clock at Noon,

SEVEN Tracts of Land of the firſt quality; ſituate in Mount Bethel and Delaware townſhips, in Northampton county; ſome of them within one, ſome within three, and one within ſeven miles from the river Delaware, which greatly increaſes their value. May 9

Peter Wikoff, Auctioneer.

Maryland, Elk Ridge, November 14.

FOR SALE,

Upwards of Four Thouſand Acres of

Rich and valuable Land,

By the ſubſcriber, at Public Vendue, ſituated as hereafter deſcribed:

SEVEN hundred acres of Land, ſituate in Ann Arundel county, on Elk Ridge, near the dwelling houſe of the ſubſcriber, being part of the tract of land called Caleb's Purchaſe and the Anvil; on which is erected a tenement: this land is well wooded and watered, has a conſiderable quantity of good meadow ground, 20 acres whereof are cleared; it is ſituate about 4 miles from Elk Ridge landing, and 12 from Baltimore Town. The ſale of this land will be on the 11th day of June next, at Mrs. Ball's tavern, on Elk Ridge.

On the 11th day of June next, will be ſold a Hobb's tavern, on the road leading from Baltimore-Town to Frederick-Town, 850 acres of Land, on which there is a tenement, being part of a tract called Pretty Sally; ſituate in Frederick county, about two miles from Hobb's tavern. This land will be laid off in parcels not exceeding 200 acres.

On the 11th day of June next will be ſold at the ſubſcriber's Plantation, commonly called the Old Quarter on Lingonore, 850 acres of Land, being part of a tract called Cold Friday; ſituate on Lingonore, in Frederick county. This land is of good quality, has an excellent mill ſeat on it, and will be ſold in parcels not exceeding 200 acres——Alſo,

427 acres, called	Brandywine Springs
230	The addition
72	The 2d addition
300	Part of Moab
50	Mount-Pleaſant
544	Reſurvey on Darby's Delight
62	Addition to ditto
43	Neceſſity
45	Omiſſion
31	Neglect
804 acres.

Theſe lands lay adjoining each other.

On the laſt aforeſaid tracts of land there are three very valuable plantations; on one of which, called the Old Quarter, there are upwards of 250 acres of cleared land, 60 acres of meadow now in graſs, and about 50 acres more may be eaſily made, of the firſt quality. This plantation is equal in value and richneſs to any in this ſtate; it is well calculated for planting and farming; has four dwelling houſes on it, two barns, two tobacco houſes, ſtables, corn houſes, and every other out-houſe neceſſary on a valuable eſtate, and is in excellent order for cropping. It has alſo ſeveral fine ſtreams of water running through it, and on one of which there is a valuable mill ſeat.

The other lands adjoining, are alſo of ſuperior quality, and will be laid off into convenient lots, from two to three hundred acres, as may ſuit purchaſers.

The above lands advertiſed for ſale on the 11th June, are ſituate about 12 miles from Frederick-Town, 40 from Baltimore-Town, on the great public road, very convenient to ſeveral merchant mills, and in every reſpect are equal to any lands in that part of the country.

The terms of ſale for the above property are, a ſmall part of the purchaſe money in hand, the particular portion will be made known on the day of ſale, and the reſidue in two annual payments, on intereſt; the purchaſer to give bond, with approved ſecurity, when poſſeſſion will be given. Plans of the lands may, in the mean time, be ſeen at Hobb's tavern, and at the Old Quarters. THOMAS DORSEY.

To be Sold by Public Vendue,

On Saturday next, the 19th inſtant, at 12 o'Clock at Noon, at the Old Coffee-Houſe,
(If not ſold before at private ſale)

THAT pleaſant and agreeable COUNTRY SEAT, ſituate on the weſterly ſide of the Wiſſahickon road, in the Northern-Liberties, and nearly oppoſite the one mile ſtone, conſiſting of an elegant manſion houſe with 4 rooms on the ground floor and 5 rooms on the ſecond floor, with an excellent garret over the whole, and a very roomy cellar, under the houſe, part of which is the kitchen. The houſe is 35 feet front by 40 feet deep, built of brick. There are on the premiſes, a very good brick ſmoak houſe, and a large frame ſtable, together with a very fine large garden, a few fruit trees back of the houſe, and a pump of excellent water in the yard: the ſituation of the above premiſes is high and healthy; there is alſo 4 acres of excellent land belonging to the ſame, which yields a plentiful crop of hay, very good in quality.

Terms of ſale are, one half the purchaſe money in gold or ſilver, or the new emiſſion of this ſtate, to be paid immediately, and the remaining half in 6 months from the day of ſale, when an indiſputable title will be given, and poſſeſſion may be had immediately. The premiſes are clear of every incumbrance. For further particulars enquire of JAMES M'CREA, in Front ſtreet, oppoſite the Coffee-Houſe. May 14

To be Sold at the Coffee-Houſe,

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

From a late Charleſton (S. C.) News-Paper.

Part of Judge PENDLETON's CHARGE to the Grand Jurors of Gagetown, Cheraws and Cambden Diſtricts

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury,

IS this fatal paſſion for ſudden riches, ſo generally prevalent among us, to extinguiſh every ſentiment of political and moral duty? Is it to be expected, that one aſſembly after another will be on the ſide of the debtor? No, gentlemen, the period is not far off, when the laws of the ſtate muſt be voluntarily obeyed or executed by force; no ſociety ever long endured the miſeries of anarchy, diſorder and licentiouſneſs; the moſt vile deſpotiſm will be embraced in preference to it. The nations from which we derive our origin, afford innumerable examples of this; I will however, mention but one: When the parliament of England had dethroned and beheaded that faithleſs tyrant Charles the firſt; ſubdued all their enemies at home and abroad, and changed their monarchy into a republic, one would have ſuppoſed that an aſſemblage of as great talents as ever adorned human nature, which ſo highly diſtinguiſhed the patriots of that time, could not fail of forming a wiſe and juſt government, and of tranſmitting it to their poſterity; but the event ſhewed that the diſorderly temper of the people, occaſioned by the civil war, would not bear the ſtrong curb of legal authority; expedient after expedient was tried, and government aſſumed many different ſhapes to humour their paſſions and prejudices, and lead them a willing obedience—but all to no purpoſe; the public diſorders daily increaſed; every little club of politicians were for making laws for the whole nation; the fair form of equal and legal liberty became defaced by a thouſand fanciful and impracticable whimſies, until the general diſtreſs was inſupportable: what followed? The very people, who a few years before, had aſtoniſhed the world by the ſplendour of their actions, invited back, and enthroned the ſon of that very king whom they had formerly put to death; gave him a carte blanche to do as he pleaſed, and ſeemed to have forgot they had ever ſpent a drop of blood or a ſhilling in defence of their liberty.

Gentlemen, let us not loſe ſight of this awful precedent: To acquire freedom, is nothing in compariſon to a wiſe and profitable uſe of it. Nothing can be more certain than that Great-Britain would eagerly ſeize any favorable opportunity to compaſs our deſtruction—ſhe would to-morrow pour her fleets and armies into this country, particularly the ſouthern ſtates, if the great powers of Europe could be ſo allied and connected, as to ſecure her from a hoſtile confederacy. The hiſtory of thoſe nations, every where ſhews us what trivial cauſes occaſion the moſt important changes in their political ſyſtems—ſurely then it is wiſe to be on our guard, and in the firſt place to ſecure a free and juſt, but at the ſame time a ſtrong government at home; without this the citizens are inſecure in their perſons and eſtates: that inſecurity produces murmuring and diſcontent, and that diſcontent will ever produce a diſpoſition favorable for trying new changes. In ſuch a ſtate, to be attacked by a formidable enemy, without ſoldiers or military ſtores, and without authority to compel even our own citizens to obey the laws, we muſt fall a prey to any foreign power, who may think it worth the coſt to ſubjugate us.

I have heard, gentlemen of the grand jury, great complaints againſt the illiberal and monopolizing ſpirit of the Britiſh government, on the ſubject of commerce with America; her numerous duties on American produce, and her refuſal to enter into treaties for reciprocal benefits in trade—it muſt ſurely be highly ridiculous to abuſe one nation for profiting from the follies of another; do we expect Great-Britain, as a trading nation, will not exert every nerve to hold faſt the commercial advantages, which our avidity for her negroes and manufactures hath given her? Is it not the ſteady policy of every nation in Europe to promote and extend their own commerce by every poſſible means, let it be at the expence of whomſoever it will? No, gentlemen, let us act with ſuch caution and punctuality, as to make it her intereſt to ſolicit, and we ſhall ſoon find her courting, with douceurs, thoſe commercial compacts, which ſhe now ſo contemptuouſly declines. At the cloſe of the war, indeed, ſhe ſtood trembling with apprehenſion, leſt our two allies, France and Holland, ſhould monopolize our trade; a treaty preſſed at that moment, and properly urged, ſine qua non of all future amity and intercourſe, would, in all probability, have produced an inlet of American built veſſels into her iſlands, and an exemption from many other injurious reſtraints; but the favorable moment ſlipt through our hands unimproved, I fear never to return; the only poſſible way left us to recover it, is to live within our income; to ſecure a balance of trade in our favor, and to urge the federal government to ſuch general regulations, as ſhall ſecure us from the infamous vaſſalage into which we are hurrying. If three or four hundred thouſand pounds ſterling worth of merchandize (and which ſum will include a great many luxuries) is ſufficient for all our rational wants, when our exports greatly exceed the ſum, and are annually increaſing, is it not obvious to the meaneſt capacity, that a large balance muſt yearly return to us in gold and ſilver, which, in ſpite of all the paper money caſuiſts in the world, is the only wholeſome political blood that can give union, health and vigour to the body politic. If we do not curtail our expences, and export more than we import, a general bankruptcy muſt be the inevitable conſequence. Many people are calling for large emiſſions of paper money——for what? To ſhift the burthens they have incurred, by their avarice and folly, from themſelves to their more better and deſerving creditors, whoſe property they chooſe to hold faſt. Can any thing be more fraudulent or aſtoniſhing? No, gentlemen, paper medium and ſheriff's ſale bills, are only temporary expedients, a repetition of which, in a very ſhort time, would be inſupportable; they were intended, at a ſingular criſis, to open a retreat even to the fooliſh and extravagant, as well as the unfortunate debtor, by affording an opportunity to retrieve, but not to give impunity to the one, or a releaſe to the other; the honeſt and induſtrious man will ſeize the opportunity to lay up againſt the day of account and payment, while nothing will correct or reclaim the indolent and profligate knave: But, as I before obſerved, the period is at hand, when the punctual payment of the taxes and of the debts, or the uninterrupted recovery of them in the courts of juſtice, muſt be enforced: palliatives are exhauſted; we muſt either relinquiſh government; reſign our independence, and embrace a military maſter, or execute our laws by force if arms, if no alternative is left us: but before we are compelled to reſort to this diſgraceful and painful ultimatum, let us all exert ourſelves, and ſupport each other as free citizens, acknowledging no maſter but the laws which we ourſelves have made for our common good; in obeying theſe laws, and enforcing them when and where we can; let no man ſay, this or that is not my buſineſs; whatever materially affects the honor and intereſt of the ſtate, is every man's buſineſs, becauſe he muſt, in common with all others, ſhare the good or evil brought upon his country. That man who refuſes or evades the payment of his taxes impoſed by his immediate repreſentative, or excites or co operates in the reſiſtance of lawful authority, is the parricide of his country, as well as the voluntary aſſaſſin of his own intereſt, ſince it is impoſſible he can be tranquil and happy, or enjoy his property in peace and ſecurity, while his country is convulſed and diſtracted.

As grand jurors, gentlemen, the laws have ſelected you as their principal auxiliary, and moſt reſponſible guardians. On you, then, it is peculiarly incumbent, to intereſt yourſelves in the conduct of all around you; you have the greateſt property to loſe, and your example therefore of weight; inveſtigate the police of your diſtrict; and wherever any perſon hath accepted a public truſt, and neglects or abuſes it, drag him forth, let his office, fortune or character be what it may. If keepers of ferries, highways or bridges, do no diſcharge their duty; if the officers of juſtice violate the truſt repoſed in them, you are bound in duty to your country, yourſelves and your children, as well as by the ſolemn oath you have juſt taken, to name them in your preſentments, together with the names of ſuch witneſſes as can prove the charge; even in your individual capacity as citizens, to inform and proſecute all ſuch offenders, is highly meritorious; the malevolence, which may for a time be directed againſt an honeſt, ſpirited and patriotic citizen, is like the harmleſs hiſſing of ſerpents, who cannot bite; he will ſoon triumph over their impotent clamour, and obtain the eſteem and ſupport of all good men.

I have been actuated by the plain and pointed obſervation you have juſt heard, by an ardent zeal for the honor and proſperity of my country: this is not a time to leſſen or extenuate the terror which the preſent dangerous criſis cannot but inſpire——to know our danger, to face it like men, and to triumph over it by conſtancy and courage, is a character this country once juſtly acquired. is it to be ſacrificed in the hour of peace, with every incentive to preſerve it? I repeat again, that without a change of conduct, and a union of all the good men in the ſtate, we are an undone people—the government will ſoon tumble about our heads, and become a prey to the firſt bold ruffian who ſhall aſſociate a few deſperate adventurers, and ſeize upon it.

I confeſs the ſubject very deeply affects me——I ſhall therefore purſue it no further: I do not however deſpair of the republic; there are honeſt and independent men among us, to retrieve every thing, whatever may be oppoſed by the vicious and unprincipled, if they will but ſtep forth and act with union and vigour; if they will not, the miſeries reſulting to their country from the utter deſtruction of all public and private credit, a bankrupt treaſury, and the triumph of all manner of fraud, rapine and licentiouſneſs, together with the ſcorn and deriſion of our enemies, and the contempt of our friends, if we ſhould have any left, be upon their heads.

The attorney-general, gentlemen, will forward to you all ſuch bills of indictment, for offences againſt the ſtate, as ſhall be put in proſecution, and will alſo furniſh you with ſuch advice and direction, from time to time, as may be neceſſary to you, in the progreſs of your buſineſs: you will keep in view, in all your deliberations, the comprehenſive oath you have taken; while you act under its influence (and I am ſure you will ever do ſo) you cannot err, and I ſhall with pleaſure diſcharge you, as ſoon as you have diſpatched the buſineſs which will come before you.

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, January 20.

THE dyet at Warſaw ſeparated about the end of laſt November in better humor than has been known ſince the preſent king came to the throne.

The convention concluded in November laſt between Pruſſia and Poland, on the ſubject of regulating the limits of Sileſia, was not only ratified at the laſt dyet held at Warſaw, but the ſenate aſſigned at the ſame time fifty thouſand crowns, to innify thoſe who ſuffered by the demarcation.

Feb. 10. The lords Litton—Farther and ſon, formed two oppoſite characters in their times. The former had a diſtinguiſhed turn for paſtoral poetry, and wrote ſomething at Eton with all the enthuſiaſm of early years, and yet with all the judgement of advanced life.

By authentic accounts from New-York, by the laſt packet we learn, that the aſſembly at Philadelphia give the greateſt encouragement to new ſettlers from all parts of Europe. Charles Vancouver, eſq. late of Lynn, in Norfolk, has juſt received a grant of land which conſiſts of near 53,000 acres. This tract of country lies on the north bank of the North Fork, or main branch of the Kentucky river, near the Ohio, the waters of which paſſing through the land, render it in point of ſituation for commerce as eligible as any in that country. The ſoil, in general, is what is denominated firſt-rate land, being equal to any in nature; the timber and its under growth are extremely luxuriant, and ſuch as are peculiar to the interior parts of North America. Along moſt of the waters on either ſide, the ſavannah, or natural meadow lands extend from one quarter of a mile to a mile and a half, exhibiting an almoſt perfect level, with only here and there a few clumps of cedar and beach wood, to break and diverſify the ſcene. This land is extremely well watered throughout, and one of the tracts has been laid out in plantations of 250 acres each, ſome of which he is now ſelling with a view of raiſing a ſum of money to enable him to eſtabliſh a ſettlement on the remainder.

The price Mr. Vancouver ſold ſome of theſe lands at, and fixed for the remainder, is 62l 12s for every lot of 250 acres, at 5s per acre for any quantity a perſon may be deſirous of purchaſing. The ſum neceſſary for the purchaſe of 250 acres, including the paſſage from England, implements of huſbandry, two horſes, two cows, a few hogs and ſheep, building a habitable log houſe, and ſettling the ſame as uſual in America, is eſtimated at no more than the ſum of 250l.

Mr. Vancouver is a young gentleman who has ſtudied agriculture as a ſcience. He was a few years ſince engaged by the preſent earl of Shelburne to inſtruct his tenants in Ireland in the Norfolk method of farming; and made conſiderable improvements on that nobleman's extenſive eſtate.

Sheridan's famous oration againſt Mr. Haſtings, made many, 'albeit unuſed to the melting mood, drop tears as faſt as doth the Arabian tree its medicinal gum.' The biſhop of Peterborough was in the gallery, and obſerved, that it had the Ciceronian ſuavity, the force of Demoſthenes, the elegant pathos of Pliny, and the acute reflections of Tacitus!

March 30. The India Company have at this time, near four millions of pounds of tea at market.

This immenſe quantity being ſold, and to be ſold to the dealers, to be paid for in May next, muſt draw from the dealers (i. e. grocers) near a million and a half of ſpecie.

The purchaſe of this tea is made in China, with ſpecie—with ſilver.

Five hundred thouſand pounds ſilver, that were coined in the late king's reign, have never been ſeen in circulation in England. It is ſuppoſed that it has been all ſent to China.

The new ſilver coined in the preſent reign, is not come into circulation; and it is beginning to be ſuſpected that it never will. It has been coined ſome time. And it is apprehended that it will all go to China.

The emperor of Germany has lately followed the example of his humane brother in law, the moſt Chriſtian king, and forbidden the arreſting of his ſubjects for debt. Of what does the boaſted liberty of England conſiſt; and what would be the fate of half our Britiſh ſenators, were they not protected by the privilege of parliament.

AMERICA.

NEWBURY-PORT, May 2.

A gentleman at New-York relates the following account for fact, he having it from ſuch authority as puts the truth of it quite out of diſpute: A Mr. Shackford, ſome time ſince from Piſcataqua, having the misfortune of diſcontent with his wife, left that place for Surinam; on his arrival there he left the veſſel he firſt ſailed in, and took the command of one for Europe; he performed his voyage, and gave ſuch ſatisfaction to his owners, that they gave him a cutter-built ſloop of about 15 tons; with her he returned to Surinam alone, after a paſſage of 35 days; when he arrived, the novelty of the expedition excited unuſual ſurpriſe, ſo far as to induce the government to take notice of the fact. Suſpicions prevailed of his having dealt unfairly by the people who were ſuppoſed to come out with him; but he produced his papers and journal, and proved his integrity ſo far to the ſatisfaction of his examiners, that they permitted him to take another man on board and proceed to St. Bartholomew's, where he arrived in ſafety, and now follows the coaſting buſineſs from that iſland.

SPRINGFIELD, May 1.

So various and contradictory are reports from the weſtward, that we are at a loſs what to ſay about them—but thus far we credit, that the Maſſachuſetts inſurgents in Vermont and New-York, are about aſcertaining their numbers, and when collected, will do much miſchief to the inhabitants, living in the exterior towns of the ſtate.

POUGHKEEPSIE, May 9.

Saturday laſt arrived at this place, from St Croix, the brig Hero, captain Coffin, belonging to Hudſon, and after landing part of her cargo, (having been half freighted from this place) ſhe proceeded for Hudſon the ſame day.

Same evening came out of the ſouth-weſt, a very ſevere guſt of wind, which laſted about half an hour. We are informed of ſeveral barns, barracks, trees, fences, &c. being blown down; we are happy, however, to hear that little or no damage was done to the veſſels on the river.

NEW-YORK, May 14.

By a gentleman who paſſed through this city on Monday laſt, from Lake Champlain, we are informed, that Shays, Day, Wheeler and Parſons, (principals in the late rebellion in the commonwealth of Maſſachuſetts) were at Crownpoint on the 1ſt inſt. collecting all the forces they could at that place. That he heard Shays and Day declare, that they were then going into thoſe parts of this ſtate and Vermont which border on Maſſachuſetts, where there friends had embodied great numbers of men, who were only waiting for their preſence, to commence immediate hoſtilities. The gentlemen adds, that the perſons above named, as thoſe who have eſpouſed their cauſe, treat the proclamations which have been iſſued for their apprehenſion, with the utmoſt contempt, and even boaſt, that the friends of government dare not attempt to put them in execution.

BALTIMORE, May 11.

The following letter was delivered by Meſſrs. Richard Downing Jennings and Co. in St. Euſtatius, to Mr. Samuel Hopkins, of this town, merchant, who is juſt arrived, from that iſland, in the brig Bald-Hill, captain Cahoon.

St. Euſtatius, April 12, 1787.

"WE have the honor to addreſs you on a ſubject equally intereſting to ſociety, to commerce, and to government.

"The encloſed paper will give you ſome information reſpecting a brig and her crew, which lay off and on this Road, on Tueſday the 10th inſtant, whoſe outward appearance had nothing extraordinary in it; but what was ſeen within, gives great reaſon to believe her to be a maſked pirate, as ſhe was armed, at all points, as a privateer, but had only two of the ſixteen double-fortified four-pounders ſhe carries, upon her deck. The perſon who managed the buſineſs of this veſſel, paſſed a pretty conſiderable ſum in counterfeit Joes, in payment for Negroes, which the rigour of our government obliges us to ſell and deliver in the night; a circumſtance that has greatly contributed to the execution of this villainy.

"They ſhipped a pilot here for Demarara, to give a better appearance to their pretended project of going there in queſt of cotton, but ſent him on ſhore in the evening, when they were preparing to receive the Negroes; and it is from him we get our information of the warlike apparatus they had concealed on board, and the ſuſpicious behaviour of the crew.

"The intereſt we perſonally have in purſuing and detecting theſe villains, is but a ſecond conſideration with us, when compared to the hazard the unwary might be expoſed to from a ſet made deſperate by an accumulation of vice; and we are confident you will have the goodneſs to applaud the motives which have induced us to take this liberty.

We have the honor to be, with great conſideration and reſpect, your moſt obedient, and moſt humble ſervants."

"P. S. The circular letter, of which the preceding is a copy, was written in that haſte, a matter of ſuch conſequence made unavoidable.

"We have ſince had good information that the brig is called the Eliza, of London, as written on her ſtern;—that ſhe was the famous privateer out of Jamaica in the laſt war, called the Defiance;—that William Johnſon, who appears to have the direction of the veſſel, married a woman of St. Chriſtopher's, and that his mother lives now at St. Martin's;——that Hugh Thomas, captain of the brig, commanded a privateer out of Tortola in the war, and that he has long been connected with Johnſon.—John Wetheril, who bargained for the Negroes, has a brother at St. Kitts.——The Joes they paid, to a conſiderable amount, have all proved falſe.

"The brig Eliza is a long low veſſel, but not pilot boat-built, has a copper bottom, and red ſides, ſingle deck; her quarter deck runs ſomething before the main maſt, and has an unuſual curve in the quarter deck beams; the entrance into the cabin is by a ſtepladder from the quarter deck into a ſteerage, in which, on each ſide, there is a ſleeping birth, from whence you enter the cabin, which is very low; there ſeemed to be but one ſleeping place on each ſide, though the length would nearly admit of two; and without theſe births were lockers, which formed the ſeats.

"There were four or ſix Negro ſailors, and ſix or eight white ones on board; in the cabin were four perſons, one rather above the middle ſize, with a ruddy complexion and black hair; he had on a black coat, and called himſelf William Johnſon; another, about the ſame ſtature, well made, marked with the ſmall pox, ſoft ſpeech, and with a Scotch accent, called himſelf John Wetheril, ſaid he was born in Cumberland, in England, and that the brig did belong to Briſtol; he wore a cloth coloured coat. This perſon treated for the Negroes and managed the buſineſs from the beginning to the counting the money on board; there is a ſedateneſs and ſteadineſs in his manners, which left no room for ſuſpicion in the ſhort time there was occaſion to know him. The perſon who acted as captain is fat and luſty, his ſtature about five feet ten, with a round ruddy freckled face. The boy handſome and well ſhaped, about 13 years old.

"The Negroes received here were, 28 men, 2 men-boys, 3 boys, 6 women, and 1 girl; all Gold Coaſt ſlaves, for which he had a bill of parcels and receipt, as for caſh

"It ſeems that a pilot had been ſhipped here to go in the brig to Demarara, who was on board all day, but was diſcharged at night. He ſays they had fourteen guns in the hold, two arm-cheſts upon the quarter deck: in all, about twenty men on board, which he ſaw; and that they made a very ſuſpicious appearance.

CHARLESTON, (S. C.) April 28.

Captain Strong brought with him from Philadelphia, two buoys of a very large ſize, and moſt judicious conſtruction, with chains, ſinkers, and other tackle for mooring them. The corporation intend on Thurſday next to lay them on the oppoſite ſpits on the north and ſouth bar of Charleſton harbour.

Philadelphia, May 17.

Can any thing, ſays a correſpondent, more feelingingly demonſtrate the neceſſity of veſting in Congreſs the powers requiſite to maintain the national ſovereignty, that her preſent incapacity either to demand or to purchaſe the freedom of her citizens who languiſh in Algiers? This is not a ſubject which can be perplexed by narrow ſyſtems, of local politics, but every man who knows the value of liberty, and who, in his own, or in the perſon of ſome relation or friend, is expoſed to the chance of lamenting its loſs, will ſpurn at the paltry conſiderations of private intereſt, diſregard the partial views of a particular diſtrict, and ſoaring beyond the mere delegate, will be ſolicitous only to act as becomes the man.

A correſpondent who has travelled through the remote counties of Pennſylvania, has ſeen with pleaſure the ſtyle of cultivation and improvement that prevails. The earth though charged with few of the luxuries of life, teems with all its neceſſaries: the houſes though ſmall, are commodious, though artleſs are neat; and ſo, in other reſpects, though little is done for oſtentation, every thing ſeems calculated for comfort. The fortune of a ſtate, it may be obſerved, is not to be found in the riches of a few opulent cultivators, but depends abſolutely upon the general circumſtances, diffuſed throughout the whole claſs of huſbandmen.

Waſhington College, Cheſter-Town, Maryland,
May 12, 1787.

On Tueſday the 22d inſt. will be held the Fourth Anniverſary Commencement in Waſhington College. We hear that there is a large claſs of candidates for degrees in the arts; and that the public exerciſes, which are upon very intereſting ſubjects, will be opened in the church at Cheſter-Town, at half paſt ten o'clock in the forenoon.

In the evening of the ſame day, we are further informed, that the Graduates will exhibit the tragedy of Guſtavus Vaſa, the Great Deliverer of Sweden from Daniſh Tyranny: a performance replete with the moſt animating ſentiments of liberty, heroiſm, and public ſpirit.

And on the evening following, it is propoſed to entertain the public with the exhibition of that beautifully chaſte, moral, and entertaining comedy of the celebrated Dr. Goldſmith, called The Miſtakes of a Night.

The Maryland Gazette of Friday laſt gives the following as a Return of the Delegates appointed to meet in this city, for the purpoſe of reviſing the Articles of Confederation.

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

An ACT for aſcertaining and confirming to certain perſons called Connecticut claimants, the lands by them claimed within the county of Luzerne, and for other purpoſes therein mentioned.

WHEREAS an unhappy diſpute for many years ſubſiſted between the province and ſtate of Pennſylvania, on the one part, and the colony and ſtate of Connecticut on the other part, relative to certain lands within the charter boundary of Pennſylvania, but which were claimed by Connecticut, as falling within the limits of her charter; which diſpute was finally terminated by the decree of the court of commiſſioners at Trenton, on the thirtieth day of December, one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty-two, in the mode preſcribed by the articles of confederation of the United States; by which decree the queſtion between the two ſtates, was decided in favor of Pennſylvania: And whereas, before the termination of the ſaid claim of Connecticut, a number of its inhabitants, with their aſſociates, ſettled upon and improved divers tracts of land, lying on or near to the northeaſt branch of the river Suſquehanna, and the waters thereof, and now within the county of Luzerne: And whereas, parts of the ſame lands have been claimed under titles derived from the late proprietaries of Pennſylvania; and theſe interfering claims have occaſioned much contention, expence and bloodſhed: and this aſſembly being deſirous of putting an end to thoſe evils, by confirming ſuch of the Connecticut claims, as were acquired by actual ſettlers prior to the termination of the ſaid diſpute, agreeably to the petition of a number of the ſaid ſettlers, and by granting a juſt compenſation to the Pennſylvania claimants: And whereas, the lands aforeſaid, claimed by the Connecticut ſettlers, have been uſually aſſigned to them in rights, or lots, of about three hundred acres each, which rights, or lots, have either been entire, or in two or more diviſions: therefore

Be it enacted, and it it hereby enacted by the repreſentatives of the freemen of the commonwealth of Pennſylvania in general aſſembly met, and by the authority of the ſame, That all the ſaid rights or lots now lying within the county of Luzerne, which were occupied or acquired by Connecticut claimants, who were actual ſettlers there, at or before the termination of the claim of the ſtate of Connecticut, by the decree aforeſaid, and which rights, or lots, were particularly aſſigned to the ſaid ſettlers prior to the ſaid decree, agreeably to the regulations then in force among them, be, and they are hereby confirmed to them and their heirs and aſſigns: Provided, that all the claimants whoſe lots are hereby confirmed, ſhall by themſelves, guardians, or other lawful agents, within eight months, next after the paſſing of this act, prefer to the commiſſioners herein after mentioned, their reſpective claims to the lots aforeſaid, therein ſtating the grounds of their claims, and ſufficiently deſcribing the lots claimed, ſo that the ſame may be known and aſcertained, and ſupport the ſame by reaſonable proofs.

And whereas, it will be neceſſary to inſtitute a ſummary mode of aſcertaining and eſtabliſhing the right of each claimant. Be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That Peter Muhlenberg, Timothy Pickering and Joſeph Montgomery, eſquires, be and they are hereby appointed commiſſioners for the purpoſes hereinafter expreſſed and declared, and in caſe of the death, abſence or refuſal to ſerve of any or all of the ſaid commiſſioners, the ſupreme executive council, are hereby authoriſed and required to ſupply the vacancy or vacancies occaſioned thereby, by other new appointment or appointments.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall repair to the county of Luzerne, within two months next after the paſſing of this act, and at ſuch place within the ſame county, and at ſuch time as they the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall appoint to meet together, for the purpoſe of receiving and examining the claims of all perſons to the lots intended by this act to be confirmed. And the ſaid commiſſioners are hereby empowered to adjourn their meeting from time to time, and to ſuch places, within the ſaid county, as they ſhall judge beſt, for the proper and ſpeedy execution of their commiſſion. And that all perſons intereſted in the ſaid lots, may be duly notified to make and ſupport their claims thereto, within the time preſcribed by this act, the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall cauſe it to be publiſhed in one or more of the news-papers, printed in Pennſylvania and Connecticut, with an advertiſement ſubjoined, expreſſing the time and place propoſed for their firſt meeting; and copies of this act, and of the ſaid advertiſement, ſhall alſo be poſted up at ſundry places within the ſaid county, for the information of the inhabitants. And the examination of the ſaid claims ſhall be by witneſſes, on their oaths or affirmations (which the ſaid commiſſioners are ſeverally empowered to adminiſter) and ſuch other evidence as ſhall be produced to the ſaid commiſſioners, or which they can obtain. And of ſuch claims as ſhall be ſupported by evidence ſatisfactory to the ſaid commiſſioners or any two of them, there ſhall be made a fair entry, in which the lots ſo claimed ſhall be deſcribed, and in ſuch manner that the ſame may be clearly known and aſcertained. Provided, That where two or more claims of Connecticut claimants, to the ſame lot, ſhall be preſented, and it ſhall appear to the ſaid commiſſioners by ſatisfactory evidence, that the ſame lot ought to be confirmed, agreeably to the meaning of this act, they ſhall make a fair entry thereof as aforeſaid; and if the ſeveral claimants agree to ſubmit their claims to the determination of the ſaid commiſſioners, they ſhall proceed to hear and determine the ſame accordingly; but if they do not thus agree, either of the claimants may proſecute his claim in the proper court of law, as in ordinary caſes of conteſted titles.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners be, and they are hereby authoriſed to appoint a ſurveyor or ſurveyors to ſurvey all the lots aforeſaid of the Connecticut claimants: and the ſurveys thereof ſhall be returned to the ſaid commiſſioners for their information and aſſiſtance, in proſecuting their enquiries and examinations; and the ſurveys of ſuch of the ſaid lots, the claims to which ſhall be admitted by the ſaid commiſſioners, ſhall by them be afterwards returned, together with their book of entries deſcribing the ſame, to the ſupreme executive council, who ſhall cauſe patents to be iſſued for their confirmation, and each patent ſhall comprehend all the parcels of land, which are to be confirmed to the ſame claimant, or joint-claimants, to whom by the return of the commiſſioners aforeſaid, the ſame ſhall be found to belong: and for each patent there ſhall be paid to the ſecretary of the council, the ſum of twenty ſhillings. And the ſaid ſurveyors ſhall appoint proper perſons for their chain carriers and markers: and the ſurveyors, chain carriers and markers ſhall ſeverally be ſworn or affirmed before a juſtice of the peace, or one of the ſaid commiſſioners, faithfully to perform their reſpective duties; and ſhall be allowed a reaſonable compenſation for their ſervices to be fixed by the ſaid commiſſioners, and paid by the claimants, whoſe claims to the lands ſo ſurveyed ſhall be admitted as aforeſaid, and upon whom the ſame ſhall be apportioned by the ſaid commiſſioners, in the manner they ſhall judge moſt equitable.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That each of the ſaid commiſſioners, before he acts under his commiſſion, ſhall take an oath or affirmation, before one of the members of the ſupreme executive council, or a judge of the ſupreme court, diligently to proceed in the buſineſs of his commiſſion and well and truly to hear and determine upon all claims and queſtions which ſhall come before him, in purſuance of this act, without favor, affection or hope of reward.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners be, and they are hereby authoriſed to appoint a ſuitable perſon for a clerk, who ſhall before them be ſworn or affirmed, faithfully to regiſter all the proceedings of the ſaid commiſſioners in purſuance of this act.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That there be allowed and paid out of the public treaſury, to each of the ſaid commiſſioners twenty ſhillings per day, and to the ſaid clerk fifteen ſhillings per day, for each day they ſhall be employed, in performing the duties required of them by the act.

And whereas the late proprietaries and divers other perſons, have heretofore acquired titles to parcels of the lands aforeſaid, agreeably to the laws and uſages of Pennſylvania, and who will be deprived thereof by the operation of this act, and as juſtice requires that compenſation be made for the lands of which they ſhall thus be diveſted; and as the ſtate is poſſeſſed of other lands, in which an equivalent may be rendered to the claimants under Pennſylvania, and as it will be neceſſary that their claims ſhould be aſcertained by a proper examination.

Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That all perſons having ſuch claims to lands which will be affected by the operation of this act, ſhall be, and they are hereby required, by themſelves, guardians or other lawful agents, within twelve months from the paſſing of this act, to preſent the ſame to the board of property, therein clearly deſcribing thoſe lands, and ſtating the grounds of their claims, and alſo adducing the proper proofs, not only of their titles, but of the ſituations, qualities and values of the lands ſo claimed, to enable the board to judge of the validity of their claims, and of the quantities of vacant lands proper to be granted as equivalents. And for every claim which ſhall be admitted by ſaid board, as duly ſupported, the equivalent by them allowed, may be taken either in the old or new purchaſe, at the option of the claimant; and warrants and patents, and all other acts of the public offices relating thereto, ſhall be performed free of expence. The ſaid board ſhall alſo allow ſuch a quantity of vacant land, to be added to ſuch equivalent, as ſhall in their judgment be equal to the expences, which muſt neceſſarily be incurred in locating and ſurveying the ſame. And that the board of property may in every caſe obtain ſatisfactory evidence of the quality and value of the land, which ſhall be claimed as aforeſaid, under the proprietary title, they may require the commiſſioners aforeſaid, during their ſitting in the ſaid county of Luzerne, to make the neceſſary enquiries, by the oaths or affirmations of lawful witneſſes, to aſcertain thoſe points; and it ſhall be the duty of the ſaid commiſſioners to enquire and report accordingly.

Signed by order of the Houſe,

THOMAS MIFFLIN, Speaker.

Enacted into a Law at Philadelphia, on Wedneſday the twenty eighth day of March, in the year of Our Lord one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty ſeven.

Philadelphia, April 2d, 1787.

IN Purſuance of the foregoing Act of the General Aſſembly of Pennſylvania, we hereby give Public Notice, That the Commiſſioners thereby appointed will meet at the houſe of Col. Zebulon Butler, in Wilkeſborough (otherwiſe called Wilkeſbarre) in the county of Luzerne, on Monday the twenty-eighth day of May next, to receive and examine the Connecticut Claims to Lands in that county, and to perform the other duties required of them by the ſaid act.

PETER MUHLENBERG, } Commiſſioners.
TIMOTHY PICKERING, }

On the Meeting of the GRAND CONVENTION at PHILADELPHIA, May 14, 1787.

PROPITIOUS powers! who heal the mind,
Let us your balmy influence find,
Come, dwell within the heart:
Correct tempeſtuous paſſions there,
The rude attacks of vice and care,
And all your joys impart.

Sweet Friendſhip, come, mild as a dove,
A handmaid to thy ſiſter Love,
Poſſeſs and guide the ſoul:
Eaſe hard afflictions—envy's ſtings
Heal with your virtuous neſtling wings,
Ingratitude control.

Baniſh diſtruſt and jealous fear,
Let Confidence her enſigns rear,
Your banners glorious ſhine:
So ſhall your country's lateſt breath
From grateful hearts declare your worth,
Your origin divine.

Let white-wing'd Charity diſplay
Her beauteous form and ſilver ray!
The nymphs and ſwains rejoice:
Sweet Hope will gladden all the land,
Benevolence again forth ſtand,
And Mirth fill ev'ry voice.

Faction ſhall ceaſe, Induſtry ſmile,
Nor next-door neighbours each revile,
But friendly bands combine:
The powerful league will all unite,
Deſtroy invidious ſmiles and ſpite,
As harmony doth join.

The fond acclaim will reach afar,
Malice ſhall ſtop her purpos'd war,
Abaſh'd ſhe'll hide her head:
Juſtice erect her ſeat on high,
And ſlumb'ring Virtue with a ſigh
Riſe from th' inglorious dead.

The heralds of our land proclaim,
With ever-ſounding peals of fame,
Deeds bright as yonder ſtars:
Patriots and heroes ſhall no more
In ſolemn ſadneſs quit our ſhore,
After ſuch glorious wars.

Wars which the gods were pleas'd to ſee,
Fought for their daughter Liberty!
Nor could they help withold:
So fairly won—be her your pride!
May each brave ſon woo ſuch a bride!
So true—nor bought with gold.

Now tho' ſhe ſeem a little ſhy,
'Tis but her art your ſtrength to try,
Your virtue and your truth:
If you but knew her grateful heart,
With ſuch dear charms you could not part!
All goodneſs, love and youth.

Tell her fair deeds, hiſtorians wiſe,
And let your ſongs, ye bards, ariſe!
Swell loud the trump of fame:
Proclaiming angels, doth rehearſe,
"The good and brave deſerve their verſe,"
Recorded be each name.

See from yon blue ethereal ſky
Her fellow Genii bending nigh,
They beckon her to ſtay,
Seeing well pleas'd the heav'nly ſigns,
She to her wiſh'd for taſk reſigns—
And wings her courſe this way.

O Gratitude! thy all's at ſtake!
Awake, fair Goddeſs! quick awake!
'Tis Love and Friendſhip calls:
Thy country's loſt, if thou ſleep on,
Sweet Liberty will ſoon be gone,
Freedom's fair fabric falls.

Columbia yet doth own her ſons.
Forward her pride and fav'rite comes,
To eaſe her pain and grief;
Patriot ſages him ſurround!
O! may they be with wiſdom crown'd,
And grant her due relief.

Fair Liberty will then ſoar high,
And joyful tell through all the ſky,
Celeſtial deeds prevail.
Vile Diſcord ſoon muſt ſink to hell,
With imps and fiends there for to yell,
Nor more our peace aſſail.

Dry up your tears, ye maidens fair!
With fineſt flowers adorn your hair!
Your war-try'd hero comes:
He comes, and grace ſits on his brow!
Bow down, ye tyrants, lowly bow,
Sound trumpets, fifes and drums!

ANECDOTE.

AS a certain ſteward was viewing the boundaries of his lord's royalty, amongſt the reſt of the company he was honoured with the attendance of the clergyman of the pariſh: and coming to a certain mark in the boundary, which he wiſhed the whole company particularly to remember, Here, ſays he to the clergyman, pleaſe to take this ſpade and dig up a turf; but dig you cannot, and to beg you are aſhamed —— Hark ye, replies the clergyman, this was not ſaid of the clergy, but of an unjuſt ſteward.

Peter Wikoff, Auctioneer.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

PETER WIKOFF.

The houſe is 35 feet front by 40 feet deep, built of brick. There are on the premiſes, a very good brick ſmoak houſe, and a large frame ſtable, together with a very fine large garden, a few fruit trees back of the houſe, and a pump of excellent water in the yard: the ſituation of the above premiſes is high and healthy; there is alſo 4 acres of excellent land belonging to the ſame, which yields a plentiful crop of hay, very good in quality.

Terms of ſale are, one half the purchaſe money in gold or ſilver, or the new emiſſion of this ſtate, to be paid immediately, and the remaining half in 6 months from the day of ſale, when an indiſputable title will be given, and poſſeſſion may be had immediately. The premiſes are clear of every incumbrance. For further particulars enquire of JAMES M'CREA, in Front ſtreet, oppoſite the Coffee-Houſe. May 19

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

ARE SELLING BY William Whiteſide,

At the Tea Warehouſe.

On Tueſday, the 8th Day of May, 1787, a Number of Gentlemen aſſembled, and agreed to aſſociate themſelves in a Society, to be entitled, "The Philadelphia Society for alleviating the Miſeries of Public Priſons"—When the following Paper was read, and reſolved upon to be the future conſtitution of this ſociety, to wit:——

CONSTITUTION of the PHILADELPHIA SOCIETY, for alleviating the Miſeries of Public Priſons.

——"I was in priſon, and ye came unto me,
"And the king ſhall anſwer, and ſay unto them, verily I ſay unto you inaſmuch as ye have done it
"unto one of the leaſt of theſe my brethren, ye
"have done it unto me." Matth. xxv. 36.—40.

WHEN we conſider that the obligations of benevolence, which are founded on the precepts and example of the Author of chriſtianity, are not cancelled by the follies or crimes of our fellow creatures; and, when we reflect upon the miſeries which penury, hunger, cold, unneceſſary ſeverity, unwholſome apartments, and guilt, (the uſual attendants of priſons) involve with them, it becomes us to extend our compaſſion to that part of mankind, who are the ſubjects of theſe miſeries. By the aids of humanity, their undue and illegal ſufferings may be prevented: the links, which ſhould bind the whole family of mankind together under all circumſtances, be preſerved unbroken: and, ſuch degrees and modes of puniſhment may be diſcovered and ſuggeſted, as may, inſtead of continuing the habits of vice, become the means of reſtoring our fellow-creatures to virtue and happineſs. From a conviction of the truth and obligation of theſe principles, the ſubſcribers have aſſociated themſelves under the title of "The Philadelphia Society, for alleviating the Miſeries of Public Priſons." For effecting theſe purpoſes, they have adopted the following conſtitution:——

I. The officers of the ſociety ſhall conſiſt of a preſident, two vice-preſidents, two ſecretaries, a treaſurer, four phyſicians, an electing committee of twelve, and an acting committee of ſix members; all of whom, except the laſt mentioned committee, ſhall be choſen annually by ballot, on the ſecond Second-day, called Monday, in the month, called January.

II. The preſident, and in his abſence, one of the vice-preſidents ſhall preſide in all meetings, and ſubſcribe all the public acts of the ſociety. The preſident, or in his abſence, either of the vice preſidents ſhall moreover have the power of calling a ſpecial meeting of the ſociety whenever he ſhall judge proper. A ſpecial meeting ſhall likewiſe be called at any time when ſix members of the ſociety ſhall concur in requeſting it.

III. The ſecretaries ſhall keep fair records of the proceedings of the ſociety, and ſhall correſpond with ſuch perſons and ſocieties as may be judged neceſſary to promote the views and objects of the inſtitution.

IV. The treaſurer ſhall keep all the monies and ſecurities belonging to the ſociety, and ſhall pay all orders ſigned by the preſident or one of the vice-preſidents, which orders ſhall be his vouchers for his expenditures,—he ſhall, before he enter upon his office, give a bond of not leſs than two hundred pounds, for the faithful diſcharge of the duties of it.

V. The buſineſs of the phyſicians ſhall be to viſit the priſons when called upon by, or to give advice to the acting committee reſpecting ſuch matters as are connected with the preſervation of the health of perſons confined therein, or ſubject to the government of the officers of the priſons.

VI. The electing committee ſhall have the ſole power of admitting new members. Two thirds of them ſhall be a quorum for this purpoſe; and the concurrence of a majority of them, by ballot, when met, ſhall be neceſſary for the admiſſion of a member. No member ſhall be admitted, who has not been propoſed at a general meeting of the ſociety; nor ſhall an election for a member take place in leſs than one month after the time of his being propoſed.

VII The acting committee ſhall viſit the public priſons, or ſuch other places of confinement or puniſhment as are ordained by law, at leaſt, once every week. They ſhall enquire into the circumſtances of the perſons confined; ſhall report ſuch abuſes as they ſhall diſcover to the officers of government who are authoriſed to redreſs them; and ſhall examine the influence of confinement or puniſhment upon the morals of the perſons who are the ſubjects of them. They ſhall have a right, with the concurrence of the preſident, or one of the vice-preſidents, to draw on the treaſurer for ſuch ſums of money as ſhall be neceſſary to carry on the buſineſs of their appointment. Four of them ſhall be a quorum. After the firſt election, two of their number ſhall be relieved from duty at each quarterly meeting, and two members ſhall be appointed to ſucceed them.

VIII. Every member, upon his admiſſion, ſhall ſubſcribe the conſtitution of the ſociety, and contribute ten ſhillings annually, in quarterly payments, towards defraying its contingent expences. If he neglect to pay the ſame for more than two years, he ſhall, upon due notice being given him of the delinquency, ceaſe to be a member.

IX. The ſociety ſhall meet on the ſecond Second-day, called Monday, in the months, called January, April, July and October, at ſuch place as ſhall be agreed to by a majority of the ſociety.

X. No law or regulation ſhall contradict any part of the conſtitution of the ſociety; nor ſhall any law or alteration in the conſtitution be made without being propoſed at a previous meeting. All queſtions ſhall be decided, where there is a diviſion, by a majority of votes. In thoſe caſes, where the ſociety is equally divided, the preſiding officer ſhall have a caſting vote.

The preſent Officers of the Society are,—

Preſident. WILLIAM WHITE.

OBSERVATIONS Recommendatory of the PHILADELPHIA SOCIETY for alleviating the Miſeries of Public Priſons.

THERE is nothing which has a tendency more highly to dignify or adorn a nation, or which can better promote the eaſe, happineſs and comfort of a people, than the number and ſkilful direction of its public inſtitutions, for neceſſary and charitable uſes, nothing has handed down to us, with ſo high a degree of luſtre, the reputation of ancient Greece and Rome, as the monuments which remain of their public edifices; while all their other greatneſs has vaniſhed like a dream, theſe ſtill retain their ſublimity; and, wherever they appear, are found worthy of a people, majeſtic, even in their ruins. As modern nations have advanced in knowledge, wealth and power, the number of their inſtitutions, for uſeful purpoſes, have been proportionably augmented, and the numerous ſpires which adorn their vaſt cities, ſeem every where to remind the approaching traveller, of the majeſty of the people, whoſe capital he is about to viſit. If ſuch then be the progreſs of ſociety, how happy muſt it make every patriotic boſom to ſee our own country advancing ſo faſt by ſimilar eſtabliſhments, to an equal degree of celebrity and fame. We, whoſe ſettlement on theſe ſhores is of ſo recent a date, every day behold new academies, hoſpitals, diſpenſaries, and public inſtitutions of all kinds, ariſe, at once accommodating the citizens, and ornamenting their metropolis. I can ſcarce walk out without diſcovering conſtantly improvements in the appearance of our city; where a large, cumbrous, and unhealthy gaol and work-houſe exhibited their gloomy fronts, we now ſee almoſt a ſquare of elegant and handſome brick buildings, new market houſes, where neceſſary, are erected, new ferries opened, churches ornamented and repaired, ſtreets paved: nor is the attention confined to the living, even the burial-grounds of the dead become reſpected, and encloſed with elegantly ornamented walls, their aſhes protected with a neat, but becoming decency, and, from having been the paſture grounds of all the herds in the vicinity, they are become the ſolemn haunts of meditation, and the ſilent walks of penſive recollection. When we remember, that to thoſe which have been already named, may be added, various other ſocieties, for charitable and literary purpoſes, and, that almoſt all of them are created by voluntary ſubſcriptions, gifts and donations; we can never enough applaud the ſpirit they exhibit, nor enough admire the people whoſe infancy appears ſo diſtinguiſhed by whatever inſtitutions have ornamented other nations, when comparatively arrived at their political zeniths.—But, among all of them, the new one which this publication announces, appears to be one of the moſt valuable, I means the ſociety lately inſtituted under the title of 'the Philadelphia Society, for alleviating the Miſeries of Public Priſons,' the objects of which, to uſe the words of Mr. Burke, are 'to dive into the depths of dungeons; to ſurvey the manſions of ſorrow and pain; to take the gage and dimenſions of miſery, depreſſion and contempt; to remember the forgotten, to attend to the neglected, and to viſit the forſaken,' in other words, by their attentive zeal to prevent, as much as in them lies, the accumulation of human ſufferings, in their moſt common receptacles. By repairing to the gaol and work-houſe, they will frequently have it in their power to diſcover abuſes, and to repreſent them to thoſe who may have it in theirs to redreſs them, to aſſiſt and ſupport virtue, ſhould it at any time be found ſtruggling with oppreſſion, and bring to the light of day many of the myſteries of theſe dark and ſecret receſſes: ſhould they diſcover an unfeeling creditor keeping unneceſſarily his debtor in an hopeleſs confinement, perhaps, by their influence, they may procure him relief, or if not, it may be in their power to retaliate on the hard-hearted creditor the want of compaſſion he may have ſhewn, and ſo deter others from ſimilar offences. Like guardian angels hovering round theſe melancholy abodes, they may abate their horror, and often prove agents in opening the iron gate to the wretched captive, a ſervice on which theſe were formerly employed, and than which, none can be better adapted to an angelic mind; their funds may alſo enable them to releaſe, where proper objects offer, priſoners confined for ſmall debts; to cloath the naked in our dreary winter months, and ſee that proper air be not excluded in the ſummer, they will have before their eyes, as their model, the great Mr. Howard, the friend of mankind, (whoſe name has become illuſtrious throughout Europe, and is juſt riſing in deſerved eſtimation among us) in their hands his book, to aſſiſt them in the arduous undertaking, and in their hearts, a ray at leaſt of the celeſtial flame by which he is animated to inſpire and invigorate their every purſuit; they will come in aid of the merciful deſigns of their country, in its late lenient mitigations of ſanguinary puniſhments and will probably lay the foundation of a charitable ſyſtem, whoſe utility and fame will ſpread and increaſe with the progreſs of ſociety. They will direct their attention alſo to the preſervation of morals in theſe apartments, they will, doubtleſs, remonſtrate with a ſpirit becoming freemen and chriſtians, againſt the oppreſſions under which many of the poor priſoners labour, from heavy and enormous fees: they will apply to the legiſlature for relief on this head, and entreat that the gaoler be made a ſalary officer, and not ſuffered, as at preſent, to ſell liquor to thoſe under his care, or demand any fees or money from them. In ſhort, with a manly, but diſcreet zeal, they will find out every particular, in which this forlorn claſs of mankind can be benefited, and, as far as may be in their power procure the wiſh'd for aſſiſtance

With reſpect to the members of the ſociety, they conſiſt of every denomination, and invite the aſſiſtance of all the charitable and humane, who may be diſpoſed to join them, and who will be informed of the terms of admiſſion, by the conſtitution now publiſhed, in which the names of the officers are printed, without the titles otherwiſe due to their various ſtations; for, as a worthy friend of mine once obſerved reſpecting members of fire companies, that they aſſumed not, in their liſts, the deſignations otherwiſe belonging to them, becauſe, at a fire, no ſuch diſtinctions could be made, ſo in this inſtance of ſufferings no leſs deplorable, nothing further need be ſaid, reſpecting the members who come to their relief, but that they are men engaged in the nobleſt office that can employ human nature, that of mitigating the miſeries of their fellow creatures.

"O great deſign! if executed well,
With patient care, and wiſdom temper'd zeal.
Ye ſons of mercy! do not quit the ſearch;
Drag forth the legal monſters into light,
Wrench from their hands oppreſſion's iron rod,
And bid the cruel feel the pains they give.
Much ſtill untouch'd remains; in this rank age,
Much is the patriot's weeding hand required.
The toils of law, (what dark inſidious men
How cumberous added to perplex the truth,
And lengthen ſimple juſtice into trade.)
Have glorious were the day, that ſaw theſe broke,
And every man within the reach of right."

It is not to be doubted but the fair ſex will alſo willingly become patroneſſes of a deſign ſo amiable, and ſo ſuited to the tenderneſs and ſenſibility which ſo juſtly characteriſe them, their influence is extenſive and irreſiſtable, let it then be engaged in the cauſe of human nature, and of virtue; in ſhort, it is not to be doubted, but in a ſociety ſo uſefully formed, for a purpoſe ſo amiable, and, whoſe annual demands will be ſo ſmall, there will be a general deſire to participate. I already think I ſee the roll ſubſcribed with whatever names are elevated and dignified among us. Anxious amid their other and more periſhing honors, to mingle thoſe laurels, which being like the Civic one at Rome, only obtainable by ſaving the lives of men, will be more likely than any other, to bloſſom and to flouriſh through every revolution of the world, and of time.

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, March 27.

THE Chriſtopher, Gaines, from Falmouth for Charleſton, has been loſt on the coaſt of Ireland, but the crew were ſaved by ſome fiſhing ſloops.

Sedition and anarchy reign at Hoorn in their moſt frightful forms. The Orange party, which is the moſt numerous, on the 13th inſtant, fired upon the armed burgeſſes, when a carpenter had his leg broke. The popular tumult every hour becomes more violent, and we underſtand that the ſtates of Holland have diſpatched two companies of cavalry for the re-eſtabliſhment of tranquility. Hoorn is one of thoſe ſmall cities which votes in the ſtates of Holland with the equeſtrian order, and the other ſmall cities of the minority.

March 28 A letter from Youghall in Ireland, has the following article:—We have had very blowing weather on this part of the coaſt, which has done a conſiderable deal of damage amongſt our coaſting veſſels; five were loſt in this harbour, and ſeveral ſmall craft ſtaved to pieces, and four veſſels belonging to this harbour are on ſhore about a mile from this port, which we are afraid will be loſt.—Some damage has been done on ſhore, but not ſo much as we expected, as it blew a perfect hurricane for about ſix hours. A fiſhing veſſel was loſt, and the maſter and his two apprentices were drowned, and we are afraid we ſhall hear of a great deal more damage being done. The ſtorm began about ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 14th inſt. and laſted till ſix in the evening.

Extract of a letter from Goſport, March 25.

"The Carysfort frigate from the Eaſtward, is expected the firſt fair wind, and will ſail for Gibraltar with Major General O'Hara, to relieve General Elliot."

April 4. In regard to the commercial treaty it is worthy of remark, that there are many perſons in both England and France, who fancy that ruin muſt reſult from the treaty to their reſpective countries. The Engliſh, not very generouſly it muſt be confeſſed, lament that if they eſcape ruin, ſtill the treaty will have a bad effect, in as much as it will prove beneficial to the French; not recollecting, that unleſs the French were to find their account in ſome caſes, they never would be weak enough to carry the terms of the meaſure into effect. But, on the other hand, the French apprehend, that the Engliſh will not only be gainers, but that they will be almoſt in every caſe the principal gainers. They, therefore, reprobate the meaſure in toto. They conſider the French negociators as having been overreached by the Engliſh; and they predict, with no little degree of confidence, the diſgrace of all who were concerned in ſo pernicious a ſyſtem. Such are the oppoſite opinions of perſons on both ſides of the channel. However, they do not ſtrike forcibly at the merits of this ſyſtem, for diſappointed men muſt be expected to ſpeak the language of chagrin, and factious notions will have their courſe.

Advices from l'Orient ſay, that a Conſul appointed by the American Congreſs for the management of commercial concerns, has lately arrived at that port, and has ſent off his credentials to the court of Verſailles.

April 5. Charles duke de Fitz James, peer and marſhal of France, knight of all the king's orders, his majeſty's governor and lieutenant of Upper and Lower Limouſin, who died on Friday laſt, was buried at the Engliſh Benedictines church on Saturday, where James the ſecond is interred. He was the father of the preſent duke who has often viſited this iſland with his highneſs the duke of Orleans.

Extract of a letter from Paris, dated 28th March, 1787.

"This city is at preſent crouded by Engliſhmen of all deſcriptions, ſome in the purſuits of pleaſure, others conſiſting of officers of the army and navy, who from the ſmallneſs of their pay, are neceſſitated to live abroad, but chiefly of the tribe of Britiſh ſpeculators who are preparing to avail themſelves of the commercial treaty. The French, with great reaſon, laugh in their ſleeves at the latter denomination of viſitors, whoſe credulity will afford them an ample field for political as well as mercantile manœuvre; and while the miniſter of England is leading the parliament, by Ignus fatuus, to vote away the permanent intereſt and honor of the nation; the ſucceſſor of that truly great man, the deceaſed Comte de Vergennes, is forming plans for the aggrandizement of France, at the expence of poor Old England, whoſe falling empire is already marked in the book of fate. Witneſs the works at Cherburg, and the fortifications carrying on at Dunkirk, which when finiſhed, will of courſe diſſolve that commercial link, by which the feeble chain of the commercial treaty is ſo looſely faſtened. The ſtate of the French navy was never in ſo formidable a condition as at this time, and the ſhip-wrights in the dock yards are as buſily employed as if this kingdom was engaged in the moſt arduous war. Your poſſeſſions in the Eaſt Indies will be attacked the inſtant the French government is prepared to ſtrike a decided blow,—Troops have been entering at Port l'Orient for ſome weeks paſt in ſhips armed en flute, deſtined for the Mauritias, others have been tranſported in Dutch veſſels; and to be brief, the preſent period of peace appears ſomething ſimilar to one of thoſe intervals which in a thunder ſtorm ſuſpends the awful peal to give redoubled force to the ſucceeding exploſion. Such will I fear prove the deſtiny of Great Britain."

April 6. By letters from Madrid, we learn, that two Syriac prieſts had arrived in that capital, who having given ſuch ſatisfactory proofs of their knowledge in the Eaſtern languages, that his Catholic majeſty had charged them with the tranſlation of the manuſcripts in thoſe languages which make part of the king's library at the palace of the Eſcurial. This news muſt be intereſting to the learned, theſe important books having been but imperfectly known by the ſmall analyſis, given by Michael Ceſary, in the catalogue printed at Madrid in 1760, by order of the preſent king of Spain.

In the remonſtrance made by the Chamber of Accounts, to the French king in Paris, dated in February 1787, there is the following paſſage:—"Your Chamber of Accounts are unfortunately obliged to ſhew to your majeſty, a view of the bankrupts, which are examples of abuſe and impunity; in the ſpace of leſs than twenty years, fifty perſons have failed, by which your royal treaſure has loſt forty millions."

LES NOTABLES.

The different committees, after due deliberation on the ſubject of the cuſtoms and their new regulation—have accepted the king's propoſitions in toto, and with the ſtrongeſt expreſſions of unanimous regard, juſtly approving the abolition of all the interior cuſtoms, as of ſo many obſtructions and embarraſſments to the circulation of commerce, free intercourſe, impartial taxation, and the general welfare of their community.

At the ſame time they repreſent to the king, in terms of very eloquent expreſſions, and at once very liberal and circumſpect, that all excluſive privileges of particular provinces, ſhould be fairly noted. With becoming adverſion to all the circumſtances of each caſe, the original mode and impulſe in each grant; the experience of its continuance; the probable conſequences of its abrogation. Specific mention is made of Alſace, Loraine, and the three Biſhopricks, and with all the force ariſing from the well combined unanimity, they addreſs the king by that patriot paſſion which alone can urge him, to let each local ſuffering, wherever inevitable for the general good, have every proper opening made, for free repreſentation and ample redreſs.

A letter from Poole, ſays, that there will be more ſhips ſent out from that port for the Newfoundland fiſhery this year than they did laſt, and three additional ſhips to Greenland.

Lord North came down to the houſe of commons yeſterday, for the firſt time this ſeſſion, to oppoſe Mr. Beaufoy's motion. His health is much re-eſtabliſhed, and he ſpoke with his uſual vigour of mind. He yet labours under a malady in his eyes, but we are happy to ſay, it is not ſo alarming as has been repreſented.

The following reſolutions were reported yeſterday in the houſe of commons:

"That a duty of cuſtoms of 33l. 13s. be charged upon every ton of Rheniſh, German, or Hungary wines imported into this kingdom in Britiſh built veſſels, and a duty of 37l. 16s. per ton imported in foreign ſhips.

"That a duty of cuſtoms of 19l. 12s. per ton, be charged on all portugal, Madeira, Spaniſh, and other wines, imported into the port of London in Britiſh built ſhips, and a duty of 22l. 8s. per ton in foreign ſhips.

"That a duty of cuſtoms of 16l 16s. per ton, be charged on all Portugal and other wines imported into any other port in Britiſh ſhips, and 19l. 12s. in foreign ſhips."

AMERICA.

BOSTON, May 9.

To all honeſt men whom it may concern.—Know ye, that in one Providence paper only of laſt week, are inſerted notices of upwards of Four Thouſand and Fifty Dollars, in paper bills, being lodged with ſeveral juſtices in diſcharge of twelve debts, due in ſpecie, agreeably to law—And that all this is done, notwithſtanding the late deciſion of the ſuperior court of Rhode Iſland—notwithſtanding the traſh can be purchaſed at the rate of eight in paper for one in ſilver—and notwithſtanding its being in violation of every principle of honor and honeſty.

BALTIMORE, May 15

Proceedings of the General Aſſembly, now convened at Annapolis.

In the Houſe of Delegates, May 11th, 1787.

The bill to lay out ſeveral turnpike roads in Baltimore county, was read the ſecond time by eſpecial order, and the queſtion put, That the ſaid bill do paſs. The yeas and nays being called by Mr. Faw, appeared as follow: Affirmative 27.—Negative 24. So it was reſolved in the affirmative.

True copy from the Proceedings, W. Harwood, Clk.

At a meeting of Conferrees appointed for the purpoſe of conſidering the ſubject of Relief to Private Debtors, were preſent, Charles Carroll of Carrollton, William Perry and Richard Ridgely, Senators—and Thomas Johnſon, Robert Wright, Jeſſe Hollingſworth, Brice T. B. Worthington, and John H. Stone, from the Houſe of Delegates.

The conferrees, having taken into conſideration the diſtreſſed ſituation of private debtors, and deſirous of affording ſome relief, came to the following reſolutions.

Reſolved, That is the opinion of the conferrees, that the inſtalment of private debts is a meaſure at this time neceſſary.

Reſolved, That it is the opinion of the conferrees, that the creditor ſhould be obliged to accept of the propoſed inſtalments from the debtor.

That it is the opinion of the conferrees, that it ſhould be optional with the debtor to accept of the inſtalments as propoſed.

That all debts contracted before the firſt day of September 1786, ſhall be inſtalled, except thoſe debts comprehended in the treaty of peace between the United States and his Britannic Majeſty.

That the propoſed inſtalments ſhall not exceed the term of five years.

That no inſtalment be made of any debt under 20l. current money, but the court may grant a ſtay of execution for any ſum leſs than 20l. not exceeding twelve months.

All ſums above 20l. and under 80l. to be inſtalled for two years.

All ſums above 80l. and under 160l for three years.

All ſums above 160l. and under 500l. for four years.

All ſums above 500l. for five years.

The intereſt of the whole debt to be paid at each inſtalment.

That the debtor ſhall, within three months, give notice to his creditor or his agent, that he intends to inſtall his debt, and appoint a time and place for that purpoſe.

That the debtor ſhall, on inſtalment, give good and ſufficient ſecurity for the debt, and on the creditor's refuſing the ſecurity, the ſufficiency of ſuch ſecurity is to be determined by two magiſtrates of the county where the debtor reſides.

That the creditor, on a bond given by the debtor for the payment under inſtalment, may file the ſame with the clerk of the county, and on nonpayment, the plaintiff, on filing an affidavit, may iſſue execution for the inſtalment due and the intereſt; and if on return of ſuch execution, the debtor can prove a payment, the creditor to pay all coſts of ſuch execution.

That there ſhall be no appeal, or writ of error, to remove any debt inſtalled agreeable to this act, nor any ſuperſedeas allowed.

That Britiſh creditors, comprehended under the treaty of peace, on conſenting to the inſtalment, ſhall have the ſame benefit under the law as other creditors.

The Maryland deputation to the Convention at Philadelphia now ſtands as follows:—Hon. Robert Hanſon Harriſon, James M'Henry, Thomas Sim Lee, Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, and Gabriel Duvall.

On Monday the 7th inſtant, the ſtudents under the tuition of Mr. Magrath, an able profeſſor of the learned languages in this town, were publicly examined, in the preſence of a very reſpectable audience, at Congreſs-Hall, and diſtinguiſhed themſelves by their progreſs and accuracy in the Greek and Latin literature, in a manner that reflects the higheſt honour on this accompliſhed profeſſor and his promiſing pupils.

The LOST MOTION.

IN a certain great houſe, on a late certain day,
A motion eſcap'd which great worth did diſplay;
And not being ſeconded, took its departure
(Unnoticed on record) from a lower aperture.
What pity it is that ſo uſeful a ſcheme
Should be loſt to the public! altho' ſome might deem
It an equal advantage with a paper emiſſion,
If rightly explained, in due form, with permiſſion;
The amount then would ſtand, when embelliſh'd by art,
That the one's but a bubble, the other a f—t;
So in peace we will let them together depart.

The above little Impromptu took its riſe from a recent incident in the Houſe of Senate: A member of that body had been up ſome time, and was nearly at the cloſe of his addreſs to the Houſe, when the poſterior ſound alluded to was very audibly uttered by another member, to the great entertainment of that part of the legiſlature—and upon which, it is ſaid, the Preſident facetiouſly remarked, that the laſt motion had not been ſeconded—'and ſo the motion was loſt.'

Annapolis, May 7, 1787.

PETERSBURG, May 10.

A mad dog! A mad dog! Shoot him! Kill him! cried a young man, running through the ſtreets, loaded with weapons to deſtroy the unfortunate animal.—Alarmed at ſo diſagreeable a ſound, I run to the door, and beheld a ſight indeed! Upwards of fifty of our humane, benevolent and upright citizens, battering and cruſhing to mummy the body of this innocent mortal!—Good God! ſaid I to a friend, have you no mercy—no feeling?—You muſt pardon the crime, ſaid he, as you are ſenſible of the dreadful conſequences, had the dog been permitted to rove at large. But was he really mad? ſaid I.——He was, replied my friend, for he bit ſeveral of his fellow creatures, who, it is ſuppoſed, will experience the ſame horrid contagion. Turning round to an old man who ſtood near me, I aſked if he knew who the dog belonged to?—Yes, Sir, ſaid he, he was once mine, and a faithful ſervant indeed!—but now alas! he is no more! Poor Ponto!——I condoled with him in his loſs, and reflecting on the melancholy ſcene, I bluſhed to think, that had we the gratitude and integrity which that dog once poſſeſſed, what a happy, proſperous and flouriſhing people we might be.

TRIM.

Philadelphia, May 19.

Extract of a letter from Hartford (Connecticut) dated May 13.

'Yeſterday the legiſlature of this ſtate, after a debate of two hours in the lower houſe, appointed Oliver Ellſworth, Dr. Johnſon, and Eraſtus Woolcott, delegates to the convention from Connecticut.'

Men, ſays a correſpondent, are continually deceiving themſelves with vain hopes of advantage from the terror of example, by putting their fellow-creatures to death for crimes, and at the ſame time are removing the only true ground of that hope, by holding up even the moſt guilty as penitents, likely to obtain mercy from their Creator. How vain this hope of advantage from ſuch puniſhments is the fate of Robert Elliott, lately executed here, may be cited as inconteſtible evidence and invincible argument. This man's eldeſt brother was hanged in Ireland for robbery, on which his father with his two remaining ſons fled to this country. One of theſe ſons, Fleming Elliott, was hanged at Cheſter, for murder. We ſhould ſuppoſe that theſe examples were brought as cloſe home to the feelings of Robert, as example can poſſibly be preſſed, and its utmoſt force on the heart of man fully and fairly tried; yet ſo feeble is the effect of this ever-failing experiment, that the execution of two brothers was inſufficient to preſerve from the ſame fate, the third in the twenty-ſeventh year of his age! and, continues this correſpondent, it may be worth the enquiry, Whether the idea of the efficacy of repentance between the ſentence of death and the time of execution, often held out in our public papers, does not really tend to encourage crimes puniſhable with death? Is it not probable, that men of baſe or abandoned principles, on whoſe hearts the terrors of future puniſhments may yet have ſome impreſſions, at the very time they are meditating ſuch crimes, may deceive themſelves by truſting to ſuch opportunity of repentance, and the more boldly make their attempts?

The frequent broils and riots of the criminals employed in the ſtreets of this city, evidence the new ſyſtem of puniſhment incomplete. Almoſt daily are theſe wretches threatening their keepers, and ſeveral times have they proceeded to acts of violence. Laſt Wedneſday they nearly effected, (but have vowed to complete) the murder of one of them. If they are with difficulty reſtrained now, while in a populous city, what will be the caſe when employed in the repairs of the ſolitary roads.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Newport, Rhode-Iſland, to his Friend in this City.

"Your obſervations on the ſtate of our government, are truly juſt, and all the hopes I have, are, that they will conduct in ſuch a way, that the other ſtates, for their own ſafety, will be obliged to take the government from us, and divide it.

"We have for the laſt two weeks been hard at work, with intent, if poſſible, to make a change of men and meaſures, but I am ſorry to ſay it was without effect.

"The laſt year's tranſactions are ſo agreeable to the people in the country, that they have carried all before them, ſo that the ſame people are in again; and the paper money, which is eight for one, will continue a tender until both public and private debts are paid, and then it will run out as the old continental money did.

"Such is our ſituation, that I wiſh myſelf out of the government, and any where would be agreeable to me, ſo that I might with my ſtock and little property be ſafe from villains, for I do aſſure you I am very uneaſy.

"The members from Providence and this town brought on the queſtion, Whether they ſhould ſend members to the convention at Philadelphia, or not? It paſſed the lower houſe, by a majority of two; but when brought before the upper houſe, there was a majority of two to one againſt ſending them—therefore we ſhall not be repreſented, and, I ſuppoſe, finally, be put out of the union.

"Our country deputies are determined to ruin the trading part of the ſtate, and, I much fear, they will accompliſh their ends."

ANNA's URN.

(Written by GENERAL BURGOYNE.)

ENCOMPASS'D in an angel's frame,
An angel's virtue lay;
Too ſoon did Heav'n aſſert its claim,
And call'd its own away.
My Anna's worth, my Anna's charms,
Can never more return;
What now ſhall fill thoſe widow'd arms?
Ah me! my Anna's Urn.

Can I forget that bliſs refin'd,
Which, bleſt with her I knew?
Our hearts in ſacred bonds entwin'd
Were bound by love too true.
That rural train which once were us'd
In feſtive dance to turn,
So pleas'd, when Anna they amus'd,
Now weeping deck her Urn.

The ſoul eſcaping from its chain,
She claſp'd me to her breaſt,
To part with thee is all my pain,
She cry'd, then ſunk to reſt.
While mem'ry ſhall her ſeat retain,
From beauteous Anna torn,
My heart ſhall breathe its ceaſeleſs train
Of ſorrow o'er her Urn.

There, with the earlieſt dawn, a dove
Laments her murder'd mate,
There Philomela, loſt to love,
Tells the pale moon her fate.
With yew and ivy round me ſpread,
My Anna there I'll mourn;
For all my ſoul, now ſhe is dead,
Concenters in her Urn.

ANECDOTES of the late JONAS HANWAY, Eſq.

(From Mr. Pugh's Life of Him, lately publiſhed.)

IT was Mr. Hanway, who anſwered the kind reproach of a friend in high ſtation, for not coming oftner to dine with him, by ſaying, 'Indeed I cannot afford it.'

In 1762, he publiſhed 'Eight Letters to the Duke of ———,' on this cuſtom of giving vails. The nobleman here meant was the Duke of Newcaſtle. The letters are written in that humorous ſtile which is moſt attractive of general notice, and was beſt adapted to the ſubject. It was Sir Timothy Waldo who firſt put him upon this plan. Sir Timothy had dined with the Duke of N———, and on leaving his houſe, was contributing to the ſupport and inſolence of a train of ſervants, who lined the hall; and at laſt putting a crown into the hand of the cook, who returned it, ſaying, Sir, I do not take ſilver—'Don't you indeed,' ſaid the worthy Baronet, putting it into his pocket, 'then I do not give gold.' Among the ludicrous circumſtances in Mr. Hanway's letters, is one which happened to himſelf. He was paying the ſervants of a reſpectable friend for a dinner, which their maſter had invited him to, one by one, as they appeared:

'Sir, your great coat'—a ſhilling.
'Your hat'—a ſhilling.
'Stick'—a ſhilling.
'Umbrella'—a ſhilling.
'Sir, your gloves'—'Why, friend, you may keep the gloves; they are not worth a ſhilling.'

In one of Mr. Hanway's walks, in the neighbourhood of Park-lane, he was met by a man much inebriated, who approached him in ſo irregular a direction, that it might have been concluded he had buſineſs on both ſides the way. Mr. Hanway ſtopped when he came up to him, to give him his choice which he would take; but the man ſtood as ſtill as his intoxication would permit him, without attempting to paſs on either ſide. After viewing each other a moment, ſays Mr. Hanway, 'My friend, you ſeem as if you had rather drank too much;' to which the man replied, 'You ſeem as if you had ate too little.'

He never took any of his ſervants from the recommendation of his friends; but commonly advertiſed for them, appointing their applications to be left at ſome tavern. One advertiſement for a cook was anſwered by more than an hundred letters, and he directed his clerk to requeſt the attendance of about a fourth part of this number on different hours next day, which he dedicated to this buſineſs; but, by an unlucky miſtake, they were all appointed to come at the ſame hour; and at noon, on a hot day, in the midſt of ſummer, were ſeen upwards of twenty cooks, parading the ſquare, broiling in the ſun, enquiring for Mr. A. B. and attended by ſeveral hundred ſpectators.

Mr. Hanway, at another time, had hired a coachman, and was telling him the duty he required, concluding, 'You will attend with the reſt of my family every evening at prayers.'—'Prayers, Sir!' ſays the deſcendant of Jehu. 'Why, did you never ſay your prayers?' aſked Mr. Hanway. 'I have never lived in a praying family.'—'But have you any objection to ſay your prayers?'—'No, Sir, I have no objection; but I hope you will conſider it in my wages.'

It is to be mentioned as a remarkable fact, that one of Mr. Hanway's two pamphlets on bread was written by Mr. Pugh, his biographer, from Mr. Hanway's dictation, in one forenoon, though it contains ninety pages, octavo, with ſeveral calculations of the proportionate produce of grain, when ground, dreſſed and baked.

N. B. All kinds of Merchandize on Commiſſion, diſpoſed of at Private Sale.

Maryland, Elk Ridge, November 14.

FOR SALE,

Upwards of Four Thouſand Acres of

Rich and valuable Land,

By the ſubſcriber, at Public Vendue, ſituated as hereafter deſcribed:

SEVEN hundred acres of Land, ſituate in Ann Arundel county, on Elk Ridge, near the dwelling houſe of the ſubſcriber, being part of the tract of land called Caleb's Purchaſe and the Anvil; on which is erected a tenement; this land is well wooded and watered, has a conſiderable quantity of good meadow ground, 20 acres whereof are cleared; it is ſituate about 4 miles from Elk Ridge landing, and 12 from Baltimore Town. The ſale of this land will be on the 11th day of June next, at Mrs. Ball's tavern, on Elk Ridge.

On the 11th day of June next, will be ſold a Hobb's tavern, on the road leading from Baltimore-Town to Frederick Town, 850 acres of Land, on which there is a tenement, being part of a tract called Pretty Sally, ſituate in Frederick county, about two miles from Hobb's tavern. This land will be laid off in parcels not exceeding 200 acres.

On the 11th day of June next will be ſold at the ſubſcriber's Plantation, commonly called the Old Quarter on Lingonore, 850 acres of Land, being part of a tract called Cold Friday; ſituate on Lingonore, in Frederick county. This land is of good quality, has an excellent mill ſeat on it, and will be ſold in parcels not exceeding 200 acres—Alſo,

427	acres, called Brandywine Springs
230	The addition
72	The 2d addition
300	Part of Moab
50	Mount-Pleaſant
544	Reſurvey on Darby's Delight
62	Addition to ditto
43	Neceſſity
45	Omiſſion
31	Neglect

Theſe lands lay adjoining each other.

804 acres.

On the laſt aforeſaid tracts of land there are three very valuable plantations; on one of which, called the Old Quarter, there are upwards of 250 acres of cleared land, 60 acres of meadow now in graſs, and about 50 acres more may be eaſily made, of the firſt quality. This plantation is equal in value and richneſs to any in this ſtate; it is well calculated for planting and farming; has four dwelling houſes on it, two barns, two tobacco houſes, ſtables, corn houſes, and every other out-houſe neceſſary on a valuable eſtate, and is in excellent order for cropping. It has alſo ſeveral fine ſtreams of water running through it, and on one of which there is a valuable mill ſeat.

The other lands adjoining, are alſo of ſuperior quality, and will be laid off into convenient lots, from two to three hundred acres, as may ſuit purchaſers.

The above lands advertiſed for ſale on the 11th June, are ſituate about 12 miles from Frederick-Town, 40 from Baltimore-Town, on the great public road, very convenient to ſeveral merchant mills, and in every reſpect are equal to any lands in that part of the country.

The terms of ſale for the above property are, a ſmall part of the purchaſe money in hand, the particular portion will be made known on the day of ſale, and the reſidue in two annual payments, on intereſt; the purchaſer to give bond, with approved ſecurity, when poſſeſſion will be given. Plans of the lands may, in the mean time, be ſeen at Hobb's tavern, and at the Old Quarters. THOMAS DORSEY.

THIS DAY,

The 21ſt Inſtant, at Nine o'clock in the Morning,

At the Northern Liberty Auction-ſtore,

Will begin the Sale of a large and freſh

Aſſortment of Merchandize.

Among which are,

An Invoice of beautiful Silks.

THE Auctioneers return their warmeſt thanks to their Friends and the Public, for the encouragement they have hitherto received, and aſſure them, that they will uſe every effort to merit a continuation of their favors. The fixed Days of Sale for Merchandize, in future, are Mondays and Fridays, and for Houſhold Furniture and other out-door Goods, on Saturdays in the forenoon, as uſual. May 21.

C. Febiger & Co. Auctioneers.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

Taunton, April 2. 2aw3w GEORGE HASTINGS.

NEW-YORK, May 18.

The following piece, together with a copy of Doctor Church's letter, encloſed in a political letter to a gentleman in Edinburgh, was ſent by Miſs Margaret W—t—n, who went from New-York for England, in the Britiſh packet, in November 1775. On her arrival in England, ſhe was ſearched, and theſe papers, with ſeveral other letters, were taken from her, by order of the miniſtry.

Britannia's loſt! let freedom drop a tear.
And thou, O Britain! dread the coming year.

UNRIVAL'D goddeſs! lovely in diſtreſs!
With what a paſſionate look ſhe caſt her eyes
On her lov'd Britain! once her guardian care,
And as ſhe mourn'd her fallen ſons, adown
Her peerleſs cheeks the filial torrent run.
With looks all wanly wild, her quiv'ring voice
At firſt but faintly ſpoke, as if aſhamed
Her love for that imperious people
Had caus'd her ſtoop too low:—But quick collected
Stood and took her flight; and as ſhe hover'd
On the ſummit of a weſtern mountain,
She caſt an eye of pity and reproach
On that ſelf right'ous ſpot ſhe'd lov'd ſo long,
And thus in piercing accents did complain:
'O vainly proud, deluded iſle! how oft
Have I thee guided in the road to praiſe;
Inſpir'd thy ſons to glorious deeds! how oft
Victorious has thy arms return'd—the Dæmons of diſcord allay'd—and made
Thy rule the envy'd glory of a wond'ring world?
Then private virtue, and fair public faith
Did mark thy character pre eminent;—
Then did thy commerce gladden ev'ry ſwain;
How did thy merchants and thy cities ſhine!
And add a ſtrength thou never knew before?
Whilſt from th' abundant treaſures of the Eaſt
A mighty fleet thee annual riches brought,
The bounteous Weſt their parent genius caught
Daringly bold, thy ſavage wilds explor'd,
And by hard induſtry ſudden aroſe
A copious ſource of never-ceaſing wealth—
Which they with unſuſpecting confidence
Heap'd in a parent's lap—firm filial love!
And in return took what thou had to give;—
Thy cuſtoms, manners, and thy wars partook,
Nor were they narrow in their public grants.—
But now, alas! where is that chearful ſmile,
That independence and integrity,
Thoſe glorious earnings for the public good!
Which once my gen'rous Britons us'd to have?
They're rarely to be found but on record.
Indeed—thou'rt old and avaricious grown,
Env'ing the wealth thy ſons ſo dearly earn'd,
And not content with honeſt thriving gain,
Thy offspring would enſlave and rob mankind.
For thy viciated, voracious maw,
Edg'd with a barren thirſt for pow'r and gold,
All worldly ills ſucks in—which makes at laſt
Of thine own ſtrength a prey; graſping at all
Thy trade decays—thy rich eat up the poor:—
Meanwhile, ſome rav'nous vulture hov'ring round
Shall quick deſcend and eat thee at a meal.——
Infatuated iſle! wilt thou not learn
From others woes this dreadful courſe to ſtop?
How like the once all-graſping pow'r of Rome!
Like her then wilt thou fall.—Thy Judge is juſt,
For mercies thee nor judgments would reclaim;
Thy time is nigh and my commiſſion's done.
Ye patient worthy few! who ſtill remain,
And linger out her hov'ring, failing doom,
A ſpeedy flight prepare—I'll point the way.'
She ſaid no more, but ſtraight purſued her courſe,
And as my ardent eyes ſtill follow'd her,
She ſeem'd to fly o'er the Atlantic ſea.
"I mourn Britannia loſt, let Albion mourn,
"And ſable clouds her chalky cliffs adorn."

ANECDOTE.

"It is better to marry than burn."

THERE prevailed in Arabia a ſhocking cuſtom, ſprung originally from Scythia, and which being eſtabliſhed in the Indies by the credit of the Brachmans, threatened to over-run all the Eaſt.—When a married man died and his beloved wife aſpired to the character of a ſaint, ſhe burnt herſelf publicly on the body of her huſband. This was a ſolemn feaſt, and was called the Funeral Pile of Widowhood; and the tribe in which moſt women had been burnt was moſt reſpected. An Arabian of Setoc's tribe being dead, his widow, whoſe name was Almona, and who was very devout, publiſhed the day and the hour ſhe intended to throw herſelf into the fire, amidſt the ſound of drums and trumpets. Zadig, a foreign philoſopher, remonſtrated againſt this horrid cuſtom; he ſhewed Setoc how inconſiſtent it was with the happineſs of mankind to ſuffer young widows to burn themſelves every other day,—widows who were capable of giving children to the ſtate, or at leaſt, of educating thoſe they already had; and he convinced him that it was his duty to do all that lay in his power to aboliſh ſuch a barbarous practice. The women, ſaid Setoc, have poſſeſſed the right of burning themſelves for more than a thouſand years; and who ſhall dare to abrogate a law which time has rendered ſacred? Is there any thing more reſpectable than ancient abuſes? Reaſon is more ancient, replied Zadig. But do you ſpeak to the chief of the tribes upon the ſubject, and I will undertake to wait on the young widow.

Accordingly he was introduced to her, and after having inſinuated himſelf into her good graces by ſome compliments on her beauty, and told her how ſhameful it was to commit ſo many charms to the flames, he at laſt praiſed her for her conſtancy and courage. You muſt ſurely have loved your huſband, ſaid he, with the moſt paſſionate fondneſs. Who, I? replied the lady, I did not love him at all—for he was a brutal, jealous, inſufferable wretch; but that has nothing to do with my reſolution to periſh on his funeral pile. It would appear then, ſaid Zadig, that there muſt be a very delicious pleaſure in being burnt alive. Oh! exclaimed the lady, it makes nature ſhudder—but that muſt be overlooked, for as I am a devotee, I ſhall loſe my reputation, and be deſpiſed by all the world, if I do not burn myſelf. Zadig having made her acknowledge that ſhe burned herſelf to gain the good opinion of others, and to gratify her own vanity, entertained her with a long diſcourſe calculated to make her in love with life, and even went ſo far as to inſpire her with ſome degree of good will for the perſon who ſpoke to her. And what will you do at laſt, continued he, if the vanity of burning yourſelf ſhould not continue. Alas! ſaid ſhe bluſhing, I believe I muſt get you to marry me.

Zadig went inſtantly to the chiefs of the tribes, and telling them what had paſſed, he adviſed them to make a law, by which a widow ſhould not be permitted to burn herſelf, till ſhe had converſed privately with a young man for the ſpace of an hour. Since that time not a ſingle woman has burned herſelf in Arabia.

To the PUBLIC.

WE the Society of Univerſal Baptiſts, in and near the city of Philadelphia, being encouraged by conſiderable ſubſcriptions, as well from our fellow citizens of other denominations, as from thoſe of our ſociety, have made a purchaſe of that building formerly called the Free Maſons Lodge, for the uſe of a meeting-houſe. And in gratitude to ſuch as have, or may hereafter aſſiſt us in ſuch ſubſcriptions, as well as from the liberality of our own ſentiments, have in the declaration of truſt of ſaid houſe, bound ourſelves as follows, viz.

'That the ſaid meſſuage, or ſuch parts thereof as ſhall be appropriated for the uſe of religion, ſhall on every the ſecond, fourth and ſeventh days of the week, commonly called Monday, Wedneſday and Saturday, be free and open for the uſe of miniſters or preachers of the goſpel, of every religious name or denomination of Chriſtians who profeſs a belief, that the ſcriptures of the Old and New Teſtaments were given forth by Divine inſpiration, upon the following terms and conditions, viz.

'1ſt. Two or more reputable citizens of Pennſylvania, on making application to the ſaid truſtees, or the committee, or officer of the ſociety, who for the time being ſhall have the care of the meeting-houſe, ſhall be entitled to have the ſame opened on any of the ſaid days, to give any ſuch miniſter or preacher an opportunity of preaching to all perſons who ſhall incline to hear him, and if after a reaſonable notice, the houſe ſhall not be opened for the purpoſe aforeſaid, the perſon or perſons who for the time ſhall have the care of the houſe, ſhall forfeit to the citizens making the application the ſum of 20 Spaniſh dollars, or the value thereof in current money of Pennſylvania, to be recovered in their name, but to the uſe of the poor, and to be paid to the overſeers of the poor of the city of Philadelphia, before any juſtice of the peace of the city or county of Philadelphia, in the ſame manner as debts under ten pounds are or ſhall be by law recoverable, provided that the ſame be ſued for within ten days after the forfeiture ſhall accrue.

'2dly. If two applications ſhall be made for the ſaid houſe, for the ſame day, preference ſhall be given to the firſt application: but if the application ſhall be at the ſame time, ſo that priority cannot determine in favour of one of them, the preference ſhall be given to ſuch miniſter or preacher, who profeſſeth to believe the final reſtoration of all men in Jeſus Chriſt; and if the ſeventh day of the week ſhould be at any time applied for by two ſetts of citizens, and one of them be for the uſe of a miniſter or preacher who profeſſeth to believe that day to be the true ſabbath, the preference for that day ſhall be in his favour.

'3dly, The citizens applying for ſuch uſe or privilege of ſaid houſe, ſhall be anſwerable for all diſorderly conduct and damages ariſing therefrom to the houſe, or otherwiſe, and ſhall provide light, if the ſame be uſed in the evening, at their own expence.

Ordered to be publiſhed at a meeting of the church and congregation, in Philadelphia, January 27, 1786.

SAM. FLETCHER, Clerk.

That the public may be informed of their liberty in the houſe, the ſociety, at a late meeting, have ordered the above to be republiſhed, and do moſt gratefully acknowledge the favour of ſuch ſubſcriptions as they have already received. But as a conſiderable part of the purchaſe money remains yet unpaid, they find themſelves under the neceſſity to ſolicit further ſubſcriptions from ſuch as have it in their power, and chuſe to aſſiſt them. For which purpoſe they inform the public, that Anthony Cuthbert, Abraham Collins, James Moore, Iſrael Iſrael, and ſeveral others, are appointed to receive ſubſcriptions.

COLOGNE, March 17.

THE Elector of Hanover who repeated lately his demand for 180,000 rials from the Comte of Schaumburg, was on the point of taking poſſeſſion of the town of Hagenbourg, and two regiments deſtined for this ſervice, were actually on their march, when the Landgrave of Heſſe paid the debt, and the Hanoverian troops returned in conſequence.

LONDON, March 13.

According to foreign intelligence, received yeſterday, via Holland, the affairs of the Porte in Egypt, ſeem to be on the mending pace. The laſt courier from Cairo to Conſtantinople brought information to the divan, on the 16th of Jan. that one of rebellious beys had, in an unſucceſsful attack againſt the captain pacha, been compelled to fly for ſafety towards Egypt, after having loſt above 1700 of his beſt troops in the field of battle.

The continental politicians have opened their ſtaring eyes on the bold and ſucceſsful attempt of the Landgrave of Heſſe Caſtle to ſeize on part of the inherritance of the family of La Lippe Buckeburgh, after the recent demiſe of the late comte ſovereign of that name. The pretence for the invaſion on the part of the landgrave is, that the deceaſed himſelf was not a lawful heir, he being the iſſue of a diſproportioned marriage. But on the other hand, by the friends of the ſurvivingounteſs, and her ſon, it is proved, that the above objection had long ſince been over-ruled, and the ſucceſſion confirmed to the deceaſed, by the diſtinct awards from the ſupreme tribunals of the empire. What will be the end of this conteſt, time alone will diſcover, but hitherto the conduct of the landgrave is much cenſured, and looked upon as that of a tyrannical uſurper.

Letters from Landſhuth, a conſiderable city in Lower Bavaria, mention the eſtabliſhment there of a kind of inquiſition, which in this age of univerſal toleration, may be looked upon as a phænomenon. The commiſſionaries appointed by that bloody tribunal, not only ranſack the houſes in ſearch of immoral books, but ſummon before them, and puniſh in an arbitrary manner, every one whom they ſuſpect of holding any opinions contrary to the eſtabliſhed religion. It is devoutly to be wiſhed that the monſter may be cruſhed in its very cradle.

Mar. 16. It is an obſervation, that the circumſtances of things, and the political aſpect of Britain, bear a very remarkable reſemblance to the years 1686, 1687; nay that for the laſt ſeven years, we have gone on year by year, imitating the correſponding years of the laſt century. Then, as now, we have ſuffered under the ſuperior and hoſtile policy of France. Then, as now, a deſperate miniſtry were bent on throwing this country into her inſiduous arms. Then, as now, numbers of the people were deluded by the glittering proſpect, until at length, the true proper wiſdom of the nation was rouſed, and the mad impolicy ended in the glorious Revolution. Will the year 1788 complete the ſimilitude?

The navigation of the Thames and Severn, which is now carrying on under a great mountain, and whoſe ſubterraneous paſſage will extend two miles and a quarter, may occaſion a momentary ſurprize at ſuch difficulties being conquerable by human art and induſtry. But ſuch attempts have been frequently crowned with ſucceſs. The canal of Languedoc, in the ſouth of France, had much greater obſtacles to be got the better of before it was perfectly compleated, and yet the entire difficulty of this ſtupendous undertaking was at length ſurmounted. It had been brought under mountains and through deep valleys, till a communication was effected from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean, and the whole accompanied by means indeed of royal patronage and protection, in the courſe of a very few years. The vaſt number of locks that were found indiſpenſably neceſſary to be erected on the grand canal, have greatly retarded our completion of this national work.

"The trade of this port has conſiderably encreaſed of late, owing, in a great meaſure, to the ſuppreſſion of ſeveral heavy duties on the importation of foreign goods."

By the following note, it appears, that lord George Gordon has eſcaped from the cells of Bedlam, though not yet cured of his inſanity—the ſtory of the two perſons alluded to, as being confined for life by order of the Eccleſiaſtical Court (ſays our correſpondent) has no other foundation than the ravings of this unhappy Maniac.

Copy of a note from Lord George Gordon, to the Archbiſhop of York.

"Lord George Gordon preſents his compliments to the archbiſhop of York, and thinks it his duty to acquaint his grace that he has received a letter from a Diſſenting congregation near Nottingham, complaining of the proceedings of the Eccleſiaſtical Court under his Grace's authority; and deſiring him to apply to the court of king's bench on their behalf, and at their expence, to obtain liberty for Mrs. Buſh and Mrs. Roe, lately impriſoned for life. Lord George Gordon having found favour in the eyes of his grace the archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the greateſt attention and politeneſs from the Doctor and Proctors of the Metropolitan court, employed againſt him in his own caſe, feels himſelf bound by every tie of gratitude and good breeding, to communicate his intelligence on this ſubject to the archbiſhop of York himſelf, that the inferior officers may ſubmit the whole proceſs to his grace's own reviſion and conſideration, or that any other ſtep more agreeable to the benevolent diſpoſition and the wiſdom of the lord high Almoner, may be taken, before lord George proceeds further for the relief of that congregation. Lord George Gordon humbly requeſts to know his Grace's pleaſure as ſoon as convenient, as Mrs. Roe has been torn from the arms of her huſband and three ſmall children, and Mrs. Buſh has been brought to bed only ten days, and God alone knows what the conſequences may be which theſe diſtreſſes and impriſonments may bring upon them and their families.

"Welbeck-ſtreet, March 7, 1787."

The archbiſhop returned a verbal meſſage to lord George, that "No anſwer would be given."

March 20. The French Notables have not demeaned themſelves, as the Grand Monarque flattered himſelf they would do. They have talked occaſionally of guarding the privileges of the people; and that is by no means the object for which they were aſſembled. Beſides, they have given mortal offence in having refuſed to comply with ſome of the chief requiſitions made by the king, and his agents, reſpecting the revenue.

The duke of Bedford is buying up at immenſe prices, all the beſt blooded yearlings that he can lay his hand upon, ſo that in two or three years, there is little doubt but he will take the lead on the turf. The firſt ſtroke he made at his entre laſt ſpring, proved a very flattering introduction, viz. his grace took 1000 guineas to 25 of Mr. Ogden, but he named all the winners of the ſix matches and ſweepſtakes then to be run; which he did, to the aſtoniſhment of the whole betting circle.

April 2. Extract of a letter from Jerſey, March 19.

"Yeſterday I took a ride to St. Owen's bay, to ſee ſome trees which have lately been diſcovered within high water mark, with every appearance of a fallen foreſt. They cover at preſent upwards of three ſquare acres of ground, but ſeem to extend beyond all human reach into the ſea. Many of theſe trees are entire, and meaſure upwards of forty feet long, and it is evident they have grown on the ſpot, as their roots and earth ſtill adhere. But what renders this diſcovery ſtill more wonderful is, that for many miles round this bay, it is a barren, ſandy deſart, and not a ſhrub to be ſeen on it."

On the 25th ult. a fire broke out in a houſe in Glaſgow, where the buſineſs of ſingeing of muſlins is carried on, by which accident 3 or 4000l. worth of that valuable article was conſumed.

April 3. When Macklin laſt played his 'Man of the World' before the king, his majeſty was ſo ſtruck with his powers, that he ſent behind the ſcenes to know the actor's age—the veteran, highly pleaſed with this condeſcenſion, begged his duty might be preſented to his majeſty, and to acquaint him, that he was born the laſt year of the laſt century, and hoped to have the honor of entertaining him in the next.

April 5. The following letter tranſlated from the Hague Gazette, received by the laſt Dutch mail, will ſerve to convey the real ſentiments of his Imperial Majeſty, in regard to the incroachments of illimited theocracy: it alludes to the Pope's Bull, publiſhed in the territories of the Elector of Cologne, and of which we gave notice ſome time ago:

Joſeph II. &c. to the moſt ſerene Prince, and our truly beloved brother the Elector of Cologne.

"It is with great concern we learn from your letter, dated the 22d inſt. (February) written to us by your direction, the indecent manner in which the pontifical Nuncio reſiding at Cologne, without giving to your Dilection any previous notice thereof, had addreſſed to the clergy of your dioceſe, a circular letter, the contents of which, for the moſt part, relate only to ſecular matters. By ſuch incongruous proceeding, the ſaid Nuncio has, in an unbecoming manner, encroached upon the ſovereignty of the ſtates of the empire. We therefore approve of the order ſent by your Dilection to the parochial clergy of your dioceſe, directing them to return the ſaid letter to the writer thereof. And whereas as chief of the empire and ſupreme protector of the German church, we cannot, without breaking through the capitulations we have ſworn to maintain, countenance the lawleſs pretenſions and encroachments of the court of Rome, we do annul and ſuppreſs by this preſent, the aforeſaid circular letter, and enjoin to your Dilection, in a gracious and amicable manner, as to our very dear and truly beloved brother, to make known, by our Imperial authority, "auctoritate noſtra Ceſarea," the ſaid ſuppreſſion in its literal import to all the clergy of your dioceſe, and within two months give us notice, in what manner this ſhall have been executed.

We are your Dilections, &c.

Signed, JOSEPH."

Extracts from the Proceedings of the General Aſſembly of the State of Rhode Iſland, as publiſhed in the Newport Herald of the 10th inſtant.

The two houſes met the 2d of May inſtant, and from the return of proxies for general officers, it appeared—That a great change was effected in the upper houſe and the delegates of Congreſs. Thoſe who had in any inſtance oppoſed or diſſented from the proceedings of the late adminiſtration, were ſuperceded by the avowed partizans of their ſyſtem.—That of the five judges of the ſupreme judicial court, four were diſplaced; whoſe only crime was their not deeming it juſtice to pay a real debt with nominal value.——That the attention of the lower houſe was called to the report of the committee on public letters; and the motion made at the laſt ſeſſion for the appointment of delegates to the convention at Philadelphia was re-aſſumed and urged with ſuch force of reaſon and eloquence, as obtained a majority in the lower houſe of two, but it was rejected in the upper houſe by a majority of four, and no appointment took place.—The committee alſo reported for conſideration the circular letter of Congreſs, recommending a general act to be paſſed by each ſtate for repealing all acts that may be repugnant to the treaty of peace with his Britannic majeſty. The leading members alledged, that they knew of no act exiſting in the ſtate repugnant to the treaty. The diſcuſſion of this ſubject is referred to the next ſeſſion.—The committee who had a grant of £. 150 paper, at the laſt ſeſſion to realize for the delegates in Congreſs, informed the houſe that they had exchanged it at ſix for one. This report diſpleaſed ſome leading members, as it was virtually acknowledging a depreciation, which is incompatible with the money being a tender at par. A grant was finally made for £. 100 currency to to each delegate. It was the ſenſe of the houſe not to continue the delegates in Congreſs during the ſitting of the convention, as it was not probable there would be a Congreſs——and of this the delegates were to be immediately informed—An act paſſed, granting to the governor as a perquiſite—the office of intendant of trade within this ſtate and placing it under his ſole direction.——A mutilated ſoldier, after waiting the ſeſſion, had a hearing of his petition, wherein he related to the houſe, that, confiding in the engagements of government to pay him five dollars per month as an invalid, he had married, and had now a wife and two young children to ſupport, that his wages being now paid him in paper, were very inadequate for providing a ſubſiſtence, that agreeable to their late directions, he had applied to the town council of Portſmouth where he belonged, for neceſſaries, and they afforded him none, but referred him to a page in the old lawbook, where proviſions were made for invalids in the French war; that he with his wife and little ones, had ſubſiſted on potatoes, the fruit of his labour. But, alas! this reſource had now failed them, and he had the remaining alternative, of the aſſiſtance of that honorable aſſembly, or the wretched ſtate of beggary; this pitiable object was hobbling with his crutches on one leg, with tattered garments and lanthern jaws, a melancholy proof of the truth of his narration;——the feelings of the ſpectators were ſenſibly affected.

A leading paper money member aroſe and ſaid, Mr. Speaker if you have buſineſs of no greater importance, we can ſoon adjourn, as proviſion is made already, and nothing farther can be done. But to the honor of the minority, they ſtood forth the advocates for juſtice, for gratitude, and for humanity; they conceived the application to be of the utmoſt moment; it was, whether a ſoldier who had fought and bled for us, ſhould periſh in the ſtreet, or be juſtly paid his ſtipend, that the proviſion referred to was oſtenſibly made under the ſuggeſtion, that the invalids were a deſolute and drunken ſet of men, while the real reaſon was, that an additional grant would acknowledge the money had depreciated——this boaſted proviſion is only a recommendation to the town council to ſupply them with neceſſaries, and the amount would be allowed out of the firſt ſpecie continental tax——the towns therefore are notnor cannot be obliged to ſupply them, and by the preſent inſtance we are convinced they will not do it—they obſerved that we were unjuſt in charging the United States 5 ſpecie dollars per month paid to invalids, while in fact, we paid them only 5 paper dollars, equal to 5 eighths of a dollar. The houſe was called and rejected the petition by a large majority.

By a gentlemen who arrived in town on Friday laſt, from Great Barrington, in the county of Berkſhire, we are informed, that numbers of the fugitive rebels are daily collecting in ſmall bodies, in New York ſtate, near the line of this Commonwealth, with a profeſſed intention of reſcuing the traitors who are ordered for execution the 24th inſt. and who are now confined in Great Barrington gaol—and that in conſequence, the minute men, (about one third of the militia) are ordered to march, and be at Great Barrington on the 20th inſt. to protect the ſheriff in the due execution of the law.

NORTHAMPTON, May 9.

On Thurſday laſt, the high ſheriff of the county of Hampſhire received death warrants for two of the ſix perſons condemned for high treaſon, by the ſupreme court lately holden in this town, viz. Jaſon Parmiter and Henry M'Cullock; they are to be executed on the 24th inſtant. The four others have received a pardon, and were on Friday evening laſt liberated from priſon.

We are informed, that two only of thoſe condemned in the county of Berkſhire, are to be executed, viz. Peter Wilcox, of Lee, and Nathaniel Auſtin, junior, of Sheffield.

HUDSON, May 10.

Laſt Thurſday, five companies of the regiment commanded by colonel Aſa Waterman, in King's diſtrict, together with the company of light infantry commanded by captain Jonathan Warner, met at captain Elijah Boſtwick's, in New Canaan; where, after ſeveral military manœuvres, which, conſidering the raw and unexperienced ſituation of the troops, did honor to the martial genius of both officers and men, under the direction of the field-officers, who attended for the purpoſe, a large number of ſpectators were preſent, a field piece was thirteen times diſcharged, with the ſame number of platoons through the whole line of infantry; the day began, proceeded, and concluded, with the greateſt harmony and good order, which is a happy preſage of the future advancement of the regiment in the knowledge of tactics; which received (not unmerited) the encomiums and thanks of his excellency the governor, in the late war.

WILMINGTON, (Delaware) May 16.

On Sunday two children playing near a brick pond in this borough, went out of their depth. By timely aſſiſtance they were got out alive, but one of them is ſince dead. We are informed that very improper means were uſed with theſe infants before any medical aſſiſtance was called in. On ſuch occaſions it is a pity that immediate application is not always made to thoſe who are capable of relieving. In moſt conſiderable towns there is a ſociety for the relief of perſons in ſuch melancholy circumſtances, and fumigating machines for their aſſiſtance: and by theſe means many valuable lives are preſerved to to their friends and country. We hope the inhabitants of this town will imitate ſo laudable an example.

BALTIMORE, May 11.

Extract from the "Political State of the Britiſh Nation and of Europe, for January 1787."

"The Czarina's affairs do not yet wear a very promiſing aſpect of being finally ſettled with the Porte, ſince that power has aſſumed a more firm and determined aſpect than it wore ſome years ago. The intermediate dependant nations between theſe potentates add to the difficulties and uneaſineſſes of both thoſe extenſive empires.

"The Ottoman empire, which has, at all times, rebellion raging ſomewhere or another in its boſom, is not without its uſual ſhare of internal commotions now.—Still it holds up its awful head, bidding defiance to its numerous potent enemies, regardleſs of their entreaties, remonſtrances, and threatnings—Strange compoſition of a terreſtrial government! and even thoſe who have had ample opportunity of viewing it microſcopically, can give us but very little inſight into it.

"The new king of Pruſſia ſeems to ſtudy to carry his cup even with all ſurrounding powers, and keep himſelf out of all their bickerings, except the internal feuds of the Dutch; in which, however, he moves very cautiouſly, without burning his fingers on behalf of either ſide.—It does not yet appear, that any other potentate wiſhes to put his courage and conduct to the teſt. His mediatorial office in Holland, conſequently, goes on very quietly and very ſlowly. Perhaps ſlow and ſure is beſt in this, as in many other caſes.

"The ſtates of North America have concluded a treaty with the emperor of Morocco; much good may it do them."

May 15. To pretend to eſtabliſh a community of wealth and fortune, an equality of ſtation and condition—— to prohibit the uſe of gold and other repreſentative metals, eſtabliſhed as the media of commerce and intercourſe—to baniſh all liberal and polite arts and ſciences—to demoliſh Athens and Corinth, and on their ruins to erect new Spartas——all theſe projects are eccentric, chimerical, and Utopian; the builders of ſuch ſyſtems, re-act the inſanity of the architect, who raſes to the foundation a large building, in order to rectify a blemiſh, which a little additional trouble, trifling expence, or vigour of invention might have removed.

To give morality univerſal reign, and permanency to her ſway, gentle and eaſy remedies ſhould be adopted. Cauſtics muſt be rejected. The miſanthrope never made any progreſs in the melioration of ſociety. The moroſe and ſolitary enthuſiaſt, who ſtrews the road with thorns and aſperities, is not to be introduced into the council of philoſophers, which ought to compoſe the cabinet miniſters of morality, for they are perſuaded that her dominion is founded on the love of mankind.

Horace never accuſed of moroſeneſs——Horace an acknowledged epicurean—Horace, who flouriſhed in the court of Auguſtus, was of opinion, that mankind proceeded from more venial to criminal actions, and that every riſing generation was more depraved than the preceding. He compriſes the review of four generations in three lines, remarkable enough for their brevity, if not for their juſtice,

> Ætas parentum pejor avis tulit
> Nos nequiores, mox daturos
> Progeniem vitioſiorem.

If we do not implicitly confide in this ſentence, it is, however, certain that no ſtage of the world ever merited ſo general a condemnation, but from the continual increaſe of depravity; yet in the long chain of time, if every generation were to exceed the former in ſwelling the catalogues of crimes, the world muſt ſoon arrive at putrefaction, and there muſt be a period to human exiſtence. But if we conſult hiſtory on this ſubject, we ſhall diſcover a variety of epochas when the machine appeared to wind up again to its primitive convaleſcence; and afford ſymptoms of renovated vigour and virtue.

The moral, as well as the phyſical world, is ſubject to revolutions. Its virtues and vices, like the planets, blazen on the ſenſes, and diſappear again. It has its aſcenſions and declinations alternately——Its phaſes, its periods, and eclipſes.

The aſtronomer foreſees and announces the advances and appearances of the celeſtial phænomena; but there is this difference between the phyſical and moral philoſopher, that the former has no power of oppoſition to the courſes of the heavenly bodies; while the moraliſt, by the wiſdom of his councils and the inſpiration of his eloquence, may at leaſt ſtem the torrent of iniquity, and preſerve his country, or an age, from total deſtruction.

Philadelphia, May 21.

Yeſterday arrived in this port the ſhip Canton, captain Truxtun, from Canton in China.—Captain Truxtun ſailed from this port about ſixteen months ago.

Various opinions are propagated reſpecting the probable reſult of the fœderal convention; but, whatever means are purſued, it ſeems to be unanimouſly agreed, that a ſtrong and efficient executive power muſt be ſomewhere eſtabliſhed. How widely different would have been the character of the union, if in Congreſs had reſided a power to controul the ſelfiſh intereſts of a ſingle ſtate, and to compel the ſacrifice of partial views, in order to promote the common weal. The depravity of individuals, not checked by phyſical obligation, will indeed taint the complexion of ſociety;——and if thoſe vices that corrupt the heart, did not extinguiſh the virtue of citizens, even Rome, which is now no more would ſtill have exiſted. In conſidering then, what form of government is beſt calculated to promote the principles of univerſal juſtice, probity and honor (which, after all, muſt be the ſource of national ſtrength as well as happineſs) fatal experience will inſtruct us that little can be left to the voluntary diſpoſition of the people. Whether the ſhattered fabric of the original conſtitution is to be repaired and enlarged, or a new and ſtately building erected upon the old foundation, whether, on the one hand, the vaſt continent is to be diſtributed into diſtinct republics, or, on the other, the majeſty of a world, centered in an individual, are queſtions that reſpect, only the forms and not the objects of government, for there are immutable laws in civil ſocieties, independent of times, places and circumſtances: and let theoriſts eſtabliſh what principles they pleaſe in the three ſorts of government we are acquainted with, by making virtue the ſpring of the republican, honor the ſource of the monarchical, and fear the baſis of the deſpotic, if theſe do not lead the people of each government into virtuous manners the whole is nothing but a political romance.

Public ſchools, ſays a correſpondent, have undoubtedly a juſt claim upon the liberality of government, but in a ſeaſon of ſuch general ſcarcity, every meaſure ſhould be adopted, which tends to render them leſs burthenſome to the commonwealth. If then the truſtees and managers of thoſe inſtitutions were to enforce the utility of proper labour to all the children, and to ſuggeſt to the maſters ſome eaſy and advantageous work to be carried on reſpectively at each houſe, appointing viſitors to ſee the orders in this as well as in every other reſpect, punctualy performed, an internal reſource would be provided, and every expectation anſwered, independant of public endowments, or the precarious charity of private ſubſcriptions. Many of the children, as in Holland, might learn to make toys, others ſhould ſpin oakum, or do a thouſand things in different manufactures, which do not require much ſtrength or labour. Spinning, knitting, carding, waſhing, and all domeſtic offices of mending, making and adjuſting houſehold matters, ſhould be the buſineſs of the girls. In Holland, indeed, their police is ſo remarkably good, that all children, after ſix years old, do more than earn their living. While early attempts to enforce ſuch habits upon young minds, are of the greateſt public utility, as they diſpoſe them afterwards, to make better apprentices, better ſervants, and every way more uſeful members of ſociety: on the other hand, to youthful habits of idleneſs, we muſt aſcribe all the corruption of the lower claſſes of people.

In a cauſe lately tried in the ſupreme court, as the council were pointing out the boundaries of the land in queſtion upon a map, one ſaid, 'we lie on this ſide,' 'and we,' replied the other, 'lie on this ſide.' 'If you lie on both ſides,' exclaimed a juryman, 'what are we to believe.'

On Tueſday laſt one of the convicts behaved in ſo riotous a manner, that the keeper, in order to prevent a general mutiny, was compelled to make an immediate example; and it is ſaid that the offender's life is in danger from a blow which he received on the head. Our informer adds, that the neceſſity of ſuch violence, may perhaps proceed from the evident want of diſcipline in managing this important charge: for, on the one hand, thoſe who are appointed to enforce the law, neglect the eſſential parts of the puniſhment, hard labour and abſtinence; and, on the other hand, the ill-judged charity of inconſiderate ſpectators contributes to the licentiouſneſs of the culprit, and enables him, even while he rattles his chains, to forget the infamy of his ſituation. It is more common to ſee theſe wretches ſtaggering with intoxication, than with the weight of their burthens: and ſo little are they reſtrained, even in articles of luxury, that our correſpondent has actually ſeen one of them produce his watch, to inform the keeper how the time had paſſed. Thus all hope of reformation or example, the great objects of penal laws, is done away; for, he who has conquered ſhame, can only be corrected by ſeverity; and he who is inclined to vice, can only be warned by a fate which he dreads to ſuffer.

By an ordinance of Congreſs, made the 7th May, 1787, the board of treaſury is directed to appoint five commiſſioners, whoſe duty it ſhall be, according to the diſtrict for which they are appointed, to go into the ſeveral ſtates and make out the accounts of the ſtates in their reſpective diſtricts, which for this purpoſe are diſtributed into five, againſt the United States. The ſeveral ſtates are limited to ſix months, for exhibiting their claims after a due notification, and the powers of the commiſſioners are to terminate within 12 months, after they have entered upon the duties of their office.

TO BE LET,
A Large, Commodious
SAIL-LOFT,

On Stamper's Wharf; at preſent occupied by James Collet. Enquire of May 17. 6ſp. THOMAS L. MOORE.

PITTSBURGH.

TO BE SOLD,

A NEW two ſtory HOUSE, juſt finiſhed, pleaſantly ſituate in Water ſtreet, fronting upon the Monongahela river, nearly oppoſite the Old ferry, and only two lots diſtant from Ferry ſtreet.

The plan of the houſe is very commodious, has 4 rooms on a floor, and is one of the beſt and neateſt finiſhed houſes in that town, built upon a lot of 60 feet by 140: there is an excellent cellar under the whole houſe 9 feet in the clear; the firſt and ſecond ſtories are about 10 feet each in the clear, with an exceeding good garret, the inſide partitions (except thoſe on each ſide the ſtaircaſe) are wainſcot pannel work, well finiſhed and painted; and as high as the ſur-baſe the houſe is pannelled around, except a part of the lower ſtory, which is now occupied as a ſtore.

At the back of the houſe is a Kitchen two ſtories high and a garret; it is 20 feet by 18 and a fire-place in each ſtory. The whole is rented at 70l. per ann. and has two families living therein, but the purchaſer may have poſſeſſion of the lower part immediately, and of the whole premiſes in 6 months.

If a good ſituation for trade and buſineſs are objects of any advantage, there is not one in Pittſburgh which enjoys a preference to this: it commands a firſt choice of all the cuſtom from Waſhington and Fayette counties; and as a demonſtration of the worth of the ſituation, the lots contiguous to it are rated at treble the value of any others of the ſame ſize the in town. Pittſburgh is at preſent a very conſiderable and flouriſhing place; and as little doubt remains but it will become a county town ſhortly, that circumſtance alone will greatly inhance the value of every foot of property in the place. Nature has alſo fitted it with ſo many excellent and peculiar advantages, that it is next to impoſſible but that it will in time grow much both in ſize and opulence. Particulars may be known by applying to MATTHEW M'CONNELL, at the Exchange-Office, in Second, near Cheſnut ſtreet, Philadelphia.

TO BE SOLD, A

VALUABLE Plantation, pleaſantly ſituated in Briſtol townſhip, Bucks county, two miles from the borough of Briſtol and 8 miles from Trenton, containing about 440 acres of Land: the ſoil fertile, and equal in goodneſs to any in the townſhip; 150 acres of which are cleared, and fitted for the plough, 20 acres of meadow in good graſs, and more may eaſily be made, the remainder is woodland well timbered. The above tract is well ſituated, and calculated for dividing into two Farms, there being two comfortable log dwelling houſes on the premiſes, two young orchards, with a well of good water near each houſe. The river Delaware running in front of the farm, affords a convenient and cheap way to tranſport the produce of ſaid place to the markets of this or the Jerſey ſtate, which is an object of conſiderable importance to the farmer. For further particulars apply to JOHN BOOZE, living near the premiſes, or to ROBERT WALN, in Philadelphia.

A Lot for a Country-Seat.

THE City Lot is on the north ſide of Cherry alley, 40 feet front and 80 feet deep, adjoining the yard of John Thompſon's Pot-houſe, on the weſt ſide of Fourth ſtreet.

The Country Lot is on the weſt ſide of Fourth ſtreet continued, as the road now runs, adjoining lands late of Charles Meredith on the ſouth, and William Maſters on the north. On this lot, called Bloomſbury, there was erected before the war, a genteel houſe, part of the foundation ſtill remains, alſo the vault and well. Its high ſituation, agreeable proſpect, and vicinity to the city, render it a very eligible ſpot for re-improvement. It contains about 4 acres. For terms apply to CHARLES MOORE, HENRY HILL, or RICHARD WELLS, Third ſtreet.

N. B. All kinds of Merchandize on Commiſſion, diſpoſed of at Private Sale.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

Philadelphia, May 10. 2wſ

Foreign Intelligence.

B E R L I N, October 28.

THE Engliſh ambaſſador has purchaſed for 7000 crowns, the wax figure repreſenting the late king, which it does almoſt to deception. It was executed by an artiſt in this city in a moſt maſterly manner.

L O N D O N,

Feb. 6. The ſum paid by this country for German carcaſes, at 30l. each, is ſaid to have amounted on the laſt ſettlement to 471,000l. at this rate there were not leſs than 15,700 head of this ſpecie ſlaughtered during the American war; and yet the number of Germans employed on that occaſion was much inferior to our own countrymen. The above ſum added to the fortune of the princeſs Amelia, falling into the hands of her nephew will enable the landgrave of Heſſe Caſſel to cope with any prince of the empire for perſonal riches.

The king of Spain is greatly attentive to the eſtabliſhment of his marine; which, by a late order from Don de Cardova, director general of that department, is with the utmoſt expedition, to be compleated to ninety eight ſhips of the line, and 130 frigates.

There are in Newfoundland, as well as Cape Breton, ſuch rich coal mines, that if the crown would but grant leave to work them, their produce would be ſufficient to ſupply all Europe and America abundantly with that commodity——and ſome are even ſo commodiouſly ſituated, that the coals might be thrown directly out of the coal mines themſelves into the ſhips, as they lie cloſe to the ſhore.

March 17. The emperor in his new code of criminal laws, has enacted the following remarkable one: "That all men who are ſeen in the ſtreet endeavouring to ſpeak to a woman, ſhall be taken up, and inſtantly ſent to priſon." The legiſlature by this law will not only guard the honour of honeſt women, but avenge the affronts offered them by men, who under the pretence of taking them for other women, often introduce themſelves to an acquaintance that proves the ſource of many evils in Vienna.

His majeſty has alſo expreſſed the greateſt indignation at people being confined for debt, which he is determined ſhall not be done in future, as it tends to check induſtry, and indulge a ſpecies of revenge beneath the dignity of human nature.

The ſofter ſex now ſcorn the reſtraint of a key, which they have now ſpiritedly flung aſide, and have adopted a more expreſſive emblem; in ſhort, they now ſport the breeches on their lovely boſoms; being determined in future, whether maids, wives, or widows, continually to wear them: but, joking apart, our correſpondent aſſures us, that the breeches rage is ſo prevalent, that one jeweller of his acquaintance in this city, has ſold upwards of 500 of them this week. We hope the petit maitres (in compliment) will condeſcend to ſport the petticoat.

If we are to credit the accounts contained in the Hague Gazette of the 9th inſt. received by yeſterday's Dutch mail, Thurſday laſt, the 8th, on which ſo much miſchief was apprehended from the Orange fanatics, paſſed on without the leaſt exceſs or riot, and the birth day of the Prince was kept with the utmoſt decency, by the few friends he has ſtill left in the province of Holland.

It is loudly whiſpered on the Continent, by thoſe who pretend to be well read in political necromancy, that the principal object that occaſions the interview between the empreſs of Ruſſia and the king of Poland in Kiovia, is, to ſettle the ſucceſſion to that crown on prince Poniatowſki, nephew to the preſent monarch; and next, to take proper meaſures, in order to ſtrip the ſublime porte of the three provinces which ſtill acknowledge the Ottoman ſway, to the northward of the Danube. To give the colour of probability to the report, it is added, that the emperor is making the moſt formidable preparations in the province of Gallicia.

CONSIDERATIONS worthy the attention of the friends to the French Treaty.

While France is laughing at their ſucceſs in this laſt advantageous proof of the credulity of John Bull, how is ſhe acting in every quarter of the world? In India ſhe is gradually collecting a great force; ſhe has ſecured from the Dutch, the conſequential and commanding harbour of Trincomale for her fleets; and her troops now garriſon the Cape. In Africa ſhe is endeavouring to erect forts, and ſecuring the means of annoying us in future in that quarter. In America ſhe has got a whole Continent in her power, which ſhe has by her treachery emancipated from this country. She has a demand upon their government, which ſhe knows they cannot pay, and which, whenever ſhe thinks proper, can be made the plea for war and conqueſt, a matter already threatened. This is probably, only the concluſive part of a plan calculated for the recovery of her loſt poſſeſſions there, and which was the object in view, when ſhe firſt ſo very kindly aſſiſted America to obtain that freedom denied to her own ſubjects. Can we, after having entered into this amicable treaty with our new and truſty friends, in whom we repoſe ſuch confidence, attempt to interfere in behalf of America, ſhould our worthy brethren acroſs the Atlantic ſue for protection and aſſiſtance? If we do, our conduct (as unjuſtifiable as that we complained of in them) muſt render a war unavoidable, and what becomes then of all our viſionary ſchemes of wealth?—If we do not aſſiſt the Americans, our remaining poſſeſſions there will be but in a very precarious ſtate, ſhould the Thirteen United States be conquered by, and become ſubjects to France; or purchaſe their liberation at the expence of an abſolute offenſive treaty, to aſſiſt the arms of France againſt the poſſeſſions of Great Britain on that continent, including Newfoundland. This would, in all likelihood, not be a very reluctant buſineſs, as it would ſatiate their revenge, and gratify their pride. In Europe, France is taking every means which can enable her to accompliſh ſuch views; Holland is in her power, Spain is united with her, ſhe is in alliance with every other great naval power, and we accede to the principles of the armed neutrality. She is enlarging her navy, and ſparing neither expence nor pains to render it more formidable than ever; ſhe is wading into the ſea, and creating a harbour where none exiſted, and that in a ſituation the moſt dangerous to this kingdom. Let the friends of the treaty join the facts with the probabilities, and aſk themſelves whether the circumſtances bear the aſpect of long pacification? whether, if the probable event in America ſhould take place, from the natural demand of the French loan, we are now reduced to the alternative we have pointed out, and the breach of treaty unavoidable with us, will conſequently lay at our door: this will give a plauſible ground for the European allies of France to break with us. If we ſhould by ſuch apparent means loſe Newfoundland, it will then be irrecoverably gone, and the principal ſource of our naval ſtrength totally deſtroyed, and transferred to that of our enemy. By forming this treaty, giving thoſe advantages to France, we might with propriety have given to other powers, we loſe the opportunity of ſecuring that alliance, which may prove ſo highly neceſſary to us in the reſult of what is ſo very likely to happen. Thoſe who diſallow the probability of ſuch an event, cannot deny the poſſibility. It is the buſineſs of good miniſters, as far as human prudence can effect, to guard againſt every poſſible contingency, that can prejudice the intereſts of their country. When miniſters neglect it, it is incumbent on every good ſubject to oppoſe their meaſures; every individual ſhould aſſiſt in preventing a probable or poſſible calamity, and condemn the man who dares to riſk his country's ruin.

'On Monday laſt as the workmen were taking up the flat ſtones at the entrance of the choir, to repair the pavement in the Cathedral, they diſcovered a ſtone coffin, in which were the remains of a corpſe in great preſervation; the deceaſed appears to have been buried in a robe and boots; the leather retained a degree of ſtrength and firmneſs, nor had it totally loſt its elaſtic quality; the robe was decayed, for although there was the appearance of folds in ſeverel parts, yet when touched, it was nothing but powder or duſt. There was a handſome croſier in the hand, neatly ornamented with ſilver, gilt and burniſhed; it was of wood, and the ſtaff perfectly ſound and hard; there were alſo the remains of other ſymbols to mark the remains of an Abbot:—Upon examining the hiſtory of the Abbots, it appears to be Abbot Wigmore, who died the 12th of the kalends of March, 1337. He is deſcribed to be buried on the ſouth ſide, near the entrance of the choir (which he built) on the ſpot this coffin, &c. were found. It is remarkable the ſame coffin was diſcovered in the year 1741, at the time the ſcreen behind the organ was erected by biſhop Benſon.'

A new faſhiondreſs, called the Confeſſion Bonnet, has made its appearance within theſe few days, a circumſtance that looks as if tory principles had at laſt caught hold of our ladies. This bonnet is an improvement upon that lately worn with the deep curtain on the edge, and the appellation ſeems peculiarly happy, as the confeſſional ſound muſt come from the ladies lips in a direct line, whether directed to her lover or ſpiritual paſtor, the projection of the head dreſs operating as a ſounding board, and its rotundity preventing the ſound from being ſcattered or diffuſed on either ſide.

The large ſpreading hat has not, however, been totally excluded by the confeſſional bonnet, the faſcinating look and archneſs which they convey, by a happy inclination to the left ſide, will long render them favourites with the beautiful part of the creation.

A curious paſquinade was lately publiſhed at Rome, alluding to the decadence of the Papal power. The arms of the preſent pope Braſchi, conſiſting of an eagle, three flowers de luce, a croſs, and the wind, Paſquin ſuppoſes that Pius VI. in his will, has bequeathed the eagle to the emperor, the flowers de luce to the king of France, the croſs to the church, and the wind to his ſucceſſors.

'A memorial publiſhed by M. du Patty, in favor of three men who were condemned to be broken on the wheel, having been judged inflammatory and untrue, is ordered to be burned by the hands of the common hangman; and the author is to be proſecuted. M. du Patty has given his name, and is ready to ſtand trial. Although France does not enjoy the liberty of the preſs, every lawyer has the privilege of publiſhing the defence of his client without ſubmitting it to the inſpection of the cenſor. They muſt, however, be cautious of what they write, as they muſt abide the conſequences, which are ſometimes very ſerious.

Nothing is ſo prepoſterous, nor ſo tyrannical as faſhion—and as the warm weather comes in, the beaux increaſe in their weight of metal—the buttons are now full an inch and an half in diameter—and being lettered, it may be truly ſaid, that the beaux are weighed down with a load of learning.

But this is not the only inconvenience that beauxiſm is doomed to endure—the rage of the ſeaſon is an enormous cravat, and now the beaux have turned to letters, your ſuperlative puppy is covered up to the ears in book muſlin.

Should the enquiry againſt Mr. Haſtings be proſecuted in the houſe of peers, that gentleman will have very ſtrong ſupport from two noble peers, as reſpectable for their elocution, as Patrician dignity, and who have already declared themſelves avowed partizans to his conduct in the government of India.

Mr. Haſtings ſeems to have involved in his own character both the good and evil deities which are alternately worſhiped in that part of the Eaſt which he governed. In India a temple is erected to his honor, and in England, impeachments are preparing. Unfortunately for him, the good genius remains on the ſhores of the Ganges, while the malevolent divinity appears to have accompanied him to his own country.

The grand queſtion on the impeachment of Mr. Haſtings is now fixed; it is not to come on until after the receſs, which it is expected will commence on Wedneſday next. After this great buſineſs is agitated Mr. Fox intends to come forward immediately with his motion for the repeal of the ſhop-tax, when it is devoutly to be wiſhed, that he may ſucceed in removing that partial and oppreſſive impoſt, ſo particularly directed againſt the inhabitants of the metropolis.

The fate of Mr. Haſtings, taken as a national queſtion, is not an object worthy of conſideration. The miniſter's object is, to ſhew the world that in Great Britain, neither wealth nor influence can protect great delinquents from the ſword of public juſtice.

April 5. A perſon of the name of Leorier de l'Iſle, has lately invented a method of manufacturing paper from the bark of trees, and from other parts of vegetables. This ſort of paper is particularly well ſuited for the hangings of rooms. It comes cheaper than that made of rags, and will bear to be figured very well. Beſides this, the ſame artiſt has been able to make a finer ſort of paper from the ſame materials. Some produced from the plant called marſhmallow has borne the impreſſion of letters. Specimens of printing upon this vegetable have been publiſhed in a ſmall volume in 12mo. The royal academy of ſciences here appointed a committee to examine into the invention, who have publiſhed a favourable report of it.

Extract of a letter from Oſtend, March 29.

'A new colony is going to be planted in the iſland of Naarſe, which was lately ceded to his Imperial majeſty by the ſtates general. Its vicinity to the canals, and the many little ports with which it abounds, make it peculiarly pointed out for fiſhermen, many of whom are going thither with their families; the government exempting them from all taxes whatever for 7 years, in order that it may the ſooner be made populous.'

Extract of a letter from the Hague, March 23.

'The ſtates of Holland, who laſt Wedneſday opened their uſual aſſembly, deliberated on the tumult which took place and ſtill continues at Hoorn, in North Holland. The frenzy of the people in that city has carried them to the laſt extremities, and the ſovereign authority is abſolutely forgotten there. The troops ſent there by their noble and great mightineſſes to reſtore order, found the gates ſhut: they have been threatened with violence, and been obliged to fall back to Alkemar, until the ſtates ſhall have decided what is proper to be done. This event would have decided the queſtion at one blow in favour of the prince, if it could have been propagated from town to town, as was intended; but on the contrary, the majority of the cities of the province expreſſed the greateſt reſentment and an indignation too active to ſtop there, reſpecting what had paſſed. The Brille and Hoorn, by throwing off the maſk and bidding defiance in ſome meaſure to all the members of the ſovereign aſſembly, are not ſtrong enough by themſelves to avoid the rigorous reſearches they have been ordered to be made. Exemplary executions are expected; but what is moſt embarraſſing is, to trace up theſe diſorders to their ſource. The perſons who ſet to work the ſubaltern agents of thoſe kinds of ſcenes, are hidden behind the curtain, or too powerful for the laws, which will be only daſhed to pieces againſt them. Nevertheleſs, as the preſent is in reality the true critical moment, the ſtates muſt either triumph now, or the prince muſt carry the day; conſequently the former are obliged to employ all the remains of their authority. Thus we find ourſelves at the eve of ſeeing ſcenes of blood on one part and the other.'

D U B L I N, March 22.

Monday there was a grand field exerciſe of the ſeveral volunteer corps of this city and liberties in the Phœnix Park; their excellent diſcipline and martial appearance muſt impreſs every honeſt mind with a ſenſible pleaſure, in beholding theſe ſaviours of their country, in the worſt of times, ſtill cheriſhing the patriotic ſpirit that firſt embodied them, and gallantly determining to be the guardians of the bleſſings of a free conſtitution, which they obtained.

Accounts are ſaid to have arrived in town on Saturday, that 7 unfortunate wretches were capitally convicted at the aſſizes of Limerick laſt Wedneſday and Thurſday as Right Boys, five of whom were ordered for immediate execution, and two recommended to the judge (Sir S. Bradſtreet) as objects of mercy. At the ſame aſſizes the accounts add, the famous perſon, known by the name of captain Right, was tried, and was only found guilty of a miſdemeanor; upon which he was ordered to be whipped, fined 200l. to be confined for four years, and be obliged to give ſecurity for 10,000l. as a ſurety for his good behaviour during life.

It is ſaid, the above perſon is of conſiderable property, having an eſtate of 300l. per ann. beſides a perſonal fortune of upwards of ten thouſand pounds.

The quantity not the value of the manufactured goods ſhipped for America, ſo much exceeds our importation of goods from that part of the world, as to give us decided advantage in our trade with the United States, to a great amount; the balance of which can only be paid in bullion; how neceſſary then would a mint be to the merchants of Ireland for the diſpoſal of this bullion, inſtead of being under the neceſſity of ſending it to England, at the manifeſt loſs of inſurance, commiſſion, &c.

Mr. M'Nimine, principal of the marine ſchool, has conſtructed a veſſel which can be worked upon land, and by which a boy will know how to navigate a ſhip as well as if he had been at ſea. The model of this, and the method of working it, has been much approved of by the Dublin ſociety, the members of the marine ſociety, and by many naval commanders; as by this ingenious contrivance a boy may be an experienced navigator without ever being on board a ſhip; indeed, a ſcholar of M'Nimine's ſhall be able to give inſtructions to many veteran maſters of merchant-men, ſome of whom know as much about "boxing the compaſs," as a certain learned prelate did of the diſpoſitions of the two great bodies of Diſſenters—the Preſbyterians of the North, and the Roman Catholics of the South.

Though Mr. Grattan's reſolution was on Tueſday laſt ſmothered by the order of the day, the public is by no means to reſt in an opinion, that this patriotic gentleman has given up his great deſign, to relieve the country by bringing forward a plan for ſettling the levying of tythes and eccleſiaſtical dues, in a manner leſs burthenſome and diſtreſſing to the poor; on the contrary, we may depend upon it, that this great man (whoſe ſingular characteriſtic and good fortune it is, never to have brought forward a meaſure he did not carry in the end, nor ever to have oppoſed one he did not in the end defeat) will aſſuredly perſiſt in his laudable endeavour, and add to his glorious life the happineſs of emancipating the country from domeſtic oppreſſion, which he had before reſcued from the uſurped power of a foreign legiſlation.

K I N G S T O N, (Jamaica) April 7.

Extract of a letter from New-Providence, dated March 15.

"There is now no doubt of this being immediately eſtabliſhed into a free port, upon a liberal and extended plan, for the admiſſion of veſſels of any ſize and deſcription, with every ſpecies of produce from all countries, to ſell or barter at this market. It is ſaid, that almoſt the only reſtrictions will be, a prohibition of foreigners from ſettling in any of theſe iſlands, unleſs naturalized: that no manufactured goods other than thoſe of Great Britain, Ireland, or India, will be admitted; and that they muſt be imported in Britiſh veſſels belonging to Britiſh ſubjects, from Britain or Ireland.

The French are ſo very rigid with their new allies, the Americans, that they exact a tax from their veſſels for only coming to anchor off any of their harbours. An American brig having anchored off Aux Cayes a few weeks ago, ſent her boat on ſhore for intelligence, and was obliged 'ere ſhe was ſuffered to depart, to depoſit ſeventy-four dollars by way of port fees.

At the French Weſt India Iſlands, the American veſſels, as ſoon as they enter, are conſidered as prizes; the cargoes which they are allowed to carry being ſo inſignificant as not to pay more than port charges. The other contingencies are generally defrayed by the ſale of the veſſel.

A moſt extraordinary Luſus Naturæ was produced on Saturday laſt, in this town.——It was a chicken batched in the yard of Iſaac Feurtado, Eſq. (which exiſted only a few minutes after it was liberated from the ſhell) with a double body, four wings, four legs, and two vents——all formed in the moſt complete and perfect manner. Mr. Feurtado, employed a gentleman of the faculty to take out the viſcera and entrails of this prodigy; who diſcovered a double heart, &c. &c. It is now preſerved in ſpirits, and is in the poſſeſſion of Mr. Feurtado, who means to preſent it to the Royal Society.

Repeated, and no doubt well founded complaints have been made of the impoſſibility of finding out the haunts of runaway negroes: The following well authenticated fact may perhaps throw a new light on this intereſting ſubject. On the 7th of January laſt, a negro boy, named John, the property of a Mr. Malcolm, ſauntering about the weſt end of Port Royal Street, was offered a quarter dollar to roll a barrel of flour on board a ſchooner then lying cloſe to the Wherry wharf—he complied, and the moment he put his feet on board the veſſel was gagged and bound; in this ſituation he was carried to ſea, then unbound and tranſported to Cuba, where he was ſold. About a month after being entruſted with three or four dollars on ſome domeſtic account, he eloped—fortunately met with a veſſel in which he obtained a paſſage, and arrived at Martha Brae a few days ſince.

It is ſuggeſted that were an officer appointed to examine every foreign veſſel previous to her departure from the harbour of Port Royal, the object of many of thoſe predatory excurſions which are now made to this iſland, would be defeated. Many valuable negroes have been conveyed from hence in a clandeſtine manner, greatly to the prejudice of their owners—the utility of ſome defenſive plan is now therefore very apparent, and the ſooner it is carried into execution the better.

Thurſday laſt arrived in this harbour the brig Lowther, captain Miller, after a paſſage of only twelve days from Philadelphia; with a cargo of flour, bread, corn, &c.

The above veſſel took her departure from Port Royal, bound for Philadelphia, on the 10th of February laſt, ſo that ſhe has completed her voyage in 54 days.

We hear from Charleſton, that the honorable William Bull, Eſq. formerly his majeſty's lieutenant governor of South Carolina, having petitioned the legiſlature of that ſtate to have his name taken of the confiſcation liſt, and to be admitted to the rights of citizenſhip, has now, on the verge of the grave, being upwards of eighty years of age, abjured his king, and embraced the republican faith with an ardour better ſuited to the conſtitution of a convert of more tender years.

On Friday morning the 23d ult. a negro man named Jack, belonging to the Farm Eſtate, was ſhot dead by Philip, a fellow belonging to the Ferry: having ſat up gambling the whole of the preceding night, ſome trifling diſpute aroſe, which they agreed to decide by boxing; but while two of Jack's comrades were holding, and endeavouring to diſſuade him from fighting, Philip ran into his hut, brought out a fowling piece, and lodged its contents in the body of his unfortunate victim, who immediately expired.

On Thurſday morning, the 22d ult. a very valuable negro man, the head boiler on Shortwood eſtate, in Liguanea, reaching too far over the grand copper which was full of hot liquor, fell in, and was ſo miſerably ſcalded that he ſurvived but a few hours. Intenſe as this poor fellow's ſufferings were, he exhibited the moſt aſtoniſhing compoſure—called for dinner at his accuſtomed hour, and ate it with ſeeming ſatisfaction; at the ſame time obſerving to the commiſerating few that ſurrounded him, they muſt not mind it, he ſhould ſoon be dead!

Letters received by the packet bring the melancholy account of the ſhip Kent, captain Liege, bound for this port, being caſt away in a tremendous gale of wind, on the 23d of December, on the coaſt of Barbary, which was the day after their leaving Gibraltar. Miſs Seebeck, a paſſenger, and eleven of the crew periſhed: captain Liege and ſeven of his people ſaved their lives. Three Engliſh and ſeven Spaniſh ſhips were loſt in the ſame gale, on Cape Spartel. Captain Liege, with the ſurvivors of his company, and a few perſons belonging to the other ſhips were arrived at Gibraltar, in great diſtreſs, and very much fatigued.

On Wedneſday laſt the bodies of two unfortunate men were brought to town from Miſpeck point, where it is ſuppoſed they were caſt on ſhore ſome time ſince, on their paſſage from ſome part of the ſtates to this place. The bodies were found a ſmall diſtance from high water mark—one of them appears to be a Mr. Nathaniel Jarvis, who ſailed from this port laſt Fall, in a ſmall ſloop from New-York.

It is ſaid ſheep's wool is now in greater demand than was ever known—and it is with pleaſure we hear, that all kinds, not only of woolen, but linen manufactures are going on with great ſpirit.

Such has been the demand for wool for ſome time paſt, that it ſold off rapidly notwithſtanding the high price.

We learn from Woodſtock, that on Wedneſday the 2d inſtant, the meeting-houſe in the Old Pariſh was ſtruck by lightning, and greatly damaged.

From Canada we learn, the Britiſh are ſtrengthening the weſtern poſts with additional fortifications, and detachments of men; that it was given out that they would not be evacuated until the Americans had fully complied with the treaty of peace reſpecting the loyaliſts,—and that Shays and a few of his clan were there in April, unnoticed, dejected, and in a ſuffering condition.

From the Nova Scotia Packet, printed at Shelburne, April 5.

We are happy to inform the public, that the ſmall-pox, lately ſo rife here, and which for ſome time paſt has prevented the country people all round us from coming to town, has now, after having very ſucceſsfully gone through the inhabitants, entirely left them, and that out of above 400 patients, who have had it by inoculation, excluſive of thoſe who have had it in the natural way, only three have fallen victims to it. It is, ſays Sancho, an ill wind that blows nobody good: and perhaps our doctors can verify his ſaying in the buſineſs the above diſorder has occaſioned them; for, poor fellows!

the ſalubrity of our climate has been hitherto very much againſt them, that the gleanings, afforded by inoculation, muſt have appeared a harveſt to them.

On Tueſday laſt a dwelling houſe in Windham, occupied by Mr. Ebenezer Littlefield, was ſtruck with lightning, which conſiderably ſhattered the roof, and paſſing downward, burſt the chamber door; paſſed through the lower floor into a cellar, and three ſet fire to a quantity of flax which was entirely conſumed: providentially no perſons were hurt, though the family were in the houſe.

ELIZABETH-TOWN, May 16.

The authority of Maſſachuſetts Bay, though ſupine at the commencement of the late rebellion there, ſeems now to be acting with ſpirit towards the inſurgents. Nothing can be more obnoxious to ſociety, than erroneous clemency, which, when a rebellion is ſuppreſſed, exact no forfeiture from the malecontents.

About four weeks ſince, John Schamahorn, ſen. at Pumpton, Morris County, terminated, daſtardly terminated, a life he had not fortitude to ſupport, by hanging himſelf by the neck; and about a fortnight ſince, at Tappan, Peter Haring ſhot himſelf. Deſperate men! to arrogate to themſelves the prerogative of the Deity, and thus affront their God, and the wrath of Heaven defy.

This crime was once ſo rife in England, that all their ſapience could not reſtrain it until an edict was paſſed, that their naked bodies ſhould be expoſed, and given to carnivorous animals for food.

Self-preſervation is God's firm decree,
Can ſelf-deſtruction then from guilt be free?
As death to murder is by Heaven decreed
Self-murder ſurely is a fouler deed,
And death eternal muſt that crime ſucceed.

Philadelphia, May 22.

While the citizens of the United States (ſays a naval correſpondent) complain of the want of reſources for a Navy, they are deficient in not promoting the means of creating them. Should every captain of a veſſel be compelled to carry an apprentice for every 50 tons his veſſel carries, and ſhould every ſtate impoſe a trifling duty upon the wages of ſeamen, to be appropriated for the ſupport of a naval hoſpital in each ſeaport, it would ſoon create a number of ſeamen, ſufficient to man as large a navy as the United States in her preſent ſtate of agriculture, manufactures, and population ought to maintain.

On Wedneſday laſt, in a riot among a gang of wheelbarrow-felons, one of their keepers narrowly eſcaped with his life. One of them threw a heavy ſtone, which ſtruck him near the temple, and on being chaſtiſed for it, he aimed another blow at the keeper with a ſpade, which muſt have been fatal, had it not been evaded: The keeper wreſted the ſpade from the villain, and knocked him down with it, upon which ſeveral of the gang drew their knives, and called out to kill the keeper—the riot, however, was ſoon ſuppreſſed. Several of the aſſociates and accomplices of theſe offenders, who are yet at large, ſtanding round, afforded ſtrong ground of ſuſpicion that the riot had been premeditated. A woman of infamous character was ſeized, and, on ſearching her, a cutteau knife, about 16 inches long, ſharp pointed, was found concealed in her boſom; and it is ſuppoſed that ſhe was waiting an opportunity of handing it to one of the villains.

The wheelbarrow law is an experiment, the effect of which time only can diſcover, but the eager, united, and extreme exertions of the whole gang of villains, which have infeſted this city, to prevent the execution of it, affords great encouragement to a full and fair trial of it—it ſhews that this law is indeed terrible to them. But the immediate effect on thoſe now under ſentence, is greatly leſſened by many unthinking people who converſe with theſe felons in the ſtreets, and even ſupply them with rum, which never fails to bring on a riot among them. This renders ſeverity toward them unavoidable, and, in the end, this fooliſh compaſſion proves injurious, inſtead of beneficial, to the felons themſelves, as well as troubleſome and dangerous to the keepers. It is ſaid that this practice has produced orders to the keepers, to ſeize and bring to examination all perſons ſuſpected as accomplices of the barrow felons, and if any perſon afford ground for ſuch ſuſpicion, they muſt be content to bear the trouble, which by ſuch means, they bring on themſelves.

WHILST the late Act of Aſſembly for altering the code of our penal laws complied with the injunctions of our Conſtitution, breathed the tendereſt humanity in our Legiſlatures, and flattered us with the moſt favorable preſage of its effects, the lives of thouſands may thereby be ſpared with ſafety, and yet receive puniſhments adequate to their crimes, and, if not too much hardened by length and courſes of iniquities, may poſſibly be reclaimed and become uſeful citizens—thoſe conſequences we were, in a great meaſure, authoriſed to expect—but this law, from its nature, demanding the moſt ſevere and rigid execution, has unhappily ſhared the fate of many, too many others.—'Tis evident that from the relaxed attention of our Judicial Department, thoſe looked for benefits are notoriouſly ſubverted—our government diſgraced for a want of energy—our citizens are injured with the pernicious example, and put in continual terror from the outrageous and ungoverned conduct of thoſe criminals—they are ſuffered to beg and receive donations from ſpectators, and by theſe, or other means, obtain liquor, become intoxicated, and frequently exhibit the moſt horrid ſcenes on this ſide of the infernal regions—abuſing the inhabitants, beating their keepers, and with drawn knives and other weapons, oblige them to fly for their lives, uttering horrid imprecations of revenge and deſtruction. Thus living in the exerciſe and gratification of thoſe very diſpoſitions of which they are deſigned to be reclaimed—it would be abſurd to expect advantages from the preſent ſyſtem.—Why is not this matter attended to by our Courts of Quarter Seſſions, to whom it is entruſted? Thoſe neglects and abuſes are too flagrant to eſcape the notice of any citizen of Philadelphia.—Why are not vigilant and determined keepers ſuitable to the purpoſe employed, that the law may have a fair trial, and that thoſe complaints may be remedied?

James Rivington

Has this day opened a freſh importation of New Books, Magazines, and recent Publications, from on board the Betſey, captain Meſnard, and others, juſt arrived from London, at New York, viz.

1. THE new annual regiſter; being a general repoſitory of hiſtory, politics and literature for 1785; with a review of the ſtate of knowlege and taſte in England: this is the 6th volume of a much admired and moſt uſeful work, deſerving of great commendation.

2. The hiſtory of modern Europe, with an account of the decline and fall of the Roman empire, and a view of the progreſs of ſociety, from the riſe of the modern kingdoms and ſtates to the peace of Paris, a new edition, greatly enlarged and improved, and now increaſed to 5 volumes in 8vo: it contains a clear and ſatisfactory account of the affairs of modern Europe, exhibiting the progreſs of government and the human mind; alſo the revolutions of kingdoms, the operations of war, the intrigues of courts, the fluctuation of manners, and the convulſions of religion.

3. A ſhort review of the political ſtate of Great Britain, with a reply; and the people of England's anſwer to it: this ſhort review had ſuch a reception from all ranks of perſons, that more than 20,000 copies of it were ſold in a ſhort time after its publication; it is ſuggeſted to be the production of the beſt pen in England. The commercial treaty with France is one object of this writer's deſcription, and it is of great moment to ſeveral other great empires; the language is uncommonly ſuperior—The following characters are occaſionally introduced and depicted, viz. The king of Great Britain, the prince of Wales, the late coalition, Mr. Fox, lord North, Mr. Burke, Mr. Sheridan, Mr. Pitt, lord Mansfield, lords Rodney, Howe, Keppel, Mr. Haſtings, the ſtates of Holland, and the king of Pruſſia.

4. Hiſtorical and political remarks on the commercial treaty, with preliminary obſervations on the conſtruction of treaties, and the qualifications of a commercial negociator. The author diſcovers a great intimacy with the productions of Puffendorf, Vatel, Jenkinſon, lord Hawkeſbury, John Dewitt, Smith, Monteſquieu, Molloy, Blackſtone, Anderſon, Dean Tuker, and moſt of the beſt authorities.

5 A collection of all the treaties of peace, alliance and commerce between Great Britain and other powers, from that of Munſter, 1648, to the laſt treaty ſigned at Paris in 1783; with a diſcourſe on the conduct and government of Great Britain, in reſpect to neutral nations, by the right hon. Charles Jenkinſon, now lord Hawkeſbury, in 3 volumes.

6. Intereſting memoirs, by a lady; an entertaining work, much read, in 2 pocket volumes.

7. Tables requiſite to be uſed with the nautical almanack or ephemeris, for finding the latitude and longitude at ſea; publiſhed by order of the commiſſioners of longitude.

8. The magazines from September to the time of the ſhip's departure.

With many other articles, of which catalogues will be publiſhed.

For Cricket Clubs.

They alſo have on hand ſilk ſtockings, muſlins, cambrics and lawns, diapers, German linen, ſewing thread and ſilks, thread ſtockings, ſilks, &c.

Country merchants will meet with the greateſt encouragement, when properly recommended. They flatter themſelves, by their exactitude and knowledge in that line, to ſatisfy their cuſtomers ſo as to get their utmoſt confidence.

Philadelphia, May 21. eop7t

BY virtue of a writ of Venditioni Exponas to me directed, will be expoſed to public ſale on Wedneſday the 20th day of June next, at one o'clock in the afternoon, at the dwelling houſe of Adam Reigart, in the Borough of Lancaſter, one two-ſtory ſtone dwelling houſe, with two lots of ground thereto belonging, ſituate in ſaid Borough, bounded on the eaſt by Orange ſtreet, on the north by Cheſnut-ſtreet, on the weſt by Water-ſtreet, and on the ſouth by a lot of Jacob Stall; alſo one moiety of a tract of land, containing ſixty acres, ſituate in Manheim Townſhip; and one lot or piece of ground, ſituate in ſaid Borough, containing five acres, adjoining lands of John Hubley, Eſquire, Daniel Bart, and others, late the property of William Parr, Eſquire, deceaſed, ſeized and taken in execution by JOHN MILLER, Sheriff.

Lancaſter, May 15. 5t

FOR SALE BY Leonard Jacoby,
At his Store in Second ſtreet, the fifth door above Race ſtreet, and next door to the ſign of the Black Bear, in Philadelphia, a large aſſortment of the beſt kind of Dutch Scythes and German Straw-Knives, with ſuitable Whetſtones,
Alſo, a few elegant finiſhed
Light-Horſemens' SWORDS.
Likewiſe, a general Aſſortment of ſuperfine, fine, midling and courſe
BOULTING-CLOTHS,

Suitable for any kind of milling buſineſs. The ſuperfine cloths are ſuperior in quality to any heretofore imported into this country.

The ſaid JACOBY having dealt in that article for a number of years, flatters himſelf that he has acquired a competent knowledge thereof; therefore engages to furniſh any perſon deſirous of purchaſing, and not being fully acquainted with the quality and kind uſed to the different branches of the milling buſineſs, with ſuch cloths as will anſwer the purpoſe for which they are recommended, and if upon trial thoſe cloths by him choſen ſhould not anſwer the expectation of the purchaſer, he will either exchange them for others or return the money. May 21 mw1m

TO BE SOLD,

FIFTY-SIX acres of good marſh meadow on the iſland of Tinicum, in two different lots, one of which is about 44 acres, divided into four diviſions, chiefly by good drains, lying on the main road leading through the townſhip of Tinicum, and is chiefly in clover, blue graſs and timothy. The bank belonging to theſe meadows is in good order, and eaſy to be maintained. The other lot is upwards of 12 acres, bounded on the river Delaware, and near the other lot. It is encloſed all round with good ditches, and in excellent mowing order, and produces large crops.

Or if more agreeable to a purchaſer, the ſubſcriber would ſell the plantation whereon he now dwells, being about ſix miles from Philadelphia, on the main road from thence to the lower counties. This place contains about eighty-five acres, upwards of ten acres of orchard of the beſt of grafted fruit, nearly in its prime; a large proportion of it is in clover, and the remainder ſuitable for gardening or any kind of grain. There is on this place about twenty acres of woodland, moſtly encloſed for a paſture. The houſe is large and well ſituate, having an extenſive view of the rivers Delaware and Schuylkill, &c. The barn is large, and there is ſtabling for upwards of forty creatures; with moſt other neceſſary out buildings. The purchaſer may have any reaſonable time for payment of a conſiderable part of the purchaſe money, for either the meadow or plantation. For further particulars enquire of the ſubſcriber, PHILIP PRICE.

THE JUDICIOUS BACCHANAL.

WHILE the bottle to humour and ſocial delight
Has the ſmalleſt appearance to tend,
Facetiouſly keeps up the laugh of the night,
And enlivens the mind of a friend:
O let me enjoy it, ye bountiful pow'rs!
That my time may deliciouſly paſs;
And ſhould care ever think to intrude on my hours:
Scare the haggard away with the glaſs,
But if, from a rational feaſt of the ſenſe,
Should prudence be fatally ſtole,
And folly, debates, or contention commence,
From too great an expanſion of ſoul;
Should the man I eſteem, or the friend of my breaſt
In the ivy feel nought but the rod:
Should I turn ſweet religion to laughter or jeſt,
And daringly ſport with my God:
From my lips daſh the poiſon, O merciful fate!
Where the madneſs and blaſphemy hung;
And let ev'ry accent, which Virtue ſhould hate,
Parch on my infamous tongue.
From my ſight let the curſe be eternally driv'n,
Where my reaſon unhappily ſtray'd;
That no more I may offer an inſult to Heav'n,
Or give man a cauſe to upbraid.

Anecdote of the late DR. YOUNG concerning the abſurd Cuſtom of Duelling.

THIS eminent writer was remarkable for the urbanity of his manners, and the cheerfulneſs of his temper. prior to a moſt diſaſtrous family contingency, which threw a ſhade on all the ſubſequent part of his life. He was once on a party of pleaſure with a few ladies going up the water to Vauxhall Gardens; and he amuſed them with a tune on the German flute. Behind were ſeveral officers alſo in a boat rowing for the ſame place, and ſoon came along ſide of the boat where the Doctor and his ladies were. The Doctor, who was not much conceited with his playing, put up his flute on their approach. One of them inſtantly aſked, why he ceaſed from playing, or put the flute in his pocket? For the ſame reaſon, ſaid he, that I took it out, to pleaſe myſelf. The ſon of Mars very peremptorily rejoined, that if he did not immediately take out his flute and continue his muſic, he would inſtantly throw him into the Thames. The Doctor, in order to allay the fears of the ladies, pocketed the inſult with the beſt grace he could, and continued his tune all the way up the river. During the evening, however, he obſerved the officer, who had acted thus cavalierly, by himſelf in one of the walks, and making up to him, ſaid with great coolneſs, It was, Sir, to avoid interrupting the harmony either of my company or yours that I complied with your arrogant demand; but that you may be ſatisfied courage may be found under a black as well as a red coat, I expect you will meet me to-morrow morning at a certain place, without any ſecond, the quarrel being entirely entre nous. The Doctor further covenanted, in a very peremptory manner, that the buſineſs ſhould be altogether ſettled by ſwords. To all theſe conſiderations the officer implicitly conſented. The duelliſts accordingly met next morning at the hour and place appointed; but the moment the officer took his ground and drew his ſword, the Doctor preſented to his head a large horſe piſtol. What, ſaid the officer, do you intend to aſſaſſinate me? No, ſaid the Doctor, but you ſhall this inſtant put up your ſword and dance a minuet, or you are a dead man. Some ſhort altercation enſued, but the Doctor appeared ſo ſerious and determined, that the officer could not help complying. Now, ſir, ſaid the Doctor, you forced me to play yeſterday againſt my will, and I have obliged you to dance this day againſt yours. We are again on an equal footing, and whatever other ſatisfaction you demand, I am ready. The officer forthwith embraced the parſon, acknowledged his impertinence, and begged that for the future they might live on terms of the ſincereſt friendſhip, which they did ever after.

MEDICINAL WATERS,

For Drinking and Bathing, at

HARROWGATE,

Within four miles of Philadelphia, near the Frankfort Road.

THE Author of nature having provided the abovenamed ſpot with three different kinds of mineral waters, the ſubſcriber has at a conſiderable expence erected ſuch buildings over them as will render them fit to be uſed either internally or externally, according to the diſeaſes of perſons who require them.

Theſe waters have been examined by Doctors RUSH and MOYES.

The firſt ſpring contains a quantity of ſulphurous, or what thoſe gentlemen call hepatic air, and a ſmall quantity of iron. It is remarkable light, and reſembles, both in compoſition and medicinal qualities, the famous Harrowgate water in England.

The ſecond ſpring contains a quantity of fixed air, with a ſmall quantity of iron and calcareous earth, and poſſeſſes many of the virtues of the Pyrmont waters, ſo well known, and as juſtly celebrated all over the world.

The third ſpring is a common chalybeate water, and reſembles the Briſtol, in this ſtate.

The ſubſcriber ſubmits it to the judgment of the phyſicians of Philadelphia, when, in what diſeaſes, and in what quantity to recommend the uſe of theſe mineral waters. He will only obſerve, that the Harrowgate waters have rendered eſſential ſervice to perſons afflicted with diſeaſes and obſtructions of the ſtomach, bowels and kidnies. It has alſo removed worms, and relieved the irregular gout and chronic rheumatiſm. Externally applied, theſe waters have in many inſtances cured ulcers and other eruptions of the ſkin.

In the houſe erected over the Harrowgate waters are two ſhower baths, and two dreſſing rooms; and at the chalybeate ſpring is a convenient bath for plunging or ſwimming. Breakfaſt, dinner and lodgings may be had at the dwelling houſe adjoining the ſprings; and for the convenience of invalids, a light waggon will ſet off the 14th of May, and run while the ſeaſon continues, from Michael Hay's, inn-keeper, at the ſign of the King of Pruſſia, in Race-ſtreet, between Third and Fourth ſtreets: and thoſe who engage ſeats previous to the hours of ſix in the morning and half paſt two in the afternoon, the time fixed for the ſtage to ſet off, without delay, ſhould they not attend, muſt be anſwerable for the price of their ſeats.

The public may be aſſured, that no expence or trouble ſhall be ſpared to render theſe waters and baths both convenient and uſeful, by their humble ſervant,

May 4. GEORGE ESTERLY.

N. B. For the uſe of theſe baths the price will be four dollars for the ſeaſon, two dollars for one month, five ſhillings for one week, and one ſhilling for each time theſe baths are uſed leſs than a week. Nothing will be demanded from thoſe people who only drink the waters. The price for each ſeat in the ſtage going and coming will be two ſhillings and ſixpence. ſtſ&1awtf

N. B. All kinds of Merchandize on Commiſſion, diſpoſed of at Private Sale.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

In the Houſe of Aſſembly,

Monday, A. M. February 5, 1787.

THE Houſe having reſumed the petition of James Hathaway, and the affidavits accompanying the ſame, read the ſecond time on the 19th of January laſt;

Reſolved, That the ſaid James Hathaway have leave to bring in a Bill to annul his marriage with his wife Mary, formerly Mary Siddenham, and to enable him to marry again; giving ſix weeks notice thereof in two of the moſt public newſpapers publiſhed in Philadelphia, and alſo in the newſpapers publiſhed in Wilmington; in order that any perſons concerned may appear before the General Aſſembly, and offer their objection, if any they have, to ſuch bill.

Extract from the minutes,
James Booth, Clerk of Aſſembly.

In purſuance of the above reſolution, I James Hathaway, of the county of Suſſex, in the ſtate of Delaware, do intend to exhibit a bill for the purpoſes aforeſaid, to the Honorable the General Aſſembly of the ſaid ſtate, on Monday the fourth day of June next, at their ſeſſions of Aſſembly to be held at Dover, whereof all perſons concerned, who have any objections to ſuch bill, are deſired to take notice, and to appear at the time and place aforeſaid, to offer ſuch their objections.

JAMES HATHAWAY.

A CAUTION.

HAVING obſerved an advertiſement in Mr. Morton's paper, publiſhed the 8th of May inſtant, as well as divers hand bills circulating in ſeveral of the United States, under the ſignature of the ſubſcriber and company, offering for ſale bulbous flower roots and garden ſeeds; in order therefore to prevent any impoſition, I hereby declare, that I never was concerned with, or employed any perſon whatever, on the continent of America, to ſell or diſpoſe of any roots or ſeeds for my account, from a conviction, that the true and only method to eſtabliſh my reputation as a floriſt will be a faithful attention to the application of every gentleman deſirous of being ſupplied with thoſe articles, by the public's humble ſervant,

May 14. twſ PETER CROUWELS,
At Hartsfield, near the city of Philadelphia.

Ten Pounds Reward.

A Small Houſe and Lot in Dock, near Second ſtreet, now in the tenure of William M'Clure: the lot is 28 feet front on Dock ſtreet, and extends back to the middle of a brick wall about 28 or 29 feet: there is on ſaid lot a brick houſe in front, two ſtories high, and a frame in the rear alſo two ſtories high, part of the roof newly covered; the whole would, it is expected, with a little repair, let for 40 or 45l. pounds per annum.

A pleaſant Country Seat, ſituate on the banks of Schuylkill, next to George Gray's ferry, containing about 36 acres of good land, with the improvements: conſiſting of a well finiſhed brick houſe, a tenant's houſe, alſo of brick, a good ſtore, barn and ſtables, a good orchard, a garden with fruit trees, ſpring houſe, pump of good water, &c. &c.

A Piece of good Meadow on Greenwich iſland, adjoining meadows of William Shipley, and William Craig, eſq; containing about 7 or 7 and a half acres.

Two Lots of Ground on the eaſt ſide of Third, between Spruce and Union ſtreets, 41 feet front on Third ſtreet and 160 feet in depth. For terms apply to THOMAS FRANKLIN, in Third ſtreet.

March 5 w&ſtf

TO BE SOLD, A

VALUABLE Plantation, pleaſantly ſituated in Briſtol townſhip, Bucks county, two miles from the borough of Briſtol and 8 miles from Trenton, containing about 440 acres of Land: the ſoil fertile, and equal in goodneſs to any in the townſhip; 150 acres of which are cleared, and fitted for the plough, 20 acres of meadow in good graſs, and more may eaſily be made, the remainder is woodland well timbered. The above tract is well ſituated, and calculated for dividing into two Farms, there being two comfortable log dwelling houſes on the premiſes, two young orchards, with a well of good water near each houſe. The river Delaware running in front of the farm, affords a convenient and cheap way to tranſport the produce of ſaid place to the markets of this or the Jerſey ſtate, which is an object of conſiderable importance to the farmer. For further particulars apply to JOHN BOOZE, living near the premiſes, or to ROBERT WALN, in Philadelphia.

LINES written on the Wainſcot of an Inn.

UNHAPPY wainſcot, to receive
What every blockhead pleaſe to leave;
Who, void of ſenſe, or taſte, or wit,
By no reproof or ſatire hit,
To ſpoil thy paint will take ſuch pains,
Expoſing too his want of brains.

ANSWER.

GRIEVE not for me, the wainſcot cries,
I, as I ought, ſuch traſh deſpiſe;
'Tis you, whoſe mem'ry's forc'd to bear
The filthy nonſenſe ſcribbled here;
'Tis you, who have moſt cauſe for ſorrow—
Behold! the diſhclout comes to-morrow.
Ye who on windows thus prolong your ſhame,
And to ſuch arrant nonſenſe put your name,
The diamond quit—with me the pencil take,
So ſhall that ſhame but ſhort duration make;
For lo! the houſemaid comes in dreadful pet,
With red right hand, and with a diſhclout wet,
Daſhes off all, nor leaves a wreck to tell
Who 'twas that wrote ſo ill, or lov'd ſo well.

ANECDOTE.

A SCHOLAR of Dr. Buſby coming into a parlour where the Dr. had laid down a fine bunch of grapes for his own eating, takes it up, and ſays aloud, 'I publiſh the banns between theſe grapes and my mouth; if any one knows any juſt cauſe or impediment why theſe two ſhould not be joined together, let them declare it.' The Dr. being but in the next room, overheard all that was ſaid, and, coming into the ſchool, ordered the boy who had eaten his grapes to be taken up on another boy's back; but before he proceeded to the uſual diſcipline, he cried out aloud, as the delinquent had done, 'I publiſh the banns between my rod and this boy's breech, if any one knows any juſt cauſe or impediment why theſe two ſhould not be joined together, let them declare it.' I forbid the banns, cried the boy. Why ſo? ſaid the Dr. Becauſe the parties are not agreed, replied the boy. Which anſwer ſo pleaſed the Dr. who loved to find any readineſs of wit in his ſcholars, that he ordered the boy to be ſet down.

To Gentlemen of the Law.

This Day are publiſhed, and ſold by

JAMES RIVINGTON, at NEW-YORK,

REPORTS of CASES, argued and determined in the Court of King's Bench, in 1785 and 1786, by the following Judges—Lord Mansfield, Edward Willes, Eſq; Francis Buller, and Sir William Aſhurſt. Theſe Reports commence in Michaelmas Term, 1785, are continued in Hilary, Eaſter, Trinity and Michaelmas Terms, 1786, and are publiſhed periodically; there are five parts in this volume, and the Editors, at the requeſt of the whole Cauſidicade, have declared their intentions to purſue this plan of producing, within a ſhort time after each term, the notes of caſes adjudged in the Court of King's Bench: by this means they remedy the inconvenience felt by every part of the profeſſion, of waiting two or three years till ſome gentleman of experience and ability has collected matter ſufficient to form a complete volume. They have been publiſhed but a very ſhort time, viz. November 1786, and already paſſed through two editions, owing to the approved attention and accuracy in the very reſpectable publiſhers, viz. Charles Durnford and Edward Hyde Eaſt, of the Temple, Eſquires, Barriſters at Law. The five parts are bound in one volume.

ALSO,

THIS DAY IS PUBLISHED,

The long wiſhed for OCTAVO Edition of

Peere Williams's Chancery Reports,

With additional references from Caſes and Reporters for the laſt thirty-nine years, publiſhed laſt February in London, by Samuel Compton Cox, Eſq; Barriſter of Lincoln's Inn. This work is printed verbatim et literatim with the folio edition, and is little more than one third of the price.——Sold by JAMES RIVINGTON. Where may be had,

The admirable quality of theſe lands, and the favourable climate in which they are ſituated, are too well known to need deſcription. The conditions of ſale are as follows, to wit.

1ſt. The townſhips or fractional parts of townſhips throughout the different ranges, will be ſold either entire or in lots, in alternate order; that is to ſay, where a townſhip, or fractional part of a tonſhwip, is ſold entire, the next will be ſold in lots, agreeably to ordinance of the 20th of May, 1785.

2d. The lands are not to be ſold under a dollar per acre, payable in gold or ſilver, or any of the ſecurities of the United States.

3d. The purchaſers are to pay the charges of ſurvey, which are to be eſtimated at thirty-ſix dollars in ſpecie, or certificates as aforeſaid for every townſhip; and in the ſame proportion for fractional parts of townſhips or lots; this payment to be made at the ſales, and in caſe of failure, the lands to be again expoſed to public auction.

4th. One third of the purchaſe money is to be paid at the time of purchaſe; and the remaining two thirds in three months after the date of the ſale; on which payment a certificate ſhall be given by the Treaſurer of the United States, which ſhall entitle the perſon to whom the ſame is given to receive from the Commiſſioners of this Board a proper title; provided, that if the ſecond payment is not made at the time above ſpecified, the firſt payment is to be forfeited, and the land on which the forfeit accrued be again ſet up for ſale.

5th. The platts of the townſhips will be marked by ſubdiviſions into lots of one mile ſquare, or 640 acres, and numbered from one to 36, and out of each townſhip, Lot No. 8, 11, 26 and 29, are to be reſerved for future ſale; Lot No. 16, for the maintenance of Public Schools within the reſpective townſhips, and out of every fractional part of a townſhip, as many lots of the ſame number as ſhall be found therein. There will alſo be reſerved to the United States one third part of all gold and ſilver, lead and copper mines.

Proper maps and deſcriptions of the lands will be exhibited at the time and place of ſale, and the ſales will continue from day to day until the whole are ſold.

WARSAW, Feb. 12.

THE Czarina is ſet out to viſit her eſtates in Crimea, and to be proclaimed ſovereign of 2,500,000 new ſubjects, who pay her an annual ſubſidy of 3,000,000 of crowns, beſides the produce of the cuſtoms. The Ruſſians will not fail to uſe all the advantages afforded them by their new poſſeſſions, and with the ports of Bakalawa and Cherſon, the Cuban, and the iſle of Taman, they will be able to procure great quantities of ſhip-building timber, iron, and other materials neceſſary for the marine, which they may either uſe or export to Sicily, Naples, Nenice, Leghorn, Genoa, Toulon, and Marſeilles. They may alſo obtain great part of the produce of the gold mine of Tchadirdagre, which proved ſo valuable to the Genoeſe before their expulſion in 1747. Crimea, now called Taurida, can furniſh 60,000 horſes in leſs than a year; the ſoil, with little cultivation, yields largely; and that it may not want cultivators, the empreſs has reſolved to increaſe the population of the new empire, by aſſembling the families of the wandering Greeks, in the Curdiſtan, Armenia, Mingrelia, Circaſſia, and Georgia; thus Taurida may in a few years become as flouriſhing under the laws of Czarina, as it was formerly under thoſe of Mithridates. The baggage and ſervants of the king ſet out on 9th of this month for Kaniew, where his majeſty is to meet the empreſs of Ruſſia. Our monarch will ſet out about the 21ſt. The Ruſſian ambaſſador ſet out with his ſuite on the 11th for Kiow.

DUBLIN, March 29.

A letter from Belfaſt, dated March 23, ſays,—'The following we have as an abſolute fact from a gentleman of veracity: On Saturday laſt, as the hounds of Cha. Crymble, eſquire, were in purſuit of a hare in the neighbourhood of Ballyclare, an eagle ſuddenly darted down upon poor puſs, and carried her up into the air with him, quite out of ſight. Some time after, a ſecond the was ſtarted, which agle carried off in the ſame manner, with this difference—the firſt hare the gentlemen knew not what became of—but the other the eagle was ſeen to let fall at ſome hundred yards diſtance, and was found with the ſkin and fleſh almoſt entirely torn off.'

The bill which is now pending for the regulation of Mediterranean paſſes, goes not only to puniſh the abſolute forgery of counterfeiting ſuch paſſes, but to the puniſhment of ſuch perſons as ſhall duly obtain a regular and authentic paſs, and afterwards diſpoſe of it to the Americans, or any other foreign power whatever.

April 10.

A letter from Clonmel, dated April 5, ſays—"The gaol fever which raged with ſuch violence in the priſon of this town, is conſiderably abated, by the mode adopted by Sir Jerome Fitzpatrick, who was ſent here by government, for the purpoſe of uſing every means for the recovery of the ſick, and the ſafety of the court at the aſſizes.

"As a brief recital of the various methods, which that gentleman uſed, to do away the infectious principle, may not prove unedifying, we beg leave to remark, that his firſt attention was to remove all the foul ſtraw, &c. from the priſon, and to have it conſumed; then to cleanſe the apartments in the beſt manner poſſible; to blaſt gunpowder in every part of them; to burn ſubſtances capable of beſtowing an effluvia, calculated to deſtroy ſtench, and counteract putrefaction; at the ſame time, that in the act of burning, by rarifying the corrupted air, a current of the pure element, from abroad, ſupplied its place. Theſe effects, together with thoſe ariſing from the calcarious exhalations, in the blanching the walls and cielings, naturally bid fair to correct every thing noxious; yet all this did not perfectly ſatisfy him, as the priſon was uncommonly crowded, until he removed the healthful, which enſures every thing deſirable."

LONDON,

March 28. The hills about Edinburgh now exhibit an appearance of winter by their whiteneſs, occaſioned by a late fall of ſnow.

The report current at the Hague laſt week, gives an alarming account of the ſituation of North-Holland. In many of the villages, and Horn and Enkhuyſen in particular, the two parties of Patriots and Stadtholderians had riſen to ſuch a height, that vi & armis was wielded on both ſides, with great fury and devaſtation. Much blood had been ſpilt in conſequence, and the magiſtrates had been obliged to abandon their reſpective towns. The ſtates of Holland have ordered general Ruſſel to ſend a detachment of cavalry and infantry, to eſtabliſh peace and harmony amongſt theſe terrible Mynheers. The patriots, it ſeems, have been themſelves the cauſe of this confuſion, in endeavouring to promote what they call 'a juſt repreſentation of the people in the government;' which being evidently calculated to weaken the prince of Orange's power, rouſed the attention of his friends, who not to be behind hand, aſſailed them from all quarters, and obliged theſe renowned patriots to act, not as they began, on the offenſive, but on the defenſive.

Friday, by the expreſs deſire of general Elliott, ſome gentlemen waited on a refiner in the city, to attend the proceſs of extracting ſome gold and ſilver, actually contained in the braſs cannon, brought up by Mr. Braithwaite, belonging to the Spaniſh floating batteries. The ſilver and gold are intended to be made into medals, to perpetuate the memory of that glorious event.

March 29. Governor Philips is ſtill in London, and it is ſuppoſed his ſailing with the fleet to Botany Bay will be poſtponed till after lord George Gordon's trial on the ſecond libel he is charged with by the attorney general, with reſpect to the felony laws and executions, which comes on in the king's bench, after the proſecution for ſcandal, on the part of the court of France, is brought to iſſue.

The ſhipping buſineſs is totally at a ſtand, and ſome thouſands of ſhipwrights and caulkers are now entirely out of employ. One of the firſt yards in the river diſcharged on Saturday night all their people, except foremen and apprentices; another yard, who generally employed two hundred, have reduced theirs to 25, and moſt of the other yards in proportion.

It is a fact, that there never was ſuch a ſcarcity of ſeamen known in this country in time of peace as the preſent: the truth is, that ſuch numbers have gone into foreign ſervice, where they meet with every poſſible encouragement. In caſe of war, how are they to be recalled, as the commercial treaty with France will probably be the means of many more going away.

A letter from Italy ſays, 'The inhabitants of Rimini have lived in the fields during the months of January and February, notwithſtanding the inclemency of the ſeaſon, the earth having been in conſtant motion, and the houſes which appeared beſt able to reſiſt the ſhocks, having ſucceſſively given way to their violence. The great church of St. Francis, the ſumptuous monument of the munificence of the court of Malatteſſe, is entirely overthrown; the famous arch of Auguſtus, which ſeemed of ſtrength ſufficient to defy the effects of time for ages to come, is ſplit in the middle; and Trajan's Bridge has ſuffered conſiderable damage The cuſtom houſe is wholly in ruins, and more than 40 perſons have loſt their lives from the fall of buildings in the city and its environs.'

An edict is in contemplation, and expected ſoon to iſſue, in favour of the proteſtants refugees from France. Virtually, therefore, this edict is to be a revocation of the edict of Nantz; and thus it is, that the laurels of Louis the Sixteenth ſhoot out, amidſt the growing greatneſs of his country.

The French agents are the principal purchaſers of the ſhipping put up for ſale, as well in the river Thames as in other ports of England. The comment deducible from this is very obvious. The French will avail themſelves of every uſeful occurrence in the commercial treaty which they have lately concluded with this country. They will not only ſell and buy with us, but ſuch conduct as this is ſaying in very plain language, we will be the carriers alſo of the goods which paſs and repaſs between the two countries; and the reſult from hence is not only that the French will nip our nurſery for ſeamen, while they are foſtering their own, and even raiſing a freſh ſource of naval ſtrength by that means, but they will alſo have a race of ſeamen more fully and intimately acquainted with our channel, and the ports of this kingdom (a circumſtance which may be fatal indeed in a future war) than ever yet fell to the lot of France to obtain.

Extract of a letter from Exeter, March 24.

'Yeſterday came on to be tried here, before Mr. Juſtice Buller, and a ſpecial jury of the firſt gentlemen of the county; a cauſe of a very intereſting and affecting nature, in which a young gentlewoman of this town was plantiff, and a gentleman of property defendant. The action was brought for a breach of promiſe of marriage, under which the defendant had ſeduced the plantiff, who proved pregnant, and he then married another lady. This cauſe excited the attention of the town to a conſiderable degree, and was conducted by Mr. Dallas, who pled for the plaintiff, with all the eloquence, and power of reaſon; his ſpeech was beautifully pathetic, and replete with the moſt alluring graces of oratory.—The general indignation excited by the injury, occaſioned the court (which is uncommonly ſpacious) to be thronged with all the beautiful women of the county, whoſe tears eloquently expreſſed the feelings of tenderneſs and pity. It is impoſſible to deſcribe the effect of this ſpeech upon the audience in general who burſt into frequent exclamations of applauſe, deſpight of every attempt made by the officers of the court to ſilence a proceeding ſo uncommon and irregular in ſuch a place; and at the concluſion, the plaudits were for a while inceſſant.—The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, nearly to the amount of the damages laid, to the unanimous ſatisfaction of the whole town."

March 30. The manufacturers employed by Meſſrs. Pedders and Emett in their ſpinning works at Hodder-bridge near Preſton, Lancaſhire, were lately alarmed by an uncommon diſtemper breaking out, and ſpreading amongſt them with great rapidity. Upon Wedneſday, Feb. the 14th, a healthy young woman dropped down ſuddenly in ſtrong convulſions, and remained in that ſituation near 24 hours, with only a few ſlight intervals of about 10 minutes each. After this time the convulſions returned for ſeveral days in fits of a quarter of an hour, and of four hours continuance, but with much longer intervals. Upon the Friday following, another perſon, who had worked with this woman, was alſo affected in the ſame manner; upon Saturday, eight more; upon Sunday ſix, and upon Monday four. The patients had little or no warning of the approach of the fits, but fell down ſpeechleſs, and remained perfectly delirious, during their continuance, with the body bent backwards, and ſo powerfully convulſed, that five or ſix people were ſcarcely ſufficient to prevent a young girl from biting and tearing herſelf, or daſhing her head againſt the walls or floor. On Sunday the terrors of theſe people, and all around them, were increaſed to the higheſt pitch, by the ſpreading of the complaint, and ſtill more by the inefficacy of all the means yet tried for their recovery, and the dreadful idea that their diſeaſe was the plague, or ſome ſimilar infection introduced by the cotton.

A phyſician of this place being conſulted, diſcovered that the diſeaſe was entirely nervous; that the perſon firſt affected had been thrown into that ſituation by the wanton application of a living mouſe to her cheek, an animal which excited in her a kind of horror; and that the reſt, who were chiefly young women had been afflicted merely by a kind of ſympathetic contagion. The application of electricity, of nervous medicines, but above all the ſeparation of the patients, and the quieting of their apprehenſions by aſſurances of ſpeedy recovery, ſoon put a ſtop to the progreſs of the diſorder, and effected a cure; inſomuch that they are all at work again, and have had no return of the complaint ſince. The above is a ſtriking inſtance of the powerful influence of fear, and other paſſions of the mind, upon the body, well known indeed to gentlemen of the faculty, but ſcarcely credible to thoſe who have not had opportunities of obſerving their effects.

April 3. Lord Cornwallis has commenced his oriental career, by a ſpirit of party proſecution—theſe proceedings are under the plea of reform——his lordſhip has turned upwards of eight perſons from different offices, and filled up the vacancies with the adherents of a certain delinquent. Every contract made by general Sloper has been cancelled, and others entered into with perſons ſuppoſed to be the friends of a late governor general. His lordſhip did not ſtop here; for he has ordered proſecutions to be commenced againſt general Sloper, for making the contracts!

April 5. Capt. Anderſon of the Swallow, juſt arrived from Bengal, has had a very remarkable paſſage both out and home. He landed lord Cornwallis in Bengal, in three months and fourteen days, and is returned after a paſſage of 3 months and 23 days, although he was detained 11 days at St. Helena, from the ſurf running ſo high, that the ſhip's company could not ſhip a butt of water.

Three reports from the board of trade are ſaid to be now before the privy council, relative to the arrangement of trade with America.

A letter from Paris, dated March 21, ſays—"Friday laſt a ſtag was ſtarted in the Bois de Boulogne, for the diverſion of the courtiers and their ladies, who were moſt ſuperbly dreſſed in a kind of uniform; their bonnets moſt beautifully adorned with nodding plumage. The duke of Orleans, in order to render the chaſe more entertaining, ordered the huntſman to turn the noble antlers out of the Bois gate that leads to Paris; the ſtag took immediately that way, and the nobility followed him as cloſe as they could on horſeback, in phaetons, giggs, and other carriages: he leaped over two or three ditches, and got into the city a little below la Barrier Blanche. The wonder and aſtoniſhment of the inhabitants of ſome ſtreets can better be imagined than deſcribed. The ſounding of the horns, the noiſe of the horſes and carriages, the ſuperb appearance of the court, and the precipitate majeſtic flight of the animal cauſed an univerſal conſternation among the gaping multitude."

The walking match with colonel Thornton and Mr. May, on which ſeveral thouſands were depending, was performed by the colonel on Thurſday the 22d paſt with great eaſe. The colonel ſtarted at the firſt mile ſtone from Beverly on the York road, at 37 minutes and a half paſt five in the morning, and completed the diſtance, and near a mile over in one hour and twenty five minutes within the time given, which was to walk 50 miles in 14 ſucceſſive hours. The colonel walked the laſt 32 miles in Londeſborough gardens; and what was very remarkable, a favourite pointer of the colonel attended him the whole diſtance, and on the completion of the match immediately indicated his joy by a prodigious bark!

Sunday morning, a young man undertook for a wager of 100l. to walk 40 miles in eight hours and a half. An half hour (included in the eight hours and an half) was allowed him for refreſhment, but he won the wager, and arrived at the place from whence he ſet out within a quarter of an hour of the time allowed. The noted Powell accompanied him, and acknowledged that he might lay claim to the merit of the firſt walker in the kingdom. Several gentlemen on horſeback and in carriages went with him, and the knowing ones, who were all againſt him, confeſſed they were taken in. He took the road to Slough, but did not ſtop till he returned to Cranford bridge.

HOUSE OF COMMONS. Tueſday, April 3.

Impeachment of Mr. Haſtings.

Mr. Burke in a ſhort ſpeech moved the order of the day, that the third reſolution of the committee be now read, and the ſame being accordingly read at the table, Mr. Burke moved,

"That this houſe do now agree with the report of the ſaid committee, that Warren Haſtings, Eſq; is guilty of high crimes and miſdemeanors, as expreſſed in the title of the ſaid charges."

The ſpeaker put the queſtion with great ſolemnity, and the ſame was reſolved in the affirmative, without a diviſion.

AMERICA.

BOSTON, May 8.

A gentleman from the eaſtward and northward informs, that the people in thoſe quarters being fully ſenſible of the neceſſity and advantage of introducing men of decided and competent abilities into the legiſlature, have, (as this town always did in better days) determined to elect the moſt unexceptionable characters in the law, to repreſent them in the next general court.—Shades of Otis, Hawley and Quincy, ariſe! and point your deluded and abuſed countrymen to the paths of rectitude and honour!

WORCESTER, May 3.

By accounts from Rhode Iſland we learn, that that unfortunate ſtate is likely to be hampered with an adminiſtration, who, in all probability, will add, if poſſible, to the confuſion and diſtreſs of that republic. The meaſures of their late adminiſtration have been pronounced infamous throughout America, as well as in Europe.

May 15. Accounts from the ſouthward and weſtward ſay, that one conſolidated government is now talked of, to extend from New-Hampſhire to Georgia; but it is to be hoped there is yet that virtue in United America, as will enable her to ſupport the free governments her citizens now enjoy.

We learn that his excellency John Adams, eſq; our miniſter at the court of Great Britain, has aſked permiſſion to return home; and may be expected next ſpring at furtheſt.

His excellency John Hancock, Eſq. his lady, and Mrs. Jeffrey, paſſed through this town on their return to Boſton, from New-York.

SPRINGFIELD, May 15.

In vain do thoſe who wiſh for the reſtoration of peace to theſe unhappy ſtates, repreſent the alarming conſequences which muſt follow the anarchy which prevails at this time; in vain do they ſet the example of ſubmiſſion to thoſe laws which ought to unite the citizens of the ſame country, and to that moderation which ought to guide all their proceedings, and all their examinations into the privileges of each particular claſs. The minds of the people are too much agitated to liſten to the voice of reaſon, and they ſeem to get daily more and more out of bounds; all the towns, all the villages, are unhappily divided into two parties, violently exaſperated againſt each other, and ready to come to the moſt deplorable extremities, in ſupport of what they each think right.

Preparations, we are told, are making to fortify the town of Great Barrington, the inhabitants of which being apprehenſive of a viſit from the Maſſachuſetts inſurgents.

NEW-BRUNSWICK, May 17.

We are credibly informed, that in the eaſtern part of this ſtate petitions are handing about, which are to be preſented to the legiſlature at their preſent ſitting, praying a diviſion of the ſtate. And from the weſtward we learn, they wiſh another emiſſion of paper currency.

Philadelphia, May 23.

The ſhip Canton, captain Truxton, who arrived on Sunday laſt, left Canton in China, on the 3d of January, but meeting with ſome tempeſtuous weather on our coaſt, was prevented from reaching this port, at leaſt a fortnight earlier than he did. The paſſage he has made, is, however, conſidered a very expeditious one.

Samuel Huntingdon, Eſq. is elected governor, and Oliver Walcot, Eſq. lieutenant governor of the ſtate of Connecticut.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Dublin, dated February 23, 1787.

'I am ſure you would be convinced of the ſincerity of my friendſhip if you knew with what reluctance I generally ſit down to write, and yet ſee, I can graſp the pen for you—and for you only——No longer does the buſy ſquib—the nervous Paddy——or the ſomniferous eſſay iſſue from the pen of your friend.

'Why? you will aſk——why we are ſo completely ſunk in political depravity—ſo loſt to thoſe fine principles of national pride and conſequence which elevate the free citizen to a due ſenſe of his rights—that to attempt to inſpire them would be equal temerity and folly. Think of it! The biſhop of Cloyne has publiſhed a libel againſt the catholics of the ſouth, and it has gone through eight editions! What are the grounds of this libel you will ſay? Why the miſerable peaſantry in that quarter have been moſt ſhockingly wrecked for tythes, and, as might be expected, committed great outrages on the perſons of their tyrants—this drew forth the interpoſition of the army——and finally of the biſhop of Cloyne—who, in order to excite alarm, create diviſion and induce the interpoſition of the legiſlature, writes a pamphlet, and imputes all theſe diſorders of the poor, to a ſettled popiſh plan (as of old) to overturn the conſtitution in church and ſtate, deſtroy the Proteſtant aſcendancy, &c. &c. In ſhort, Boreface, or Temple, or any of the faithful recorders of the Iriſh rebellions, could not do their buſineſs equal to him. The event has juſtified the intention——it has fomented many of the old jealouſies, and thrown our liberality and benevolence twenty years back again. The parliament are now buſy enacting bloody laws—— as Grattan calls them "the Draconian Code"—and were it not for him a clauſe would have paſſed, proſtrating the chapels of thoſe poor wretches who ſhould aſſemble at them to plan means for the alleviation of their ſufferings.'

The Conſtitution of the Pennſylvania Society, for promoting the Abolition of Slavery, and the Relief of Free Negroes, unlawfully held in Bondage. Begun in the Year 1774, and enlarged on the twenty-third of April, 1787.

"All things whatſoever ye would that men ſhould do to you, do ye even ſo to them; for this is the law and the prophets." Matt. vii 12.

IT having pleaſed the Creator of the world, to make of one fleſh, all the children of men—— it becomes them to conſult and promote each other's happineſs, as members of the ſame family, however diverſified they may be, by colour, ſituation, religion, or different ſtates of ſociety. It is more eſpecially the duty of thoſe perſons, who profeſs to maintain for themſelves the rights of human nature, and who acknowledge the obligations of Chriſtianity, to uſe ſuch means as are in their power, to extend the bleſſings of freedom to every part of the human race: and in a more particular manner, to ſuch of their fellow-creatures, as are entitled to freedom by the laws and conſtitutions of any of the United States, and who, notwithſtanding, are detained in bondage, by fraud or violence.——From a full conviction of the truth and obligation of theſe principles—from a deſire to diffuſe them, wherever the miſeries and vices of ſlavery exiſt, and in humble confidence of the favour and ſupport of the Father of mankind, the ſubſcribers have aſſociated themſelves under the title of the "Pennſylvania Society for promoting the Abolition of Slavery, and the Relief of Free Negroes unlawfully held in Bondage."

For effecting theſe purpoſes, they have adopted the following conſtitution:

I. The officers of the ſociety ſhall conſiſt of a preſident, two vice-preſidents, two ſecretaries, a treaſurer, four counſellors, an electing committee of twelve, and an acting committee of ſix members; all of whom, except the laſt named committee, ſhall be choſen annually by ballot, on the firſt Second-day called Monday, in the month called January.

II. The preſident, and in his abſence one of the vice-preſidents, ſhall preſide in all the meetings, and ſubſcribe all the public acts of the ſociety. The preſident, or in his abſence, either of the vice-preſidents, ſhall moreover have the power of calling a ſpecial meeting of the ſociety whenever he ſhall judge proper. A ſpecial meeting ſhall likewiſe be called at any time, when ſix members of the ſociety ſhall concur in requeſting it.

III. The ſecretaries ſhall keep fair records of the proceedings of the ſociety, and ſhall correſpond with ſuch perſons and ſocieties, as may be judged neceſſary to promote the views and objects of the inſtitution.

IV. The treaſurer ſhall keep all the monies and ſecurities belonging to the ſociety, and ſhall pay all orders ſigned by the preſident or one of the vice-preſidents——which orders ſhall be his vouchers for his expenditures. He ſhall, before he enters upon his office, give a bond of not leſs than two hundred pounds, for the faithful diſcharge of the duties of it.

V. The buſineſs of the counſellors ſhall be to explain the laws and conſtitutions of the ſtates, which relate to the emancipation of ſlaves, and to urge their claims to freedom, when legal, before ſuch perſons or courts as are authoriſed to decide upon them.

VI. The electing committee ſhall have the ſole power of admitting new members. Two-thirds of them ſhall be a quorum for this purpoſe—and the concurrence of a majority of them by ballot, when met, ſhall be neceſſary for the admiſſion of a member. No member ſhall be admitted, who has not been propoſed at a general meeting of the ſociety, nor ſhall an election for a member take place, in leſs than one month after the time of his being propoſed. Foreigners or perſons who do not reſide in this ſtate, may be elected correſponding members of the ſociety, without being ſubject to any annual payment, and ſhall be admitted to the meetings of the ſociety during their reſidence in the ſtate.

VII. The acting committee ſhall tranſact ſuch buſineſs as ſhall occur in the receſs of the ſociety and report the ſame at each quarterly meeting.——They ſhall have a right, with the concurrence of the preſident or one of the vice-preſidents, to draw upon the treaſurer for ſuch ſums of money as ſhall be neceſſary to carry on the buſineſs of their appointment. Four of them ſhall be a quorum. After their firſt election, two of their number ſhall be relieved from duty at each quarterly meeting, and two members ſhall be appointed to ſucceed them.

VIII. Every member upon his admiſſion, ſhall ſubſcribe the conſtitution of the ſociety, and contribute ten ſhillings annually in quarterly payments, towards defraying its contingent expences. If he neglects to pay the ſame for more than two years he ſhall upon due notice being given him of his delinquency, ceaſe to be a member.

IX. The ſociety ſhall meet on the firſt Second-day called Monday, in the months called January, April, July, and October, at ſuch place as ſhall be agreed to by a majority of the ſociety.

X. No perſon holding a ſlave ſhall be admitted a member of this ſociety.

XI. No law or regulation ſhall contradict any part of the conſtitution of the ſociety, nor ſhall any law or alteration in the conſtitution be made, without being propoſed at a previous meeting. All queſtions ſhall be decided, where there is a diviſion, by a majority of votes. In thoſe caſes where the ſociety is equally divided, the preſiding officer ſhall have a caſting vote.

Extract of a Letter from Salem, dated May 15.

'Laſt Sunday captain Sanders, in the brig Three Siſters, arrived here from the Cape of Good Hope, which he left the beginning of March; but he was laſt from Helena, from whence he had a paſſage of 52 days.—Captain Sanders left captain Henry Clarke, of this port, at St. Helena, who had put in there in diſtreſs, having loſt his foremaſt in his paſſage from the Cape of Good Hope to the Iſle of France: he was to proceed again in a few days.

'Captain Sanders, from the Cape of Good Hope, has brought home a young Oſtrich: it is now about three months old, and about the bigneſs of a turky: another one died on the paſſage.

'Sunday captain Orne, in a brig belonging to this port, from the iſland of Goree, arrived at Suam, having loſt his mainmaſt, and his mate overboard, in a gale of wind, ſome time laſt month.'

JOHN PHILIP SAVARY, a French Baker, in the city of Philadelphia, informs the Public, that Nicholas Elexis Grevin, a ſurgeon by trade (as he calls himſelf) came to him about 18 months ago in great diſtreſs, and requeſted the ſubſcriber to allow him to live with him in his houſe, and that for the conſideration of meat, lodging and cloathing, he would keep his books, make out his bills, and do the out door buſineſs, ſuch as collecting money from the cuſtomers, &c. That the ſubſcriber, unfortunately not knowing how to read and write, accepted of his propoſals, and allowed him to come into his houſe on the above terms: that the ſaid Grevin, taking advantage of his ſuperior knowledge and abilities (although entirely ignorant of the buſineſs of a baker) impoſed himſelf upon the cuſtomers and the Public, ſometimes for the ſubſcriber's partner, and ſometimes for his maſter, and at the ſame time never kept any regular accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the houſe; ſo that the ſubſcriber, on theſe conſiderations, has been obliged to part with him: he therefore gives this public Notice to all his cuſtomers, not to pay in future any money which they may owe to the ſubſcriber for bread or flour delivered by him or the ſaid Grevin, as he will not coſider it as payment, but will compel ſuch cuſtomers to make payment to himſelf again.

The Noted STALLION

ECLIPSE,

HAVING for four years ſucceſſively ſtood at the ſame place as a COVERING HORSE, and been frequently ſhewn at the Coffee-Houſe in the city of Philadelphia, and at all times and places where he has been viewed and examined by any gentleman, ſportſman, or judge of that noble animal, ſtill allowed to be the moſt complete figure of a horſe they had ever ſeen; and it is as generally acknowledged, "that for beauty, carriage and ſpeed," he is not excelled by any on this continent, nor is there any more certain and noted for getting ſuperior elegant colts; many of which are now very valuable, and may be ſeen in the poſſeſſion of ſeveral gentlemen in the neighbourhood.

ECLIPSE having thus ſo juſtly ſupported the higheſt reputation of a Covering Stallion, by giving full ſatisfaction to the ſubſcriber's friends, is, for the conveniency of ſuch gentlemen as chooſe to breed elegant horſes from him, ſtill continued at the old place, the late ſeat of Mr. Robert Hopkins, deceaſed, on Point-no-Point, five miles from Philadelphia, to COVER this ſeaſon, at Three Pounds Five Shillings each Mare. The horſe is ſo generally known, that it almoſt ſeems ſuperfluous to ſay any thing as to deſcribing him, and only for cuſtom it were entirely unneceſſary: however, he is full blooded, a moſt beautiful bright bay, ſtrong black mane and tail, and well marked, full fifteen hands and an inch high, every way truly proportioned, and of ſuperior figure, riſing eight old, of great ſtrength and action, and his pedigree is up to the firſt breed of horſes ever on the continent, a Fearnought, a Herod, &c. The particular deſcent will be given to thoſe gentlemen who pleaſe to favour the ſubſcriber with their preference.

Good Paſture on reaſonable terms, and every neceſſary care taken of the mares while in the ſubſcriber's charge. The money to be paid before they are taken away, JACOB BATES.

N. B. For the ſatisfaction of the Public, and obſervation of gentlemen ſportſmen, judges of horſes, ECLIPSE will be ſhewn at the Coffee-Houſe, on Market days, when the weather is fine, and will be ſold if a generous price is offered. Point-no-Point, April 16. tf.

Philadelphia, May 8, 1787.

City-Tavern and Coffee-Houſe.

Edward Moyſton

TAKES this method of returning his ſincere thanks to thoſe ladies and gentlemen who have been pleaſed to honor his houſe with their cuſtom, and hopes for a continuance of their favours, and the public in general. Having provided himſelf with cooks of experience, both in the French and Engliſh taſte, he flatters himſelf that he will be able to give ſatisfaction to thoſe who pleaſe to uſe his houſe, and careful attendance ſhall never be wanting to render their accommodation agreeable. Ladies and gentlemen travellers can be commodiouſly lodged at the tavern, as he hath fitted up chambers in a more convenient manner than they have heretofore been, for the reception of his gueſts. Horſes and carriages ſhall be taken the greateſt care of, and every exertion of his uſed to render their accommodation complete. He has laid in a freſh ſupply of liquors of the very firſt quality.

As many of the ſubſcriber's cuſtomers have often mentioned their deſire of taking proper ſtabling to accommodate their horſes, and coach-houſes to keep their carriages: this is therefore to inform them, that he hath taken the Livery-Stables at the back of the City-Tavern, where his cuſtomers may aſſure themſelves of the greateſt care being taken of both their horſes and carriages, at as moderate a rate as at any other livery ſtables in the city.

w&ſ3m. E. MOYSTON.

WHEREAS my wife, Mary Hoffman, has abſented herſelf from my bed and board: this is to forewarn all perſons to truſt her nothing on my account, as I will not pay a ſingle farthing for her from this date. JOSEPH HOFFMAN, Diſtiller, in Front ſtreet.

Maryland, Elk Ridge, November 14.

FOR SALE,

Upwards of Four Thouſand Acres of

Rich and valuable Land,

By the ſubſcriber, at Public Vendue, ſituated as hereafter deſcribed:

SEVEN hundred acres of Land, ſituate in Ann Arundel county, on ElkRidge, near the dwelling houſe of the ſubſcriber, being part of the tract of land called Caleb's Purchaſe and the Anvil; on which is erected a tenement: this land is well wooded and watered, has a conſiderable quantity of good meadow ground, 20 acres whereof are cleared; it is ſituate about 4 miles from Elk Ridge landing, and 12 from Baltimore Town. The ſale of this land will be on the 11th day of June next, at Mrs. Ball's tavern, on Elk Ridge.

On the 11th day of June next, will be ſold a Hobb's tavern, on the road leading from Baltimore-Town to Frederick Town, 850 acres of Land, on which there is a tenement, being part of a tract called Pretty Sally; ſituate in Frederick county, about two miles from Hobb's tavern. This land will be laid off in parcels not exceeding 200 acres.

On the 11th day of June next will be ſold at the ſubſcriber's Plantation, commonly called the Old Quarter on Lingonore, 850 acres of Land, being part of a tract called Cold Friday; ſituate on Lingonore, in Frederick county. This land is of good quality, has an excellent mill ſeat on it, and will be ſold in parcels not exceeding 200 acres——Alſo,

427	acres, called Brandywine Springs
230	The addition
72	The 2d addition
300	Part of Moab
50	Mount-Pleaſant
544	Reſurvey on Darby's Delight
62	Addition to ditto
43	Neceſſity
45	Omiſſion
31	Neglect
804	acres.

Theſe lands lay adjoining each other.

On the laſt aforeſaid tracts of land there are three very valuable plantations; on one of which, called the Old Quarter, there are upwards of 250 acres of cleared land, 60 acres of meadow now in graſs, and about 50 acres more may be eaſily made, of the firſt quality. This plantation is equal in value and richneſs to any in this ſtate; it is well calculated for planting and farming; has four dwelling houſes on it, two barns, two tobacco houſes, ſtables, corn houſes, and every other out-houſe neceſſary on a valuable eſtate, and is in excellent order for cropping. It has alſo ſeveral fine ſtreams of water running through it, and on one of which there is a valuable mill ſeat.

The other lands adjoining, are alſo of ſuperior quality, and will be laid off into convenient lots, from two to three hundred acres, as may ſuit purchaſers.

The above lands advertiſed for ſale on the 11th June, are ſituate about 12 miles from Frederick-Town, 40 from Baltimore-Town, on the great public road, very convenient to ſeveral merchant mills, and in every reſpect are equal to any lands in that part of the country.

The terms of ſale for the above property are, a ſmall part of the purchaſe money in hand, the particular portion will be made known on the day of ſale, and the reſidue in two annual payments, on intereſt; the purchaſer to give bond, with approved ſecurity, when poſſeſſion will be given. Plans of the lands may, in the mean time, be ſeen at Hobb's tavern, and at the Old Quarters. THOMAS DORSEY.

TO-MORROW,

The 25th Inſtant, at Nine o'clock in the Morning, At the Northern Liberty Auction-ſtore, Will begin the Sale of a large and freſh

Aſſortment of Merchandize.

Among which are,

An Invoice of beautiful Silks.

Broadcloths, twilled and plain Coatings, Caſſimers, &c.

THE Auctioneers return their warmeſt thanks to their Friends and the Public, for the encouragement they have hitherto received, and aſſure them, that they will uſe every effort to merit a continuation of their favors. The fixed Days of Sale for Merchandize, in future, are Mondays and Fridays, and for Houſhold Furniture and other out-door Goods, on Saturdays in the forenoon, as uſual. May 24

C. Febiger & Co. Auctioneers.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

MAY TO APRIL.

WITHOUT your ſhowers
I breed no flowers,
Each field a barren waſte appears;
If you don't weep,
My bloſſoms ſleep,
They take ſuch pleaſure in your tears.

As your decay
Made room for May,
So I muſt part with all that's mine;
My balmy breeze,
My blooming trees,
To torrid ſuns their ſweets reſign.

For April dead
My ſhades I ſpread;
To her I owe my dreſs ſo gay;
Of daughters three
It falls on me
To cloſe our triumphs in one day.

Thus, to repoſe
All nature goes;
Month after month muſt find its doom—
Time on the wing,
May ends the Spring,
And Summer—triumphs o'er her tomb!

The remarkable Hiſtory of MARGARET of VALDEMAR, Queen of Denmark, Sweden, and Norway, commonly called the SEMIRAMIS of the North.

From Cox's Travels into Poland, Ruſſia, Sweden and Denmark.

MARGARET, the daughter of Valdemar III. and Hedwige his Queen, was born 1353; and, if we may give credit to ſome of the Daniſh hiſtorians, owed her being to a circumſtance as ſingular as her whole life is illuſtrious and eminent. Valdemar, in returning from an hunting party, chanced to repair to the caſtle of Seborg, where he had confined his conſort Hedwige, on account of ſome ill-grounded ſuſpicions. Being pleaſed with one of the Queen's attendants, he propoſed an interview: the woman feigned compliance, but ſubſtituted her miſtreſs in her ſtead, and Margaret was the fruit of their meeting; which has led a Daniſh hiſtorian to remark, in the high ſtyle of panegyric, that the good which he unconſciouſly performed that night in begetting Margaret, amply compenſated for the evil actions of his life. In the ſixth year of her age, ſhe was betrothed to Haquin, King of Norway, ſon of Magnus, King of Sweden, which was the firſt ſtep to her future greatneſs. This marriage, after much oppoſition on the part of the Swedes, was ſolemnized at Copenhagen, in 1363, when ſhe was only in the eleventh year of her age. Margaret gave ſo many proofs of her prudence and courage when Haquin loſt the crown of Sweden, as induced Valdemar frequently to ſay of her, that Nature intended her for a man, and had erred in making her a woman.

Upon the demiſe of her father in 1375, ſhe had the addreſs to ſecure the election of her ſon Oloff, then only five years of age, in preference to the ſon of her eldeſt ſiſter Ingeburga; and, upon the death of her huſband Haquin, ſhe ſecured his ſucceſſion to the crown of Norway. Being regent during Oloff's minority, her adminiſtration was ſo vigorous, prudent, and popular, that, upon his premature death in 1385, ſhe was choſen Queen by the States of Denmark; the firſt inſtance, perhaps, in a government wholly elective, and in which cuſtom had not authorized the election of a female, of a woman being exalted to the throne by the free and unanimous ſuffrages of a warlike people. With the ſame addreſs ſhe procured the crown of Norway; and was equally ſucceſsful in gaining that of Sweden. Albert had been choſen King, and might have preſerved his power, if it had not been his fate to contend with ſuch a rival as Margaret. When, in alluſion to her ſex, he ſtyled her, in deriſion, the King in petticoats, ſhe anſwered his reproach by actions, not by words; and made him ſorely repent of his vaunts, when he found himſelf worſted in every engagement; when depoſed and captive, he owed his life to the clemency of the very woman whom he had ſo wantonly inſulted*. By the famous union of Calmar in 1397, ſhe united the three Northern kingdoms, and held them undivided during her reign, notwithſtanding the averſion of the Swedes to the Daniſh government.

But from nothing is the vigour and policy of her conduct more conſpicuous than from this conſideration, that the perpetual revolts and inteſtine convulſions, which continually diſturbed the reigns of the ſovereigns who immediately preceded and followed her, were ſubdued throughout her whole adminiſtration. This internal tranquility, more glorious, though leſs ſplendid, than her warlike atchievements, and which was very unuſual in thoſe turbulent times, could only be derived from the over-ruling aſcendancy of her ſuperior genius.

This great Princeſs died ſuddenly on the 27th of October, 1412, in the 60th year of her age, and, if we include the period of her regency, in the 30th year of her reign, leaving the three kingdoms to the quiet poſſeſſion of her ſucceſſor, Eric of Pomerania; and to her ſubjects the regret of her loſs, by the experience of thoſe calamities which broke in upon the ſtate when the ſceptre was wielded by a leſs able hand.

* In the cathedral at Upſal is ſhewn a whetſtone, ſeveral feet in length, which, as tradition relates, Albert ſent in mockery to Margaret of Waldemar, recommending her to ſharpen upon it her own ſword, and the weapons of all her army: A taunt which he would willingly have retracted, when routed and taken priſoner by the very woman whom he affected to deſpiſe.

LONDON, February 10.

OF Howard—happy as we are that he has returned ſafely to a grateful and admiring people—we are not a little concerned to hear, that he has met with a misfortune which touches him nearly, and will not be mentioned without exciting concern in the public—we mean the loſs of his papers and manuſcripts. They were loſt or ſtolen from a coach coming from Canterbury. We need not add, that to him this loſs is more afflicting than that of wealth, (and there were ſeveral jewels and other valuables with the papers) and to the world, expecting to reap the fruit of his labour, we fear it may be irreparable.

Dr. Fothergill, of Bath, in his firſt letter on ſuſpended animation, makes the following intereſting obſervation, which ought in every principle of humanity to cauſe an univerſal attention to the circumſtances attending the ſeeming departure of life:—"It is painful to reflect, that the mere reſemblance of death has too often been miſtaken for the reality, in which ſtate the hapleſs victim has been conſigned to the grave! Theſe unfortunate events ſhould awaken caution, and repreſs that inconſiderate hurry of laying out the dead, and precipitating the funeral ceremonies." The writer hopes that, in future, the ſame attention will be paid by the relations and friends of the dead, as were lately given to a child thought to be dead with the meaſles, and then there is no doubt but that numbers will be reſtored to their neareſt and deareſt connections, who are now laid out on the appearance of death. Let it be remembered by the readers of this day, that at the inſtant reſpiration ceaſes, life does not quit the body in an ærial form, as has been too generally ſuppoſed; and it is an unfortunate and melancholy truth, that this popular idea has been the cauſe of thouſands of the human race being committed to the grave prematurely, and thus ſociety may have been deprived of many of its moſt valuable members. In matters of ſuch infinite importance to mankind, the legiſlature ſhould moſt ſeriouſly attend to, and give their ſanction to certain experiments, in order to determine life and its departure from the ſyſtem; for it is poſſible, in the preſent ſtate of things, that even kings, princes, and legiſlators, may pay the debt of nature probably to the grim tyrant death, before it is by the laws of nature juſtly due:—reflections that may tend to preſerve the lives of the people.

March 24. At the aſſizes at Reading, came on to be tried before Sir Beaumont Hotham, Knt. a very remarkable cauſe, wherein Miſs Winterbourn, daughter of a very reputable mealman at Wantage, in Berkſhire, was plaintiff, and Mr. Richard Rawlins, a conſiderable tanner, was defendant. The action was brought upon breach of a marriage contract, for which the plaintiff laid her damages at £.5000. In the courſe of the trial it appeared the parties were bred up near each other in Wantage, that there was a friendly intimacy contracted between them from their childhood, that about ſix or ſeven years ſince the defendant diſcovered a peculiar partiality and attachment to the plaintiff, which continued apparently with the approbation of their reſpective friends, the defendant being daily treated by the plaintiff's parents as one of their own family for ſeveral years, during which time he had repeatedly promiſed her marriage; and it appeared alſo that the defendant, in conſequence of this matrimonial engagement, had bought ſeveral articles in preparation for houſe-keeping, which he ſent to the plaintiff's father's houſe; that he had alſo bought a part of his own intended wedding apparel, which was produced in court; he declaring at the different times of the purchaſe thereof, and at various other times and occaſions, that he was on the eve of marriage with the plaintiff, whoſe faithfulneſs and ſincerity to defendant on her part was ſuch, that ſhe had during the courtſhip rejected many admirers, who were in reſpectable ſituations; that the parties mutual intercourſe continued till Chriſtmas Eve, 1784, when the defendant without the leaſt provocation ſuddenly abandoned this deceived lady, under a pretext that he was going to ſpend the holidays with a particular acquaintance, and ſhould afterwards return, which he forgot to do. At length the plaintiff found the defendant ſettled at Shipſton-upon-Stower, and married to a Miſs Griffiths, which occaſioned the preſent action. The learned judge who tried the cauſe, after ſumming up the evidence with the greateſt candour and accuracy, recommended the jury to render the plaintiff liberal damages, adequate to the reſpective parties' ſituations in life, for ſech the defendant's diſhonourable behaviour; but with precaution not to give ſuch ſerious damages, as might terminate in the total ruin of the defendant, who appeared, from his own declarations, to be worth £ 2000. The jury, without retiring, brought in a verdict for the plaintiff, with £.500 damages, beſides coſts of ſuit, greatly to the ſatisfaction of the whole court, and a crowded audience.

AMERICA.

NEW-YORK, May 15.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Philadelphia, to his Friend in Newport, dated the 14th of April.

"We are informed the Dutch have laid a duty of 8 per cent, payable on all goods imported into St. Euſtatia, &c. in American bottoms."

May 19. Yeſterday ſailed for Corunna, his Catholic majeſty's packet Galvez Town, captain Lorenzo Delvaux, lately built at this port. Count Caſtiglioni, an Italian nobleman who has gained the affections of every American who had the honor of his acquaintance, has gone paſſenger in the packet.

May 21. Yeſterday arrived the Nelly, captain Blane, after a paſſage of ſeven weeks from Greenock, with a good number of paſſengers on board, moſt of whom are huſbandmen, and who, we are informed, intend to embrace the firſt opportunity of ſailing up the North River, in order to ſettle on thoſe fertile tracts that lie above Albany. It is hoped that gentlemen, proprietors of land in thoſe parts (whoſe intereſts will eventually be promoted thereby) will give every poſſible encouragement to thoſe people; whoſe prepoſſeſſions in favour of this country led them to forego that attachment to natal ſoil and kindred, which operates as powerfully as any principle in human nature, and with heroic fortitude to encounter the dangers and difficulties incident to a voyage to America. Let a foſtering hand be extended to ſuch as theſe, and we ſhall ſhortly have numerous importations, infinitely ſuperior to all our boaſted imports from the Indies—imports, which though they may not adminiſter to our pride and diſſipation, will give additional ſtrength, wealth, and proſperity to our young empire.

Friday laſt, about ſix o'clock in the morning, the body of Rebecca Shillman was found floating on the ſurface of the water, near the Ship Yards. This woman has for ſome time paſt been diſordered in her mind, and is ſuppoſed to have thrown herſelf into the river the ſame morning.

Extract of a letter from Portland, (Maſſ.) May 1.

"Agreeably to a prophecy of laſt weeck, the town of Portland was this day to be ſunk by an earthquake. Some gave credit to the prediction. The diſtant rumbling thunder in the morning confirmed them in their nonſenſical opinion: and many were at that time weeping, wailing, and almoſt ready to gnaſh their teeth. In the afternoon, the thunder having ceaſed, and Portland continuing in its old place, ſound as a roach—ſome ventured to make an enquiry for the author of the prediction, his authority, &c. It was ſaid to be this old man, but he denied it; that old woman, but ſhe knew nothing of it; the ſhakers, but they had never heard of it. Neither prophet or propheteſs were to be found. Thus ended the day, the prediction, and the prophet. Would to God that ignorance, folly, and ſuperſtition might end with them."

Philadelphia, May 24.

It is hoped that in directing the labour of the criminals during the ſummer, attention will be paid to the removal of carrion and other filth from the ſtreets and neighbourhood of the city. There is already great reaſon to complain of the impurity of the air in the extremities of the town, and particularly in the fields adjoining Southwark, where, in the courſe of a ſhort walk, a gentleman obſerved the putrified carcaſſes of two horſes, and ſeveral dogs. The health and pleaſure of every citizen are ſo intereſted in a ſtrict prevention of ſuch nuiſances, that it is ſtrange an advertiſement of this kind ſhould be at all neceſſary.

The important queſtion, how far a good citizen may withdraw himſelf from the conceans of the commonwealth in times of danger, has been argued by men of the greateſt talents and the nobleſt principles. Addiſon, in the character of Cato, aſſerts, that

'When vice prevails, and impious men bear ſway,
'The poſt of honor is a private ſtation;

and Atticus, who lived at a time when attempts were made to deſtroy the liberties of Rome, and lived to ſee thoſe attempts accompliſhed, tho' he did not ſhare in the ſpoils himſelf, yet he never entered the liſts, or aſſiſted thoſe who oppoſed the violence offered to his country. It muſt however be obſerved on the other hand, that Cato's conduct was different from the ſentiments he is made to expreſs, and whatever character Atticus may have left as a fine gentleman, he was certainly a very bad patriot. The Athenian legiſlator, indeed, ſtamped with infamy the man who, in the midſt of civil ſedition, affected neutrality, and ſtigmatized the prudence, with reſpect to private intereſts and perſonal ſecurity, which ſubdued the glorious paſſion for the public good. But it is to the annals of the American revolution alone, that we can refer for a juſt repreſentation of what is due from a good citizen as well to himſelf as to his country: and while we diſcriminate between a modeſt retreat from popular adminiſtration and applauſe, and a puſyllanimous ſculking from difficulty and hazard, we ſhall learn by one illuſtrious example, in the hour of national calamity, to deſpiſe an inglorious privacy, whether it proceeds from the indolence of an Atticus, or the ſulleneſs of a Cato.

The ſpirit of aſſociation that rages in this city, ſtrongly indicates, ſays a correſpondent, an imbecility in the framing, or a defect in the execution of the laws. While one ſet of men meets to amend or fabricate ſyſtems of government, another ſet is convened to enforce obedience to the legiſlature: ſome undertake to regulate public profeſſions, and others to controul public officers: 'till, in ſhort, the powers which the people have delegated to the reſpective departments of ſtate, are re-aſſumed: and, it would ſeem, that the only perſons deemed incapable of managing the buſineſs of the commonwealth, are thoſe to whom it is entruſted. The ſocieties formed for theoretic inveſtigations are perhaps innocent, and thoſe inſtituted for the diſtribution of charity are certainly laudable: but is there not danger of oppreſſion where intereſted individuals may parcel out the ſtations, honors, and, conſequently, the emoluments of a profeſſion?——and is it not contrary to the genius of freedom that any man may, at pleaſure, inquiſitorially ſcrutinize into the family arrangements of another? Wholeſome laws being provided, let thoſe who are appointed to execute them, be reſponcible for the breach or the neglect of their truſt; and if new regulations are neceſſary let the power, which is alone competent, be called upon to authoriſe and ordain them. But that miſchevious confuſion which politicians deprecate, ariſing from a mixture of the great offices of government, muſt be inconceivably encreaſed, by the leaſt attempt of the people to take into their own hands the execution of the laws, or to intrude upon the legiſlative province by partial combinations and private compacts.

It is mortifying, ſays a female correſpondent, to obſerve the great number of batchelors that ſwarm in this city: and yet it is hardly juſt to reproach them with their celibacy. Luxury has made ſuch progreſs amongſt us, that ſuperfluities are turned into neceſſaries, and wedlock, in ſhort, is perverted from all its good old purpoſes, to a mere ſcheme of ſplendor and parade. All our matches, now a days, are calculated upon a luxury beyond what was enjoyed before, for no ſpeech is more common than that we will not marry to live worſe; and the very end of marriage is often the very thing that prevents it, for how, it is ſaid, how can a genteel education be given to ſix children without a good fortune? Thus the abilities of the contracting parties, being found inſufficient for theſe things, relative to the luxury of their reſpective conditions, great numbers of citizens remain ſingle, becauſe each, as remarked above, ſeeks in marriage to appear in greater luſtre in the world, and the commonwealth is deprived of ſix children, becauſe neither of the perſons who might be their parents has a large eſtate. There are an hundred poor men for one rich woman, and an hundred indigent women for one rich man. nevertheleſs, luxury raiſing in each the ſame views, it neceſſarily follows that of an hundred of both ſexes, ninety eight of them do not marry at all. Conveniency, which ought to be a reaſon for the increaſe of people, is the very cauſe that hinders it. It is thought ungenteel not to be able to make a wife appear in public with ſome kind of taſte and pomp, and therefore it is thought more convenient to avoid matrimony. It is incredible, upon the whole, how many matches have been put by for the want of a coach, or an elegant tea-room; and our correſpondent aſſerts, that at this moment a marriage is ſuſpended to abide the events of a law ſuit, upon which a conſiderable part of the lover's fortune depends.

A gentleman from Liſbon informs us, that miniſters from France and Great Britain were convened in that metropolis for the purpoſe of framing permanent treaties of commerce. The trade of Portugal is certainly an object of conſiderable importance to this country, yet ſuch are the debility and derangement of our fœderal politics, that we have not any agent at that court to protect our intereſts from the attacks of European negociators. To what quarter, indeed, can we direct our attention without finding additional cauſe to deplore, the feeble and diſordered ſtate of the continental ſyſtem.

On Saturday laſt, we are informed, the general meeting of the Cincinnati, adjourned ſine die, having previouſly elected the following officers, viz.

His excellency general Waſhington, preſident general; general Mifflin, vice preſident general; general Knox, ſecretary general; major Turner, aſſiſtant ſecretary general.

Gaol of the City and County of Philadelphia, May 21ſt 1787.

SIR,

HOWEVER unwilling to encroach on the time or attention of your excellency, I feel the neceſſity of encloſing a copy of one of four executions of one form, under which my body was the firſt of this month, ſeized by the ſheriff of this county, and at the ſuit of the ſtate, held in cuſtody to this time. Where a precedent has been found for theſe writs I am yet to learn; but am inclined to think it is not contained in the law records of a thouſand years.

They are however pretended to be founded on a judicial deciſion of the honorable executive body in which your excellency preſides, which if made at all has been made in my abſence without notice of any kind to me or to any perſon whatſoever on my behalf. It is therefore of high importance to me at leaſt, if not to my fellow-citizens, to know with the utmoſt preciſion what have been the proceedings in this caſe before that board, that I may judge what meaſures yet remain to be purſued by me in order to obtain juſtice therein. Without connections of any kind with men in power; without any ſettled intereſt with either of the parties in which the people of the ſtate are divided, and without money, I can plain enough perceive the difficulty and danger, to a private citizen, which muſt attend a conteſt with the mighty powers ſaid to be committed by law to the comptroller-general, rendered ſtill more formidable when his deciſions have been 'approved' by the whole executive authority of the ſtate, and yet more abundantly ſo when this authority is known to have been exerciſed and the approbation ſaid to be given, at a time when a man of your excellency's moſt eminently diſtinguiſhed patriotiſm preſided in the ſupreme executive council; yet I cannot without every poſſible enquiry after the means of redreſs, bring myſelf ſilently to ſubmit to what I feel to be injuſtice, however ſeemingly authoriſed by any expreſſions contained in the laws of the commonwealth, eſpecially where they directly contradict and tend to violate the rights recently and ſolemnly recognized by the people, and expreſſed in plain clear terms as the principles on which the foundation of the government has been laid; againſt which no law however conceived, intended or expreſſed can or ought to prevail.

The convention of the people of Pennſylvania, over which alſo your excellency preſided with the higheſt reputation, has declared that the true end for which 'all government ought to be inſtituted and ſupported' is, 'the ſecurity and protection of the community as ſuch, and to enable the individuals who compoſe it to enjoy their natural rights,' among which that of defending their liberty is in the declaration of rights, with great propriety and wiſdom placed next to and connected with that of life. And ſo highly did the people regard the trial by jury in all caſes as a means of this defence, that not content with a full declaration that 'trials ſhall be by juries as heretofore;' but as if terms commonly uſed were not ſtrong enough to expreſs their ſolemn regard to this right, they have in the moſt dignified expreſſions declared that 'it ought to be held ſacred.' And again as if no terms or turn of expreſſion could be truſted in a caſe of ſuch magnitude, the conſtitution has ſolemnly 'declared' the 'declaration of rights' to be a part of the conſtitution 'which ought never to be violated on any pretence whatever.'

Yet, ſir, ſo ſingular has been my fortune in the political world, that I have had ſentence againſt me in two great caſes, as I conceive, in direct and open violation of this 'ſacred' right. The one in a vote of the general aſſembly, entered into as the council cenſors have expreſſed it, 'without a hearing, without a charge and without a trial,' and a ſucceeding general aſſembly upon mature deliberation ſolemnly reſcinded the vote; and to add to the ſtrangeneſs of the thing, on examination into the facts alledged as the foundation of that violent and iniquitous meaſure, they have been found to be totally and abſolutely falſe. The other inſtance is the caſe in which I have now the honor to addreſs your excellency, in which as my information ſtands, the ſupreme executive council have exerciſed exparte a judicial authority: this much however is certain, that the buſineſs has been ſo conducted by the comptroller-general, that a claim of mine, which I conceive to be legal againſt the ſtate, to the amount of one thouſand and five hundred pounds and upwards on one account only beſides divers others, has been 'rejected' without a hearing before him, or before the ſupreme executive council, and without a poſſibility during the whole tranſaction by any act in my power within the words of the law, to obtain a 'trial' thereon before a court and 'jury.' And although thoſe four executions have iſſued and been ſerved upon me, as no act or neglect of mine has been committed by me, which in reaſon and juſtice can be conſtrued to have deſtroyed the right of trial by 'jury,' this right yet remains however difficult it may be to obtain the exerciſe of it, and it appears to me a duty which I owe to myſelf, to my diſtreſſed family, and may I add to my fellow-citizens, to perſevere in a demand of that right.

I have been told that there is great probability that on application I may as of favor, be indulged in trial by a jury; but, ſir, may I be permitted without offence to aſk, What am I, or what is any citizen of this ſtate, if any man or ſet of men whatever, may grant or withhold at their pleaſure in any caſe, a right of ſuch importance ſo recently and ſolemnly recognized, aſſerted and aſſured to us as that of the 'ſacred' right of trial by jury has been? Surely not freemen; but degraded vaſſals or ſlaves: And what are the laws and by whom have they been made, by which in any poſſible caſe a citizen may be deprived of this 'ſacred' right? They do not, they cannot poſſibly exiſt, and I conceive it to be treaſon againſt the people to aſſert the contrary.

What crime then have I committed for which I alone may be compelled to aſk as favor what every other citizen may demand of right? There is none ſir, even pretended againſt me.

I may indeed have erred in relying too confidently on public faith for reward of intended ſervices; or my abilities may have fallen ſhort in the performance of the high and exceedingly varied duties, to which in the times of the greateſt danger, the public voice has called me; but I am bold to ſay, no man has had more zeal in the common cauſe or exerted more fully to their utmoſt extent the abilities God has given than I have done throughout the great conteſt for liberty. But theſe exertions, ſuch as they were, have been made with the ſpirit of a freeman diſdaining to be the tool of any man or party, and conſtantly aimed to ſuppreſs meaſures which appeared dangerous to the people, and ſupport ſuch as tended to their ſafety without regarding by whom they were ſuggeſted.

When the impoſſible project of regulating prices was attempted, the infatuation ſeemed to be general and a large committee was elected to enforce it. Mr. Fitzſimons, the only man of the number from whom I expected the ſmalleſt aſſiſtance in opening the eyes of the people to their danger, for he ſeemed to be the only man among them that then ſaw it, very ſoon retired hopeleſs from the taſk, leaving me alone to oppoſe that dangerous meaſure, infatuating and popular as it then was. The inſults which were offered to me on that occaſion from every quarter are known to very few; but the event is known to all, and it is not preſuming to ſay, that a cool, firm oppoſition from one man, ſaved the city from the diſtreſs which that mad project had otherwiſe ſuddenly brought upon it. When the bank was projected by Mr. Morris, the contentions and reſentments between parties and among individuals were at the higheſt, it was oppoſed by the leading men of that party to which it was ſuppoſed I leaned; yet although I ſaw its tendency to favor the monied and trading intereſt of the ſtate, and foretold the conteſt which has ſince ariſen out of it, conſidering it as the beſt means of defence left us, my feeble efforts were honeſtly joined in its ſupport. What at that time were my ſentiments of its effects on myſelf, may beſt be learned from my reply to a kind compliment of a friend immediately after my election among the firſt directors: It was in theſe words, 'It is indeed an honor, perhaps circumſtances conſidered the higheſt of my life; but remember that I tell you, it will prove alſo the greateſt injury.' I did my duty and the event fulfilled the prophecy. I had offended both parties, one of them demanded and the other gave me up a ſacrifice; but I reverently thank God, that whatever it may now do, the fire would not then kindle upon me.

But, ſir, I do not mention theſe things as claiming reward for them, for even in my preſent diſtreſs I would diſdain them; but only as evidence of the independence of my conduct on trying occaſions.

In my preſent ſituation painful as it is to my family, I feel ſome conſolation from a ſtrong confidence in your excellency's acknowledged attachment to the rights and intereſt of men, and hope for a compliance with the requeſt I now make, of full and preciſe information of the manner in which my accounts and claims have been laid before the board at which you preſide, and a ſtatement of the facts preſented by the comptroller-gen. the mode in which they have been inveſtigated, and the principles on which my claims againſt the ſtate have been rejected. Theſe are indiſpenſibly neceſſary to a fair enquiry after the means of redreſs; and if after every effort has been made, no redreſs in the preſent ſtate of the laws can be obtained, they will enable me to ſhew to the people, that although a remedy cannot be had the right remains—and it will the better enable me to ſtate to them my caſe without material error or omiſſion, and thereby convince them, that I have not ſuffered the precedent of a violation of this great right to be eſtabliſhed, without that perſevering oppoſition which every citizen when attacked, is bound to make againſt the inſolent ſtrides of aſſumed or perverted power.

It will no doubt occur to your excellency as a ſhort plain anſwer to this requeſt, that an application to the ſecretary of council will obtain me a copy of their proceedings in any caſe which concerns me, and in an ordinary caſe it might ſerve the purpoſe of anſwer and juſt reproof; but in the preſent extraordinary one the application will obtain more regard, and the rather as from what I have been able to learn of thoſe proceedings I may well ſuppoſe, that the entry in all ſuch caſes on the council-book, is as leaſt as conciſe upon them as the ſus. per. col. in ſome law entries upon ſentence of death on a murderer; but with this difference in his favor, that before the dreadful order was made he had been allowed a trial by his peers. And if indeed the approbation has been given and is no more than a mere formality without information or enquiry, I hope to obtain an explicit declaration of the fact.

I have the honor to be, with the higheſt reſpect,
Your Excellency's moſt obedient
And very humble Servant,
T. MATLACK.

His Excellency Benjamin Franklin, Eſq.
Preſident of the Supreme Executive Council.

(Seal.) Philadelphia County, ſſ.

THE commonwealth of Pennſylvania to the ſheriff of Philadelphia county, greeting—Whereas it is certified to US, by John Nicholſon, eſquire, our comptroller general, that Timothy Matlack, eſquire, is indebted to the ſtate of Pennſylvania in the ſum of thirty ſix pounds thirteen ſhillings and four pence, lawful money of Pennſylvania; and that the ſaid Timothy Matlack hath refuſed and neglected to pay the ſaid ſum of money to our treaſurer of this commonwealth, altho' he hath been thereunto required. Therefore WE command you, that the goods and chattles of the ſaid Timothy Matlack, in your bailiwic, without delay, you ſeize and detain, ſo that the ſaid Timothy may be compelled to diſcharge the ſaid ſum of thirty ſix pounds thirteen ſhillings and four pence, money aforeſaid, together with coſts and charges in this behalf, laid out and expended; and unleſs the ſaid debt, coſts and charges ſhall be fully paid and ſatisfied within thirty days after ſuch diſtreſs made, that you ſell the ſame goods and chattles to ſatisfy and diſcharge the ſaid debt, coſts and charges, and in caſe no perſonal property of the ſaid Timothy, ſufficient to diſcharge the debt, coſts and charges aforeſaid, can be found in your bailiwic, then WE command you that of the lands and tenements of the ſaid Timothy, in your bailiwic, you cauſe the ſaid debt, coſts and charges to be levied and made. And if ſo much of the goods and chattles, lands and tenements of the ſaid Timothy, in your bailiwic cannot be found, then WE command you, that you take the body of the ſaid Timothy Matlack, and him ſafely keep in the goal of the county aforeſaid. And how you ſhall execute this writ make known to US, and to our comptroller general, on the ſixth day of June, and have then this writ at the office of the prothonotary of our court of common pleas of ſaid county. Dated at Philadelphia, April fourteenth, one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty ſeven. J. B. SMITH.

(Endorſed) Commonwealth.
v.
Timothy Matlack, eſquire.
Rtble. June 6, 1787.

We have the pleaſure to inform the public, that on a hearing before the honorable Edward Shippen, eſquire, Mr. Matlack was diſcharged on Tueſday evening.

EXTRACTS from the JOURNALS of CONGRESS.

TUESDAY, APRIL 10, 1787.

A motion was made by Mr. Kearny, ſeconded by Mr. Blount,

Reſolved, That on the laſt Friday in the preſent month, Congreſs will adjourn, to meet on the firſt Monday in June next, at the city of Philadelphia, in the ſtate of Pennſylvania, and the Preſident of Congreſs is hereby authoriſed and directed, on the ſaid laſt Friday in the preſent month, to adjourn Congreſs to the ſaid firſt Monday in June next, to meet in the city of Philadelphia, in the ſtate of Pennſylvania; and that the ſecretary of Congreſs and the heads of the ſeveral departments, take order for the removal of the books and papers belonging to their reſpective offices, to the ſaid city of Philadelphia.

A motion was then made by Mr. Vernum to amend the motion, by ſtriking out the words, "at the city of Philadelphia, in the ſtate of Pennſylvania," and in lieu thereof to inſert, "Newport, in the ſtate of Rhode-Iſland and Providence Plantations."

And on the queſtion to agree to this amendment, it paſſed in the negative.

A motion was then made by Mr. King, to amend the motion, by ſtriking out the following words, "at the city of Philadelphia, in the ſtate of Pennſylvania, and to meet in the ſaid city of Philadelphia, in the ſtate of Pennſylvania, and that the ſecretary of Congreſs and the heads of the ſeveral departments, take order for the removal of the books and papers belonging to their reſpective offices, to the ſaid city of Philadelphia," ſo that it read, Reſolved, That on the laſt Friday in the preſent month Congreſs will adjourn, to meet on the firſt Monday in June next, and the Preſident of Congreſs is hereby authoriſed and directed on the ſaid laſt Friday in the preſent mouth to adjourn Congreſs to the ſaid firſt Monday in June next.

And on the queſtion, ſhall theſe words ſtand, it paſſed in the affirmative.

A motion was then made by Mr. King to ſtrike out the following words: "on the laſt Friday in the preſent month." And when the queſtion was about to be put, the yeas and nays being required, the determination thereof was put off till to morrow, by the ſtate of Maſſachuſetts.

On motion of Mr. Clarke, ſeconded by Mr. Grayſon; Reſolved, That the right of a ſtate under the 22d article of the rules of the Houſe, to put off the deciſion of a queſtion, ſhall be conſtrued to relate only to the final queſtion, on the entire ordinance or propoſition depending, and not to any motion for amendment.

SHIP NEWS.

The Harmony, Macey, and Hope, Dickſon, from Amſterdam; Admiral Parker, Skinner, and Alexander, Boudinot, from London; Nelly, Blane, and Nancy, Lawrie, from Greenock; William, Webb, from St. Martins; Mercy, Harris, from Trinidad; ——, Scovil, from Hiſpaniola, and Sally, Fiſh, from Bermuda, are arrived at New York.

The Suſan, Packard, from Surinam, is arrived at Alexandria.

The Portſmouth, Oldner, from London, and Iriſh Volunteer, ——, from Liverpool, are arrived at Norfolk; and Friendſhip, Milford, in York River, from London.

Arrived in this port, the ſhip Canton, captain Truxtun, in 18 weeks from Canton, in China. Capt. Truxtun failed from this port about 16 months ago.

Arrived here the ſhip Favorite, captain Vallance, from Havre de Grace. On the 25th of April, in lat. 40, 7; long. 52, he ſpoke the ſhip Lydia, capt. Pye, from l'Orient for Virginia, 18 days out, all well. On the 1ſt of this month he fell in with the wreck of a ſchooner, captain Bernard, who left Boſton the 5th of April, bound for Hiſpaniola, had been overſet in a gale of wind, and had carried away both his maſts; in the ſame gale a ſea broke on board, killed the mate and waſhed the captain overboard, but he was afterwards taken on board again with one of his legs broke; the wind then blowing very hard, with a high ſea, it was with difficulty captain Vallance could ſend a boat on board her; he kept her company for three days, but the wind continuing very high, he could render no further aſſiſtance (ſhe having plenty of proviſions) than by putting a perſon on board to navigate her into port. When they parted with her they were informed the captain's leg was mortifying, and but little hopes of his life.

At his Intelligence-Office in Market-ſtreet, between Fourth and Fifth ſtreets, next door to the ſign of the Black Horſe,

DR. Sanxay's Anti-venereal Pills and Specific Purging Electuary, with Dr. Walker's genuine Jeſuits Drops, ſo well known in England for entirely eradicating the Venereal Diſeaſe in all its ſtages, in a ſhorter time than any other medicine ever yet diſcovered. With this medicine will be given printed directions, ſetting forth every thing neceſſary to be known throughout the ſtages of the complaint in a clear and diſtinct manner, ſo that no queſtions need be aſked by the purchaſers. Perſons who live at a diſtance, by ſending a letter poſt paid, will receive the pills and electuary ſealed up, ſo that no perſon can diſcover what they are. It is an excellency peculiar to theſe pills and electuary, to make directly to the complaining parts, and enter into conteſt with the offending matter. The celebrated Dr. James, who gave the world the incomparable fever powder, ſays, they deſerve the credit of univerſal fame for the curing theſe diſorders. Nothing in the whole materia medica can equal theſe pills and electuary. They are very convenient to perſons who go to ſea, as they prevent the ſcurvy, keep good in all climates, and require no confinement or reſtraint of diet, and they effect a cure even when a ſalivation fails.——Price for the Pills, Electuary and Drops, Four Dollars. 1aw3t

To be Sold at Private Sale,

THAT valuable and highly-improved FARM called GRÆM PARK, ſituate in Horſham townſhip, in the late county of Philadelphia, now of Montgomery, and adjoining the Bucks county-line, 19 miles from Philadelphia, twelve from Newtown, 20 from Briſtol, 3 from Horſham meeting houſe, 3 from Neſhameny meeting-houſe, and 13 from Norriſtown, or the Swedes-Ford on Schuylkill; containing 550 acres of land of an excellent quality, near 200 acres of which is beautiful timber land, about 40 acres of meadow, a conſiderable part watered by a never failing ſtream, the remainder plough-land of a rich and kindly ſoil, producing plenty of paſture, and good crops of all kinds of grain; 20 acres thereof have been but one year cleared; the whole beautifully ſituated in a healthy neighbourhood, and well watered with never-failing ſprings and ſtreams, a branch of Neſhameny flowing through the premiſes, whereon a griſt-mill or other water works might be erected. There are on the premiſes an elegant ſtrong-built and well finiſhed manſion houſe of ſtone, three ſtories high, 60 feet front, and 27 deep, with a good cellar under it, three parlours on the firſt floor, the ſtory near 13 feet high; three bed-chambers on the ſecond ſtory, and three on the third; one of the parlours on the firſt floor is 23 feet by 22, wainſcotted to the cieling and panneled, the bed-chamber over it of the ſame ſize; a fire-place in every room in each ſtory; the chimnies draw ſmoke remarkably well, and none of them corner chimnies. A garden containing two acres, adjoining the manſion houſe, incloſed by a terrace and a ſtone wall under it, which makes the walk dry and agreeable at almoſt all ſeaſons of the year. Alſo a large farm houſe of ſtone, a large frame barn, covered with cedar ſhingles, with plenty of ſtabling adjoining it, a ſtone cow-houſe, cart-houſe, ſmoke houſe, poultry houſe, and a great number of other neceſſary out-houſes; alſo a good ſtone kitchen near the manſion houſe, with convenient rooms adjoining it for a houſekeeper and ſervants; a good well of water at the kitchen door, with a pump in it, a remarkable fine ſpring of water in the dairy, which in the ſevereſt ſummer drought was never known to fail. There are likewiſe on ſaid premiſes two large orchards of the beſt kinds of grafted fruit, and many other conveniencies too tedious to enumerate. There are no large waters or ferries between ſaid farm and the city of Philadelphia, which renders travelling to and from the city convenient at almoſt all ſeaſons of the year.

Any perſon inclining to purchaſe ſaid eſtate may know the terms by applying to Mr. George Meade, merchant, Dr. Frederick Phile, or William Rawle, Eſq. in Philadelphia, or Elias Boudenot, Eſq. at Elizabeth Town, New Jerſey, or of the ſubſcriber, living on the premiſes. ELIZABETH FERGUSON.

From the (London) MORNING HERALD:

On COURT MOURNINGS.

From PETER PINDAR's Laſt Works.

WISE are our gracious Queen's ſuperb relations,
The pride and envy of the German nations?
People of faſhion worſhip wealth and ſtate;
Lo! what demand for them in heav'n of late!
Lo! with his knapſack, even-juſt departed;
As fine a ſoldier, faith, as ever ſtarted—
Whom Death did almoſt dread to lay his claws on!
Old Captain—what's his name?—Saxehilberghauſen;
For whom—with zeal for folks of worſhip, burning,
We once again are blackened up by mourning;
To ſhew by glove, cloth, ribbon, crape and fan,
A peck of trouble for the old gentleman!
Good lack a daiſie then! what dozens
Our Queen has got of uncles, aunts and couſins!
Egad! if thus theſe folks continue dying,
Each Briton, doom'd to diſmal black,
Muſt always bear a hearſe-like back,
And, like Heraclitus, be always crying!

As the Anecdote mentioned under the Paris head, with reſpect to the maſked man, may excite the curioſity of our readers, we have extracted from Voltaire the hiſtory of that remarkable incident.

SOME months after the death of Cardinal Mazarin in the year 1661, an event happened, which was not to be paralleled; and what is no leſs ſtrange, is unnoticed by all the hiſtorians. An unknown priſoner, of a majeſtic height, young, of a graceful and noble figure, was ſent with the utmoſt ſecrecy to the caſtle on St. Margaret's iſland, in the ſee of Provence. This priſoner on the road wore a maſk, the chin of which was compoſed of ſteel ſprings, which gave him liberty to eat with his maſk on. Orders were given to kill him, if he diſcovered himſelf. He remained in the iſland, till an officer of tried fidelity, named St. Mars, governor of Pignerol, was made governor of the Baſtile in 1690. He went to the iſland of St. Margaret, and brought him to the Baſtile with his maſk on all the way. The marquis de Louvois went to ſee him in that iſland before his departure, and ſpoke to him with great reſpect, and without ſitting down. This ſtranger was brought to the Baſtile, and lodged as well as he could be in that caſtle. He was refuſed nothing that he deſired. His greateſt pleaſure was in extraordinary fine linen and laces. He played on the guittar. He was much careſſed, and the governor ſeldom ſat down in his preſence. An old phyſician of the Baſtile, who had frequently attended this ſtrange gentleman in his illneſs, declared he never ſaw his face, though he had frequently examined his tongue, and other parts of his body. This phyſician ſaid, that he was rather brown, but extremely well made. The very tone of his voice was engaging, but he never complained of his ſituation, nor ever diſcovered who he was.

This ſtranger died in 1704, and was buried at night in the pariſh of St. Paul. What redoubles our aſtoniſhment is, that when he was ſent to the iſle of St. Margaret, no perſon of any conſequence diſappeared in Europe. This priſoner was, however, doubtleſs a man of high rank, for on his firſt arrival in the iſland, the governor himſelf ſet the ſilver plates upon his table, and then retired, after ſecuring the door. One day the priſoner wrote upon a ſilver plate with the point of a knife, and threw the plate out of the window towards a boat which was on the river, near the foot of the tower. A fiſherman, to whom the boat belonged, took up the plate, and brought it to the governor. He with great eagerneſs aſked the fiſherman, Have you read what is wrote upon this plate, or has any one ſeen it ſince you had it? The fiſherman anſwered, I do not know how to read. I have juſt found it, and nobody has ſeen it. The peaſant was detained till the governor was convinced that he never could read, and that the plate was ſeen by no other perſon. Go, ſays he, you are happy in not knowing how to read. There are ſome very credible witneſſes of this fact, who are now living. Mr. Chamillard was the laſt perſon who knew any thing of this ſtrange ſecret. The ſecond marſhal of Feuillade, his ſon-in-law, told me, that at the death of his father-in-law, he conjured him on his knees to tell him who that perſon was who was never known but by the name of the man with the iron maſk. Chamillard anſwered him, that it was a ſecret of ſtate, and that he had taken an oath never to reveal it. In fine, there are many of my contemporaries who will atteſt the truth of what I advance; nor do I know any one fact ſo extraordinary, and ſo well ſupported.

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON-DERRY, April 3.

WE have the pleaſure of informing the public, that the Minerva, a fine ſhip of upwards of 400 tons burthen, purchaſed by the gentlemen of the Greenland company of this city, arrived on Saturday laſt in our river from London. The Minerva is compleatly fitted out for the whale fiſhery, and only called here in order to take ſome materials on board, and it is expected ſhe will ſail for her ſtation in a few days, as the gentlemen of the company have uſed the moſt ſtrenuous exertions to facilitate her departure; and we ſincerely hope, that the Minerva will meet with that ſucceſs which the ſpirited perſeverance of her owners deſerve.

LONDON.

Feb. 20 Mr. Richard Forſbrook, a bag weaver was interred here, on which occaſion the directions for his funeral ordered by his will, were duly obſerved, viz. that half a crown in Queen Anne's coin ſhould be given to each bearer, twenty ſhillings to his ſpinners, thirteen ſhillings and ſix-pence to the ringers, for ringing a peal; that 240 quarts of the beſt ale ſhould be drank, three ſongs ſung, and a battle fought between two cocks. He left many legacies to perſons who were to attend his funeral, but if they ſhed a tear they were not entitled to their legacies.

The celebrated general Lloyd lately evinced, by a number of examples, which occurred in the courſe of the laſt war, that a ſword was to a ſoldier almoſt uſeleſs, and ought to be laid aſide. He propoſed that three-fourths of our infantry ſhould be armed with a muſket and a ſhort lance to fix on it, inſtead of the bayonet now in uſe. The other fourth part were to be armed with a pike twelve feet long, a good ſabre, and a pair of piſtols, which they were to carry in their belt. Why theſe arms were not adopted by the officers who had the direction of our tactics, we cannot ſay, but it is certain one of the greateſt monarchs in Europe has directed this new mode of defence to be practiſed by all the infantry in his armies.

Doctor Price, in his letter to lord Stanhope, claims the merit of having originally recommended that plan of finance which Mr. Pitt has adopted; and adds, that it would be an unſpeakable improvement of it, could a method be diſcovered of rendering an interruption of it as much a breach of faith with the public creditors as ſeizing their dividends.

The following circumſtance, we are aſſured, may be depended upon for fact: an elegant youth, about eighteen, a ſhort time ſince took country lodgings at a village a few miles weſt of this metropolis; where he was attended by a foot boy, and received no viſitants but one gentleman well known for his æroſtatic excurſions. The youth danced and fenced with great agility and was a perfect maſter of horſemanſhip, but unluckily receiving a violent fall from a ſpirited mare a few days ago in Hyde Park, by which it was ſuppoſed this adventurous youth had received a fracture on the ribs, on examination a female character was diſcovered, who turned out to be the ſiſter of a celebrated actreſs. She has now, ſays our correſpondent, like Madame d'Eon, reſumed her proper dreſs, and is ſpeedily to be married to an officer of rank in the navy.

March 4.

Among other plans propoſed for the œconomical ſtate of France, are the following:—To ſuppreſs the military eſtabliſhments of Monſieur and the Comte d'Artois, and to diſband the muſqueteers and gens d'Armes belonging to the king.

Laſt week ſix naval officers, at the deſire of Monſ. Soderini, the Venetian ambaſſador, received the permiſſion of the admiralty board, to ſerve on board the fleet of the Venetian republic. One of them is to receive the compliment of an Admiral's flag in the Venetian ſervice, and the others are promiſed very liberal rewards for their ſervices.

March 13. Colonel Tarleton's narrative has made its appearance, and the expectation excited by the rumour that he meant to attack the military character of earl Cornwallis, is at length gratified. He has been however, very moderate in his cenſure, if cenſure it may be called. The following is the paſſage containing his obſervations on the ſurrender of the Britiſh army:

"A retroſpective view of Britiſh operations plainly diſcovers, that the march from Wilmington to Peterſburg was formed and executed by earl Cornwallis without the knowledge or conſent of Sir H. Clinton; that York Town and Glouceſter were voluntarily occupied by his lordſhip, in preference to Old Point Comfort, when a poſt for the protection of the navy was required; that as ſoon as Sir Henry Clinton was appriſed of the miniſter's wiſh to make a ſerious attempt upon Virginia, he committed as large a corps to earl Cornwallis in that province as was compatible with the ſafety of New York and its dependencies, during the vicinity of the French and American army, that every intelligence which could be obtained of the enemy's movements was tranſmitted by the commander in chief, who made all the efforts in his power to aſſiſt and relieve his lordſhip, from the period that the French fleet entered Cheſapeak, to the hour of the capitulation at York Town; and that earl Cornwallis may be ſaid to incur the imputation of miſconceiving his own danger, in not deſtroying La Fayette's detachment after the affair near James's Iſland; in not ſtriking at the corps at Williamſburg, previous to the junction of Waſhington and Rochambeau; in quitting ſo early the outward of the inner poſition, where he was obliged to make propoſals to ſurrender eight days after the enemy opened their batteries; and in not adopting ſooner and more decidedly the meaſure of paſſing through the country: ſome inſtances of overſight may therefore, be attributed to his lordſhip, which precipitated, perhaps, the fate of his own army; but the genuine cauſe of the great national calamity, which put a period to the continental war, muſt by all ranks and deſcriptions of men, be principally aſcribed to the miniſter in England, or the admiral in the Weſt Indies."

March 20. A Pariſian, who was in London when the prince of Wales retired, willing to turn the incident to his own advantage, laid out his whole fortune, conſiſting of one hundred guineas, in the purchaſe of clothes at ſale-ſhops, which he conveyed to Paris, where he gave public notice, that the prince having been obliged to ſell the greateſt part of his wardrobe, he had bought it and offered it to ſale to his countrymen. The bait was greedily ſwallowed, and he diſpoſed of his whole ſtock, in a very ſhort time, at a profit of 300 per cent.

A letter from an Engliſh gentleman at Madeira, has the following article.—The captain of an American veſſel, who is arrived here from Boſton, has given us the moſt pleaſing piece of intelligence we have had for ſome years. He ſay, he was chaſed by two Algerine gallies for ſome time; that they fired ſeveral ſhots at him to bring him to; that he ſhould have been taken, had they not met with the following accident: Being eager to ſeize their prey, they crowded all the ſail they could, and alſo made uſe of their oars; when, in their hurry, they run upon a rock, and ſoon went to pieces, and both crews were drowned. Theſe two gallies had taken up their ſtation off here, to intercept all veſſels that were bound hither. This piece of intelligence gave great joy to all ranks of people; ſeveral of their bodies have been thrown on ſhore, which were buried in the ſands, after being ſtriped of their ornaments.

The negociation at the court of Peterſburgh, ſays a morning paper, for a commercial and explanatory treaty, between Great Britain and Ruſſia, is at preſent at a ſtand; the empreſs having inſiſted upon interwaving into it a matter wholly appertaining to her late alliance, called the Armed Neutrality. Lord Caermarthen, in whoſe department this matter lies, conſiders the ſubject as totally inadmiſſible.

The houſe of Roach & Co. at Dunkirk, in which Mrs. Hayley has ſo conſiderable a ſhare, have offered to ſend out forty ſail of French Greenlandmen from that port, on condition that the court of France will tolerate a Quakers meeting-houſe in that city. This propoſal is now before the French miniſtry.

A circumſtance which lately occurred in Bath, is at preſent the general topic of converſation there, eſpecially among the gentlemen of the long robe. A major in the army, who had taken a liking to a young girl abont fourteen years of age, finding his ſolicitations rejected, had, it ſeems, formed a reſolution of ſeizing thoſe favours by violence which he could not obtain by his attentions. With this deſign he found ſome clandeſtine means of introducing himſelf to the girl's apartment, who, in reſiſting his attempt, raiſed ſuch an alarm as brought in ſome of her friends, and prevented the accompliſhment of his villainous purpoſe. This ſeaſonable aſſiſtance, while it preſerved the honor of the girl, confined the gentleman's offence to an indictment for an aſſault, amounting to no more than a miſdemeanor, Conſulting, however, with ſome gentlemen of the law, they were inſtructed how to make the charge capital, which was done by indicting the Major "for a burglary, with intent to commit a felony." The indictment was laid, and the parties bound over to proſecute. As the gentleman muſt of courſe be tried for his life, the event is very anxiouſly expected.

A printer, ſays a morning paper, has been taken up and examined, ſeveral times at Bow-ſtreet, and at the chambers of the treaſury ſolicitors, and has ſworn and ſigned to his evidence on the ſubject of two publications from his preſs, ſuppoſed to be written by a noble lord, (lord George Gordon) the one entitled "The Union with France;" the other, the Priſoner's Petition to preſerve their Lives and Liberties, and prevent their Baniſhment to Botany Bay;" both of which are ſaid to be treaſonable.

The French ambaſſador declares the proſecution of a noble lord is not at the ſuit of the king of France.

The reigning Margrave of Baden has lately cauſed to be erected, near Barlſruke, a monument in honor of a farmer, who had drained a marſh, and turned it into good paſture ground. This monument will do the prince infinitely more honor, than if he had raiſed a trophy to commemorate the ſlaughter of ten thouſand fellow-creatures that had fallen in battle. Monuments like the former are proofs of ſome previous good done to mankind; but triumphal arches are but ſplendid memorandums that tell us, that ambition and the luſt of power have triumphed over humanity, and have purchaſed victories by depopulating countries, and doubling the calamities of the human race.

Monday came on in the court of common pleas, before lord Loughborough, and a ſpecial jury, an action brought by a ſeaman of the Dutton Indiaman, againſt the captain, for ill treatment. It appeared, that on the voyage outward, the captain had given orders that none of the men ſhould bathe themſelves in the ſea; in diſobedience of which one of them was actually found; that as a puniſhment for this diſobedience, the captain ordered him up to the main top-maſt; and on his refuſing to go, he was ordered a dozen laſhes. The plaintiff in this action ſtanding by, expreſſed his diſſatisfaction at this uſeage, in terms rather unguarded and harſh; on which he was likewiſe ordered a dozen laſhes; he refuſed to ſtrip, but the puniſhment was inflicted on him, and a further puniſhment of a dozen, by the captain's orders, for refuſing ſo to do; for which, on his return to England, he commenced the action. The defence ſet up was, that this was done to preſerve proper diſcipline in the ſhip. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, with 20*l.* damages.

DUBLIN, March 6.

The reſtoration of the proteſtants in France, to the rights and immunities of their fellow ſubjects of the Roman Catholic perſuaſion, which we hear is intended by the French king; though it will certainly make great numbers of his ſubjects much happier, will not recall the arts and manufactures which the bigotted policy of Louis XIV. when he revoked the celebrated edict of Nantes, drove with the Hugenots, from his kingdom into Germany, Holland, Great Britain, and Ireland. As to the French themſelves, who then emigrated to theſe countries, they have long ſince paid the debt of nature, and their offspring are blended with the nations where their fathers ſettled, and will not return to France.

The irreſiſtible and juſt oppoſition given by the right honorable Mr. Grattan, to the odious and deteſtible clauſe in the riot act, which would have empowered every ignorant or malicious juſtice of the peace, to raiſe to the ground any Roman Catholic chapel, on the bare affidavit of any prejudiced perſon; deſerves the thanks not only of that reſpectable body, but of all other perſuaſions who wiſh well to the religious and civil liberties of mankind; naturally and unavoidably involved in this intereſting queſtion; whether the free ſtate, governed by mild and impartial laws, ſhall be permitted to celebrate divine worſhip in their own way.

PARIS, September 11.

They write from Vienna, that the Danube had quitted its bed again, and carried away two arches of the bridge. The rains have cauſed ſuch inundations at Windhae, that a torrent ſwept away five houſes; in this calamity four perſons periſhed. At Underdrauburgh, in Carinthia, fifty-four (young men and women) out of ſixty-three, that were croſſing the Drave in order to go to a fair, were drowned.

We are promiſed the publication of ſome very curious anecdotes relative to the famous priſoner of the Baſtile, known by the name of the man with the iron maſk; theſe anecdotes were found at Turin, in the library of a nobleman lately dead, who had them from one of his anceſtors; they prove that the above priſoner was Girolamo Magni, firſt miniſter to the duke of Mantua, who brought about the league of Augſburg, againſt Louis the XIVth. Mr. de Louvois, to pleaſe his maſter, at the interceſſion of the king's ambaſſador, contrived to carry off that young miniſter one day as he was hunting, and that he might not be known, and to prevent any reclaimation of him being made, they put on him an iron maſk. The above memoirs contain, it is ſaid, the moſt minute accounts of the reſidence of that priſoner in the iſlands of St. Marguerite, and of his long detention in the Baſtile. It ſhould ſeem that whoever wrote the above anecdotes had ſome part in that political coupe de main. It may be aſked how Louis the XIVth could take ſuch revenge on the miniſter of a petty prince, but we may anſwer, that he puniſhed a poor publiſher of a newſpaper much more cruelly after cauſing him to be carried off by a traitor: however it will be much better to ſuppoſe that thoſe ſtrokes of political vengeance oftener proceed from the reſentment of the miniſter than of the ſovereign.

March 10.

Colonel Simiaen, who married a beautiful young lady, about five years ago, ſhot himſelf laſt week through jealouſy and deſpair. This unhappy man had met with a conſtant and viſible indifference in his wife's behaviour, and thought her affections placed elſewhere; they ſay, that ever ſince their marriage, ſhe conſtantly perſiſted in refuſing him thoſe enjoyments to which matrimony gives an indiſputable claim.

The reigning hat at preſent, which is in form of a bonnet, goes under the name of Chapeau des Notables. It was invented by Monet, the favourite Manchand des Modes for the ladies of quality. It conſiſts of new faſhioned ſtraw, that exceeds amber in colour, and a broad beautiful violet knot before and behind: the edging a zig-zag trimming of the ſame colour, made on purpoſe, and called by all the haberdaſhers Bordure a la Notable.

AMERICA.

ROSEAU, (Dominica) April 4.

Laſt Sunday evening about nine o'clock, a ſchooner belonging to monſ. Dujardin, laden with thirty-eight hogſheads of ſugar, having come to anchor in this port, was boarded by a number of ſailors, who had been for ſome time idling about this town, and forced away, with three negroes on board; the captain and ſome of the people having juſt come on ſhore, It is feared they killed ſome of the negroes, from the continual cries on board. A ſchooner with a detachment from the 30th regiment, and ſeamen from the different ſhips in the harbour, has been ſent in purſuit of them; and it is to be hoped that thoſe daring wretches will ſoon be brought to that puniſhment which is ſo juſtly due to their crime. No particular intelligence was received when this paper went to preſs.

St. JOHN's (Antigua) April 13.

This morning at about three o'clock, the ſchooner Earl of Lonſdale, owned by capt. Edward Keen, of this iſland, on her paſſage to the ſouthward, was unfortunately run down between this iſland and Guadaloupe, by the ſhip Tartar, captain Daizell, from Dominica bound to Liverpool: the ſchooner went down immediately, but fortunately the people were ſaved by clining to the bowſprit, anchor, and head of the ſhip. We are informed that this accident was entirely owing to the ſchooner miſſing ſtays.

PORTSMOUTH, (N. H.) April 25.

Monday laſt the ſeveral companies compoſing the firſt regiment of foot under colonel Dennet, the corps of independent light horſe, commanded by colonel Wentworth, ſeveral corps of light horſe, from colonel Coggſwell's regiment, the alarm companies commanded by colonels Gains, Whipple and Hill, and the company of artillery commanded by captaid Woodward, ſeverally aſſembled on Downing's Plains. His excellency the captain general, and his ſuite were eſcorted to the place of review by colonel Wentworth's corps. The review commenced about one o'clock, in nearly the following order:

His Excellency the Preſident, and the Honorable
Chief Juſtice Livermore;
Members of Congreſs from this ſtate:
General Officers;
Aids de camp to his Excellency;
High Sheriff of the county;
Gentlemen of diſtinction, &c.

—The proceſſion was grand. The troops, after having paid the marching ſalute, went through the manual exerciſe, and ſeveral evolutions, with a pleaſing exactneſs. In the afternoon, a ſham fight was exhibited. The horſe were divided into four diviſions, and ſeverally attacked the column of foot on the right and left wings, each of which were ſupported by the artillery. The combat terminated in the foot remaining maſters of the ground. Each corps did themſelves honor, by the exactitude of their manœuvres, and obedience to their officers. His excellency left the field about ſun-ſet, when the manœuvres of the day were cloſed with apparent ſatisfaction.

NEWBURY-PORT, May 16.

Friday the 4th inſtant, Capt. William French of Seabrook, near this town, had a ewe which brought forth a lamb of common ſize that is now living, and within two hours after, ſhe brought forth another, with two ſeparate heads and necks, every way perfect. It had alſo double ſhoulders, which united near the heart. It had but one heart, and only four legs, and theſe, with every other part, were of the uſual ſize.—It lived ſeveral hours, and bleated with both heads, but never at the ſame time.——After it died, the ſkin was carefully taken off and ſtuffed with ſtraw, and is now to be ſeen at Saliſbury Point.

NEW-YORK, May 22.

On the afternoon of Thurſday laſt, the corps of artillery of this city paraded, commanded by Colonel S. Bauman. The ſoldierly and military appearance of this reſpectable corps, not only do honor to the officers and ſoldiers who conſtitute it, but add a grace to the militia of this city, of which they are part.——On the evening of the ſame day fireworks were exibited in the fort, under the direction of the commandant, at which a numerous aſſemblage of ſpectators were preſent.

SAVANNAH, (Georgia) May 3.

The legiſlature of South Carolina, taking into conſideration the daring ſtate of the run-away ſlaves, ordered, at their laſt ſeſſion, a company of minute men, and a draught of the Granville county militia, for the purpoſe of keeping the field 'till they are totally broken up. Colonel Hutſon commanding them, ſtationed at Puryſburgh, is now waiting for co-operation with this ſtate. Laſt Saturday evening the colonel detached capt. Winkler, with 3 boats, and about 25 men, to way lay Collins's creek. About 8 or 9 o'clock, one of captain Winkler's boats diſcovered four of their canoes, full of men, coming down the creek, when a warm ſkirmiſh took place, which ended in favour of the white people. Louis, one of their majors, formerly belonging to colonel Stirk, and laſt to commodore Bowen, was killed, and two others (ſeen to fall overboard) were ſuppoſed to have ſhared his fate, as the canoe with Louis fell into capt. Winkler's hands, and the boat waited 15 minutes without any ſign of their riſing. Had not capt. Winkler detached his other boats, the whole of the negro party muſt have been killed or taken. Two of the Carolinians were ſlightly wounded, one in the hand and arm, the other in his face.

One of the five hoſtages given by the Creek Indians, for the performance of the treaty held in this ſtate in November laſt, has put an end to his exiſtence, by hanging himſelf; and there is the greateſt reaſon to think we ſhall be immediately involved in a war with that nation.

The Minerva, from Jamaica, in coming up this river laſt week, ran upon a ſand bank below Cockſpur, and has not yet got off; the cargo is ſaved.

The Hope, M'Intire, from Jamaica, is arrived in this river.

AUGUSTA, (Georgia) April 21.

Tueſday laſt an expreſs arrived here from Doctor White, ſuperintendant of Indian affairs for the ſouthern diſtrict, now in the Creek nation, with diſpatches for the hon. the executive of this ſtate, ſaid to contain the alarming intelligence of the Creek Indians intending to commit hoſtilities againſt the citizens of this ſtate. We hope to be able to inform the public of particulars in our next.

May 3. We hear that Doctor White, ſuperintendant of Indian affairs, who returned here from the Creek nation on Saturday laſt, has appeaſed the minds of the Indians for the preſent.

CHARLESTON, May 3.

From Mudlick Creek, Ninety-ſix Diſtrict, we are informed by undoubted authority, that on the 16th ult. Mrs. Rogers, wife of Mr. Thomas Rogers, of that place was delivered of a daughter, and on the 18th, about five o'clock in the afternoon, ſhe was alſo delivered of two ſons, and at ten o'clock in the evening of the ſame day of a third ſon, ſtill born!—the three other children with their mother, are likely to do well.

It is reported that general Clarke has ſent information to Auguſta of a war with the Creeks being daily expected, and that on the 18th ult. as a number of ſettlers were taking fiſh on the Oconey river, a party of Indians fired on them, and two men are miſſing; and on the 20th ult. they burnt a blockhouſe, built for the defence of that country, and drove off a great number of horſes and cattle. The people in that quarter are much alarmed, and ſome of them moving into this ſtate.

ALEXANDRIA, May 17.

A Carolina newſpaper of the 23d ult. mentions, that a duel was lately fought near Belleville, between Dr. Bell and major Lewis, in which the Dr. unfortunately fell.

Laſt evening Hugh Taylor and Daniel Henneſſy, (runaway ſervants belonging to the Potowmac company) were ſentenced to receive thirty nine laſhes each, for ſtealing, which ſentence was immediately executed.

RICHMOND, May 17.

Extract of a letter dated Annapolis, April 26.

'Yeſterday evening we had a violent ſtorm of thunder in this town, which entered the houſe of Mr. Aſhmead, and ſtruck ſeveral of the members of aſſembly down, viz. Meſſrs. Funk, Keller, Burges, O'Niel, Nicholſon and Chaſe, who were very much hurt, but it is expected will recover again.'

James Philips, aged 50 or 60, and James Miles, of Charles City county, were brought to the public jail in this city on Monday laſt, for a burglary and robbery committed in the county of Prince George, two or three years ago, on the evidence of William Maynard, an accomplice. After the examination was over, Maynard found means to make his eſcape, and is now going at large.

A ſon of old Philips, was a few days ſince committed to the goal of CharlesCity county, for a forgery, but was reſcued by a party of his acquaintances by firing on the guard and then opening the priſon doors. This is a brother to the perſon who was reſcued from the above county, about 2 months ago, and afterwards retaken and committed to the public goal in this city.

Philadelphia, May 25.

On Tueſday laſt the ſupreme executive council of this ſtate appointed general Daniel Heiſter, a commiſſioner for carrying into execution (in conjunction with other commiſſioners) the late act of aſſembly, for aſcertaining and confirming to certain perſons called Connecticut Claimants, the lands by them claimed, in the county of Luzerne, &c. in the room of the honorable Peter Muhlenberg, reſigned.

Extract of a letter from Boſton, May 17.

" On Monday evening an expreſs arrived in town from the county of Berkſhire, with letters for his Excellency the Governor and the Hon. General Lincoln, from ſeveral gentlemen of diſtinction in that county, which contain accounts of the rebels, to the amount of 7 or 800, being collected in the ſtate of Vermont, in the vicinity of this commonwealth, and that it was given out by them, that they intended in the courſe of the preſent week to make incurſions into ſeveral parts of this ſtate, and to kill, plunder, burn and deſtroy whatever comes in their way. That Shays, Day, Parſons, &c, had been ſeen at Crown-Point, on their way to join them. That the town of Sharon in Connecticut had turned out a company of men, properly officered, for the purpoſe of aſſiſting the rebels—and that the militia in Berkſhire county had orders to hold themſelves in readineſs to oppoſe the inroads of theſe daring and infatuated men.

" Tueſday laſt the Hon. Major General Lincoln left this town, on his way to the weſtern counties."

The following is to be inſcribed on the Monument to be erected at St. Paul's Church, New York, in memory of the late Major General MONTGOMERY:

THIS MONUMENT
is erected by the order of CONGRESS, 25th January, 1786.
To tranſmit to poſterity a grateful remembrance of the Patriotiſm, Conduct, Enterprize and Perſeverance, of Major General RICHARD MONTGOMERY; who, after a ſeries of ſucceſs, amidſt the moſt diſcouraging difficulties, fell in the attack on Quebec,
31ſt December, 1775.
Aged 39 years.

JOURNAL of the UNITED STATES in CONGRESS Aſſembled.

Wedneſday, March 28, 1787.

The delegates of New Jerſey having moved as follows:—

" Whereas the legiſlature of New Jerſey did by their reſolution of the 23d of November laſt, empower his excellency governor Livingſton to apply to Congreſs for the loan of five braſs field pieces, for the uſe of the ſaid ſtate; and whereas the governor of the ſaid ſtate, in purſuance of the aforementioned reſolution, has written to the delegates of New Jerſey, to apply to the United States in Congreſs aſſembled for the ſame, the ſaid delegates, in conformity with the governor's requeſt, ſubmit the following reſolutions:—1ſt. That the ſecretary at war deliver to the order of governor Livingſton, from the arſenals of the United States, five braſs field pieces, three or four pounders, for the uſe of the ſtate of New Jerſey, for the return of which, when demanded by Congreſs, the governor of the ſaid ſtate ſhall be perſonally reſponſible; and alſo for their value in caſe of damage or loſs, unleſs they ſhould not be demanded before a war between the United States and any other power, and they happen to be loſt in an engagement with the enemy, in which caſe their loſs ſhall be deemed a national loſs. 2d. That the ſecretary at war take a receipt of governor Livingſton for the ſaid artillery, expreſſing the governor's perſonal reſponſibility for their return on the terms and conditions mentioned in the foregoing reſolution."

A motion was made by Mr. Smith, ſeconded by Mr. Pierce, to poſtpone the conſideration of the above motion, in order to take up the following—

" That however deſirous Congreſs may be on every occaſion, to comply with the requeſt of the ſtate of New Jerſey, they cannot with a due regard for the public ſafety, eſtabliſh a precedent for diſperſing the field artillery or military ſtores of the United States, by loaning the ſame to individual ſtates; but earneſtly recommend it to every ſtate not ſupplied with ſuch artillery or ſtores, to procure them without delay, purſuant to the ſixth article of the confederation."

And on the queſtion to poſtpone for the purpoſe abovementioned, it was loſt.

A queſtion being then taken to agree to the motion of the delegates of New Jerſey, the ſame was loſt.

Monday, April 9, 1787.

The report of the committee, conſiſting, of Mr. Varnum, Mr. Carrington, Mr. King, Mr. Few, and Mr. Madiſon, being amended as follows, viz.

Reſolved, That two companies of artillery be formed out of the troops already enliſted in the ſtate of Maſſachuſetts, in purſuance of the reſolution of the 20th of October, 1786.

That the ſecretary at war take order for arranging the ſame, with the proper proportion of officers.

That all the remaining troops which have been inliſted in any of the ſtates, under the ſaid reſolutions, be diſcharged, and a ſtop put to any futher inliſtments.

That all officers appointed under the ſaid reſolutions, except thoſe neceſſary for the ſaid two companies be diſcharged.

Reſolved, That the board of treaſury take order for the payment of the officers and ſoldiers diſcharged as aforeſaid.

Ordered, That the foregoing reſolutions be tranſmitted to the ſecretary at war, and that he, without delay, direct the two companies of artillery to be marched from Boſton to Springfield, and upon their arrival at that poſt, that he put in operation the reſolutions aforeſaid, for the diſcharge of the troops raiſed by the ſtate of Connecticut, and now at Springfield.

On the queſtion to agree to the above reſolutions, it was reſolved in the affirmative.

Extract of a letter from Baltimore, May 22.

" In a ſudden and violent guſt, on Sunday afternoon laſt, a ſmall boat was overwhelmed in our harbour, by which event Mr. James Smith, late of Baltimore county, and Mr. Eli Holmes, (apprentice to Mr. William Hammond of this town, merchant) were moſt unfortunately drowned. The very reſpectable characters of theſe hapleſs gentlemen, render their premature death a ſubject of general and juſt regret in this community, of which they were worthy and uſeful members. Mr. Smith, hath left an amiable wife and four or five children, to lament their irreparable loſs by this ſad cataſtrophe.

A certain Cure for CORNS.

THE editor of a French periodical paper, entitled Le Gazette Salutaire, whence this receipt is taken, introduces it with the following obſervation: " Notwithſtanding the great number of receipts that have hitherto been publiſhed againſt a complaint ſo painful as that of Corns, a more effectual remedy appears to be ſtill wanting. The following plaſter has been given as infallible, but were it to be ſucceſsful in ſome caſes only, it would ſtill deſerve to be univerſally known. The preſcription is as follows: take blaker of gum galbanum, with ſaffron, of each half an ounce; camphire, two ſcruples; mix them together. Spread it very thick on a piece of linen cloth; but put no more on the Corn than will exactly cover it; for, if it be larger, it will be apt to excite bliſters on the ſkin of delicate perſons. The effect will be expedited, if the feet are dipped in water, and the hard ſkin of the Corn got off before the plaſter is applied."

TO BE SOLD, A

VALUABLE Plantation, pleaſantly ſituated in Briſtol townſhip, Bucks county, two miles from the borough of Briſtol and 8 miles from Trenton, containing about 440 acres of Land: the ſoil fertile, and equal in goodneſs to any in the townſhip; 150 acres of which are cleared, and fitted for the plough, 20 acres of meadow in good graſs, and more may eaſily be made, the remainder is woodland well timbered. The above tract is well ſituated, and calculated for dividing into two Farms, there being two comfortable log dwelling houſes on the premiſes, two young orchards, with a well of good water near each houſe. The river Delaware running in front of the farm, affords a convenient and cheap way to tranſport the produce of ſaid place to the markets of this or the Jerſey ſtate, which is an object of conſiderable importance to the farmer. For further particulars apply to JOHN BOOZE, living near the premiſes, or to ROBERT WALN, in Philadelphia.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will, effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

An ACT for aſcertaining and confirming to certain perſons called Connecticut claimants, the lands by them claimed within the county of Luzerne, and for other purpoſes therein mentioned.

WHEREAS an unhappy diſpute for many years ſubſiſted between the province and ſtate of Pennſylvania, on the one part, and the colony and ſtate of Connecticut on the other part, relative to certain lands within the charter boundary of Pennſylvania, but which were claimed by Connecticut, as falling within the limits of her charter; which diſpute was finally terminated by the decree of the court of commiſſioners at Trenton, on the thirtieth day of December, one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty-two, in the mode preſcribed by the articles of confederation of the United States; by which decree the queſtion between the two ſtates, was decided in favor of Pennſylvania: And whereas, before the termination of the ſaid claim of Connecticut, a number of its inhabitants, with their aſſociates, ſettled upon and improved divers tracts of land, lying on or near to the northeaſt branch of the river Suſquehanna, and the waters thereof, and now within the county of Luzerne: And whereas, parts of the ſame lands have been claimed under titles derived from the late proprietaries of Pennſylvania; and theſe interfering claims have occaſioned much contention, expence and bloodſhed: and this aſſembly being deſirous of putting an end to thoſe evils, by confirming ſuch of the Connecticut claims, as were acquired by actual ſettlers prior to the termination of the ſaid diſpute, agreeably to the petition of a number of the ſaid ſettlers. and by granting a juſt compenſation to the Pennſylvania claimants: And whereas, the lands aforeſaid, claimed by the Connecticut ſettlers, have been uſually aſſigned to them in rights, or lots, of about three hundred acres each, which rights, or lots, have either been entire, or in two or more diviſions: therefore

Be it enacted, and it it hereby enacted by the repreſentatives of the freemen of the commonwealth of Pennſylvania in general aſſembly met, and by the authority of the ſame, That all the ſaid rights or lots now lying within the county of Luzerne, which were occupied or acquired by Connecticut claimants, who were actual ſettlers there, at or before the termination of the claim of the ſtate of Connecticut, by the decree aforeſaid, and which rights, or lots, were particularly aſſigned to the ſaid ſettlers prior to the ſaid decree, agreeably to the regulations then in force among them, be, and they are hereby confirmed to them and their heirs and aſſigns: Provided, that all the claimants whoſe lots are hereby confirmed, ſhall by themſelves, guardians, or other lawful agents, within eight months, next after the paſſing of this act, prefer to the commiſſioners herein after mentioned, their reſpective claims to the lots aforeſaid, therein ſtating the grounds of their claims, and ſufficiently deſcribing the lots claimed, ſo that the ſame may be known and aſcertained, and ſupport the ſame by reaſonable proofs.

And whereas, it will be neceſſary to inſtitute a ſummary mode of aſcertaining and eſtabliſhing the right of each claimant. Be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That Peter Muhlenberg, Timothy Pickering and Joſeph Montgomery, eſquires, be and they are hereby appointed commiſſioners for the purpoſes hereinafter expreſſed and declared, and in caſe of the death, abſence or refuſal to ſerve of any or all of the ſaid commiſſioners, the ſupreme executive council, are hereby authoriſed and required to ſupply the vacancy or vacancies occaſioned thereby, by other new appointment or appointments.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall repair to the county of Luzerne, within two months next after the paſſing of this act, and at ſuch place within the ſame county, and at ſuch time as they the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall appoint to meet together, for the purpoſe of receiving and examining the claims of all perſons to the lots intended by this act to be confirmed. And the ſaid commiſſioners are hereby empowered to adjourn their meeting from time to time, and to ſuch places, within the ſaid county, as they ſhall judge beſt, for the proper and ſpeedy execution of their commiſſion. And that all perſons intereſted in the ſaid lots may be duly notified to make and ſupport their claims thereto, within the time preſcribed by this act, the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall cauſe it to be publiſhed in one or more of the news-papers, printed in Pennſylvania and Connecticut, with an advertiſement ſubjoined, expreſſing the time and place propoſed for their firſt meeting; and copies of this act, and of the ſaid advertiſement, ſhall alſo be poſted up at ſundry places within the ſaid county, for the information of the inhabitants. And the examination of the ſaid claims ſhall be by witneſſes, on their oaths or affirmations (which the ſaid commiſſioners are ſeverally empowered to adminiſter) and ſuch other evidence as ſhall be produced to the ſaid commiſſioners, or which they can obtain. And of ſuch claims as ſhall be ſupported by evidence ſatisfactory to the ſaid commiſſioners or any two of them, there ſhall be made a fair entry, in which the lots ſo claimed ſhall be deſcribed, and in ſuch manner that the ſame may be clearly known and aſcertained. Provided, That where two or more claims of Connecticut claimants, to the ſame lot, ſhall be preſented, and it ſhall appear to the ſaid commiſſioners by ſatisfactory evidence, that the ſame lot ought to be confirmed, agreeably to the meaning of this act, they ſhall make a fair entry thereof as aforeſaid; and if the ſeveral claimants agree to ſubmit their claims to the determination of the ſaid commiſſioners, they ſhall proceed to hear and determine the ſame accordingly; but if they do not thus agree, either of the claimants may proſecute his claim in the proper court of law, as in ordinary caſes of conteſted titles.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners be, and they are hereby authoriſed to appoint a ſurveyor or ſurveyors to ſurvey all the lots aforeſaid of the Connecticut claimants: and the ſurveys thereof ſhall be returned to the ſaid commiſſioners for their information and aſſiſtance, in proſecuting their enquiries and examinations; and the ſurveys of ſuch of the ſaid lots, the claims to which ſhall be admitted by the ſaid commiſſioners, ſhall by them be afterwards returned, together with their book of entries deſcribing the ſame, to the ſupreme executive council, who ſhall cauſe patents to be iſſued for their confirmation, and each patent ſhall comprehend all the parcels of land, which are to be confirmed to the ſame claimant, or joint-claimants, to whom by the return of the commiſſioners aforeſaid, the ſame ſhall be found to belong; and for each patent there ſhall be paid to the ſecretary of the council, the ſum of twenty ſhillings. And the ſaid ſurveyors ſhall appoint proper perſons for their chain carriers and markers: and the ſurveyors, chain carriers and markers ſhall ſeverally be ſworn or affirmed before a juſtice of the peace, or one of the ſaid commiſſioners, faithfully to perform their reſpective duties; and ſhall be allowed a reaſonable compenſation for their ſervices to be fixed by the ſaid commiſſioners, and paid by the claimants, whoſe claims to the lands ſo ſurveyed ſhall be admitted as aforeſaid, and upon whom the ſame ſhall be apportioned by the ſaid commiſſioners, in the manner they ſhall judge moſt equitable.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That each of the ſaid commiſſioners, before he acts under his commiſſion, ſhall take an oath or affirmation, before one of the members of the ſupreme executive council, or a judge of the ſupreme court, diligently to proceed in the buſineſs of his commiſſion and well and truly to hear and determine upon all claims and queſtions which ſhall come before him, in purſuance of this act, without favor, affection or hope of reward.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners be, and they are hereby authoriſed to appoint a ſuitable perſon for a clerk, who ſhall before them be ſworn or affirmed, faithfully to regiſter all the proceedings of the ſaid commiſſioners in purſuance of this act.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That there be allowed and paid out of the public treaſury, to each of the ſaid commiſſioners twenty ſhillings per day, and to the ſaid clerk fifteen ſhillings per day, for each day they ſhall be employed, in performing the duties required of them by the act.

And whereas the late proprietaries and divers other perſons, have heretofore acquired titles to parcels of the lands aforeſaid, agreeably to the laws and uſages of Pennſylvania, and who will be deprived thereof by the operation of this act, and as juſtice requires that compenſation be made for the lands of which they ſhall thus be diveſted; and as the ſtate is poſſeſſed of other lands, in which an equivalent may be rendered to the claimants under Pennſylvania, and as it will be neceſſary that their claims ſhould be aſcertained by a proper examination.

Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That all perſons having ſuch claims to lands which will be affected by the operation of this act, ſhall be, and they are hereby required, by themſelves, guardians or other lawful agents, within twelve months from the paſſing of this act, to preſent the ſame to the board of property, therein clearly deſcribing thoſe lands, and ſtating the grounds of their claims, and alſo adducing the proper proofs, not only of their titles, but of the ſituations, qualities and values of the lands ſo claimed, to enable the board to judge of the validity of their claims, and of the quantities of vacant lands proper to be granted as equivalents. And for every claim which ſhall be admitted by ſaid board, as duly ſupported, the equivalent by them allowed, may be taken either in the old or new purchaſe, at the option of the claimant; and warrants and patents, and all other acts of the public offices relating thereto, ſhall be performed free of expence. The ſaid board ſhall alſo allow ſuch a quantity of vacant land, to be added to ſuch equivalent, as ſhall in their judgment be equal to the expences, which muſt neceſſarily be incurred in locating and ſurveying the ſame. And that the board of property may in every caſe obtain ſatisfactory evidence of the quality and value of the land, which ſhall be claimed as aforeſaid, under the proprietary title, they may require the commiſſioners aforeſaid, during their ſitting in the ſaid county of Luzerne, to make the neceſſary enquiries, by the oaths or affirmations of lawful witneſſes, to aſcertain thoſe points; and it ſhall be the duty of the ſaid commiſſioners to enquire and report accordingly. Signed by order of the Houſe,

THOMAS MIFFLIN, Speaker.

Enacted into a Law at Philadelphia, on Wedneſday the twenty eighth day of March, in the year of Our Lord one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty ſeven.

Foreign Intelligence.

KIOW, February 12.

THE empreſs of Ruſſia is ſafely arrived at this place with her whole ſuite, accompanied by the Imperial ambaſſador and the Engliſh and French miniſters. Her Imperial majeſty is in perfect health, and has not ſuffered in the leaſt from fatigue during her journey, notwithſtanding the length of it (near twelve hundred Engliſh miles) and the inclemency of the ſeaſon). The carriages were fixed upon ſledges, the motion of which over the beaten ſnow was perfectly ſmooth and even. Her majeſty was every where extremely well lodged in houſes built on purpoſe for her accommodation; her table was ſerved with the ſame regularity as at Peterſburgh. Her Imperial majeſty was received here by field-marſhal Romanzo, governor general of this and the neighbouring provinces; and the greateſt demonſtrations of joy and duty were expreſſed by the inhabitants of the ſeveral places through which her majeſty paſſed.

VIENNA, February 20.

The comteſſe de Belſova, who for fifteen years has been afflicted with the uncommon complaint of a brittleneſs in her bones, that upon the leaſt movement they broke, died upon the ſecond of this month. She left her fortune, eſtimated at one hundred thouſand florins, among her domeſtics, as a return for their attachment and faithfulneſs.

PARIS, March 10.

It is imagined that all the plans ſubmitted to the Notables will be in the end agreed to. The oppoſition, has, however been warm. M. Dillon, archbiſhop of Paris, as chief of the clergy, declared, "that if the plans propoſed were put into execution, France would fall into the anarchy of Boſton, and the deſpotiſm of Conſtantinople." A prince told him that it was ſcarcely credible that any ſubjects ſhould dare oppoſe the will of his ſovereign; upon which the archbiſhop entered into a full explanation of the reaſons which moved him to a patriotic reſiſtance to the royal will, which he did in ſo clear and forcible a manner, that the prince was convinced of the juſtice of what he ſaid. Notwithſtanding this, many ſenſible people are of opinion, that in the preſent urgent ſituation of things, the territorial impoſt is at once the moſt ſimple and equitable mode of raiſing the revenue that can be adopted; it will to be ſure preſs hard upon the clergy and nobility, but all the other ſubjects of the kingdom will be benefited, and the poor in particular relieved by it.

Mr. Neckar is gone to Geneva, which, as his adminiſtration is to be ſcrutinized, will put him out of the way of knowing what paſſes, and conſequently of being tempted to anſwer any petty cenſures that may be paſſed upon what he did.

BIRMINGHAM March 12.

On Monday laſt was married at Abbot's-Bromley, Mr. William Walbank, aged eighteen, to Mrs. Barton, aged eighty five, he being this lady's fourth huſband. A concourſe of people attended the matrimonial ceremony, but crowding too precipitately into the church, they threw the old lady down; ſhe, however, ſoon recovered herſelf, and with her ſtick chaſtiſed the intruders. A wheelbarrow being brought to the church door, when the couple came out, the old lady was forced into it, and her huſband, being a luſty lad, they obliged to wheel her to the bridal habitation.

LONDON,

March 20. A procureur at Paris, who lately committed ſuicide, wrote the following will juſt before he put the knife to his throat: "I give my money to my enemies—my body to the earth—and my ſoul to the Devil."

On the authority of Mr. Herman, a counſellor of the court of Peterſburgh, Tobolſki, is ſaid to be about a fifth part of the Ruſſian empire; its annual revenue is one million of roubles, and the number of its inhabitants 510 000.——The ſale of children forms one branch of their traffic.

The Lincolnſhire ladies, in the neighbourhood of Lowth, very commendably inſtituted a little woolen manufacture among themſelves; in conſequence of which, it is no uncommon thing to ſee, in that part of the county, a brilliant aſſembly of fine women, habited in dreſſes entirely wrought by their own fair hands.

CLONMELL, March 19.

The following priſoners were tranſmitted from the bridewell of Nenagh, eſcorted by detachments from the 5th, or Royal Iriſh dragoons, 9th dragoons, and 1ſt battalion of the 1ſt regiment of foot, or Royal Scotch, under the command of the Under Sheriff, and were ſafely lodged in our county gaol yeſterday evening.

John Cowen, charged on oath, with having on the 8th of January laſt, preſented a gun loaded with powder and large ſhot, at Meſſrs. W. Edwards and George Watſon, and at the ſame time declaring deſtruction to any one that would oppoſe him.

John Heirk, charged on oath, for that he, with others, on the night of the 31ſt of January 1786, to the number of upwards of forty armed with guns, piſtols, and ſwords, with horns ſounding, and dreſſed in white uniforms, and went to the houſe of John Dunn, farmer, late of Fennor, deceaſed, and forcibly entered ſaid houſe, and having there found Dunn, forced him on a horſe, tied him, and carried him naked to Beggars Inn, in the county of Kilkenny, where a grave was prepared in the centre of the three roads, in which they buried him up to the chin, then cut off his ears, and nailed them to the public pump in ſaid town, for no other reaſon than his finding fault with their having taken his horſe on the night of the 11th of ſaid month. By the activity and vigilance of colonel Otway he was apprehended on the 9th inſtant, at the houſe of one Fox, and committed to the bridewell of Nenagh

AMERICA.

BOSTON, May 17.

We hear that upwards of 50 ſail of fiſhing ſchooners, with their firſt fares, have within a few days paſt arrived at Salem, Marblehead, Beverly and Cape-Ann.

NEW-YORK, May 23.

By accounts brought in the ſloop Charles, capt. White, arrived here on Monday from Norfolk, Virginia, we are informed that a Spaniſh veſſel had put into that port in diſtreſs, having on board ſixty thouſand dollars, deſtined for Baltimore, Maryland, and there to purchaſe veſſels and load flour for the Spaniſh ports.

LOSS of the Packet JOSEPH and PEGGY.

[From the Norfolk and Portſmouth Journal, of May 16.]

On the evening of the 9th inſt. the packet Joſeph and Peggy, (owned and commanded by the truly reſpectable character captain Joſeph White) from New-York, bound to this port, was unfortunately loſt on a reef of rocks near Smith-Iſland. It appears, that the day previous to this calamity, the captain could take no obſervation from the hazineſs of the weather, and it blowing a ſevere gale, he made for land, which appeared to him to be near the entrance of the bay, ſounding 3 to 4 fathom water, when the veſſel ſtruck upon the abovementioned reef of rocks. The captain, crew, and one woman paſſenger clung to the ſhrowds, and in this perilous ſituation remained till next morning, when they fortunately reached the ſhore in their boat, and in a few minutes after the veſſel went to pieces.——Here would humanity draw a veil, and let the ſympathizing tear lament the affecting ſituation of the unhappy ſufferers—but worſe remains behind—On their landing, the barbarous inhuman conduct of ruffians in the form of men, ſurpaſs'd the reception they with from the raging elements, who, in place of rendering every aſſiſtance in their power, accumulated their diſtreſs by plundering them of what few articles they ſaved, and at the very time the ocean, as it were pitied the ſufferings of her victims, by floating a couple of barrels of rum, ſo acceptable at this juncture, for the monſters, inſenſible to every tie of nature or compaſſion, forcibly ſeized them, and left theſe children of misfortune to ſhift for themſelves. The boors of Cornwall would have bluſhed at ſuch behaviour.

Yeſterday accounts were received, that part of the wreck was driven on ſhore near Lynheaven Bay, and that Lemuel Cornick, eſq. and his domeſtics, had uſed every exertion to ſave what was poſſible. The contraſt of the plunderers and our good Samaritan is very ſtriking.

It took its wing
To regions, where imagination tells How Chriſtians live, and where this Savage
Dwells.

SAVANNAH, (Georgia) May 3.

We hear that the commiſſioners appointed by the honorable legiſlature to ſettle the boundaries between this ſtate and the ſtate of South-Carolina have adjuſted every point relative thereto, by a convention, which was concluded the 28th ult. at Beaufort, in South-Carolina. The out lines of this important buſineſs, it is ſaid, are, That the moſt northern branch or ſtream of the river Savannah, from the ſea to the fork or confluence of the rivers Tulogoo and Kowee, and from thence to the moſt northern ſtream of the main branch of Savannah river, now called Tulogoo, 'till it interſects the northern boundary line of South-Carolina, is declared to be hereafter the boundary line between Georgia and South-Carolina, leaving all that is ſouth and weſt of it, as far as Eaſt and Weſt Florida and the Miſſiſſippi, to the ſtate of Georgia. And that the uninterrupted navigation of the main ſtream of that river, from its ſource to the weſt end of Hutchinſon's Iſland, and from thence along the north ſide of ſaid iſland and Cockſpur Iſland to the ſea, is to be the common right of the citizens of both ſtates, leaving the ſtreams ſouth of that deſcription to be the the excluſive right of Georgia.

JOURNAL of the United States in Congreſs aſſembled.—Saturday, April 21, 1786.

Reſolved, That the board of treaſury be, and they are hereby authoriſed to contract for three hundred tons of copper coin of the federal ſtandard, agreeably to the propoſition of Mr. James Jarvis; provided that the premium to be allowed to the United States on the amount of copper coin contracted for, be not leſs than fifteen per cent. that it be coined at the expence of the contractor, but under the inſpection of an officer appointed and paid by the United States.

That the obligations to be given, for the payment of the copper coin to be delivered under ſuch contract, be redeemable within twenty years after the date thereof, that they bear an intereſt not exceeding ſix per cent. per annum, and that the principal and intereſt accruing thereon, be payable within the United States. That the whole of the aforeſaid loan ſhall be ſacredly appropriated and applied to the reduction of the domeſtic debt of the United States, and the premium thereon towards the payment of the intereſt of the foreign debt.

2.° The adminiſtration of the French Weſt-India iſlands, finding that the indulgence they have ſhewn to ſome captains of veſſels from the United States, who had unknowingly omited to take paſſports from his majeſty's conſuls, vice-conſuls, or agents, has given occaſion to many to conſider as a uſeleſs formality which the orders of the court have made an expreſs condition for the admittance of the ſaid veſſels into the French colonies: they have given poſitive directions to the ſeveral Cuſtom-houſes in the ſaid iſlands, to refuſe admittance, after the 15th of April laſt, to every veſſel not ſupplied with a paſſport.

As the above intelligence is intereſting to merchants and captains in the Weſt India trade, the ſeveral Printers are requeſted to publiſh it in their papers.

We have been favoured with the following on the Habeas Corpus, in the caſe of TIMOTHY MATLACK, Eſq. As the principles upon which this caſe was argued, and in part decided, are of a general nature, and intereſting to every Citizen of this State, we flatter ourſelves, that an account of them will prove acceptable to our readers:

MR. Matlack being brought before the hon. Edward Shippen, eſq; preſident of the court, &c. in purſuance of the habeas corpus. William Murray, junr. and Peter S. Duponceau, eſqrs. attended as counſel for Mr. Matlack; and the comptroller general alſo attending, the gaoler made his return. Mr. Matlack was called upon by the judge to ſhew what cauſe he had for his diſcharge. Mr. Murray then begged permiſſion to open the objections on the part of Mr. Matlack. He could not but obſerve, that no parallel could be found in the annals of Pennſylvania, and ſcarce in thoſe of any other country, for the continued ſeries of oppreſſion and injuſtice, which the preſent applicant had ſuffered in the courſe of his political tranſactions. That the preſent caſe was not to be conſidered merely as it affected the perſonal liberty of the applicant, great and important as that right was, but alſo, as it affected every individual of the community, and the whole commonwealth. The right of perſonal liberty is, with juſtice, ranked by the conſtitution, with that of life itſelf; and all others are poſtponed to theſe. The words of the conſtitution on this ſubject are, 'That all men are born equally free and independent, and have certain natural, inherent, and unalienable rights, among which, are the enjoying and defending life and liberty, acquiring and poſſeſſing property, and purſuing and obtaining happineſs and ſafety.' It is with juſtice, ranked with the right of life; for the infringement of it involves the violation of all others. It is to no purpoſe, that the laws have guarded the property of the citizen from invaſion, if he may be wantonly dragged from the enjoyment of what he has lawfully acquired. In vain have the laws declared his right of enjoying his limbs, body, and health, if, by illegal confinement in the unhealthy damps of a priſon, his conſtitution may be undermined with impunity. It is unneceſſary to mention to your honour, the authority of a precedent; it is well known—what is to day of doubtful authority, will be to-morrow a rule for future determinations—almoſt a law. And where is the man who may not become the victim of a bad precedent? There is none. Upon the protection of this right, the wealth and population of a country muſt depend. To be convinced of this, we need but turn our eyes to thoſe countries, where this right is unknown or unguarded. Are they not univerſally poor, and thinly peopled? Let Turkey witneſs. On the other hand, where this right is known and guarded, the nation is rich and populous. Of this, Britain is an eminent example. What, but this ſecurity inſured, encourages the huſbandman, the artificer, and the merchant? What elſe can bring the foreign merchant to our ports? And what, but the expectation of ſuch liberty, cauſes ſuch great emigrations from Germany and other parts of Europe, notwithſtanding the innumerable reſtraints laid by the different ſovereigns to prevent it? But, ſhall this confidence ceaſe? Shall this expectation be diſappointed? And that in Pennſylvania, which boaſts the moſt free conſtitution in the world; I truſt not. Happily, we have a ſpeedy and effectual remedy provided by our laws for illegal impriſonment. This remedy is by a writ of habeas corpus. This remedy the applicant has purſued.

By this writ, the gaoler is commanded to bring the body of the applicant before the judge, before whom the writ is returnable, with the day and cauſe of his taking and detention: to this, the gaoler has made a return. I therefore, take a firſt principle, 'That the judge or juſtice, before whom the party ſhall be brought, ſhall after return made, proceed to examine into the facts relating to the circumſtances of the caſe, and into the cauſes of ſuch confinement, &c.' He ſhall not only determine on the legality of the proceſs; but on an enquiry into all the circumſtances of the caſe, 'ſo as to juſtice ſhall appertain.' What then is the return? That the cauſe of the detention is contained in four warrants annexed to the writ. Theſe warrants are executions. The objections, then, neceſſarily divide themſelves into two points, viz.

I. That theſe executions are not warranted by any legal authority. And,

II. That though ſuch authority did exiſt, the executions are in themſelves illegal, unprecedented, and void.

As to the firſt point, it is a general principle, which cannot be controverted, that no execution can regularly iſſue, until a debt is aſcertained by the verdict of a jury, or the confeſſion of the party, and a judgment thereupon given. The right to trial by jury, is intended as a guard to all the natural right of the citizen; and is, perhaps, the beſt which could have been deviſed for that purpoſe. This mode of trial was introduced into Pennſylvania by the firſt ſettlers from England. It was derived from the great charter, which was obtained by the barons, ſword in hand, from king John, and though often attacked by arbitrary princes, has ſtill maintained its ground. In Pennſylvania, it is aſſured to us by the conſtitution, which declares, that 'trials ſhall be by jury as heretofore.' And again, in ſtill ſtronger terms, perhaps too ſtrong for the occaſion, 'that, in controverſies reſpecting property, and in ſuits between man and man, the parties have a right to trial by jury, which ought to be held ſacred.' The conſtitution having thus fixed this great right, no power on earth, not even the legiſlature, can deprive a citizen of it. This is ſettled by the frame of government, which, after enumerating the powers of the legiſlature, declares, in the ſame ſection, that 'they ſhall have no power to add to, alter, aboliſh, or infringe any part of this conſtitution.' Acts of aſſembly contrary to the conſtitution, being in themſelves void; the courts have a power of determining, as though ſuch act, which is no law, did not exiſt. Such a power is the neceſſary conſequence of their appointment to expound the law, as will appear from the maxim which is eſtabliſhed in England. Acts of Parliament which are againſt common reaſon, are to be judged void. In the preſent caſe, then, it appears to have been no trial by jury, or confeſſion of judgment by the party. Upon what authority then, have the executions iſſued? For an anſwer, we muſt have recourſe to the executions themſelves. They recite, 'whereas it is certified to us by our comptroller general, that Timothy Matlack, eſq; is indebted to the ſtate of Pennſylvania in the ſum, &c. A certificate of the comptroller general is, then, to be taken as the authority and ground of iſſuing theſe executions. Upon the general principle laid down, ſuch certificate can be no foundation for the proceſs: but to wave for the preſent that principle, let us examine the point upon the acts of aſſembly as they ſtand. The act which erects the office of comptroller general, veſts moſt amazing powers in him. Such powers, as I believe, were never veſted in one man, in any government called free. By this act, one man is to determine the property of his fellow-citizens; and upon ſuch determination, and a certificate thereof filed in the office of the prothonotary of the court of common pleas of the proper county, an execution is to iſſue. There is, however, an apparent reſtriction in this act; the ſettlement of the comptroller general muſt be laid before the ſupreme executive council for their approbation. Now, in the preſent caſe, I apprehend, the comptroller general muſt ſhew that the ſettlement was laid before the council, and that they approved of it. Some of the exceptionable parts of this act is repealed by a ſubſequent one. By this, it is enacted, that 'in every caſe where the comptroller general ſhall ſettle an account, and tranſmit ſuch ſettlement to the ſupreme executive council for their approbation; and if the party whoſe account ſhall be thus ſettled and tranſmitted, be diſſatisfied therewith, it ſhall and may be lawful for ſuch party, in one month after notice given by the comptroller general, that the ſettlement is approved of by council, but not afterwards to appeal, &c.' Has the comptroller given the notice in conſequence of this act? If he has, let the proof of that be brought forward: it muſt be done by an affidavit of the perſon ſerving the notice. An application of the maxim, that all things are to be preſumed ſolemnly and legally done, cannot in this caſe be made. The proof of ſervice of the notice depends on verbal teſtimony. If theſe proceedings had been of record, the party might have had recourſe to them: he might have ſhewn an irregularity or deficiency, if any ſuch were. In the preſent caſe, it is impoſſible to prove that no notice was ſerved; therefore, the proof of the notice muſt be made out by the ſtate. This is all that appears neceſſary to offer on the firſt point, in the preſent ſtate of the buſineſs.

As to the ſecond point which was made in this caſe, that the executions are illegal, unprecedented, and void.

The firſt objection that occurs upon theſe executions, is their number. Four executions are iſſued, upon each of which, the applicant is ſaid to be indebted to the ſtate in a particular ſum. This is contrary to reaſon and the known practice. 'When a plaintiff has a judgment, he has it in his option to ſue out what kind of execution he pleaſes; but he cannot regularly take out two different executions on the ſame judgment, nor a ſecond, but on a failure of ſatisfaction on the firſt. Has the comptroller a power thus to deſtroy any man for whom he may entertain an enmity? May he by frittering a debt due to the ſtate, and iſſuing out an execution upon every part, accumulate coſts at his pleaſure. It is not warranted by the former laws, nor by the preſent act. Might not the ſheriff upon one execution have diſtrained the goods of the applicant; upon a ſecond, have the land ſeized on; upon a third, have taken his body; upon the fourth, they muſt have left him his ſoul and conſcious integrity: thoſe were beyond their reach. This is the moſt unparalleled uſurpation and abuſe of power ever known. To one of theſe executions another fatal objection is, that it is returnable upon no certain day—And how you ſhall execute this writ make known to us and to our comptroller general on the ſixth day of June'—omitting the word next. So that it is uncertain, whether it is returnable on the ſixth day of June in the year 1787, in the year 1788 or any other year. To this objection no authority need be cited. It is too clear to need one. And laſtly, theſe executions command the ſheriff to 'diſtrain the goods' of the applicant and in default of goods to cauſe the debt to be levied and made of his lands,' and if no lands are to be found in his bailiwic, then he is commanded to take the body. 'It was formerly held—that if a perſon died in execution, the plaintiff had no further remedy, becauſe, he determined his choice by this kind of execution which affecting a man's liberty is eſteemed the higheſt and moſt rigid in the law.' This, though altered by the Stat. 21. Jac. 1. will ſhew how this principle has been carried and how different the ſpirit of thoſe determinations are from the proceeding in the preſent caſe. As a diſtinction may be attempted, between the executions for a private perſon and for the commonwealth, it will be proper, to examine, what was the king's prerogative is this reſpect. 'At common law, the king, might by his prerogative, have execution of his debtor's body, goods and lands; but ſtill under this reſtriction, that the lands were not extendible while the chattels were ſufficient and the debtor ready to anſwer the debt.' Theſe expreſſions are rather inaccurate; but the following caſe will ſerve as an explanation.

"'The king may have execution of his debtor's lands and chattels, or of his body.' So that it is evident that the king could not have execution of his debtor's lands, chattels, and body at the ſame time time. But to put this matter ſtill farther if poſſible, from doubt, no execution like the preſent can be found in the books of entries ſo early as Coke, or ſo late as Lilly If then no ſuch execution exiſted before the paſſing the act for the ſettlement of the public accounts, neither does it exiſt under that act. This act provides, that the body of a debtor of the commonwealth, 'ſhall be liable to be taken and impriſoned by warrant under the hand and ſeal of the prothonotary of the court, &c. or not, and, but ſpeaking in the disjunctive——his goods and chattels ſhall be diſtrained and ſold after thirty days from ſuch diſtraining 'by warrant &c.' Here the act diſtinguiſhes between the warrant for the body and the warrant for the diſtreſs 'and if other property cannot be found'——A return muſt firſt be made that no other property can be found, the lands may be taken, &c.' 'by virtue of a writ of fieri facias, &c. Here is a known and preciſe term made uſe of by the act. A writ of common uſe and of a form fixed and eſtabliſhed by long practice is directed to iſſue, 'if no other property can be found.' By theſe words of the act, the intention of the legiſlature is evident. It follows, as an unavoidable conſequence of what has been ſaid, that theſe executions are illegal, unprecedented, and void.

To conclude, if your honor is of opinion that the applicant has had theſe executions iſſued againſt him without a trial by jury, without having an opportunity of obtaining ſuch a trial, and without having had notice of the proceedings before council, if any ſuch proceedings have been, you will no doubt direct his diſcharge upon the principle, that the executions are not founded upon any legal authority; and if thoſe executions, as I think is fully made evident, are illegal, as 4 have iſſued when only one ought, and as one of them is not returnable on any certain day—and if they are illegal and unprecedented, as being againſt the goods, lands, and body, your honor will direct the diſcharge of the applicant from this void proceſs. Here the caſe will for the preſent be reſted, until the comptroller general ſhall ſhew any thing which may call for a reply.

Mr. Comptroller then deſired to be heard a few words. He produced a number of papers, obſerving: 'here are Mr. Matlack's accounts as ſettled by me and approved by council. The proceedings in this caſe have been the ſame that are always practiſed. The accounts are indorſed 'Read and approved J. A. and an entry made in the council books."

The comptroller here ſtopping, Mr. Murray obſerved, that the queſtion was not, what had been the comptroller general's practice, but what was legal? That the comptroller could not juſtify proceeding illegally or irregularly in Mr. Matlack's caſe, becauſe he had proceeded illegally or irregularly in other caſes.

Judge Shippen. I enquire now into facts. Mr. Murray obſerved early in what he ſaid, the neceſſity of notice to be given to the party, of the ſettlement by the comptroller general and the approbation of council. A man muſt not be deprived of ſo important a right as that of trial by jury, without his own default. The notice muſt be proven.

The comptroller general then went to his office and returned with a paper which he ſaid was a letter from general Wayne. This he offered as evidence to prove that the notice was given to Mr. Matlack, in Savannah, in the ſtate of Georgia.

Judge Shippen. That will not do. Whatever dependance I might put in general Wayne's word as a gentleman, yet, in my judicial capacity, I muſt have evidence. Had this notice been proven it would then have been a ſubject of ſome conſideration, how far, a notice ſerved in Georgia, from whence the party could not appeal within the month, would have been good. Upon the executions I give no opinion, as the matter is determined on the firſt point. Care, however, ſhould be taken in the form of them.

Mr. Duponceau intending to confine himſelf to a reply did not ſpeak. The neceſſity of a reply by either of Mr. Matlack' council was precluded by ſo ſhort a determination.

Mr. Matlack was accordingly diſcharged.

Lands for Sale,

By the SUBSCRIBER,

At NEW LONDON, in Campbell County, Virginia, viz.

A BEAUTIFUL FARM, 1050 acres in the fork of Otter river and Flat Creek, with two plantations, ſufficient to work 10 or 12 hands, an apple orchard and peach orchard, that never fail of fruit. This land contains about 200 acres of low grounds, of the beſt quality, which lies extremely well, and affords plenty of fine meadow lands. The high lands lie generally well, and the ſoil as rich and clear of ſtone as any in this part of the country. It has a mill ſeat, where there might be made a fine fiſhery, as well for white ſhad as for ſalmon and other fiſh, which may be caught at moſt times of the year, and is within eight miles of New London, the ſame diſtance from the county court-houſe, and eighteen from Lynchburg Inſpection, on James River.

Alſo, 3000 acres adjoining New London, on the eaſt, (twelve miles from ſaid town of Lynchburg, on James River) with ſeveral ſmall plantations, a ſaw mill, and merchant mill within half a mile of New London, (which is as well ſituated for buying wheat as any place in this part of the country,) This land affords plenty of oak and pine timber, which is the more valuable, as there is little pine convenient to thoſe towns, and a large neighbourhood, where much will be wanted. It alſo affords good grain land, and plenty of ſuch as would make fine meadow at the mills.

Alſo, 750 acres in Bedford county, and adjoining the ſaid town of New London on the weſt, with two plantations, apple orchards of excellent fruit, and other fruit trees; a good griſt mill, well built. This farm and mill are on the main road leading from the moſt extended part of this ſtate to Richmond, and the land affords a great quantity of good meadow ground; the remainder of it is well timbered high land, of the firſt claſs: a good dwelling houſe and other neceſſary out-houſes are now building, and will be finiſhed in the courſe of this year. They are ſituated on a height, one mile from the town, in front of the main ſtreet, in full view of that village, and ſeveral other beautiful habitations, which make a delightful proſpect, acroſs the mill pond, toward the eaſt.

Alſo, 1800 acres, ſituate about twenty miles above the laſt-mentioned tract, a great part of it rich, well timbered mountain land, fit for the culture of tobacco, with orchards, &c. Alſo, 1170 acres on Smith's River and Joincrack Creek, in Henry county; both high and low grounds well timbered and watered, and a good mill ſeat.

Alſo, a number of other tracts unimproved, lying in Bedford, Franklin and Henry counties, which may be bought very cheap.

I will take in payment for the above lands, or any part that may be agreed for, caſh, tobacco, or likely young negroes, and will deal on reaſonable terms.

New London, May 1. JOHN CALLAWAY.

THE TWO FRIZEURS.

SIGNIOR Florentini and M. St. Laurent were two rival frizeurs in the city of Dublin, and had practiſed ſome years with pretty equal ſucceſs and reputation. The Frenchman, however, by his talent at agreeable ſatire, with which he entertained every lady under his hands, at the expence of her abſent acquaintance, during the time of his operation, had manifeſtly gained a great aſcendant over the Italian. This induced Florentini to make a bold effort to raiſe his own reputation, and ruin his rival's, whoſe great character he envied, and whom he wiſhed to be undone.

ADVERTISEMENT I.

Signior Florentini having taken into conſideration the many inconveniencies which attend the method of hair dreſſing formerly uſed by himſelf, and ſtill practiſed by Mr. St. Laurent, humbly propoſes to the ladies of quality in this metropolis, his new method of ſtuccowing the head, in the moſt faſhionable taſte, to laſt, with very little repair, during the whole ſeſſion of parliament. Price only five guineas. FLORENTINI.

N. B. He takes but one hour to build up the head, and two for baking it.

Anſwer by St. Laurent.

Whereas dere have appear one ſcandaleuſe advertiſement of Signior Florentini, moch reflection on Mr. St. Laurent's capacitie for hair dreſſing; he defy ſaid Signior Florentini to tell any inconvenience dat do attend his methode, oderwiſe he ſhall conſider ſaid Florentini as boute feu, and calumniateur. St. LAURENT.

Florentini, who was not ſo good at Engliſh as the other, replied by his interpreter:

Whereas Mr. St. Laurent has challenged Signior Florentini to produce an inſtance where his (St. Laurent's) method of hair-dreſſing is inconvenient to the ladies, he begs to obſerve, that three rows of iron pins, thruſt in the ſkull, will not fail to cauſe a conſtant itching, a ſenſation that much diſtorts the features of the face, and diſables it ſo, that a lady by degrees may looſe the uſe of her face; beſides, the immenſe quantity of pomatum and powder laid on for a genteel dreſſing, will, after a week or two, breed mites; a circumſtance very diſagreeable to gentlemen who do not love cheeſe; and alſo does afford a fœtid ſmell, not to be endured; from which, and other methods too tedious to mention, Signior Florentini apprehends his new method is entirely free, and will admit of no reaſonable exception whatever. FLORENTINI.

St Laurent replies:

Hah! hah! hah! Dere is no objeſhon den to Signior Florentini's way of frizing de hair of fine ladie! I ſhall tell him von, two, three.—In the forſt place, he now conſider dat his ſtuccow vill de crack, and de break, from the frequent jolts to vich all ladies are ſo ſubject, and dat two hour baking vill ſpoil de complection and hort de eyes. And as to his ſcandaleuſe aſpotſhon dat my method breed de mite, ſo odious to gentlemen who do not love de cheeſe, I ſay 'tis falſe and malitieuſe; and to make good vat I ſay, I do invite all gentlemen of qualitie to examin de head of de counteſs of ——, (vich I had de honour to dreſs four week ago) next Monday at twelve o'clock, through Monſieur Clotcut's great microſcope, and ſee if dere be any mite dere, or oder ting like de mite vateer.

N. B. Any gentleman may ſmell her ladyſhip's hede ſen he pleaſe. St. LAURENT.

The controverſy ended in a duel, but no hurt, as the combatants behaved like Flaſh and Fribble.——But whatever was the cauſe, it is certain the monſtrous faſhion ſoon ceaſed, and in a few months the ladies heads recovered their natural proportion, and became a piece of themſelves.

Alſo, a Ground-Rent of 2l. 10s. 0d. per annum, iſſuing out of a lot of ground adjoining to the eaſt end of the above deſcribed lot, being 30 feet wide, and extending eaſtward 40 feet from the eaſt end of ſaid lot: taken in execution as the eſtate of Emanuel Bryan and Mary his wife, and to be ſold by

Joſeph Cowperthwait, ſheriff.

Philadelphia, May 14, 1787.

BY virtue of a writ of venditioni exponas to me directed, will be expoſed to Sale by Public Vendue, at the Coffee-Houſe, in the city of Philadelphia, on Wedneſday the 30th inſtant, at 7 o'clock in the Evening—That New INN, known by the ſign of the Golden Fleece; ſituate on the weſt ſide of Fourth ſtreet, between Lombard and South ſtreets, in the city of Philadelphia, with the Lot of Ground on which the ſame ſtands, being 21 feet 9 inches front on Fourth ſtreet, and 200 feet and 7 inches and a half front on a 30 feet ſtreet, called Gaſkill-ſtreet. The improvements are, a good frame dwelling houſe two ſtories high, 20 feet by 26, conveniently finiſhed, 2 good rooms on the firſt floor, with a paſſage through, and a ſtaircaſe in the paſſage, and 4 rooms on the ſecond floor, beſide two garrets; a good dry cellar under the whole, divided into three parts, one of which is a kitchen; a pump of good water in the yard, and ſtabling for 30 horſes, &c. Taken in execution as property of Benjamin Hemings, and to be ſold by Joſeph Cowperthwait, ſheriff.

The Truſtees of the Univerſity propoſe to ſell by Public Sale, on Wedneſday the 6th of June next, for Funded Certificates, at the Coffee Houſe, at 12 o'clock—

A HOUSE and LOT, ſituate on the north ſide of Walnut ſtreet, in the city of Philadelphia, about midway between Front and Second ſtreets from the river Delaware; now in the tenure of James Culbertſon; in breadth 20 feet, and in depth 51 feet.

Another HOUSE and LOT on the ſame ſide of Walnut ſtreet aforeſaid, between Front and Second ſtreets, now in the tenure of Thomas Bryant.

Another LOT fronting on the ſame ſtreet, at the corner of Fifth ſtreet, and running along the eaſt ſide of Fifth ſtreet to Mrs. Norris's garden 250 feet: on this valuable piece of ground ſtand two Brick Houſes and ſeveral Wooden Tenements—It is to be divided into convenient houſe lots, of which a Plan will be put up at the Coffee-houſe in due time, previous to the day of ſale.

They alſo notify all perſons who are tenants to them for rent-charges payable in wheat, whoſe annual rents do not amount to twenty buſhels of wheat ſeverally per annum, that they are willing to treat with them for the purchaſe of their reſpective ground-rents, if they apply within two months from this date, after which their rents will be diſpoſed off to the higheſt purchaſer. Applications may be made to George Bryan and James Irwin, eſquires, attornies in fact of the board of truſtees, at their dwellings in the city of Philadelphia. May 15. 2aw'f

Maryland, Elk Ridge, November 14.

FOR SALE,

Upwards of Four Thouſand Acres of
Rich and valuable Land,
By the ſubſcriber, at Public Vendue, ſituated as hereafter deſcribed:

SEVEN hundred acres of Land, ſituate in Ann Arundel county, on Elk Ridge, near the dwelling houſe of the ſubſcriber, being part of the tract of land called Caleb's Purchaſe and the Anvil; on which is erected a tenement: this land is well wooded and watered, has a conſiderable quantity of good meadow ground, 20 acres whereof are cleared; it is ſituate about 4 miles from Elk Ridge landing, and 12 from Baltimore Town. The ſale of this land will be on the 11th day of June next, at Mrs. Ball's tavern, on Elk Ridge.

On the 11th day of June next, will be ſold a Hobb's tavern, on the road leading from Baltimore-Town to Frederick Town, 850 acres of Land, on which there is a tenement, being part of a tract called Pretty Sally; ſituate in Frederick county, about two miles from Hobb's tavern. This land will be laid off in parcels not exceeding 200 acres.

On the 11th day of June next will be ſold at the ſubſcriber's Plantation, commonly called the Old Quarter on Lingonore, 850 acres of Land, being part of a tract called Cold Friday; ſituate on Lingonore, in Frederick county. This land is of good quality, has an excellent mill ſeat on it, and will be ſold in parcels not exceeding 200 acres——Alſo,

427	acres, called Brandywine Springs
230	The addition
72	The 2d addition
300	Part of Moab
50	Mount-Pleaſant
544	Reſurvey on Darby's Delight
62	Addition to ditto
43	Neceſſity
45	Omiſſion
31	Neglect

These lands lay adjoining each other.

804 acres.

On the laſt aforeſaid tracts of land there are three very valuable plantations; on one of which, called the Old Quarter, there are upwards of 250 acres of cleared land, 60 acres of meadow now in graſs, and about 50 acres more may be eaſily made, of the firſt quality. This plantation is equal in value and richneſs to any in this ſtate; it is well calculated for planting and farming; has four dwelling houſes on it, two barns, two tobacco houſes, ſtables, corn houſes, and every other out-houſe neceſſary on a valuable eſtate, and is in excellent order for cropping. It has alſo ſeveral fine ſtreams of water running through it, and on one of which there is a valuable mill ſeat.

The other lands adjoining, are alſo of ſuperior quality, and will be laid off into convenient lots, from two to three hundred acres, as may ſuit purchaſers.

The above lands advertiſed for ſale on the 11th June, are ſituate about 12 miles from Frederick-Town, 40 from Baltimore-Town, on the great public road, very convenient to ſeveral merchant mills, and in every reſpect are equal to any lands in that part of the country.

The terms of ſale for the above property are, a ſmall part of the purchaſe money in hand, the particular portion will be made known on the day of ſale, and the reſidue in two annual payments, on intereſt; the purchaſer to give bond, with approved ſecurity, when poſſeſſion will be given. Plans of the lands may, in the mean time, be ſeen at Hobb's tavern, and at the Old Quarters. THOMAS DORSEY.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Auctioneers of the city and liberties of Philadelphia, ſenſible of the many diſadvantages which daily ariſe from the preſent mode of diſpoſing of goods by public ſale, have, by the advice of a great number of reſpectable citizens, as well as from a conviction that the intereſt of both the vender and purchaſer will be promoted thereby, mutually agreed, that from and after the 22d day of this preſent month they will diſcontinue the preſent mode, of giving credit for goods purchaſed at their reſpective ſales, and will expect from every perſon without exception who purchaſes, the money before the goods are delivered.

This will effectually prevent the many diſagreeable conſequences ariſing from ſhort meaſure, numbers, weight, &c. which, by being made the ſubjects of diſpute, are the cauſe of the Auctioneers being kept out of their monies, to the diſappointment of the ſeller, and too often to their own loſs.

Had this been a novel cuſtom, the Auctioneers would have been diffident in offering it to the public; but as they have the ſanction of not only every city in America, but of Europe alſo, they hope that this, joined with the foregoing reaſons, will not only be deemed ſufficient for this new regulation, but alſo meet with general approbation.

On the LOVE of our COUNTRY.

Addreſſed to General WASHINGTON.

YE ſouls illuſtrious, who in days of yore
With peerleſs might the Britiſh target bore,
Who clad in wolf-ſkin, from the ſcythed car
Frown'd on the iron brow of mailed war;
Who dar'd your rudely painted limbs oppoſe
To temper'd ſteel and ſkill of Roman foes:
And ye of later age, not leſs in fame,
In tilt and tournament, the princely game
Of Arthur's Barons, wont by hardieſt ſport
To claim the faireſt guerdon of the court;
Say, holy ſhades! did e'er your gen'rous blood
Roll thro' your faithful ſons in nobler flood,
Than when of late fair Liberty unfurl'd
Her injured banners o'er the weſtern world.
Your brave deſcendants heard her voice around,
And ſwains till then, turned heroes at the ſound.
Say, holy ſhades! did patriotic heat
In your big hearts with quicker tranſports beat,
Than in your ſons, when forth like ſtorms they pour'd
In freedom's cauſe the fury of the ſword?
And bade Quebec and Saratoga tell,
How Gates ſubdu'd, and how Montgomery fell.
Poor is the triumph, and diſgrac'd his name,
Who draws the ſword for empire, wealth or fame.
For him though wealth be blown in every wind,
Though fame announce him mightieſt of mankind,
Though twice ten nations crouch beneath his blade;
Virtue diſowns him, and his glories fade;
For him no prayers are pour'd, no pæans ſung,
No bleſſings chanted from a nation's tongue,
Blood marks the path to his untimely bier,
The curſe of widows, and the orphans tear,
Cry to high heavens for vengeance on his head,
Alive deſerted, and accurſt when dead:
Indignant of his deeds the muſe who ſings
Undaunted truths, and ſcorns to flatter kings,
Shall ſhew the monſter in his hideous form,
And mark him as an earthquake or a ſtorm.
Not ſo the patriot chief, who dares withſtand
The baſe invaders of his native land;
Who makes her weal his nobleſt, only end,
Rules but to ſerve her, fights but to defend,
Her voice in council, and in fight her ſword,
Lov'd as a father, barely not ador'd;
Who firmly virtuous, and humanely brave,
Strives not to conquer fellow men, but ſave.
On worth like his the muſe delights to wait,
Reveres alike in triumph or defeat,
Crowns with true glory, and with ſpotleſs fame,
And fixt on his, forgets proud Frederick's name:
In times like theſe if ſuch a man there be,
Who does not feel that WASHINGTON is He!
Hail firſt of patriots! form'd by Heaven's own hand,
Firſt to preſerve, then teach thy native land,
Whoſe arm was nerv'd by freedom when he fought,
Whoſe pen bright wiſdom guided while he wrote,
Whoſe conduct ſeals the leſſons he has taught;
From whoſe wiſe page Columbia's riſing youth
Muſt gather public honour, faith and truth;
There learn by times that freedom's ſacred cauſe
Muſt ſink, when faction burſts the gen'rous laws
By wiſdom fram'd, the wayward to controul,
And from the public body tears the ſoul.
Hail happy man! thy animating name
To lateſt times ſhall kindle freedom's flame;
The grateful breaſts of future myriads fire,
When Heaven-taught bards ſhall ſtrike the ſounding lyre,
And tell them glowing with a conſcious pride,
Thou waſt their chief, deliverer, parent, guide.
Illuſtrious warriors, late Columbia's boaſt,
Who in the nobleſt cauſe were nobly loſt,
Fain would the muſe here check her bold career,
To drop o'er you a monumental tear;
But from your aſhes, hark! a voice proceeds,
That bleſt is he who for his country bleeds;
This bids us not your envied fate to rue,
But in your brave ſurvivors honour you.
Dear is the tye that links the anxious ſire
To the fond babe that prattles round his fire;
Dear is the love that prompts the grateful youth
A parent's cares and drooping age to ſooth;
Dear is the ſiſter, brother, huſband, wife,
Dear all the charities of ſocial life,
Nor wants firm friendſhip holy wreaths to bind,
In mutual ſympathy, the faithful mind.
But not th' endearing ſprings that fondly move
To filial duty or parental love,
Not all the ties that kindred boſoms bind,
Nor all in friendſhip's holy wreaths entwin'd,
Are half ſo dear, ſo potent to controul
The gen'rous workings of the patriot's ſoul,
As is that holy voice that cancels all
Thoſe ties, and bids him for his country fall;
At this high ſummons, with undaunted zeal
He bares his breaſt, invites th' impending ſteel,
Smiles at the hand that deals the fatal blow,
Nor heaves one ſigh for all he leaves below
Nor yet does glory, though her boaſt be bold,
Her aſpect radiant, and her treſſes gold;
Guide through the walks of death alone her car,
Attendant only on the din of war.
She ne'er diſdains the gentle vale of peace,
Or olive ſhades of philoſophic eaſe.
Where heaven-taught minds to woo the muſe reſort,
Create in colours, or with ſounds tranſport,
Where Freedom's ſenate form'd the nobleſt plan
That e'er compris'd the various rights of man;
More pleas'd on Hudſon's ſilent marge to roam,
Than lead her captive foes in triumph home;
Where Pennſylvania's poliſh'd farmer greets
The home-born pleaſures of his calm retreats,
And far from ſtrife a choſen few among
Pours the mellifluous wiſdom of his tongue.
Thus ſafely landed on ſome friendly ſhore,
The ſeaman ſmiles while diſtant tempeſts roar—
To read with Newton's ken the ſtarry ſky,
And God the ſame in all his orbs deſcry,
With Franklin nature's hidden paths explore,
To point at cauſes never known before,
Diſarm the ſtorm, and bid the lightning's fire
Ruſh innocently down the guardian wire;
To lead forth merit from her lonely ſhade,
Extend to riſing arts a patron's aid,
Build the nice ſtructure of the gen'rous law,
That holds the free-born ſoul in willing awe,
To ſwell the ſail of trade, the barren plain,
To bid with fruitage bluſh, and wave with grain,
O'er pale misfortune drop with friendly ſigh,
Pity's mild balm, and wipe affliction's eye;
Theſe, theſe are deeds Columbia muſt approve,
Muſt nurſe their growth with all a parent's love.
Theſe are the deeds her Waſhington purſues——
To public good ſtill cent'ring all his views.
Theſe are the deeds that public virtue owns,
And juſt to public virtue glory crowns.

ANECDOTE of COLLEY CIBBER.

CIBBER being at court (when poet laureat) a few days before the birth day, Colonel B——n, (who had a penſion upon the Iriſh eſtabliſhment) ſarcaſtically aſked Colley what his ode would turn upon, as the year had been very barren of ſubjects for poetical flights? 'Why, colonel,' replied Cibber, 'I have a number of court locuſts in my eye, who are always very plentiful, and, I hope, in ſuch a dearth of other objects, to give them a flight even beyond Parnaſſus.'

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, January 20.

THE American news-papers from Boſton, Nov. 10, ſay, "That the legiſlature have repealed their reſolve for non-payment of intereſts due on Britiſh debts." How conſiſtent is this body? They ratify the peace; ſoon after that, they paſs a reſolve not to pay any intereſt during the war. The ſame was done in many of the ſtates, and the courts ſtopped to prevent the recovery of thoſe debts. What degree of credit can be given to the laſt reſolve of the ſaints? It is all a trick to get the credulous Engliſh to deliver up the forts to them. When this is done, they will keep the ſame good faith as they did with the convention made with general Burgoyne and the Britiſh army. It will be time enough to deliver the forts when America complies fully with the treaty of peace. The money that country owes to Great Britain, before and ſince the war, is upwards of ſeven millions ſterling, excluſive of confiſcated eſtates; theſe ſums being withheld from the merchant and manufacturer, has been the ruin of numbers; notwithſtanding all this, the American has the art ſtill to get credit from John Bull.

It is ſomewhat remarkable, that Clarke the coiner's wife, twice diſcovered againſt her huſband for his mal-practices. This calls to remembrance a circumſtance indeed diametrically oppoſite, where a woman inſiſted on being hung with her huſband, for a crime of a ſimilar nature that they had been both found guilty of, in this city, about forty years ſince, though the former was then offered her pardon by the interceſſion of the judge. That female was in conſequence executed, though the tear of humane pity pleaded ſtrongly in her behalf, and ſhould have occaſioned the executive to interpoſe.

March 6. Letters from Mogadore, of a recent date, give a brilliant account of the favourable reception which Thomas Barclay Eſq; the American envoy to the emperor of Morocco, has met with from that monarch. His excellency's purpoſe is to conclude a treaty of amity between his African majeſty and the infant ſtates of America. Strongly recommended by the kings of France and Spain.

We learn from Lions, that a popular commotion had prevailed there for ſome days, and greatly alarmed the inhabitants, but that the rioters had ſoon been dragooned into better manners, and peace was reſtored after three days riot and confuſion, that is, from the 7th to the 10th. Various are the cauſes aſſigned for this event, ſome attribute it to the journeymen hatters and weavers inſiſting on an increaſe of their wages; but people who think themſelves better informed, attribute it to the all-craving covetouſneſs of a churchman. The matter is thus related by a correſpondent:

"The archbiſhop of Lions lately got a verdict in his favour, in a cauſe wherein the wine merchants were plaintiffs, againſt his grace, defending the rights formerly enjoyed of ſelling wine within the city, during the month of Auguſt. As it was not likely that a prelate of that conſequence, though not above pocketing the profits of a trade ſo beneficial, ſhould turn tavern-keeper, to carry it on, the privilege uſed to be farmed out to a ſet of contractors, for a ſtipulated ſum. Upon this the wine-traders refuſed paying the taxes, and preferred ſhutting up all the public houſes for two months, rather than ſubmit to what they deemed a glaring impoſition. By this means the journeymen and the lower claſs of people found themſelves under the neceſſity of going out of town, and reſorting to the Guinguettes, or drinking places without the gates. It was there that the ſeditious plan was laid, and perhaps not without being aſſiſted under hand by the intereſted parties, as the archiepiſcopal palace was the only houſe attempted to be deſtroyed by the rioters.

A correſpondent ſays, that the ſpring mentioned to have lately been diſcovered in Virginia, which takes fire by ſnapping powder over it in the pan of a piſtol, is not the only one which has been diſcovered to poſſeſs ſo very a remarkable a property.—At Tremoulac, in France, is a rivulet which is inflammable, and may be eaſily ſet on fire. This diſcovery was made by a poacher who went to ſteal craw-fiſh, with a torch made of twiſted ſtraw, the better to find the holes they lay in. Whilſt he walked on a level bed of gravel, the ſurface of the water never catched fire, but when he came to any uneven part, or where there were holes, he was much ſurprized to ſee water inflamed even ſo much as to ſet his ſhirt on fire.

Abbe d'Aleme repeated the experiment ſeveral times, and he always found it to ſucceed. He thought it ſo curious a phænomenon that he communicated it to the Paris academy in 1741, and they looked upon it as worthy an inſertion in their memoirs of that year.

Porpora, a celebrated Italian compoſer, in ſetting the creed to muſic, introduced the monoſyllable non, to give greater power to the forte part of his compoſition. At the performance of this piece, the Diletanti were enchanted, and ſpoke in raptures of the maſter's genius. Some of his enemies, however, taking hold of the non, repreſented him as an avowed atheiſt, as he had ſaid in the moſt public manner NON credo in Deum, "I do not believe in God." In conſequence of this outcry, the inquiſition took cognizance of the matter, but that tribunal, not being ſo ſevere in Italy as in Spain, on Popora's averring that he was ignorant of Latin, and that the word non was better ſuited to the ſolemn and majeſtic ſtile than si, (yes) the inquiſitors diſmiſſed him with a very gentle reprimand.

The order of Jeſuits, which has been revived by the preſent Pope, for the inſtruction of youth in Ruſſia, at the expreſs deſire of the reigning empreſs, is beginning to flouriſh apace. The number of colleges opened for them in White Ruſſia, in the courſe of laſt year, amounted to ſix, in which there were diſtributed 172 Jeſuits; and another was lately opened for them in the city of Danebourg.

The Americans are uſing every effort to rival the Ruſſians and Swedes in the culture of hemp, from which they expect to reap very great advantages. The ſtates of New England and North Carolina have paid ſuch attention to this article, that the aſſemblies of Boſton and Wilmington, have even offered premiums to ſuch perſons as ſhall raiſe the greateſt quantities in the courſe of the preſent year. In ſuch a ſituation, a commercial connexion with Great Britain muſt be ſingularly deſireable, as it appears from ſeveral eſtimates, made at different periods in the courſe of the laſt 14 years, that this nation and its dependencies, has bought up more than three-eighths of the quantity of that commodity that comes to market.

March 20. Tueſday a curious race was run in Greenwich Park for a conſiderable ſum between Mr. C, of the navy office and Mr. N. of the mint, the ſpace of 200 yards, Mr. N. of the mint to carry Mr. E. of the cuſtom-houſe on his back 100 yards, while Mr. C. run 200. It was won by Mr. N. by a conſiderable diſtance. Great bets were depending.

Extract of a letter from Oxford, March 13.

"On Wedneſday was tried at Warwich, a very intereſting cauſe to traders in general, and bankers in particular, in which Meſſrs. Goodall and co. bankers, at Birmingham, were plaintiffs, and Mr. Dolley, a ſoap-boiler, at Witney, in this county, defendant. An inland bill of exchange had been drawn by a Mr. Lutwych, upon a Mr. Rutter of London, and indorſed by the defendant to the plaintiffs, who preſented it for acceptance, which was refuſed. The plaintiffs kept this bill in their hands ſeven weeks, without giving notice to the defendant, that it had been refuſed to be accepted, and in the mean time the drawer failed. The queſtion was, whether the plaintiffs, who were the holders of the bill, could recover, when they had thus neglected to give notice of its refuſal to be accepted."

Extract of a letter from Berlin, October 22.

"The portaits of the ſurviving general officers who diſtinguiſhed themſelves in the wars with our late excellent ſovereign, are nearly compleated; and a large ſilver ſtatue, in high relievo, of the king himſelf, is to be immediately begun: and ſurely nothing leſs can be done in veneration of the memory of a prince who ſo warmly cheriſhed the arts, particularly ſculpture, as giving law to all the ſchools of deſign, both ancient and modern.

"The true philoſophy poſſeſſed only by the really good, is the philoſophy of the preſent prince on the throne of Pruſſia, who in all his purſuits of uſeful knowledge, has been uniformly ambitious of thoſe acquiſitions calculated to attach him to his fellow-creatures. Poſts of exaltation confer not dignities: it is the manner in which a prince fills ſuch poſts, that truly and eminently dignifies him.

"Works of genius are ſure to be encouraged by his majeſty, who has himſelf talents to examine the ſcope of thought, independent of the ornament of expreſſion: and indeed this ever ought to be an axiom in judging of the productions of art; elſe it is impoſſible to form true opinions of a work. A critick is dazzled by mere embelliſhments, and like Ixion, imagines he is embracing Juno, when he has only a ſhadow before him.

"The medical academy have addreſſed the throne, begging the royal patronage. The king returned them a very polite anſwer, aſſuring them, that while their labours correſponded with their motto, viz. "nunquam otioſus," they ſhould never want his protection."

AMERICA.

BOSTON, May 16.

One of the veſſels lately arrived from London, brought a capital mezzotinto print, from a celebrated painting of our townſman, Mr Mather Browne, repreſenting a ſcene in Shakeſpear's Romeo and Juliet, act V. ſcene the laſt. This engraving is now at the reverend Dr. Byle's houſe, where the amatures may be gratified with a ſight of it.

In lord Kaim's ſketches is the following obſervation. Every form of government muſt be good that inſpires PATRIOTISM: and the beſt form to invigorate that NOBLE PASSION is a COMMONWEALTH founded on rotation of power, where it is the ſtudy of thoſe in office to do good, and to merit the approbation of their fellow citizens.——What will our American Ariſtocraticks ſay to this?

May 17. To the patriot and to the well effected citizens of the commonwealth, obſerves a correſpondent, it muſt be exceedingly pleaſing to perceive the rapid progreſſion of the martial ſpirit, which has at length rouſed the militia of this and the neighbouring towns, from their late ſtupid inactivity and ignorance of military duty, to the noble purſuit of knowledge in that art, which is the only bulwark of our national liberty.

The ſituation of the militia in this town, for ſome time ſince, till within theſe few days, could not but produce the moſt diſagreeable reflections in the boſom of the patriot. What but the langour which extended itſelf throughout the ſtate, could have excited in the breaſt of a Shays, the hope of conqueſt, and of plunder? May we not attribute our preſent difficulties, ariſing from the inſurrections, in a great meaſure, to the ſame cauſe; for had a ſtrenuous reſiſtance of a well regulated militia been accounted as a barrier to their wiſhes, it muſt have been ſuch a one as would have excluded from their infatuated minds the leaſt proſpect of ſucceſs, and prevented conſequences that will, to the lateſt periods, blot the pages of American hiſtory.

The exertions of the officers of the militia, in this metropolis, to render the ſeveral companies ſerviceable, entitles them to the higheſt reſpect.

Several of them, at their own expence, have uniformed and equipped a number of companies for the reviews on the twenty-fifth inſtant—and no means has been neglected to diſcipline and inſtruct them in every military duty and accompliſhment. Surely, if individuals do thus contribute towards that protection which citizens of this commonwealth are entitled to, it would be far from being inproper, that thoſe who have property to protect, and are not ſubjected to military diſcipline, ſhould lend their aſſiſtance in ſo noble an effort to reſtore the reſpectability and uſefulneſs of the military art, which has ſo long been ſhrouded under thoſe which luxury has introduced.

And would it be improper for this aſſiſtance to flow through the channel of government, where it would accumlate reſpect, and render thoſe upon whom beſtowed, as reſpectable as they may be uſeful.

Died at ſea, on the 6th inſt. captain J. BARNARD, of Haverhill, of a mortification, which took place in conſequence of his breaking his leg, in a violent gale of wind off Bermudas, and the 17th ult. in which the ſchooner, of which he was maſter, ſhipped a heavy ſea, and carried away her maſts: ſhe returned to this port on Tuſeday laſt, much damaged.

At the time of this misfortune to captain Barnard, his mate, Mr JOHN ERVING WALDO, of this town, ſecond ſon of the late colonel Waldo, of Falmouth, was unfortunately killed at the helm; he being found dead upon the quarter deck, immediately after the confuſion occaſioned by the ſeas breaking over them had a little ſubſided.

May 19.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Springfield, dated May 15

'Our friends in this county do not reliſh the pardons granted to the traitors who were lately ſentenced to the halter by the ſupreme court. I laſt week ſaw one of thoſe miſcreants, who notwithſtanding this act of grace in his favour, is as inveterate an inſurgent as ever, and would willingly ſacriſice the men who have given him his life—he has had the audacity publicly to ſay, that if government DARED to have hung him, he was ſure they would, and that he had nothing to thank them for—This indeed, is the language of many of the rebels, who, ſince the movements of their brethren in iniquity in Vermont, grow more ſaucy than ever. I hope however the events of the 24th inſtant, will convince them that vigour, energy and conſiſtency are characteriſtic of the preſent ſupreme executive—and that as they have the power ſo they have the will, to cruſh a daring inſurrection, by the example of a number of its fomenters.

"A gentleman from the northward informs me, that ſome of the rebel leaders in Vermont are inliſting men for the ſervice of the king of England; they are to ſerve three months, are promiſed 18s. bounty, and 40s. per month. He actually ſaw ſeveral enliſting papers, with a number of names on each. This may be depended on."

May 21.

The honorable the ſupreme executive have been pleaſed to grant to the traitors who are now under ſentence of death in the counties of Hampſhire and Berkſhire, and who were ordered for execution on Thurſday next, a reſpite until the 21ſt of June next.

A correſpondent is very ſorry to hear, that the four convicts who were to have been executed this month, are reprieved, for there is high probability of their wearing greenleaves in their hats again. Surely mercy to them, is murder to our country. As we are left in a field of conjecture, reſpecting the reaſons given for reprieving them, we may ſuppoſe thoſe that could not have influenced in the meaſure; popularity could not have actuated any; fear none; whimſical notions could not have entered into the heads of any, however roomly; the elections being incomplete, we cannot ſuppoſe had any weight; relationſhip could not have operated; but women, thoſe bewitching creatures, we do believe had a powerful effect—they made thoſe weep who never wept before. There were ſome few, however, it is to be hoped, who could ſay with propriety, that they had finiſhed their courſe and kept the faith.

NEWBURY-PORT, May 16.

It has been currently reported in this town, that much rain has fallen during the latter part of the laſt and fore part of the preſent week—ſo frequently has it been aſſerted by perſons of credibility, every time they meet with an acquaintance, that the truth of it cannot be doubted.

Monday laſt arrived captain Samuel Coffin, of this town, in 29 days from Ireland, without even one newſpaper, or any freſh intelligence. The 23d ult. in lattitude, 47 22. longitude 37 20. he ſpoke with captain Greneile, in the ſhip Rebecca, ten days from Newry, bound to Philadelphia—all well.

PROVIDENCE, May 17.

Since our laſt, captain Cole, in the brigantine Hope, arrived here in 54 days from l'Orient: in lat. 40, 37; long. 38 W. captain Cole ſpoke captain Chriſtopher Collins, in the brigantine True Briton, from Antigua bound to London, out four weeks, all well.

Captain Cole informs, that in a gale of wind on the 11th of February laſt, a large French Eaſt Indiaman was driven aſhore on the coaſt of Portugal: the captain, chief mate, and thirty-two of the hands periſhed. The 28th of February the ſhip Hannah, captain Davis, from Charleſton, with rice and tobacco, was driven on ſhore about ſix leages N. W. of l'Orient.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman employed in the Surveying Department in the Weſtern Country, Fort Pitt, April 19, 1787.

"There is a number of Indians in this town, who appear friendly, and we have no accounts of any hoſtilities having been committed by the Indians this ſpring; ſo that we do not apprehend any great danger in ſurveying.

"I have kept an account of the flat-bottomed boats that I have ſeen paſs down the river, bound to Kentuckey, ſince the firſt of March, and have got down upwards of 50, ſome of them had three or four families on board, and fifteen or twenty children."

Philadelphia, May 28.

Thurſday arrived the ſhip Charleſton, capt. Allibone, in 9 days from Charleſton, and the brig El Buon Gen, captain ——, in 42 days from Cadiz.

With captrin Allibone came paſſengers,
Mrs. Young and her two daughters
Miſs Randolph and Miſs Gualdo
Mr. Graves, conſul for the ſtate of South Carolina, from the United Netherlands
General Pinkney and lady
Colonel Harriot
Major Butler, his lady and four daughters
Captain Butler
Captain Smith
Mr. Hartſhorne
Mr. Gardner
Maſters John and Peter Simmons, and ſeveral others

General Pinkney and major Butler, we hear, are delegates to the convention.

Friday, at the ſtate houſe in this city, ſeven ſtates were fully repreſented in convention: theſe forming a quorum, they proceeded to the choice of a preſident, and his excellency general Waſhington was unanimouſly elected to that important ſtation.

Major William Jackſon was at the ſame time appointed ſecretary to this honourable board.

On Saturday morning, between the hours of twelve and one, as Mr. Peter Knox, from Barren-hill, was coming to this city on horſeback to market, he was attacked a little to the ſouthward of the bridge over Peggs Run, near the one-mile ſtone, by three footpads, all of them dreſſed in ſhort blue jackets and trowſers; they demanded his money, knocked him off his horſe with a club, bruiſed his head, wounded him in the breaſt with the but end of a piſtol, and robbed him of his hat, ſilk handkerchief, and five ſilver dollars.

A gentleman being ſummoned by a rap at his door, was aſtoniſhed upon opening it, to find one of the convicts ſoliciting charity, out of the reach of the keeper, unincumbered by chains, and reeling with intoxication. He was afterwards ſeen paying ſimilar viſits to ſeveral houſes in the neighbourhood. The repeated inſtances of unpardonable neglect in the execution of the late penal law, muſt evince, that in the buſineſs of legiſlation, it is as eſſential to conſider what is practicable as what is wiſe and humane: that government is poorly calculated indeed, for order and ſtability, which cannot model its plans according to its capacity to perform them.

Extract of a letter from London, March 29.

'Governor Philips, of Bottany Bay, is ſtill in London, and it is ſuppoſed his ſailing with the fleet to Bottany Bay will be poſtponed till after lord George Gordon's trial on the ſecond libel he is charged with by the attorney general, for FELONY, which comes on at the Old Bailey, after the proſecution for ſcandal, on the part of the court of France, is brought to iſſue. Should his lordſhip be convicted of the felony wherewith he is charged by the attorney general, he will no doubt have the pleaſure of accompanying governor Phillips to the New Jeruſalem, which will be a great comfort and happineſs to the pious and well diſpoſed chriſtians of that ſettlement, and will conduce much to the advancement of the proteſtant cauſe.'

A writer in the New-Hampſhire Spy, ſays, 'I have frequently ſeen in our country, potatoes planted on the top of a piece of graſs ground, nine inches diſtance from each other, and then covered with new or old wheat, rye, oat, buckwheat or peaſe ſtraw, ſalt hay, ſea and rock weed, and various other matters of this kind, about twelve inches thick; this covering forms a proper defence from the ſun and weather, and by cloſely uniting with the graſs below, has formed a proper place for the potatoes to grow in; in a method which produces as many, as large, and as excellent as in any other manner that we practiſe in America; when thus covered they require no attendance until the time of gathering them in the fall; this is done by raiſing the ſtraw, &c. with a fork: when we find the potatoes covering the whole of the ground, without any neceſſity of digging for them, becauſe none have entered the earth.

'Early potatoes may be raiſed and taken during the ſummer without injury or loſs, to ſuch ſmall ones as are deſtroyed by pulling the tops from the earth in the hills or rows.

'In this method by covering them upon mould prepared as a hot-bed, they are raiſed with great rapidity.

'Where this ſtraw, &c. cannot be procured in ſufficiency, the bark taken from the tanners' vats, will aſſiſt as a laying upon ſix inches of ſtraw.

'The ſtraw or ſea-weed covering may be dried and ſtacked, or houſed for a next year's crop, and then will be properly prepared for being turned into the earth as an excellent refreſhment of manure, and enriching the ground for a future courſe of crops.'

Several gentlemen in this city have received letters from their correſpondents, in the ſhip Patſey Rutlege, captain William Bell, from Hamburgh, from which they have favoured us with the following extracts:

Hamburgh, April 3, 1787.

"This day captain Bell will ſail from here with about thirty people out of the ſpin-houſe*. I wiſh to know what you will do with them, as they are whores and the vileſt wretches in exiſtence? We on our part are happy to get rid of them from this city."

"Pray let me know what captain Bell will do with the crew he takes along? Yeſterday at half paſt ſeven o'clock P. M. they were tranſported from the ſpin-houſe to the redoute, by Altona Gate, called the Horn Work, followed by a multitude of people: ſome of them ſeemed caſt down, others cheerful: I am curious to know whether they are fold as ſlaves with you, or if they have only to ſerve for their paſſage money? Give me a particular account thereof."

"Captain Bell has obtained and received an honorable company of ladies and gentlemen, paſſengers, out of our ſpin-houſe. I believe there is a good ſpeculation to be made with them, and, if you are inclined, promiſe to procure and ſend you a cargo out of the houſe of correction, only it requires a good deal of caſh to lay in proviſions."

"The bearer of this letter, captain Bell, has a cargo of fine ladies, whoſe morals were refined upon the territories called Halizdam, at the expence of the public—America may expect much from ſuch well educated people. Had it been known that in America German girls were in demand, more would have gone, if the veſſel could have contained them; I believe America is the only country where this commodity obtains a ready ſale, although there be often ſome old ſtore keepers among them."

* The Spin Houſe is a large building for the reception of whores, rouges, thieves and murderers—the latter two are generally whipped, and branded between their ſhoulders with the Hamburgh coat of arms, gallows, &c.

The following Letter from Dr. Lobb may poſſibly benefit the Public, if generally known.

MANY years ago (when I lived at Yeovill, in Somerſetſhire) my advice was deſired for a poor man's child, a boy of about eight or nine years of age, one of whoſe legs was contracted more than when a man is ſitting in a chair: he could not ſtretch it out, or move it; neither could it be extended by any other, without an injury to the part affected.

I preſcribed a laxative linement, of which currier's oil was one chief ingredient, and ordered the parts affected to be gently rubbed with it; but it was of no ſervice.

The probable conſequences of this poor boy's living without the uſe of that limb, very much moved my pity; and while I was conſidering what further might be done for his relief, it came into my mind that the glovers of the town brought their lamb and kid ſkins (which were dry, ſtiff and hard) to be ſoft and ſupple as gloves, by rubbing them with a liquid made with the yolk of eggs and water.

Hereupon I reaſoned thus with myſelf, viz. Since this egg-liquor is ſo efficacious in removing contractions from the parts of dead animal fibres, veſſels and membranes (by art made ſtiff, dry and hard) why may it not be as effectual when ſufficiently applied to living animal fibres, veſſels and membranes, in a ſtate of contraction? And I reſolved to try its efficacy in the caſe of this poor boy.

I ordered the contracted parts of his leg to be gently rubbed two or three times a day with the egg-liquor, and by this means he eaſily recovered the uſe of his leg.

This egg-liquor I adviſed to be made in the following manner, viz.

Take the yolk of a new laid egg, let it be beaten with a ſpoon to the greateſt thinneſs; then, by a ſpoonful at a time, add three ounces of pure water, agitating the mixture continually, that the egg and water may be well incorporated. This liquor may be applied to the parts contracted, cold or milk-warm, by a gentle friction for a few minutes, three or four times a day.

This remedy I have ſince adviſed in like caſes, and with the like happy ſucceſs; and others, to whom I have communicated it, have found the ſame advantage from it in ſuch caſes.

MILES & MORGAN.

PITTSBURGH.

T O B E S O L D,

A NEW two ſtory HOUSE, juſt finiſhed, pleaſantly ſituate in Water ſtreet, fronting upon the Monongahela river, nearly oppoſite the Old ferry, and only two lots diſtant from Ferry ſtreet.

The plan of the houſe is very commodious, has 4 rooms on a floor, and is one of the beſt and neateſt finiſhed houſes in that town, built upon a lot of 60 feet by 140: there is an excellent cellar under the whole houſe 9 feet in the clear; the firſt and ſecond ſtories are about 10 feet each in the clear, with an exceeding good garret, the inſide partitions (except thoſe on each ſide the ſtaircaſe) are wainſcot pannel work, well finiſhed and painted; and as high as the ſur-baſe the houſe is pannelled around, except a part of the lower ſtory, which is now occupied as a ſtore.

At the back of the houſe is a Kitchen two ſtories high and a garret; it is 20 feet by 18 and a fire-place in each ſtory. The whole is rented at 70l. per ann. and has two families living therein, but the purchaſer may have poſſeſſion of the lower part immediately, and of the whole premiſes in 6 months.

If a good ſituation for trade and buſineſs are objects of any advantage, there is not one in Pittſburgh which enjoys a preference to this: it commands a firſt choice of all the cuſtom from Waſhington and Fayette counties; and as a demonſtration of the worth of the ſituation, the lots contiguous to it are rated at treble the value of any others of the ſame ſize the in town. Pittſburgh is at preſent a very conſiderable and flouriſhing place; and as little doubt remains but it will become a county town ſhortly, that circumſtance alone will greatly inhance the value of every foot of property in the place. Nature has alſo fitted it with ſo many excellent and peculiar advantages, that it is next to impoſſible but that it will in time grow much both in ſize and opulence. Particulars may be known by applying to MATTHEW M'CONNELL, at the Exchange-Office, in Second, near Cheſnut ſtreet, Philadelphia. 2awtf April 20

A SONG.

SWAINS I hate the boiſt'rous fair,
Who bold aſſume a manly air,
Soft, unaffected, gentle be,
She is the girl that's made for me.

Let her not boaſt, like man, to dare
The dangers of the ſylvan war,
With gentler ſports delighted be,
The girl, that fate ordains for me.

Nor pert coquet, nor formal prude,
Gay let her be, but never rude,
From airs, from flights, from vapours free,
She is the girl that's made for me.

Her well choſe dreſs, in ev'ry part,
Be artful without ſhewing art;
From all fantaſtic faſhions free,
She is the girl that's made for me.

Looſe flow her locks without conſtraint,
Her healthy cheeks let nature paint;
To all a goddeſs ſeem to be,
And prove a woman ſtill to me.

GUBERNATORIAL ANECDOTE.

[From the Maſſachuſetts Centinel.]

How ſmall, how great—how menial, how auguſt,
——————— Is man.

HISTORIANS in all ages, and all countries, have been aſſiduous carefully to tranſmit to poſterity the moſt minute actions of GREAT MEN. It is from them, ſay they, that mankind can judge of their merits or demerits, as commonly their more important tranſactions in their official or regal characters, are veiled by the ſpecious garb of diſſimulation. This premiſed, we ſhall not apologize for introducing to the public, the following genuine and authentic anecdote of his excellency captain J. C. gov——r of the ſovereign ſtate of R——e-I——d, viz.

HIS excellency, as was his uſual cuſtom, went one day this ſpring to the ſhore, for the purpoſe of furniſhing his table with a diſh of fiſh, and there found a poor, honeſt fiſherman on the rocks fiſhing for baſs, who had had the good luck to take a couple; the largeſt of theſe immediately ſtruck the fancy of our hero, who inſiſted upon having it, reaſoning moſt logically, "that if he, the fiſherman, had not caught it, he, the Gov——r, ſhould." Oliver Duet (for this was the honeſt fiſherman's name) in vain expoſtulated with the gov——r, that he could not ſpare the fiſh—that they both were promiſed——alas! how weak are the arguments of a fiſherman when oppoſed to gubernatorial authority; for his excellency, ſeizing the fiſh by the gills, by virtue of his authority, bore it off to his habitation in triumph, leaving the aſtoniſhed fiſherman to make what comment he pleaſed on this brilliant diſplay of the power of rulers.

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, January 27.

A DUTCH frigate of 28 guns, called the Eos hauſen, accompanied by the Salamander and Mercury cutters, arrived a few days ſince at Sheerneſs, in order to bring away the 73 pirates now confined in Deal Caſtle, for robbing a Dutch Eaſt Indiaman, to which they belonged; but it ſeems miniſtry demur about giving them up; ſaying, that as the piracy was committed within the dominion of the Britiſh ſeas, they ought to be tried by the laws of England. How this matter will be ſettled is not yet known.

Mar. 6. The emperor, according to ſeveral of the German prints, has lately given a noble inſtance of the contempt which a truly great mind muſt entertain for libels and their authors. One of thoſe ſcurrilous publications having made its appearance at Vienna, wherein his Imperial majeſty was cenſured in a moſt indecent ſtyle for the ſentence paſſed upon comte Szekeli, a copy was ſent to the emperor, who inſtantly wrote to the cenſors not to prohibit the ſale of that production, becauſe it was perſonal to himſelf, but to ſuppreſs another pamphlet impeaching the condemnation of Zalheim, an accomplice of the compte, becauſe the world would caſt ſome indecent reflections on the courts of juſtice. Meanwhile the emperor going through Zegedin, he ſet the above compte at liberty, and granted him a free pardon. This is the lieutenant colonel, whom the aſſaſſinating tribe of foreign newſmongers had killed by an apoplective fit ſome time ago, as he was going to the place of his confinement.

March 12. The great Dr. Price, with other Diſſenters, are labouring hard to get the corporation and teſt acts repealed: theſe are ſaid to have been erected as the "Two great bulwarks to ſecure the epiſcopal church of England from the attacks of non-conformiſts." By the former, no perſon can be legally elected to any public office, without receiving on his knees, the ſacrament of the Lord's ſupper, according to the ceremonies of the church of England. The other, called the teſt act, obliges all officers, civil and military, to take oaths, and make declaration againſt tranſubſtantiation, receive the ſacrament, &c. Thus, by theſe two acts, are the Diſſenters completely debarred from all offices and power in the ſtate, eccleſiaſtical, civil or military. Beſides, that they may not be entirely independent of the eccleſiaſtical authority, they are, by laws of marriage, obliged to comply with the church ceremony in that contract; and thus contribute to the maintenance of the clergy. Whether the Diſſenting gentlemen will ſucceed in their undertaking is altogether uncertain. The London paragraphiſts ſay that the oppoſition will be violent; and that all the High Churchmen and Tories will be againſt repealing thoſe acts: but above all, ſay they, the influence of the eſtabliſhed clergy is to be feared; whoſe incomes it will materially affect.

March 17. The French treaty does not meet with the entire approbation of the commons, nor of all the Engliſh manufacturers. The article of millinery, ſay they, has not been inveſtigated by either houſe, although it has been proved to contain matter of the utmoſt importance to the induſtrious women of their country; thouſands of whom muſt, by the 23d article, inevitably be ruined. If all kinds of dreſs are imported, all kinds of trimmings will follow; and what is there of luxury, aſk they, that the French will not pour in upon us? Every ſpecies of contraband goods will find their way more eaſy, ſafe, and at a much lower price than before.

The conduct of Mr. Haſtings, while in the Indies, appears to have been highly criminal. Mr. Burke, ſir J. Erſkine and others, have aſſerted and proved in the houſe of commons, that Mr. H. by his corrupt and prodigal practices had, within a few years, put the Eaſt India Company to the amazing expence of half a million ſterling: and by new and unneceſſary eſtabliſhments, contrived only to increaſe his own influence, had occaſioned a further expence to the Company of ſix hundred thouſand pounds—that he waſted their treaſure, diſobeyed their orders, was guilty of ſhameful extortions, &c. &c. of all which he had been convicted: Sir James therefore moved, that Warren Haſtings, eſq; be impeached for high crimes and miſdemeanours. The motion paſſed in the affirmative. After all this, one would ſuppoſe that Mr. H. muſt be deſpiſed throughout the Britiſh nation, and treated with general neglect and contempt: but hear what the very papers ſay, that give the above account; they will tell you that he is courted and careſſed by many of the firſt characters in the kingdom. Even the chancellor of the exchequer appeared as one of his advocates in parliament. Oh! Money, Money, who ſo innocent, but he may ſuffer without thee? Who ſo guilty but he may eſcape with thee?

LAW REPORT.

Meſſrs. Taſtet and Co. of London, merchants, againſt the prince of Salm Kerbourg, lately determined at Paris.

This celebrated cauſe was inſtituted at Paris ſo recover 20,000l. ſterling, which the prince of Salm got from them. At the latter end of the year 1783, the prince of Salm ſent his agent, the ſieur Faulconier to London, with orders to offer a capital of 100,000l. ſterling, upon certain conditions: among which was, that he ſhould name a partner. He accordingly named the marquis of Cavalcabo. His highneſs, inſtead of furniſhing the capital he had offered, availed himſelf of the right the partnerſhip gave the marquis of drawing bills of exchange, to get the abovementioned ſum from them. Not contented with this, when he found they would advance no more, he by means of his agent enticed one of the partners to Calais, where he procured him to be arreſted. This gentleman was confined five months, at the expiration of which, he was ſet at liberty by a proviſional ſentence, given by the parliament at Paris. A ſentence of the ſame kind, obtained afterwards, procured them the reſtitution of their money. The demand now was, to cancel the partnerſhip, and to recover damages.

By the ſentence pronounced againſt the prince.

I. The act of partnerſhip is annulled.

II. The impriſonment declared null and unjuſt; the detainers to be effaced and eraſed.

III. The prince of Salm, on his demand for the ſuppreſſion of the memorials printed againſt him, nonſuited.

IV. The abuſive expreſſions uſed in the memorials publiſhed by the prince of Salm, Cavalcabo, Faulconier, and Coſte d'Arnabot, to be ſuppreſſed.

V. The prince of Salm, Cavalcabo, Faulconier, Coſte d'Alnabot and Clapſier, caſt in 40,000 livres damages, to which ſum each of them is anſwerable.

VI. The prince of Salm condemned to pay 26,000 livres, claimed for charges, &c.

VII. The Prince of Salm, Cavalcabo, Faulconier, Coſte d'Arnabot, and Clapſier to pay full coſts.

VIII. The ſentence to be printed and ſtuck up. One hundred copies to be printed at the expence of the prince of Salm, Cavalcabo, Faulconier, Coſte d'Arnabot, and Clapſier.

The verdict does honour to the parliament of Paris, by whom it hath been given; and we cannot but congratulate the injured merchants upon it. It is a deciſion that ſhews there is juſtice in France.—What a puniſhment does the prince undergo! Notwithſtanding his high rank, he is diſgraced and diſhonoured by the firſt tribunal in the kingdom. By the firſt article, he is ignominiouſly expelled from a mercantile houſe; by the ſecond, declared guilty of having impriſoned his own creditors; the third, confirms the titles given him, in the memorials publiſhed againſt him; by the fourth, declared a calumniator, ſince his memorials are ſuppreſſed; and laſtly, by the other articles, he is obliged to pay 66,000 livres and the coſts. May this ſerve as an example to other great men!

DUBLIN, April 2.

While the natives of this kingdom, be they ever ſo ingenious, lament with reaſon the want of encouragement they meet from the few of our nobility and gentry who have a guinea to ſpare; a crowd of exotic impoſtors come over in a continual ſucceſſion to glean every ſhilling extravagance or play has left them, by arts as various as their ſex, age, and faces; one third has not, we think, been mentioned which is a ſet of vagabonds who have by importunity or impudence obtained ſome certificates, intimating that they are American loyaliſts, whoſe property has been loſt irrecoverably, in the concuſſion of the American revolt; whereas, the truth is, that they never had any real property, and were never more than clerks or ſervants to merchants, &c. &c. ſome of whom, indeed, had gotten nominal tracts of lands, that never produced a ſix pence profit; and, if they have been ſold, never paid the expence of the vendue and other charges attending the confiſcation they underwent.

Letters from Portaferry mention, that the great rock, called Carrickdeck, at Raghery-Iſland, (which is called the ſtepping ſtone between Ireland and Scotland) was thrown from its baſe, and even now occupies in the adjoining water a ſpace of fifty, and a height of thirteen fathom, ſuppoſed to contain in ſolid contents above 16,000 tons. A moſt extraordinary phænomenon in the revolution of nature, and ſimilar to the account publiſhed from Whitehaven, of the fall from the Pillar Mountain.

AMERICA.

NASSAU, (New-Providence) March 28.

The following is a copy of a letter from Mr. M'Gillivray, chief of the Creek Indians, to his friend in this town. Our readers are already apprized that Mr. M'Gillivray's mother is a Creek, and, agreeable to the cuſtom of the Indians, he is therefore deemed one himſelf. His ſuperior acquirements and eminent abilities have raiſed him to the firſt place among his countrymen; what follows will ſhew the zealous animated part he takes in whatever affects their intereſts.

'Little Talaſſee, Upper Creeks, Jan. 20. 1787.

'SIR,

IN return for your friendly communications, it is not often in my power to furniſh you with any thing worthy your attention, unleſs details of our diſputes with the Georgians can be deemed ſo——diſputes which, on their parts, are as frivolous as they are vexatious, and which, to all appearances, will not be terminated otherwiſe than by the ſword.

'You have been already made acquainted with the grounds of the differences between us, from a copy of a letter that I wrote in 1784 to governor Houſtoun, and which was publiſhed by ſome friend to my country. Repeated repreſentations have followed that one for years, but without effecting the leaſt change of meaſures as to the encroachments made upon our hunting grounds by the Georgians. Wearied out with ineffectual attempts to awaken in them a ſenſe of juſtice and equity, the nation was reſolved not to behold with indifference a plan formed to wreſt from us the greater part of our moſt valuable territory. Accordingly, in April 1786, we met in general convention, to deliberate upon what meaſures we ſhould adopt for fuſtrating the wicked deſigns of the Georgians. Finding that moderate ones had been treated with inſolent contempt, it was determined to lift the red hatchet, in oppoſition to inſolence and injuſtice. This was become neceſſary for perſonel ſafety. Parties of Georgians, when employed in marking out their uſurpations, uninformedly attacked any of our people who chanced to fall in their way, altho' peaceably hunting game on our own grounds.

'Being influenced by motives of humanity, and unwilling to ſpread that diſtruction on their frontiers which the conduct of the Georgians merited, we contented ourſelves with ſending out parties of warriors to drive from off our Oconee lands all intruders who ſhould be found thereon; and they had orders not to deſtroy them, nor even uſe force in any caſe wherein perſonal ſafety did not render it abſolutely neceſſary. This was in a great meaſure accompliſhed; only ſix perſons loſt their lives on the part of the Georgians, and theſe fell victims to their own temerity. This affair, which their iniquitous proceedings had drawn upon them, has been held forth by the Georgians as the moſt violent, unprovoked outrage that was ever committed, and for which nothing can atone but my life, and the lives of a number of our chiefs.

'In October 1776, the Georgians ſent up a talk to the nation, inviting them to a conference to be held at Oconee, and profeſſing an anxious deſire to have all differences amicably adjuſted. Having good grounds to queſtion the ſincerity of theſe profeſſions, the invitation was not accepted of, and only a few of our people, from motives of curioſity, attended. The event proved the juſtice of our ſuſpicions. Theſe meſſengers of peace were attended by 1500 men in arms; and plans of the moſt atrocious nature againſt our perſons were concerted. Theſe they attempted to effect upon the credulous few of our nation who met them; but the ſpirited conduct of of ſome of them alarming the Georgians, prevented the accompliſhment of their perfidious deſigns, and this armed force, which, in the event of their failing in the deſign of ſeizing our perſons, was to ſpread devaſtation and deſtruction throughout our country, was obliged to retreat precipitately, after having diſgraced themſelves by an abortive attempt to engage thoſe Indians who met them to murder ſeveral innocent traders ſpecified by name, and to procure the aſſaſſination of the chiefs who were the ſupporters of their country, and of courſe hoſtile to the Georgians.

'I have reaſon to believe that in the enſuing ſpring they will offer ſome freſh propoſitions to us. I mean to hold our annual grand convention in April next, when the truce granted the Georgians will expire. Then it will be determined whether hoſtilities ſhall commence, or a peace be concluded; and then, ſir, you ſhall again hear from me.

'I am, &c.

'ALEXANDER M'GILLIVRAY.'

BOSTON, May 21.

It is recommended by an advocate for the militia, that a company of grenadiers be raiſed, as in his opinion nothing elſe is wanting to make the Boſton regiment appear reſpectable. Moſt of the militia, to their honor, have of late been ſo ſpirited and zealous, that the art militaire is perfectly underſtood by them. The grenadiers company before the late war, gained the admiration, attention and applauſe of the whole community; and it is not doubted it would be equally ſo in future, ſhould there be a ſufficient number willing to form themſelves into ſuch a company.

LITCHFIELD, May 21.

Laſt Thurſday evening arrived in this town from Hartford, colonel Samuel Canfield, and Uriah Tracy, Eſq. with orders from the general aſſembly to repair to the town of Sharon, and put a ſtop to the inſurrection that appeared to be raiſing in that town. The ſame evening they ſet off, accompanied by the ſheriff and one of his deputies, and arrived at Sharon about day-break: and ſoon arreſted five perſons, who were ſuppoſed to be the principal actors and abettors in the inſurrection, viz. Dr. John Hurlbut, Dr. Jonah Barns, William Mitchell, (who was ſaid to act as their captain) Hezekiah Friſbie, and John Lord; all of whom (excepting Barns, who was permitted to remain on account of illneſs) were conducted to, and ſafely lodged in our gaol on Saturday, in order for examination. It is hoped this early and ſpirited exertion of our aſſembly, will prevent any further diſturbance in that town. Much praiſe is due to the gentlemen employed on this occaſion, for their prudence, humanity, and judicious proceedings.

NEW-YORK, May 24.

We find that thoſe threats which the leading rebels of Maſſachuſetts left behind them at the time they were forced precipitately to retreat, viz. of recommencing hoſtilities at a more favourable ſeaſon, are now ripening for execution, on the borders of Maſſachuſetts, within the ſtates of Vermont and Connecticut!—Where is the faith of government, and to what purpoſe were formal proclamations of thoſe ſtates, to apprehend the rebels, &c. iſſued!—The evils that may finally reſult from the rebellious diſpoſition of the inhabitants of Maſſachuſetts, are yet confined within the womb of futurity.

Oh, my countrymen, exclaims a correſpondent, through how many ſcenes and changes muſt we paſs! the wide, the unbounded proſpect lies before us—but, ſhadows, clouds, and darkneſs reſts upon it—Here will I hold—if there is a power in heaven, or if there is a power and wiſdom in the fœderal convention, it muſt delight in obliterating every diſcordant ſentence from the fœderal ſyſtem of government, and rendering efficient, to all the purpoſes of benefit, honor and reſpectability, the articles of confederation of the United States of America—then, that which they delight in muſt be happy.

The general aſſembly of Connecticut have appointed the honorable Roger Sherman, eſquire, delegate to the fœderal convention, in the place of the honorable Eraſtus Woolcot, eſquire, who has reſigned.

BALTIMORE, May 22.

The articles of the confederation were made for temporary purpoſes of a war; they were as wiſely drawn as the then ſituation of the country would permit: for preſſed by danger on every ſide, our immediate defence was uppermoſt in our minds.

and our attention was naturally abſorbed, by objects of magnitude that ſurrounded us, while only time and reflection, could make us acquainted with more important ones at a diſtance. In this ſituation, we voluntarily gave the force of law to recommendations, which we now like with common advice.

Thus the confederation, that appeared ſo perfect in its original ſtate, is become a looſe, incomplete agreement, totally inconſiſtent with its own principles. By this political compact, the United States in Congreſs, have excluſive right and power for the following purpoſes, without being able to execute one of them :

They may "make and conclude treaties;" but can only recommend the obſervance of them.

They may appoint ambaſſadors ; but cannot defray even the expences of their tables.

They may borrow money in their own name, on the faith of the union ; but cannot pay a dollar.

They may coin money ; but cannot purchaſe an ounce of bullion.

They may make war and determine what number of troops are neceſſary ; but cannot raiſe a ſingle ſoldier. In ſhort, they may declare every thing, and can do nothing.

If any thing can be added to this deſcription of the impotence of our Fœderal government, it muſt be a total want of authority over its own members. A recent inſtance of this was experienced in the loſs of a late queſtion, the conſequence of which is, that any member may leave Congreſs, whenever he pleaſes, without their leave, or that of the ſtate he repreſents. The moſt important queſtion may therefore be loſt by the wilful abſence of one delegate—Since this is a true picture of our preſent ſyſtem of ſovereignty, what true friend to this country can object to the giving more power and efficacy to the laws and ordinances of the once highly reſpected and honourable Congreſs of America ?

Philadelphia, May 29.

Intelligence from Algiers.

We learn from Malaga that a Settee of three maſts had arrived there about the 6th of January laſt from Algiers ; the captain of which, Robert Norrie, reported, that he had frequently been in company with the American ſlaves—that the captains lodge with a Genoeſe watchmaker, and have a table to themſelves, though a ſmall iron ring is fixed on one of their legs to denote that they are held in ſlavery. The ſailors have been taught, and are obliged to work at the various trades of carpenter, joiner, blackſmith, ſtone maſon, and ſail maker, from 6 o'clock in the morning, till 4 o'clock in the afternoon, without intermiſſion, except half an hour that is allowed them at dinner time ; each man's allowance per day, is two ſmall loaves of bread, which weigh about fifteen ounces. The Spaniſh conſul, from a principle of humanity, pays to each man alſo, 4*d.* ſterling per day. A common rug or blanket is given them to wrap themſelves up in when they go to reſt, but they are in daily expectation of being relieved by their countrymen. When favors are to be granted, preference is given to the Americans by the general of marine, or the general who commands all the ſlaves, and who is in the character of ſecretary of ſlaves. the boys act as ſervants and waiters to the Dey, and are cloathed in his livery. The captains are paroled by the Spaniſh conſul, who, in caſe of an eſcape, has generouſly bound himſelf in the penalty of £.560 ſterling.

The following account of their treatment, together with a liſt of the names of the American ſlaves at Algiers, were communicated at Malaga, by Johan Lagerholm, in the month of September, 1786. [This Langerholm, it ſeems was mate of the brig Betſey, captain Irvin of this port, taken in October, 1784, by a cruiſer belonging to the emperor of Morocco, and cleared by the Swediſh ambaſſador on the 1ſt of July, 1785, and now commands a veſſel in the Mediterranean manned with Algerines and partly owned by a merchant in Gibraltar.]

The captains live in a French houſe and are well uſed——the people work very hard, and remain at nights in a houſe prepared for them and all other ſlaves, which is well guarded. The latter wear an iron ring about their leg, the former are well cloathed, and wear likewiſe an iron about their legs, but much ſmaller than the others.

The ſhip Dolphin of Philadelphia was taken by an Algerine cruiſer, on the 3d of July, 1786, and the crew carried into ſlavery on the 14th of the ſame month.

Richard O'Brien, maſter,
Andrew Montgomery, mate,

What, obſerves a correſpondent, muſt be the feelings of thoſe unfortunate Americans, when they are informed that the very hands from which they ſo anxiouſly expect relief, have, ever ſince the peace, been employed in equipping veſſels, armed with the inſtruments of death, and loaded, among other articles, with the badges and inſignias of ſlavery, to deprive the poor, unhappy Africans of their liberty? Bluſh O ye Boſtonians and Pennſylvanians. (It is almoſt needleſs to mention, that veſſels for the coaſt of Africa, have been no where fitted out in America, ſince the treaty of peace, but at the ports of Boſton and Philadelphia) for your degenerate ſons, who have thus embarked in this monſtrous and abominable trade and traffic ! Bluſh alſo for yourſelves, becauſe you have long beheld this wicked practice without making the leaſt effort to prevent it. There is no difference between permitting it to be done in your harbours and the actual doing it yourſelves. The equipment of veſſels in your own ports, by your own ſubjects, for the open and avowed purpoſe of enſlaving their fellow-men, bears ample proof of your ſanction and approbation ; and the ſtigma will be fixed on you as a people, not on the individuals who are immediately engaged in the buſineſs from pecuniary motives.

Though the law for the gradual abolition of ſlavery forbids the importation of ſlaves after a certain period, yet it does not reſtrain your inhabitants from proſecuting the ſlave trade. It is high time, adds our correſpondent, that the legiſlature ſhould again interpoſe their authority, and put an end, at leaſt in Pennſylvania, to this horrid buſineſs altogether. Hear the words of Moſes, the great law giver of Iſrael on this ſubject. "And he that ſtealeth a man and ſelleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he ſhall ſurely be put to death."

JOURNAL of the UNITED STATES in CONGRESS Aſſembled.

Mr. PRINTER,

LAST week I went to a ſtore in Boſton, to purchaſe a number of articles for my family—when my bill was made out, I offered, among the money, a four piſtole Cobb Piece—the gentleman returned it to me, ſaying it was not good gold, and therefore not a legal tender—I was very much nonpluſed, as I could not recollect of whom I had taken it—but to aſcertain whether it was an adulteration or not, I afterwards carried it to the Bank, where it was condemned. I have ſince been informed that theſe pieces are manufactured in Boſton, and upon a critical examination am convinced from the complexion, form, &c. of theſe cobbs, that the manufacturer may incorporate in them a ſufficiency of alloy to make a profit of more than 25 per cent.

Theſe Cobbs are evidently caſt in a mould, as tinkers caſt pewter ſpoons ; they are diſtinguiſhed by a ſmooth convex ſurface, which appears deſigned to contain a ſufficiency of alloy to make them weigh—for it may be obſerved, that every ſpecies of genuine gold coin has no ſuch ſwell in the centre : counterfeit joes and guineas may always be detected by this mark, even without a hydroſtatick ballance. The aforeſaid cobbs are become ſo plenty of late, that juſtice to the community ſeems to require that however deſirous we may be of encouraging our own manufactures, this branch at leaſt ought to be ſuppreſſed,

A COUNTRYMAN.

City-Tavern and Coffee-Houſe.

Edward Moyſton

TAKES this method of returning his ſincere thanks to thoſe ladies and gentlemen who have been pleaſed to honor his houſe with their cuſtom, and hopes for a continuance of their favours, and the public in general. Having provided himſelf with cooks of experience, both in the French and Engliſh taſte, he flatters himſelf that he will be able to give ſatisfaction to thoſe who pleaſe to uſe his houſe, and careful attendance ſhall never be wanting to render their accommodation agreeable. Ladies and gentlemen travellers can be commodiouſly lodged at the tavern, as he hath fitted up chambers in a more convenient manner than they have heretofore been, for the reception of his gueſts. Horſes and carriages ſhall be taken the greateſt care of, and every exertion of his uſed to render their accommodation complete. He has laid in a freſh ſupply of liquors of the very firſt quality.

As many of the ſubſcriber's cuſtomers have often mentioned their deſire of taking proper ſtabling to accommodate their horſes, and coach-houſes to keep their carriages: this is therefore to inform them, that he hath taken the Livery-Stables at the back of the City-Tavern, where his cuſtomers may aſſure themſelves of the greateſt care being taken of both their horſes and carriages, at as moderate a rate as at any other livery ſtables in the city.

w&f3m. E. MOYSTON.

Pennſbury Farm,

CONTAINING 300 acres of good land, with an advantageous front on the Delaware—Will be diſpoſed of on moderate terms. Part of the old proprietor's buildings are ſtill remaining. Enquire of Mr. GOODAL, oppoſite the Bank, in Cheſnut ſtreet.

Ten Pounds Reward.

RAN-AWAY from the ſubſcriber, living at North-Eaſt, Cæcil county, Maryland, on the 9th day of April laſt, a NEGRO FELLOW, named DAVE; about 5 feet 10 or 11 inches high, 21 years of age, a down looking countenance, hath one of his ankles a little crooked, remarkable long legs and thighs and ſmall body, is a little hard of hearing: had on when he went away, a ſcarlet coat with braſs buttons, white waiſtcoat and corduroy breeches, and round hat (but his apparel its more than probable he will alter). Whoever takes up and ſecures ſaid fellow, ſo that the ſubſcriber may get him again, if taken up 100 miles diſtance ſhall have the above reward; if 50 miles diſtance Five Pounds, and any diſtance under, Six Dollars.

TO BE SOLD.

FIFTY-SIX acres of good marſh meadow on the iſland of Tinicum, in two different lots, one of which is about 44 acres, divided into four diviſions, chiefly by good drains, lying on the main road leading through the townſhip of Tinicum, and is chiefly in clover, blue graſs and timothy. The bank belonging to theſe meadows is in good order, and eaſy to be maintained. The other lot is upwards of 12 acres, bounded on the river Delaware, and near the other lot. It is encloſed all round with good ditches, and in excellent mowing order, and produces large crops.

Or if more agreeable to a purchaſer, the ſubſcriber would ſell the plantation whereon he now dwells, being about ſix miles from Philadelphia, on the main road from thence to the lower counties. This place contains about eighty-five acres, upwards of ten acres of orchard of the beſt of grafted fruit, nearly in its prime; a large proportion of it is in clover, and the remainder ſuitable for gardening or any kind of grain. There is on this place about twenty acres of woodland, moſtly encloſed for a paſture. The houſe is large and well ſituate, having an extenſive view of the rivers Delaware and Schuylkill, &c. The barn is large, and there is ſtabling for upwards of forty creatures; with moſt other neceſſary out-buildings. The purchaſer may have any reaſonable time for payment of a conſiderable part of the purchaſe money, for either the meadow or plantation. For further particulars enquire of the ſubſcriber, PHILIP PRICE.

Sanxay's Anti-venereal Pills and Specific Purging Electuary, with Dr. Walker's genuine Jeſuits Drops, ſo well known in England for entirely eradicating the Venereal Diſeaſe in all its ſtages, in a ſhorter time than any other medicine ever yet diſcovered. With this medicine will be given printed directions, ſetting forth every thing neceſſary to be known throughout the ſtages of the complaint in a clear and diſtinct manner, ſo that no queſtions need be aſked by the purchaſers. Perſons who live at a diſtance, by ſending a letter poſt paid, will receive the pills and electuary ſealed up, ſo that no perſon can diſcover what they are. It is an excellency peculiar to theſe pills and electuary, to make directly to the complaining parts, and enter into conteſt with the offending matter. The celebrated Dr. James, who gave the world the incomparable fever powder, ſays, they deſerve the credit of univerſal fame for the curing theſe diſorders. Nothing in the whole materia medica can equal theſe pills and electuary. They are very convenient to perſons who go to ſea, as they prevent the ſcurvy, keep good in all climates, and require no confinement or reſtraint of diet, and they effect a cure even when a ſalivation fails.——Price for the Pills, Electuary and Drops, Four Dollars. 1aw3t

THE WATER-MILL:

A SIMILE.

OBSERVE my friend, yon Water-Mill,
And liſten whilſt I ſhow,
What ſage reflection thence diſtil,
What leſſons from it flow.

ABOVE; with ſmooth and ſilent pace
The current bends its force;
BELOW, it runs a rapid race,
Foams boiſt'rous, rough, and hoarſe.

So, Wiſdom works—ſtill, deep, and ſtrong,
On uſeful purpoſe bent;
THUS, Folly's bubbles float along,
In uſeleſs clamour ſpent.

So Friendſhip's ſteady, ſilent care,
Comes on with real aid;
THUS, the loud boaſt, and promiſe fair,
Fly from us as they're made.

So Courtſhip's placid currents flow,
With love and pleaſure high;
THUS, Wedlock roars, and—down we go,
Mere BUBBLES till we die.

IN an age when matrimony is (in the pun of the preacher of King James's time) too often made a mere matter of money, the following, which is confidently related as a fact, ſtands a ſtriking exception; A noble duke, the firſt in point of youth and fortune in England, being lately at an aſſembly in Glouceſterſhire, ſaw a lady of ſuch beauty and accompliſhments, that he immediately fell in love with her, and as ſoon made propoſals of marriage to her father. The old gentleman felt the pride of ſuch an alliance too deeply to refuſe his conſent, and introduced him to his daughter, who with great politeneſs thanked his Grace for his intentions, but ſaid, that as her happineſs was built upon other foundations than the glare of rank, ſhe muſt decline the honor of his hand.

This refuſal creating a very great ſurprize both in the father and lover, an inveſtigation took place, when it appeared the young lady's affections were engaged to a neighbouring gentleman of about 1000l. per year: the Duke gave up his pretenſions, and the father, like a man of ſenſe, has added to the triumph of affection over title; by giving his conſent to the intended union.

The father of the young lady is no more than what is called a Gentleman Farmer, but worth above 100,000l. and ſhe is his only child.

Foreign Intelligence.

GENEVA, January 16.

THE people in this city, and in ſeveral other parts of Switzerland, have experienced very much diſtreſs of late, owing to a general want of employment, and a great ſcarcity of proviſions, which have prevailed throughout moſt of the cantons for ſome time paſt; theſe cauſes have occaſioned many of the poorer for to emigrate to France and Italy, in hopes of gaining that employment in thoſe countries, which they unfortunately want in their own. Many have entered for ſoldiers, and the women and children are truly in deplorable circumſtances, although every method has been taken for their relief.

LONDON, February 9.

A letter from a merchant at Port Royal, in Jamaica, has the following article:——'The Spaniſh guarda coſtas have begun again to commit depredations on the ſhips belonging to this iſland, under their old, but falſe pretence, of their carrying on an illegal trade. I lately fitted out a veſſel of 200 tons for the American trade, John Roſs, commander, which was taken by them and carried into the Havannah. I acquainted our governor of it, who immediately ſent to demand her, ſetting forth where ſhe was bound to, and that, if ſhe was not delivered up he ſhould conſider it as a breach of the peace, and treat all the Spaniards that fell into his hands as priſoners of war; this had the deſired effect, the veſſel was delivered up, and an apology made for detaining her, and a further promiſe, that as ſoon as he could obtain an order from his court, the reſt of the ſailors belonging to this iſland, which were taken under the ſame pretences, ſhould be ſent home. This ſpirited conduct of our governor, I hope, will prevent their acting in the like manner in future.'

March 9. On Wedneſday laſt was launched from Mr. W. Cleverly's yard, at Graveſend, the ſhip Nottingham, the largeſt ever built for the ſervice of the honorable Eaſt India Company, being one thouſand one hundred and fifty two tons meaſurement; and what is very extraordinary, (perhaps unparalled in the annals of mercantile ſhip building) this immenſe bulk has been conſtructed in the ſhort ſpace of ſeven months. The launch was attended by ſeveral perſons of diſtinction, whoſe curioſity was excited on the occaſion; and after an elegant dinner given by the owners, the evening was concluded with a ball.

The above may well be reckoned among thoſe inſtances of ſentiment which pervade the people called quakers. The builder poſitively refuſing to enter into any penal engagement whatever in reſpect to the time of finiſhing this ſhip, but the 7th of March produced (with rigid adherence to the wiſhes of his employers) as compleat a merchant ſhip as ever ſailed out of the Thames.

March 11. So remarkable is the difference of the weather at preſent, in the diſtance of a few miles, that notwithſtanding the extraordinary mildneſs of the ſame in the vicinity of London, the cold was ſo intenſe near Derby, &c. accompanied with ſuch a prodigious fall of ſnow, that in many places it was ſeven feet deep. At Dunſtable, a boy that came upon the Derby coach was ſo far overcome with the cold, that the people of the inn were obliged to call in the aſſiſtance of a medical gentleman before they could effect his recovery.

March 16. A letter from Bourdeaux ſays, 'that they have advice from Martinico, that Le Hipopotame, a French man of war of 64 guns, was loſt in a hurricane in endeavouring to get into that harbour, and all on board periſhed, except the captain, his firſt lieutenant, and ten of his men; it alſo ſays, that at the ſame time a great deal of damage was done to ſeveral ſhips in the harbour, which were loaded for Europe.'

Extract of a letter from an Engliſh Gentleman at Paris, dated March 8.

"Laugh as much as you may at the French, you might have been right during the reign of Lewis XV. but it appears to me that his ſucceſſor has entirely altered the ſtate of things; nay, if he goes on with the ſame ſteadineſs and indefatigable application as he ſet out with, for the welfare of his people, we have not a minute to loſe in order to take care of ourſelves.

"Every thing here with us is quite al'Anglaiſe now; as it is perhaps too much with us a la Françaiſe; to prove my aſſertion, I need only give you an account of what paſſed laſt Monday at the meeting of the Notables—Vote!!!—The firſt time this word has ever been made uſe of in France!

"An addreſs of thanks to the king has been voted by the committees for granting them provincial aſſemblies, for the new law adopted in favour of the corn trade, and for the plan concerning the Corvees.

Before the aſſembly will determine upon the land-tax, they require to be acquainted with the ſtate, and the amount of the deficiency, and the ſums that are to be levied by the tax, to attain that end, they inſiſt, that all the laſt eſtimates of monies received and expended ſhall be laid before them. This demand is neither granted nor refuſed.

"Forty-two perſons ſpoke againſt the comptroller-general; two prelates, celebrated for the brilliancy of their talents, were obliged to ſtrike to the matchleſs eloquence and the ſplendid abilities of M. de Calonne.

"On a future day this miniſter intends to propoſe ſome plans of œconomy in the king's houſehold, which will not be far ſhort of twenty-five millions of livres; about one million and ten thouſand pounds ſterling."

The counteſs de Vergennes, widow of the deceaſed miniſter, has obtained a penſion of 20,000 livres per annum, with the reverſion to her two ſons for their lives.

Monſ. de Calonne, the comptroller of the finances of France, is likely, it is ſaid, to be diſgraced; the taxes of that kingdom having fallen ſhort upwards of two millions of livres.

Extract of a letter from Vienna. February 17.

"We have accounts from Conſtantinople, dated January, 25, mentioning the arrival of an expreſs from Egypt, with diſpatches from the captain pacha, which had diſſipated the apprehenſions occaſioned by his laſt check, and containing in ſubſtance that the Turkiſh general, although in a manner ſurrounded by rebels, and ſhut up in the capital, had ſtill found means to receive ſufficient reinforcement to ſally out, and unexpectedly to attack the beys, whom he obliged to retire towards Upper Egypt, having killed 1000 of their men; after which it is ſaid the captain pacha appeared before a fortreſs, where the rebels ſeemed prepared for a formidable reſiſtance, but the gates were opened to him. Theſe favourable accounts have cauſed much joy at Conſtantinople, and the divan publiſhed them immediately with great pleaſure; but as the Turkiſh miniſtry are not unaccuſtomed to exaggerate accounts in their own favour, we cannot give implicit credit to the above till it is further confirmed.

March 17. The board of commiſſion for enquiring into the American claims will be continued by another act, as they have not yet ſettled all the buſineſs. They are now buſied in examining the moſt important caſe of all, that of Mr. Hartford, whoſe claims amount to 18,000l. a year. This is, of all others, the ſevereſt caſe. Mr. Hartford was a minor during the conteſt, and was prevented by the Lord Chancellor from going over to America. He has been there ſince the peace, and has in vain made application to Congreſs. His immenſe eſtate in Maryland, with all the patronage, is confiſcated, and he has no means of redreſs but from the juſtice of this country. The board have had his caſe under conſideration for this fortnight paſt.

Monſ. Colonne's ſpeech in the aſſembly of Notables, contain a juſtifiable though inſulting triumph over this country, in regard to the liberties of America—his alluſion to the commercial treaty has alſo its point. The ſpeech ſtates, "That their monarch, after having protected and confirmed the liberty of a new nation, which ſeparated from a rival power, is become an ally: after having terminated an honourable war by a ſolid peace, and ſhewn himſelf worthy to be the moderator of all Europe, has not given himſelf up to a barren inaction; his majeſty has been ſenſible how much ſtill remained for the happineſs of his ſubjects, a free and extenſive commerce abroad."

Extract of a letter from Dunkirk, Feb. 26.

"The baſon, and the fortifications of this port, have lately been reviewed by the commiſſaries appointed by the French court, who have been ſome time covered by that ſecrecy, which diſtinguiſhes the political conduct of the French adminiſtrations. Neverthele*ſ*s, ſome of the commanders of the ſmuggling veſſels from England have diſcovered the intention, and one of them in particular, has a very accurate account of all the proceedings; which he intends to communicate to the Britiſh miniſtry."

The chapel of the Palais at Paris (the court of Juſtice) that of Vincennes, and ſome others, which went under the denomination of royal chapels, have been all ſuppreſſed, and annexed to that of Verſailles. The revenues, which are conſiderable, fall to the crown, and the canons and prieſts who officiated, or had a comforable ſinecure, will be allowed a penſion, as the Celeſtines, Antonines, and other monks, that had been formerly aboliſhed.—This ſtep is certainly the forerunner of others, and we ſhall ſoon ſee France follow the example of the Emperor of Germany, in aboliſhing all uſeleſs and ſelfiſh communities.

The young Count de la Lippe, whom the Prince of Heſſe has deprived of his eſtate, is only thirteen years of age; his patrimony conſiſts of two cities, three towns, and 72 villages.

Extract of a letter from Conſtantinople, March 1.

"The Divan has ordered the Admiral Pacha, who is the ſuperior naval commandant at this port, to prepare directly 11 men of war, ſeven of which are to be from 66 to 80 guns, as a fleet for immediate ſervice, and to confer the command on the Aga Huley Meyle Stadock, an officer of experience. Though the intention of this ſquadron is by no means known at preſent, it is conjectured to be for the purpoſe of aſſiſting the Bey of Tunis, and others of the Ottoman allies, in Africa, againſt their enemies."

Accounts from Vienna ſay, that the Danube has overflowed ſo much near that capital as to have occaſioned very conſiderable damage.

Advices from the Hague mention the arrival there of two Ruſſian noblemen, charged with a commiſſion of great importance from the Empreſs to the States.

The ſecond meeting of the Notables, held at Verſailles on the 25th ult. was like to have been the laſt, or at leaſt to have occaſioned a great chaſm between this and the third. On the preceding night the clerks in the treaſury office, had, through exceſs of fatigue, ſunk into an imprudent ſleep, during which, their papers took fire, and the whole of the comptroller's plans became the inſtant prey of the mercileſs flames. This was about five o'clock in the morning, when Monſ. de Calorne was called up to view the havock, and repair the evil as well as he could. Luckily the miniſter had preſerved ſome minutes, which enabled him to recollect what he had to ſay and do, and the buſineſs went on as if nothing had happened.

DUBLIN, February 19.

It is really aſtoniſhing what pretext adminiſtration can poſſibly hold forth, for diminiſhing, inſtead of increaſing, the ſums to be diſtributed as bounties to the encouragement of manufactures this year, which grants are now reduced to 17,000l. which is three thouſand leſs than had been voted laſt year for the ſame purpoſe. The following is a moſt cogent proof of what vaſt utility a ſmall grant may be to the improvement and extenſion of the fabrics of this kingdom:

"The architect appointed to view the cotton works at Balbriggen, has reported, that a factory or building has been erected, 93 feet long, 34 broad, and 5 ſtories high, capable of containing more than 2,500 ſpindles at work, together with ſeveral other machines neceſſary for preparing the raw materials. That he found actually employed in the cotton works within this building, 1294 ſpindles, frames and machinery almoſt finiſhed for 686 more. That in an adjoining new houſe of 40 by 29, and 3 ſtories high, there were 612 ſpindles at work, and that the whole of this ingenious machinery are perfectly clean and in good repair, and appear to be executed in the moſt ſubſtantial and maſterly manner. Yet this great undertaking has been compleated by the means of a parliamentary aid of only two thouſand pounds."

Part of the Attorney General's bill to be debated this night, enacts, that if any perſon ſhall print, write, poſt, publiſh, circulate, or deliver, or cauſe or procure to be printed, written, poſted, publiſhed, circulated, or delivered, any notice, letter or meſſage, exciting or tending to excite any riot, tumultuous meeting, or unlawful combination or confederacy, or exciting or tending to excite oppoſition to the adminiſtration or execution of the laws, every ſuch perſon being by due courſe of law thereof convicted, ſhall be adjudged a felon, and ſuffer death as in caſes of felony, without benefit of clergy. Should this law paſs, two-thirds of the printers may expect to be hanged.

Feb. 24. By a gentleman lately arrived from Glaſgow, we are aſſured, that out of 25 veſſels arrived in Clyde, from the 22d to the 30th ult. no leſs than 17 are from Ireland, laden with oats, meal, and barley.

A veſſel is expected from Syria here, before the end of the next ſummer, laden with ſilks, cotton, coffee, and other Aſiatic productions; ſhe will in return take a cargo of tanned hides, coarſe woollens, poplins, tabbinets, &c.

March 20. Laſt Wedneſday ſeven of thoſe deluded wretches called Whiteboys, were capitally convicted at the aſſizes of Limerick, five of whom were ordered for immediate execution, and two were recommended by the jury to Sir S. Bradſtreet, as objects of mercy. At the ſame aſſizes, Captain Right (who is a Mr. Wright of the county of Cork, a man who is in poſſeſſion of an eſtate of 350l. pounds a year, and perſonal property of upwards of 10,000l.) was tried and found guilty of a miſdemeanour; upon which he was ſentenced to be whipped, fined 400l. to be impriſoned for the ſpace of four years, and to give ſecurity in 10,000l. as a ſurety for his good behaviour.

Yeſterday morning two boys belonging to a ſchool in the neighbourhood of Glaſſnevin, were ſeverely flogged from the field of combat, by the Uſher, for attempting to fight a duel.

BIRMINGHAM, March 22.

In our laſt we gave an account, in a letter from Liverpool, of the diſtreſs of Captain Frears of the Eagle, from the Bay of Honduras for Whitehaven, who, with his crew, were taken up juſt as his veſſel was ſinking, in lat. 51. 16. long. 23. by the Eliza, Captain Read, bound from Rhode Iſland to Dublin, where he landed them a few days after; ſince which, we have had the pleaſure of ſeeing Captain Frears, who fully confirms the account of the great humanity of Captain Read, and gives the following further particulars, reſpecting the wreck of the ſhip Eagle:

"The firſt twelve hours after being clear of the Gulph of Florida, we met with a very heavy gale of wind, attended with hail and ſnow, which continued for ſeveral days, when it became more violent, and had every appearance of a hurricane, blowing from every quarter at the ſame time, with ſuch violence, that no canvaſs could hold out, and no ſooner was freſh ſails put to the yards but they were carried away, and when furled as cloſe as poſſible was even blown from the yards: the main and main top ſail yard was blown from the maſt by the violence of the gale. When the bowſprit was carried away, we were ſtruck by a ſea that carried away the ſhip's head, cut water, ſplit the ſtern, and ſtarted the headings forward; that the ſhip had at day light next morning, ſeven feet water in the hold, notwithſtanding all hands we were able to muſter being all night at the pumps. When we got clear of the Gulph we had but one ſick man on board, who was recovering from a fever, but from the ſeverity of the weather, and the extreme hard labour we were obliged to endure, we were reduced to five people able to attend the pumps, out of fourteen that remained alive, having (from entire fatigue) two men that died, and nine, when in our greateſt diſtreſs, were not able to get from their beds, and had but little hopes of their recovery.

"From our firſt looſing the ſails, and afterwards being diſmaſted, till we got on board the Eliza, Captain Read, was between three and four weeks, during which time we were driven about at the mercy of the wind and ſea, and the ſhip the whole time ſo leaky as to require both pumps conſtantly at work.'

AMERICA.

HALIFAX, May 1.

The brig Betſey, James Young, maſter, ſailed from Glaſgow the 25th of March with a full cargo of merchandize for Halifax. Nothing remarkable occurred till Monday afternoon, the 23d inſtant, that ſhe ſuddenly ſtruck upon a hidden rock, about 5 leagues off Jodder Head, and immediately went down. There were ten mariners and five paſſengers on board—Captain M'Lean, of the houſe of M'Lean & Boge, of Shelburne, was almoſt drowned before he got into the boat, and expired in a few hours after they left the veſſel. It was with the utmoſt difficulty the reſt of the people ſaved their lives. They reached the ſhore in fifteen hours after leaving the wreck. They did not ſave any thing except what happened to be on their backs at that time—not a paper nor letter was preſerved; had they attempted to go below they muſt all have periſhed, for in leſs than five minutes after the veſſel ſtruck ſhe was entirely out of ſight. The captain and crew came up here laſt Sunday morning.

On Wedneſday laſt ſailed, his majeſty's frigate Thiſbe, for Quebec, with the honorable the commiſſioners of American claims.

SHELBURNE, April 26.

The Charlotte, captain Kidd, which ſailed from London for Halifax in September laſt, after being 3 months at ſea, was obliged to bear away for the Weſt Indies, and got into Naſſau, New Providence, in December laſt.

May 3. Laſt evening the brig Mary, captain Tatherly, arrived here in ſix weeks and four days from Cork. Her cargo is chiefly proviſions on private account.

CHARLESTON, (S. C.) May 10.

The two men under ſentence of death at Savannah, for robbing Meſſrs. May and Hills's ſtore, are reſpited by the executive: one of them named Smith, whilſt ſubject to the finiſhing ſtroke of the law, which Mr. Jack Ketch uſed to denominate exaltation, appeared ſo tranquil and indifferent as if he deſpiſed that fell ſpectre death, and all his attendant terrors, being no leſs ſtoical than Socrates of old, who made the ſpectators laugh during his diſſolution. When a carpenter took meaſure of him for his coffin, he deſired that it might be made very large, in order that at the day of the reſurrection, there might be ſome room to riſe ; and the day previous to that on which he was to have been executed, he ſaid to a dancing maſter, ' if you'll attend to morrow at the gallows, I'll ſhew you a ſtep which I hope you'll never dance." A perſon who had the curioſity to viſit him declared that Smith had been condemned in Philadelphia to the wheelbarrow ; Smith promptly replied, " yes Sir the ſame day and by the ſame token you received twenty-nine laſhes." It was obſerved to him, that conſidering his unhappy ſituation, he was very jocoſe—" why how can I be otherwiſe, when to-morrow I am to be married"—to be married vociferated the bye-ſtanders, to whom, " why, to the Widow WOOD."

A gentleman juſt arrived from Savannah informs, that a party of 120 men were going againſt the runaway negroes, who were aſſembled in great force about twenty miles from Savannah. When the gentleman was on his way he heard the firing of cannon, which probably aroſe from an engagement.

May 12.

By a letter received from a London correſpondent we are informed, that his Britannic majeſty is not content with the conduct of the American loyaliſts, as they appear to be diſcontented with Port Roſeway, and indeed with the whole world ; and have ever manifeſted a lunatic diſpoſition. His majeſty is ſo ſanguine, in this ærial purſuit, that he expects to live and view all the planets with their ſatellites under the Britiſh dominions. But the inhabitants of Jupiter ſeem at preſent to bid defiance to his arms ; however, let the Lion be rouſed and what cannot Britain atchieve ? I hope the nations of the earth will not be ſo prepoſterous as to diſpute the Britiſh title to the planetary ſyſtem which was inconteſtibly aſcertained and its laws defined by a Briton, the immortal Newton. His majeſty has ſettled a penſion of five hundred pounds a year on the amiable Mrs. Solander, widow to the late Dr. Solander, who loſt his life in his majeſty's ſervice, by the fatal pulverization of his animal exiſtence, under the preſure of the ſmall toe of one of the inhabitants of the planet Jupiter.

May 16. Laſt evening returned into port, the ſhip Eleanor, captain Coats, having ſprung a leak, and loſt her fore top gallant maſt, and gib-boom.

The Philip, captain Lamb, from Maryland, bound to Amſterdam, arrived at Scilly, the 23d of Jan. laden with tobacco, under jury maſts, and in ſo leaky a condition, that they were obliged (previous to their arrival) to throw ſeventy hogſheads overboard, and had buried all the crew except five.

NEWPORT, May 17.

A traveller obſerves, that the paper age of the ſtate of Rhode Iſland and Providence Plantations is ſuperior to the golden age ſo celebrated by ancient bards and poets——Here, ſays he, the arts and ſciences have, with rapid ſtrides, like the ſwift courſer, diſtanced the old and the new world, in reaching the gaol of perfection—Here agriculture yearly diſplays aſtoniſhing improvements of her ruſtic ſons, while ſhe amply compenſates their toils with her exuberant productions—Here commerce flouriſhes, making the ſea like a foreſt, and her ſtorehouſes the granaries of the world, thereby opening an extenſive mart for buſineſs, and a field for the induſtry of the mechanic and labourer—Here the brave veteran who became mutilated when fighting his country's battle in the day of imminent danger, is now highly revered by thoſe who wear the purple, and foſtered by a greatful nation, with all the conveniences and luxuries of life——Here liſping infants, by inſtinctive nature, prattle perfectly the uſeful and grand rule of reduction, while widows and orphans ſing aloud for joy the enchanting ſong, that juſtice and mercy runneth down our ſtreets like a mighty ſtream—Here ſtateſmen riſe from the embryo of nothing, to eclipſe the brilliant luſtre of immortalized ſages—From his Excellency down to Mr. the exciſeman, ſays our traveller, virtue and abilities grace them all. Our ſenators rival Solon and Lycurgus in legiſlation, while their ſyſtem of finance ſtrips a Necker of his laurels, and ſinks to contempt the Poſtlethwaites and Prices of Europe.——Our judges are independent with regard to property, and adepts in juriſprudence when compared to the Mansfield's or Blackſtone's ; for their reports, like the oracles of the Sybills, will retain their value when reduced to a ſingle KNOW YE. All our officers are abundant in knowledge, and irreproachable in virtue ; and thoſe who are intruſted with public monies are men of tried integrity, and rich in lands and effects !

Where, ſays our traveller, could the ſages of Greece or Rome, or the literati of the preſent æra, produce a parallel of a legiſlature, ſo wiſe and productive in the ways and means for diſcharging an aſtoniſhing debt, and yet kept the treaſury full of money ?—— Where is there a government in the world but at ſome period of danger expects to contract new debts ?—while this ſtate have not that to fear, if our preſent wiſe rulers continue in office.

Our traveller is ſurpriſed that the ſiſter ſtates do not apply here for legiſlators to reſtore their interrupted tranquility, and for financiers to comptrol and render ſyſtematic their deranged funds—ſurely, ſays he, if they regard the happineſs of the riſing and yet unborn generation they will ſpeedily adopt this ſalutary and dernier reſort, and ſtrengthen the tottering fabrics of their conſtitutions by our political adepts. It would be wiſe, adds he, to ſend their children here for education, and have them finiſhed as ſtateſmen—and their prolific women to travel in this luxriant clime, that they might bring forth their offſpring endowed with all the powers of liquidation.

SALEM, May 22.

A late writer, remarking on the culture of hemp, believes there never was a country ſuffered more for want of this valuable plant, than ours does at this day. That a plenty of hemp would certainly cauſe terror to evil doers, have a direct tendency to promote good order, and to quiet the minds of traitorous inſurgents and knaviſh conventioners. He hopes every patriotic farmer will pay a proper attention to the directions for raiſing this friendly plant, this ſtimulus to ſobriety, that they may reap not only a ſufficiency for this ſtate, but alſo be able to ſupply the ſheriff of Rhode Iſland, with as much of it as they may have occaſion for. Moſt certainly, if juſtice ſhould take place, there will be a great call for hemp, both here and there, before the cloſe of the preſent year.

Not long ſince a young lady in Pomfret, being neceſſitated to ride in the duſk of the evening, had the misfortune to run her horſe on a plough, which was inadvertently left in the road, with ſuch velocity that one of the handles pierced his vitals, which ſhock threw the Miſs precipitately to the ground, without detriment, and inſtantly put a period to the exiſtence of the horſe.

PORTSMOUTH, May 19

It is ſaid a ſcheme is on foot for introducing an emiſſion of rope money, to be dealt out by the inch, foot, &c. This, ſays a correſpondent, will anſwer a better and more valuable purpoſe than paper ; as a ſhilling will be ſufficient to give a man a good whipping, if he offers to depreciate it ; and a larger quantity ſufficient to hang him, if he is detected in any treaſonable practices.

We are authoriſed to inform our readers, that the probability of the honourable delegates from this ſtate not attending the convention at Philadelphia, cauſes great uneaſineſs in the minds of the true whigs of New Hampſhire, and will occaſion a conſiderable inſpection into the ſtate of our finances.

Near one quarter part of the towns in this ſtate have reſolved not to ſend any repreſentatives to the enſuing general court. A correſpondent ſuppoſes this circumſtance will greatly accelerate public buſineſs.

WORCESTER, May 20

We are credibly informed, by perſons from the ſtate of Vermont, that the leaders in the late rebellion aſſembled, a few days ſince, a number of men, to the amount, it is ſaid, of about 200, chiefly of thoſe who had fled from this ſtate ; but the authority in Vermont ordered them to diſperſe, and they diſperſed accordingly. It is ſaid their intention was to come into this ſtate and renew their nefarious deſigns. The conduct of Vermont, in this inſtance, and others, reſpecting the rebellion, is ſpoken of much to its credit. Rhode-Iſland! Rhode-Iſland only, as a ſtate, is the only one that has, by its proceedings, encouraged treaſon and rebellion!

Extract of a letter from Warwick, dated May 15, 1787.

" On one morning laſt week, the following lines, together with a coffin, in which they were laid, were found by the houſe of Doctor Medad Pomeroy.—The author is not yet certainly known.

(Letter for letter.)

" Now I have Come you muſt dy and In my Bowels you Shall ley and if it is true What God he ſays youl be a Pray to Daniel Shays
But before the Day of June
youl.. think your in an air by Lune
But Whether your Go tto heven or hell
I am Shur I Cannot Stay to Tell."

Since the above tranſaction, it is reported, that the rebels, by force of arms, have ſeized Mr. Pomeroy, together with Mr. Metcalf of Orange, and carried them off, as hoſtages for thoſe under ſentence of death."

NEW-YORK, May 28.

Extracts from the Proceedings of the Society for the relief of diſtreſſed Debtors confined in goal, in the city of New-York.

THE committee for the month of March reported, That twenty-eight priſoners had been fed by the ſociety from the 10th of March to the 4th of April.

The committee for the month of April reported, That ſeventeen priſoners had been ſupplied with proviſions by the ſociety, from the fourth of April to the ſeventh of May.

Publiſhed by order of the Society.
JAMES COGSWELL, Secretary.

☞ The inhabitants of the city, who are charitably diſpoſed, are reminded, that donations to the ſociety continue to be received by the reverend Dr. Rogers, the reverend Mr. Beach, the reverend Mr. Linn and Mr. Lawrence Embre.

ALEXANDRIA, May 24.

By the poſt from Fort-Pitt, we learn, that on the 9th inſtant, near the mouth of Wheeling, the Indians killed three Whites, and took another priſoner ; that at the ſame time, at the mouth of the weſt fork of Monongalia, there were 15 or 16 more miſſing, who are ſuppoſed to be either killed or taken priſoners, as they have not been heard of ſince.

A correſpondent at Dumfries mentions—" That Tueſday laſt ſailed the ſhip Elizabeth, capt. Stonehouſe, with 600 hogſheads of tobacco, from Maryland Quantico, for Bourdeaux."

We hear that a ſchooner from Baltimore, was one day laſt week, drove on ſhore at the north end of Smith's Iſland, and ſtove to pieces. The crew were ſaved.

RICHMOND, May 24.

We learn that the brig Hope, captain Cox, from Jamaica, was a few days ago libelled by one of the ſearchers of the lower diſtricts.

Arrived, at Norfolk from London, the following ſhips, viz. Concord, Minerva, Douglaſs and Unicorn.

About the 1ſt inſt. the Grange, in company with a ſhip from Glaſgow, fell in with a ſchooner off the Banks of Newfoundland, with only her fore-maſt ſtanding, her main-maſt gone off by the board, and all her ſails and ſpars entirely ſwept away ; ſhe had on board 50 or 60 puncheons of Jamaica ſpirits, and a few hogſheads of ſugar ; finding ſhe made but little water, the mate and two or three of the ſhip's hands got on board of her and raiſed a jury maſt, by which means they brought her ſafe into Portſmouth ; there being no perſon or papers on board, we are unable as yet to tell what port ſhe belongs.

A ſmall ſloop is ſaid to be on ſhore at Willoughby's point.

On Wedneſday laſt, a boy arrived in Norfolk, from the mouth of Potowmack, ſays he belonged to a ſchooner from Bartholomew, which was caſt away on Smith's point, and that all the crew periſhed but himſelf ; there were two paſſengers on board, a captain Brown, belonging to Philadelphia, and a Mr. Connelly, of Norfolk.

It has been ſince reported, that more of the crew have been ſaved, which we hope may be the caſe.

Nine ſtates are now repreſented in the General Convention at the State-Houſe in this city.

Extract of a letter from Mercer county, (in the diſtrict of Kentucky) dated Feb. 24. 1787.

' The Indians have been very troubleſome on the frontiers of Kentucky, many of the outſettlers are moving in very faſt. A few days paſt a company of militia turned out after them, killed ſeven, and wounded four or five, without the loſs of a ſingle man.'

Meſſ. PRINTERS,

SOME perſons in this city having furniſhed you with what they call extracts of letters from their friends in Hamburg (publiſhed in your Monday's paper) with the wretched and malevolent intention of deſtroying indiſcriminately the peace and happineſs of a number of poor ſtrangers, juſt arrived in the ſhip Patſey Rutlege, from Hamburg : I am called upon in duty to theſe poor people, as well as to my own character, to deſire you to publiſh the names of the perſons who furniſhed you with the extracts, that they may be known, and made reſponſible for the conſequences of branding infamy and diſgrace without diſtinction upon a ſet of beings who might prove of more uſe to the community than themſelves. From the SALEM MERCURY.

LAST ſummer, as I was paſſing through New-Jerſey, a friend whom I viſited, underſtanding that I lived near Danvers, enquired whether I knew any thing reſpecting Mr. William Hines, who died a priſoner in England, near the cloſe of the war ; he was particularly deſirous of knowing whether his two ſons, who were with him, ſurvived their impriſonment, and whether either of them returned to his country ; but I could give him no information. He then went to his draw, and took out a newſpaper, which was carefully wrapped up : the paper was printed by Shepard Kollock, at Chatham, New-Jerſey, a little before the peace—This, he ſaid, I wiſh to preſerve as long as I live, and ſhould think myſelf paid for taking newſpapers all the while, when in one of them I ſhould find ſuch a piece as this. When he read it, I found myſelf, as well as my friend, peculiarly affected ; and think it muſt be pleaſingly affecting to every feeling mind ; for in it there appears mingled the afflictions of Joſeph—the affections of a father—the faith of the faithful—the experience and hope of a Chriſtian—the courage and love of a martyr—and the high ſenſe and regard for liberty and our country, which become every true American. It was immediately copied, and is now ſent to you, with a deſire that you would give it a place in the Mercury.

An Inhabitant of Salem.

LONDON, July 14. 1782.

ON the 14th of June laſt, died in Forton priſon, near Portſmouth, Mr. William Hines, an officer of the General Gates private ſhip of war, from Danvers, near Boſton ; after having, with much patience, and with the moſt irreproachable conduct, ſuſtained a three years captivity. He was a man of eminent religion and virtue. Finding death ſwiftly advancing, he called to him his two ſons, Francis and William, the one in the 18th, and the other in the 15th year of his age—and ſaid, My dear boys, I cheerfully ſubmit to my lot ; for it is appointed for all men once to die. I meekly reſign un to the providence of God ; for I ſee infinite mercy towards me in this diſpenſation——Indeed, why ſhould I repine ? I ſhall now ſpeedily obtain that releaſe, which my eyes have often failed me in looking after. Oh ! wretched man that I was !——that my faith had almoſt failed me, as to my temporal deliverance, at the moment my God was about to give me my grand diſcharge. Who or what ſhall now confine me ? I ſhall ſoon be free as a celeſtial. Farewell, farewell, bolts, bars and priſons ! Adieu, ye dungeons ! Adieu, ye tents of clay ! Welcome, fair day, and liberty ! the time of my redemption draweth nigh——but, my dear boys, how ſhall I bid farewell to you ? that final parting, which would have been eaſy——which would have been bliſsful, in our cottage at Danvers, gives a pungent grief to my ſpirits——I leave you, alas ! in this abode of ſorrow and wretchedneſs ; but I charge you to pray unto God, from this far country——and cry unto him, from this ſtrange land. I hope it will be given you to reviſit the land of your nativity, and to enjoy peace and proſperity, for the days wherein ye have ſeen evil. Let an high and genuine ſenſe of liberty direct and animate your whole conduct. I give no direction concerning my bones——they, indeed, muſt lie in this region of oppreſſion and cruelty. O that I had been buried in ſome part of the American world ! then would the clods of the valley have been ſweet unto me.——It is done !——My children, weep not for me ; but weep for yourſelves, and for the ſlain of your people : if ever you mourn, let it be for the calamities of your country—highly beloved, becauſe greatly injured.——Francis, give me thy hand ; ſlender as thine arm is, it may ſhield thy brother.——The God of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob bleſs the lads !

AMERICA.

BERMUDA, April 14.

Saturday laſt a fine whale was taken off the eaſt end of theſe iſlands by the town boats; and on Wedneſday morning two more by the Ely's Harbour boats, making in the whole five fine whales this early part of the ſeaſon.—Oil ſells now by the barrel at 2s. 8d. per gallon, and at 3s. 4d. retail, in Somerſet.

April 21. By accounts from the Windward and Leeward Iſlands, received this week, we learn, that there was the greateſt proſpect of fine crops this ſeaſon that has been for many years; and that all kind of American produce was cheaper among the iſlands than on the continent, by forty per cent.

There is living in Tucker's town, a perſon of the name of Graiſbury, upwards of 102 years of age, a carpenter by trade, and he is now building a large two ſail boat himſelf. There is alſo a Mrs. Burch, who lives at the ſame place, and is ſaid to be upwards of 100 years of age: there are ſeveral others of nearly that age, inhabitants of theſe iſlands, which proves, beyond all doubt, the healthineſs of the climate; and were the male inhabitants not obliged to go abroad for employ, numbers of which never return, and others loſt at ſea, theſe iſlands would ſoon be overrun with the natives: by the neareſt calculation that can be made, there is at this time in Bermuda, ſix females to one male.

April 28. Saturday laſt we had a violent gale of wind here, and on Sunday we had another, accompanied by rain, which did conſiderable damage to the cotton trees, threw down parts of ſeveral houſes in Port Royal, ſunk one veſſel, and drove another aſhore.

May 5. The ſloop Carleton, captain Crathorn, from New Providence, paſſed by Bermuda this week, bound for Virginia, by whom we learn, that the ſloop Hawk, captain Logan, taken by Dryſdale at the Caicoſes, was condemned there and ſold.—Thirty two tierces and five barrels of indigo were ſaved by her as ſoon ſhe was ſeized out of a French veſſel caſt away.

HARTFORD, (Connecticut) May 21.

His Excellency Governor Huntington's ſpeech, at the opening of the preſent Aſſembly.

Gentlemen of the Council, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives.

THE preſent being the ſtated ſeaſon for convening the legiſlature, the annual buſineſs of the May ſeſſion will of courſe claim your attention.

You have doubtleſs received information from the public prints, of the intended convention of commiſſioners to meet at Philadelphia the preſent month, for the purpoſe of reviſing the articles of confederation; a plan firſt adopted by the Commonwealth of Virginia, and afterwards recommended by the United States in Congreſs aſſembled; the nature and importance of this ſubject, induced me to convene the council ſome time ſince, to adviſe whether the attending circumſtances rendered it neceſſary to call a ſpecial aſſembly. The council upon conſultation were unanimous in the negative upon the queſtion; they ſuppoſed if the ſubject ſhould be taken up early by this aſſembly, no diſadvantage would accrue from the delay to this time, ſufficient to countervail the trouble and expence of calling a ſpecial aſſembly; being myſelf of the ſame ſentiments, this buſineſs now remains for your conſideration, you will doubtleſs think proper to turn your attention to it as early as may be; the enſuing week, being the time appointed for the commiſſioners meeting.

You will recollect ſeveral articles that were taken into conſideration the laſt ſeſſion, but not compleated.

The bill providing alteration in the puniſhments of certain crimes, ſuch as forgery, burglary, counterfeiting, and horſe-ſtealing, by ſubjecting the criminals to ſervitude.

Alſo the bill for the encouragement of manufactures and agriculture, the growth of hemp, &c I cannot but think thoſe ſubjects worthy of your further conſideration.

The embarraſſments upon trade, eſpecially the maritime part, are very diſcouraging at this day; ample relief in this caſe, ſeems to require ſome more extenſive regulations than any particular ſtate hath power to make it, is a national object of great importance; but ſome ſalutary regulations may perhaps be adopted by this ſtate, which will prove beneficial: this ſubject may merit the attention of the aſſembly.

You will again bring into view the paſt requiſitions of Congreſs, which were taken under conſideration the laſt ſeſſion, but nothing compleated thereon; there is alſo a latter requiſition which will now be laid before you.

It will alſo be neceſſary to provide ſupplies to defray the expences of civil government the current year.

The deranged ſtate of our finances, and the natural conſequences in ſome meaſure, the preſſure of debts, both of a public and private nature, appear to be objects of great importance, and call for the attention and wiſeſt exertions of this aſſembly. It is confeſſedly the moſt embarraſſing ſubject that will come before you, and will doubtleſs be conſidered with the attention, which a ſubject of ſuch magnitude juſtly merits.

It muſt be deſirable to the feeling heart, and is doubtleſs an indiſpenſible duty to unlade the heavy burthen, and relieve the diſtreſs as far as may be in our power, conſiſtent with the principles of juſtice, but you are ſenſible, for a ſovereign power to ſacrifice theſe principles in any inſtance, is always inexcuſable, and will in the event prove a ſacrifice of the true intereſt of the people.

It will not be expected for me to point out the particular modes of granting relief; let me only obſerve, it ſeems to anſwer no valuable purpoſe to lay taxes beyond the ability of the people to pay with punctuality, and without diſtreſs; but it appears to me of great importance, that ſuch funds as may be provided, be adequate to defray the debts and expenditures for which they are appropriated; ſuch a meaſure will operate more in eſtabliſhing public credit, than is readily conceived.

I ſubmit to the conſideration of this aſſembly, whether it may not be expedient, to direct a plain and conciſe ſtatement to be made, of the debts and expenditures of government, from the commencement of the late war to the preſent time, including the payments which have been made; and cauſe it to be publiſhed for the information of the good people of this ſtate, that they may be fully acquainted with the application of their monies, informed how great a part of the debt neceſſarily incurred is already diſcharged; will not ſuch a ſtating, with the payments already made, carry conviction with it, that by the practice of frugality and induſtry, with wiſe and prudent management, we may riſe ſuperior to our preſent embarraſſments, and that public faith may be fully eſtabliſhed.

Gentlemen, You will be perſuaded, that a ſpirit of candour in all your deliberations, and its happy conſequences, an unanimity of council, are moſt eſſential requiſites, to promote the peace, the proſperity, and happineſs of a free people.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

SATURDAY, May 12.

ON the queſtion whether delegates ſhould be ſent by this ſtate, to the propoſed convention to be held at Philadelphia, for the purpoſe of reviſing and altering the articles of confederation.

Colonel Burrell roſe, and in general terms expreſſed himſelf to be in favour of the meaſure, and thought it expedient to ſend.

General Huntington.—Mr. Speaker, the meaſure under conſideration is recommended by Congreſs, and has been either anticipated or acceded to by moſt of the ſtates, I would therefore from the reſpect to Congreſs, and affection to our ſiſter ſtates, have this ſtate concur with them. I ſhould ſtop here Mr. Speaker, if I had not reaſon to think that there are ſome gentlemen who are of opinion that the confederation is ſufficient for its purpoſes, and ſome who believe we ſhould do better without any. I beg therefore to be indulged in ſome obſervations on the ſubject.

The confederation was framed whilſt this country was ſmarting under the hand of arbitrary power. It ſeems to have been the leading object of the framers of it to erect an authority over this country, without committing abſolutely any power to it. The compact between the ſeveral ſtates has not any penalty annexed to it for the breach of its conditions: nor is it provided with any power of coercing a compliance; the obſervance of it depends entirely on the good will and pleaſure of each ſtate; whenever, therefore, any ſtate refuſes a compliance with a requiſition made agreeable to the confederation, all obligation on the part of the other ſtates is diſſolved. If this reaſoning is juſt, we have no confederation; at any rate it is an inſufficient one.—The importance of a general government, a ſuperintending power, that ſhall extend to all parts of our extenſive territory, to ſecure peace and the adminiſtration of juſtice between one ſtate and another, and between theſe ſtates and foreign nations, muſt be obvious to the leaſt reflection. All rational calculations muſt very much fail us if the diverſity of ſentiments, manners, and local circumſtances, the unequal diſtribution of the public debt, and the jealouſies of trade do not create animoſities and contentions of the moſt ſerious nature; where and when they will terminate Omniſcience only knows. Shall we truſt the event to accident, and leave government to ariſe out of the diſtractions of the people? Or ſhall we in a cool and diſpaſſionate hour conſult with our ſiſter ſtates, on the expediency of making alterations in the confederation, in order to obtain the original object of it? I know that a man removed in his own apprehenſions from ſcenes of danger, with plenty, and a kind neighbourhood about him, is apt to hug himſelf in his eaſe and ſecurity, and think that the independent ſtate of Connecticut is ſufficient for all things. Let us then, take a view of this ſovereign ſtate unconnected with the others. We are without alliance or treaty with any foreign nation, and without any probability of making either, as we have no equivalent to give in exchange for the benefits which others have to beſtow on us. We are expoſed to the inſults and depredations of a ſingle ſhip of war. But ſuppoſe there were no fears from this quarter, what ſecurity have we of the peaceable diſpoſition of our neighbours? I remember a gentleman told us laſt October in the courſe of a debate on another queſtion, that the people of Poland were divided up in compaſſion to them. Who knows how long it will be before Maſſachuſetts, New-York, and perhaps Rhode-Iſland, will combine, and in the exceſs of their affection for this ſtate, divide us among them? What can we promiſe ourſelves from the turbulent ſpirit of one, the ſelfiſhneſs of another, or the righteouſneſs of a third?

How long will it be before the relative rights of theſe ſtates will come into queſtion? Within twenty years, perhaps within ten, Maſſachuſetts will diſcover that ſhe has an excluſive right to the fiſheries on her extenſive coaſts. Complaints will be brought to this aſſembly that our fiſhermen are driven from Nantucket Shoals—we ſhall tranſmit theſe complaints to Congreſs——they will recommend to Maſſachuſetts to indemnify for the loſs and outrage—perhaps they will avail, but I don't believe they will. It is more probable that they will write a long letter of juſtification to Congreſs, and cloſe it with reminding them of old continental money, and the Penobſcot expedition.

I am aware, Mr. Speaker, that my fears may be conſidered by ſome to be viſionary—that ſome may attribute my ſentiments on government to military habits of thinking, or reſolve them into the baneful influence of the Cincinnati. Theſe conſiderations however cannot diſſuade me from ſpeaking what I think to be the dictates of truth and duty. I am an advocate for an efficient general government, and for a revenue adequate to the nature and exigencies of it. This revenue muſt not depend on the will of any particular ſtate. I am perſuaded a ſufficient revenue (except in caſe of an expenſive war) may be drawn from the ſources which this ſtate has already granted to Congreſs, bating the limitations and reſtrictions under which they lie. I mean the regulation of trade for fifteen years, and the five per cent. impoſt. The introduction of our own ſhipping into the carrying trade, which yields a certain profit, is an object of great importance—as the variety of ſoil and climate within the United States is capable of producing every article which either the convenience or luxury of man requires. Should the impoſt be carried to exceſs, or ſhould foreigners reſiſt impoſitions on their ſhips, and make repriſals by laying counter duties on ours, the natural tendency of both will be to promote the growth and manufacture among ourſelves of the articles affected by the impoſitions—and proportionably increaſe our true wealth and independence.——Manufactures, more than any other employment, will increaſe our numbers—in that conſiſts the ſtrength and glory of a people.

Mr. Granger declared himſelf to be oppoſed to ſending delegates to the convention, he conceived it would be diſagreeable to his conſtituents, he thought the liberties of the people would be endangered by it, that the conſtitution of this ſtate was already ſufficient for every purpoſe, added to the articles of confederation, in which ſufficient power was already delegated to Congreſs, and concluded by ſaying, that he imagined theſe things would have a tendency to produce a regal government in this country.

Mr. Humphrey, on the ſame ſide with Mr. Granger, obſerved, that he thought it would be beſt to oppoſe the meaſure in the firſt inſtance, that if Connecticut ſhould ſend, and the convention ſhould recommend to the ſtates any alteration in the articles of confederation, and a majority of the ſtates ſhould comply with ſuch recommendation, and adopt the meaſures propoſed by it, the majority would compel the minority to comply alſo, however oppoſed the latter might be to any change in the fœderal government; and he concluded by ſaying, that he approved of the wiſdom and policy of Rhode Iſland in refuſing to ſend delegates to the convention, and that the conduct of that ſtate, in this particular, was worthy imitation.

Colonel Seymour declared himſelf to be in favour of ſending delegates to the convention. He was happy, he ſaid, that a motion for a general convention of the ſtates, had come from ſo reſpectable a quarter as the ſtate of Virginia, that he was pleaſed that it originated there—that that ſtate conceived the affairs of the union to have arrived to an alarming criſis——that he was fully of that opinion—that the ſtate of Vermont was ballancing between Canada and the United States—that the ſettlements on the Ohio were rapidly increaſing, and at the expence of the more ſettled parts of the weſtern ſtates, who were much drained by conſtant emigrations—that New-York was too much attached to her local intereſts, and had become unfœderal—that the affairs of the Maſſachuſetts were ſtill unſettled, and that Rhode-Iſland, by her iniquity, had juſtly become the reproach and ſcorn of her neighbours. That this was a melancholy picture, and gave juſt occaſion for the remark of Virginia, that the affairs of the United States had arrived to an alarming criſis; he flattered himſelf that the convention would find a remedy for all theſe evils, and that efficiency might be given to the fœderal government, that every part of the United States, however disjointed at preſent, might be brought to promote the great objects at firſt propoſed by their union.

Mr. Perkins was oppoſed to the meaſure, and ſaid, that the ſtate would ſend men that had been delicately bred, and who were in affluent circumſtances, that could not feel for the people in this day of diſtreſs; if we ſend we ſhall be under double obligation to adopt what the convention ſhall recommend, for if we ſay A, we muſt ſay B.

Colonel Wadſworth. It is allowed by every body that the preſent confederation does not anſwer the purpoſes of a fœderal government; and notwithſtanding the ſolemnity with which we have declared the articles of the confederation ſhall be inviolably preſerved, we find they are entirely neglected; and there is no power in the fœderal government to enforce them.

One gentleman ſays, we ſhould oppoſe any alteration in the firſt inſtance, leaſt a majority of the ſtates ſhould recommend an alteration, and force us to a compliance, and approves the conduct of Rhode Iſland, in refuſing to ſend delegates to the convention. I preſume the houſe will not copy Rhode Iſland in any of their vile acts of legiſlation; they have forfeited all claim to the confidence of the United States, and of the whole world; their acts are a diſgrace to the human race. Mr. Fitch finds fault with us for cenſuring that ſtate, I hope we ſhall always dare to tell them the truth: and while they make laws that are founded in injuſtice, I ſhall claim, and take the liberty to ſay what I pleaſe about thoſe laws. Colonel Seymour well obſerves it is an alarming criſis, and that we have much to hope from the convention. It is alarming indeed, when there is no force in the fœderal government, and when there are not wanting, men who boldly declare, that it would be better to go back to Great Britain. It is ſaid ſir, there is not wanting, at leaſt, one member of aſſembly, who wiſhes we had been conquered by the Britiſh, at any period of the war. Mr. Perkins objects to having any power to enforce the acts of the fœderal government. If there is to be no power of coercion, there is to be no government, if his objections are ſerious, they go to the deſtroying all government; for without power to enforce obedience there can be none. We are alſo told, our delegates will be men delicately bred, that don't know or feel for the people——are we ſo ſtupid as to ſend deligates that are unacquainted with our ſituation and circumſtances, have we been ſo? If we have, let us emerge from this ſtupidity, and ſend men that live in the country, have been hardly bred, and know what our wants are.

No ſtate has more reaſon to wiſh for an alteration of the articles of confederation than Connecticut. Fertile and well cultivated, we have large exports, from the produce of our land, and we conſume much foreign produce—the profits of importation go entirely to our neighbour ſtates, there is collected by them, at leaſt, one hundred thouſand dollars impoſt, which we pay. The 8th article of the preſent confederation is univerſally reprobated, yet not altered, and if it remains as it is, this ſtate will finally be ruined. Captain Granger fears arbitrary power, and the deſtruction of the poor, and ſays, we ſhall all become aſſes. This ſtate may well be compared to a ſtrong aſs, couching down, not under two, but twenty burthens, and they will finally cruſh us out of exiſtence.

Mr. Fitch declared himſelf to be againſt ſending delegates to the convention; the priviledges of the people he was afraid would be expoſed——that he would not ſee them abridged, but would ever ſupport them to the laſt degree.

Mr. Davenport. The determination of the preſent queſtion may be important, it is certainly a ſerious time as it reſpects government. Much has been ſaid on the ſubject, but I cannot refrain from offering my ſentiments upon it. The gentlemen oppoſed to ſending delegates to the convention, ſay, that the articles of confederation need no reviſion; that they are fully adequate to the purpoſes for which they were intended. This amounts to a declaration that we want no continental government; for what power has Congreſs now? They have, it is true, the power of demanding money, but have they power to collect it? The conduct of this houſe, in treating with neglect, if not with contempt, their requiſitions, determines that they have not. beſides is this agreeable to the ſentiments of this aſſembly: Have not they heretofore, by their acts, given additional powers to Congreſs, by granting them the impoſt, and the right of regulating trade; and has not there been great clamour againſt the ſtate of New-York for not granting the ſame additional authority to Congreſs, and have not ſome gentlemen, in fact, urged that meaſures ought to be taken to coerce it; when at the ſame time the requirements of Congreſs, made in virtue of the confederation, were refuſed to be complied with by us; but view us diſconnected, what would have been the conſequence of diſunion in the late war. Was not all the ſtrength of the United States neceſſary? and that too, when the reſolutions of Congreſs were moſt critically attended to and obſerved, when they were of more force than law, and we may be under the neceſſity of this united force hereafter, but is not an efficient natural government neceſſary to preſerve peace between the ſtates, their intereſts are in ſome meaſure oppoſed, and contentions very eaſily ariſe when this is the caſe, unleſs there is a controuling power.

Some of the gentlemen are afraid of the meaſures which the ſouthern ſtates may wiſh to adopt, and ſay, that the nature of their governments, and that their feelings are more arbitrary and deſpotic than ours; is this the caſe? have not they run into the extremes of democracy? Georgia, the moſt ſouthern ſtate, as much influenced, we ſhould ſuppoſe, by ſuch principles as any, has by her conſtitution provided, that no perſon ſhall be elected governor two years ſucceſſively: ſome of the other ſtates have made proviſions not very diſſimilar. The gentlemen who were in Congreſs from thoſe ſtates, at the time of framing the confederation, and who aſſiſted in that buſineſs, were purely republican. I would aſk, is it likely we ſhall never be diſturbed from abroad, why are additional troops ordered out to Canada? Beſides, we are officially informed there is a proſpect of trouble from the weſtern ſettlers, and the treaty which is on foot with Spain, and which is diſreliſhed by ſome of the ſtates, may be a means of creating a neceſſity for union and united ſtrength.

This convention was firſt propoſed to remedy the evils ariſing from the embarraſſments of our trade: this is an object we have much at heart. I am glad the ſouthern ſtates are alarmed, that they wiſh to conſolidate the Union: they have been heretofore oppoſed to federal meaſures, their intereſts have been oppoſed to trade regulations: I hope ſomething may be effected by the convention, and that we may ſend delegates.

Mr. Hopkins ſaid, he had very little to expect from the propoſed convention, yet he concluded by ſaying he ſhould be for the meaſure out of compliment to the ſiſter ſtates.

Mr. Welton was in favor of ſending, becauſe according to preſent appearances, and unleſs ſome alteration takes place, the Union will be entirely at an end.

Mr. Chauncey. I am for ſending members to the convention, but am anticipated by the gentlemen who ſpoke before me, they have left little to be urged on the ſubject. I have not been before this ſeſſion honored with a ſeat in this houſe, but very often a ſpectator in the galleries. I have conſtantly heard complaints that Congreſs had not power enough—that this ſtate had large demands againſt the United States—that if Congreſs had power to regulate our trade and eſtabliſh a ſyſtem of revenue, we might be paid, or at leaſt know what was due to us. I have often heard it urged, that all the evils we feel, were for the want of a well regulated fœderal government. We have ſomething to hope and nothing to fear, from the convention: but I will not detain the houſe, the reaſons for ſending delegates are too many and too obvious to eſcape our notice.

Col. Hinman was in favour of ſending, and expreſſed his approbation of the meaſure.

[Several gentlemen ſpoke on the ſubject, but we have not been able to collect the purport of their obſervations.]

BALTIMORE, May 25.

It appears by a late calculation, that France contains 105,000,000 acres of land, of which 15,000,000 are in rivers, high roads towns, boroughs, villages, and hamlets; 20 000,000 in parks, fields, woods, forests, and ſprings; the 70,000,000 acres of cultivated land are divided into excellent, good, middling, and bad: the territorial impoſt is reckoned at 168 000,000 livres; the annual harveſt is calculated at 10,000,000 of ſheaves of corn, reckoning 125 ſheaves per acre upon 40,000,000 acres cultivated annually.

The profeſſor Spitler, at Gottingen, has publiſhed a hiſtory of Hanover, in which are the following particulars:

"It contains a ſurface of 78 000 ſquare miles and one quarter; its population does not exceed 180,000 ſouls; the ſubſidy furniſhed annually by that country to the military cheſt amounts to fifty-five thouſand pounds ſterling; the other provinces appertaining to the king of England, in Germany, are leſs charged; thoſe of Bremen and Werden, where the population is equal to that of Hanover, do not pay more than forty-eight thouſand pounds, and Lunenburg which is infinitely more populous, pays no more than ſixty thouſand pounds. According to the above author, it appears that every father of a family having a wife and two children about the age of fourteen years, pays annually, in direct taxes, two pounds ſterling, although he poſſeſſes neither land or cattle."

The Jeſuits at Mohilow, a town in Poland, erected a canopy for the empreſs of Ruſſia to ſit under while ſhe attended at divine ſervice in their chapel; but ſhe refuſed the uſe of it, ſaying, "That queens and kings, in the ſight of, or before God, were no more than other people."

PITTSBURGH, April 21.

Extract of a letter from Danville (Kentucky) dated February 22.

"A party of men who lately went againſt the Checkamawgway Indian towns have returned: forty miles from the towns they fell in with a camp, at which there were fifteen Indians, eight of whom they killed, the remaining ſeven eſcaping towards the towns."

SHIP NEWS.

A letter from Amſterdam, dated the 2d of April, mentions the arrival of the ſhip North America, Tys de Has, commander, from Baltimore to that city, after a paſſage of four weeks.

A Liverpool newſpaper, of the 5th of March adviſes, that the Agneſs, Youd, from Virginia for that port, was on ſhore on the iſland of Colonſay, the cargo landed, and the veſſel likely to be got off.

The New-York, Shackeely, from Amſterdam; Trooper, Brown, from Montego-Bay; Polly, Durham; Mercury, Tinker; Friendſhip, Burnham, and Sally, Chaſe, from Charleſton; Diſpatch, Tabor, from Alexandria, and Edward, Potter, from Shelburne, are arrived at New-York.

The ſhip Betſey, Capt. M'Keevar, from Dublin, laden with bale goods and coal, bound to New-York, was caſt away ten miles to the ſouthward of Egg Harbour. Two of the crew were loſt, but the chief part of the cargo is ſaved.

†‡† The Officers and Members of the Society for alleviating the Miſeries of the Public Priſons, are requeſted to meet this evening at the German Lutheran School Houſe, in Cherry Alley, preciſely at ſeven o'clock.

As the day for celebrating the anniverſary of independence is approaching, a correſpondent propoſes that, added to the uſual mode of celebrating it, a ſuitable perſon ſhould be pitched upon in the different villages, counties or townſhips, to introduce the entertainment of the day with an oration upon ſome ſubject connected with the liberty of the government of the United States. Where a clergyman can be had, a prayer ſuited to the day ſhould precede the delivery of the oration. By theſe means rational entertainment and uſeful knowledge may be blended with the pleaſures of the table, and the hiſtory of important events and illuſtrious characters may be conveyed in an eaſy and agreeable manner to poſterity.

It is ſaid that the firſt ſtep towards diſcharging the important duties of the Federal Convention will be the appointment of a delegate from each ſtate, as a committee to receive communications from the other members, and to arrange, digeſt and report a ſyſtem for the ſubſequent diſcuſſion of the whole body. This plan is admirably adapted for the diſpatch of buſineſs, as it cuts off a field for long and deſultory debate upon firſt principles, and, by collecting materials from every quarter to form a ſolid and comprehenſive foundation, leaves little beſides the eaſy taſk of raiſing and adorning the ſuperſtructure to the collective labour of a popular aſſembly. When indeed we conſider the critical ſituation of the country, the anxiety with which every good citizen regards this dernier reſorte, and the deciſive effect it muſt have upon the peace and proſperity of America, though every thing ſhould certainly be given to prudence and deliberation, not a moment can be ſpared to uſeleſs forms or unprofitable controverſy.

On Sunday laſt his Excellency General Waſhington, accompanied by a number of reſpectable members of the proteſtant and diſſenting churches, attended divine ſervice at the Catholic Chapel. The anthems and other ſolemn pieces of muſic performed on this occaſion were admirably adapted to diffuſe a ſpirit of devotion throughout a very crowded congregation, and to give effect to an excellent ſermon delivered by the Rev. Mr. Beeſton.

Mr. Joſeph Cowden and Mr. Robert Clarkſon were on Monday ordained Deacons at Chriſt Church by the Right Rev. William White: the former gentleman was admitted into Prieſts orders on the day following: as this was the firſt exerciſe of our amiable Prelate's epiſcopal juriſdiction in Pennſylvania, a numerous concourſe of citizens attended the holy ceremony.

We have an account, via Malaga, of twenty citizens of America who are held in ſlavery at Algiers. From what quarter are theſe unhappy men to expect relief, ſince the ſcanty reſource of voluntary contributions has proved ineffectual, and the aid of the federal government muſt be ſlow and uncertain? In a buſineſs of ſuch humanity there is a kind of obligation upon the ſtates collectively and individually, and it is ſtrange that while enormous ſums are appropriated to objects of ornament and convenience in this and the other cities of the continent, not a thought has been beſtowed upon the relief of our captive brethren by thoſe who can thus command the public purſe.

It has been frequently ſaid that the diſorders incidental to commerce, work their own cure; and it muſt yield the patriotic mind ſincere pleaſure to perceive, that Pennſylvania promiſes to furniſh an additional inſtance, in proof of that obſervation. The waſte and idle ſcene that ſucceeded the extravagant importations of the years 1783 and 1784, begin already to vaniſh: the ſtream of the Delaware is again loaded with veſſels, and its banks have renewed the tumult of induſtry. The experience that repreſents the folly of our paſt tranſactions, has likewiſe provided, it is hoped, the prudence which is requiſite to perpetuate the advantages of a regular trade.

Such is the encouragement derived from the late adventurers to India, that a ſubſcription is now open in this city, for eſtabliſhing a permanent company in that trade.—There are two ways, a commercial correſpondent remarks, by which a monopoly may be effected; one proceeding from the authority of the ſtate, and the other operating by means of an aſſociation, which, as it acquires artificial ſtrength from collective wealth, is enabled to ſurpaſs, and eventually to defeat the efforts of the enterpriſing individual. Our conſtitution happily denies the power to ſanction a monopoly; and therefore, with us, the only queſtion that can ariſe is, how far the government ought to exerciſe its power to prevent one.

Though no American agent is ſtationed at the court of Liſbon, we underſtand that a treaty of commerce has been agitated through Mr. Adams, and that the only obſtacles to its accompliſhment reſpect the introduction of American wheat into Portugal, and the eſtabliſhment of a free port in one of the Weſtern Iſles. Theſe are points anxiouſly ſtipulated on the part of Congreſs, but declared by the Portugueſe government to be incompatible with the exiſting treaties with other powers, who are of right to enjoy whatever advantages may be conceded by ſubſequent arrangements to the moſt favoured nations. The pride of that court ſeems hurt indeed, at the little reſpect that has been paid to it; and the Queen, who jokingly ſays that ſhe was always a whig in her heart, thinks, that in the rage for appointing Envoys and Ambaſſadors, the United States might have favoured her with a viſit.

Extracts from the JOURNAL of the UNITED STATES in CONGRESS aſſembled. Thurſday, May 10, 1787.

Reſolved, That the order paſſed on the firſt day of September 1786, in the words following, viz. "That when a queſtion is ſet ſide by the previous queſtion, it ſhall not be in order afterwards, formally or ſubſtantially, to move the ſame, unleſs there ſhall be the ſame, or as many ſtates repreſented in Congreſs, be, and the ſame is hereby repealed."

A motion was made by Mr. Kearny, ſeconded by Mr. Meredith, in the words following, viz.

Reſolved, That on the 16th of the preſent month, Congreſs will adjourn, to meet on the ſecond Monday in June next, at the city of Philadelphia, in the ſtate of Pennſylvania, for the diſpatch of public buſineſs; and the preſident of Congreſs is hereby authoriſed and directed on the ſaid 16th day of May, to adjourn Congreſs accordingly.

This being objected to as not in order, and the preſident calling for the judgment of the houſe, the queſtion was ſtated by Mr. King, in the words following, viz.

Is the motion of Mr. Kearny in order? The ſame being in direct oppoſition to a clauſe of an ordinance of Congreſs of the 23d day of December, 1784, in the words following, viz. "That on the 24th day of December, inſt. Congreſs ſtand adjourned to meet at the city of New-York, on the 11th day of January following, for the diſpatch of public buſineſs, and that the ſeſſions of Congreſs be held at the place laſt mentioned, until the buildings aforeſaid ſhall be ready for their reception.

On the queſtion, the motion was ſet aſide, as being out of order.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THERE has lately appeared a publication, entitled, the trial of Alice Clifton, a Mulatto girl, for the murder of her baſtard child.—As this publication is calculated to ſacrifice the moſt delicate feelings of virtuous and amiable minds to proſpects of trifling private gain, it cannot be expected to have been compoſed with a due regard to truth, common ſenſe or probability. The expreſſions of men under the awful obligations of an oath or affirmation, are of too much importance to their own characters, and too valuable to public juſtice, to be perverted or trifled with in any inſtance whatever—and blunders are as unpardonable as the moſt criminal intentions, whenever their commiſſion tends to injure any one's reputation.

However pecuniary expectations might have tempted the publiſher of this unhappy girl's trial to relate a part of the teſtimony given on the occaſion, no apology can be made for including the evidences of Dr. Jones and Dr. Foulke, nor can any excuſe be admiſſible for the falſe and ungrammatical manner of their recital.

Theſe gentlemen, as medical witneſſes, were obliged to expoſe many of the moſt ſacred and important ſecrets of female ſufferance, and although they were eſſential and proper when revealed with becoming ſolemnity to a court and jury, in a caſe of life and death, yet they ought not to be divulged, miſrepreſented in print, and offered to the hand of every inſenſible, low-minded creature, whoſe ſhilling will procure the pamphlet in queſtion.

If the publiſher has either a wife, a mother or a ſiſter——he ſhould have given her the manuſcript for peruſal, as the ſhock it muſt have occaſioned a delicate woman, might perhaps have prevented its paſſing the preſs.

A Friend to Truth and Delicacy.

Meſſrs. Printers,

I Have peruſed an advertiſement in your paper of yeſterday, ſigned WILLIAM BELL, reſpecting certain paſſengers, imported in the ſhip Patſey Rutledge, from Hamburgh. Knowing Captain Bell to be a gentleman of ſenſe and reputation, I am really ſurprized that he would wiſh, without any reaſon or juſt cauſe, to deſtroy the good opinion which this country have and ſtill do entertain of the Hamburgh merchants, and which I do not doubt they always will maintain.

The extracts of the letters in your paper of the 28th inſt. can be produced at any time, though I believe it is needleſs, as there are more ſufficient proofs, that a great part of theſe paſſengers have been brought out of the Spin houſe: The officers from the Health-office have clearly perceived the coat of arms of Hamburgh between the ſhoulders of four of them. Several of the females have acknowledged to Col. Farmer, that they were taken out of the Spin houſe, and brought on board of the Patſey Rutledge; add to which, why would council have interferred unleſs they had ſufficient grounds for their conduct relative thereto? This, in my opinion, proves the fact more than a thouſand letters. There is nothing in the extracts of our letters, that can be explained as a judgment upon the paſſengers in general, without diſtinction.—I, for my part, am very far from ſuppoſing this as ſome of them were recommended to me and to other gentlemen, merchants of this city, by very reſpectable houſes in Hamburgh. I think, nevertheleſs, that the publiſhing thoſe extracts was very neceſſary, both from a duty we owe to this and our country, as well as for the ſafety and happineſs of thoſe who ſhould become purchaſers of theſe people; by theſe means, the impoſition will be guarded againſt, the good will meet with proper encouragement, and the bad left to ſuffer that puniſhment which their demerit juſtly deſerves.

Philadelphia, May 26, 1787. tfſ

Notice is hereby Given,

THAT complaint having been made by the inhabitants to the ſtreet commiſſioners, of the daily abuſes committed by carters and draymen, making a practice of ſtanding on the footways with their carts drays, waggons, and horſes, particularly on the eaſt ſide of the Drawbridge, and along Front ſtreet, northward, as alſo in the interſections of the ſtreets of this city, to the annoyance of the inhabitants, which has become a very great nuiſance: For remedy whereof, the offenders are hereby required, to remove ſaid nuiſances from off the foot paſſage.

And whereas it has become notorious, that carters and others who haul wood from the wharves of this city, make a practice of uſing cord wood for ſtandards to their carts and waggons, in open violation of the law in ſuch caſe made and provided; and as it is the duty of the commiſſioners to check ſuch abuſes, they hereby notify ſaid carters, and others employed in carting of wood, that they provide themſelves with hewn ſtandards, branded on the outſide with the initial letters of their chriſtian and ſurnames, as by law directed, on or before the 20th day of June next. On failure thereof, they may expect the law will be put in force againſt every ſuch offender.

The admirable quality of theſe lands, and the favourable climate in which they are ſituated, are too well known to need deſcription. The conditions of ſale are as follows, to wit.

1ſt. The townſhips or fractional parts of townſhips throughout the different ranges, will be ſold either entire or in lots, in alternate order; that is to ſay, where a townſhip, or fractional part of a tonſhwip, is ſold entire, the next will be ſold in lots, agreeably to ordinance of the 20th of May, 1785.

2d. The lands are not to be ſold under a dollar per acre, payable in gold or ſilver, or any of the ſecurities of the United States.

3d. The purchaſers are to pay the charges of ſurvey, which are to be eſtimated at thirty-ſix dollars in ſpecie, or certificates as aforeſaid for every townſhip; and in the ſame proportion for fractional parts of townſhips or lots; this payment to be made at the ſales, and in caſe of failure, the lands to be again expoſed to public auction.

4th. One third of the purchaſe money is to be paid at the time of purchaſe; and the remaining two thirds in three months after the date of the ſale; on which payment a certificate ſhall be given by the Treaſurer of the United States, which ſhall entitle the perſon to whom the ſame is given to receive from the Commiſſioners of this Board a proper title; provided, that if the ſecond payment is not made at the time above ſpecified, the firſt payment is to be forfeited, and the land on which the forfeit accrued be again ſet up for ſale.

5th. The platts of the townſhips will be marked by ſubdiviſions into lots of one mile ſquare, or 640 acres, and numbered from one to 36, and out of each townſhip, Lot No. 8, 11, 26 and 29, are to be reſerved for future ſale; Lot No. 16, for the maintenance of Public Schools within the reſpective townſhips, and out of every fractional part of a townſhip, as many lots of the ſame number as ſhall be found therein. There will alſo be reſerved to the United States one third part of all gold and ſilver, lead and copper mines.

Proper maps and deſcriptions of the lands will be exhibited at the time and place of ſale, and the ſales will continue from day to day until the whole are ſold.

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

An ACT for aſcertaining and confirming to certain perſons called Connecticut claimants, the lands by them claimed within the county of Luzerne, and for other purpoſes therein mentioned.

WHEREAS an unhappy diſpute for many years ſubſiſted between the province and ſtate of Pennſylvania, on the one part, and the colony and ſtate of Connecticut on the other part, relative to certain lands within the charter boundary of Pennſylvania, but which were claimed by Connecticut, as falling within the limits of her charter; which diſpute was finally terminated by the decree of the court of commiſſioners at Trenton, on the thirtieth day of December, one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty-two, in the mode preſcribed by the articles of confederation of the United States; by which decree the queſtion between the two ſtates, was decided in favor of Pennſylvania: And whereas, before the termination of the ſaid claim of Connecticut, a number of its inhabitants, with their aſſociates, ſettled upon and improved divers tracts of land, lying on or near to the northeaſt branch of the river Suſquehanna, and the waters thereof, and now within the county of Luzerne: And whereas, parts of the ſame lands have been claimed under titles derived from the late proprietaries of Pennſylvania; and theſe interfering claims have occaſioned much contention, expence and bloodſhed: and this aſſembly being deſirous of putting an end to thoſe evils, by confirming ſuch of the Connecticut claims, as were acquired by actual ſettlers prior to the termination of the ſaid diſpute, agreeably to the petition of a number of the ſaid ſettlers. and by granting a juſt compenſation to the Pennſylvania claimants: And whereas, the lands aforeſaid, claimed by the Connecticut ſettlers, have been uſually aſſigned to them in rights, or lots, of about three hundred acres each, which rights, or lots, have either been entire, or in two or more diviſions: therefore

Be it enacted, and it it hereby enacted by the repreſentatives of the freemen of the commonwealth of Pennſylvania in general aſſembly met, and by the authority of the ſame, That all the ſaid rights or lots now lying within the county of Luzerne, which were occupied or acquired by Connecticut claimants, who were actual ſettlers there, at or before the termination of the claim of the ſtate of Connecticut, by the decree aforeſaid, and which rights, or lots, were particularly aſſigned to the ſaid ſettlers prior to the ſaid decree, agreeably to the regulations then in force among them, be, and they are hereby confirmed to them and their heirs and aſſigns: Provided, that all the claimants whoſe lots are hereby confirmed, ſhall by themſelves, guardians, or other lawful agents, within eight months, next after the paſſing of this act, prefer to the commiſſioners herein after mentioned, their reſpective claims to the lots aforeſaid, therein ſtating the grounds of their claims, and ſufficiently deſcribing the lots claimed, ſo that the ſame may be known and aſcertained, and ſupport the ſame by reaſonable proofs.

And whereas, it will be neceſſary to inſtitute a ſummary mode of aſcertaining and eſtabliſhing the right of each claimant. Be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That Peter Muhlenberg, Timothy Pickering and Joſeph Montgomery, eſquires, be and they are hereby appointed commiſſioners for the purpoſes hereinafter expreſſed and declared, and in caſe of the death, abſence or refuſal to ſerve of any or all of the ſaid commiſſioners, the ſupreme executive council, are hereby authoriſed and required to ſupply the vacancy or vacancies occaſioned thereby, by other new appointment or appointments.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall repair to the county of Luzerne, within two months next after the paſſing of this act, and at ſuch place within the ſame county, and at ſuch time as they the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall appoint to meet together, for the purpoſe of receiving and examining the claims of all perſons to the lots intended by this act to be confirmed. And the ſaid commiſſioners are hereby empowered to adjourn their meeting from time to time, and to ſuch places, within the ſaid county, as they ſhall judge beſt, for the proper and ſpeedy execution of their commiſſion. And that all perſons intereſted in the ſaid lots may be duly notified to make and ſupport their claims thereto, within the time preſcribed by this act, the ſaid commiſſioners ſhall cauſe it to be publiſhed in one or more of the news-papers, printed in Pennſylvania and Connecticut, with an advertiſement ſubjoined, expreſſing the time and place propoſed for their firſt meeting; and copies of this act, and of the ſaid advertiſement, ſhall alſo be poſted up at ſundry places within the ſaid county, for the information of the inhabitants. And the examination of the ſaid claims ſhall be by witneſſes, on their oaths or affirmations (which the ſaid commiſſioners are ſeverally empowered to adminiſter) and ſuch other evidence as ſhall be produced to the ſaid commiſſioners, or which they can obtain. And of ſuch claims as ſhall be ſupported by evidence ſatisfactory to the ſaid commiſſioners or any two of them, there ſhall be made a fair entry, in which the lots ſo claimed ſhall be deſcribed, and in ſuch manner that the ſame may be clearly known and aſcertained. Provided, That where two or more claims of Connecticut claimants, to the ſame lot, ſhall be preſented, and it ſhall appear to the ſaid commiſſioners by ſatisfactory evidence, that the ſame lot ought to be confirmed, agreeably to the meaning of this act, they ſhall make a fair entry thereof as aforeſaid; and if the ſeveral claimants agree to ſubmit their claims to the determination of the ſaid commiſſioners, they ſhall proceed to hear and determine the ſame accordingly; but if they do not thus agree, either of the claimants may proſecute his claim in the proper court of law, as in ordinary caſes of conteſted titles.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners be, and they are hereby authoriſed to appoint a ſurveyor or ſurveyors to ſurvey all the lots aforeſaid of the Connecticut claimants: and the ſurveys thereof ſhall be returned to the ſaid commiſſioners for their information and aſſiſtance, in proſecuting their enquiries and examinations; and the ſurveys of ſuch of the ſaid lots, the claims to which ſhall be admitted by the ſaid commiſſioners, ſhall by them be afterwards returned, together with their book of entries deſcribing the ſame, to the ſupreme executive council, who ſhall cauſe patents to be iſſued for their confirmation, and each patent ſhall comprehend all the parcels of land, which are to be confirmed to the ſame claimant, or joint-claimants, to whom by the return of the commiſſioners aforeſaid, the ſame ſhall be found to belong; and for each patent there ſhall be paid to the ſecretary of the council, the ſum of twenty ſhillings. And the ſaid ſurveyors ſhall appoint proper perſons for their chain carriers and markers: and the ſurveyors, chain carriers and markers ſhall ſeverally be ſworn or affirmed before a juſtice of the peace, or one of the ſaid commiſſioners, faithfully to perform their reſpective duties; and ſhall be allowed a reaſonable compenſation for their ſervices to be fixed by the ſaid commiſſioners, and paid by the claimants, whoſe claims to the lands ſo ſurveyed ſhall be admitted as aforeſaid, and upon whom the ſame ſhall be apportioned by the ſaid commiſſioners, in the manner they ſhall judge moſt equitable.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That each of the ſaid commiſſioners, before he acts under his commiſſion, ſhall take an oath or affirmation, before one of the members of the ſupreme executive council, or a judge of the ſupreme court, diligently to proceed in the buſineſs of his commiſſion and well and truly to hear and determine upon all claims and queſtions which ſhall come before him, in purſuance of this act, without favor, affection or hope of reward.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid commiſſioners be, and they are hereby authoriſed to appoint a ſuitable perſon for a clerk, who ſhall before them be ſworn or affirmed, faithfully to regiſter all the proceedings of the ſaid commiſſioners in purſuance of this act.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That there be allowed and paid out of the public treaſury, to each of the ſaid commiſſioners twenty ſhillings per day, and to the ſaid clerk fifteen ſhillings per day, for each day they ſhall be employed, in performing the duties required of them by the act.

And whereas the late proprietaries and divers other perſons, have heretofore acquired titles to parcels of the lands aforeſaid, agreeably to the laws and uſages of Pennſylvania, and who will be deprived thereof by the operation of this act, and as juſtice requires that compenſation be made for the lands of which they ſhall thus be diveſted; and as the ſtate is poſſeſſed of other lands, in which an equivalent may be rendered to the claimants under Pennſylvania, and as it will be neceſſary that their claims ſhould be aſcertained by a proper examination.

Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That all perſons having ſuch claims to lands which will be affected by the operation of this act, ſhall be, and they are hereby required, by themſelves, guardians or other lawful agents, within twelve months from the paſſing of this act, to preſent the ſame to the board of property, therein clearly deſcribing thoſe lands, and ſtating the grounds of their claims, and alſo adducing the proper proofs, not only of their titles, but of the ſituations, qualities and values of the lands ſo claimed, to enable the board to judge of the validity of their claims, and of the quantities of vacant lands proper to be granted as equivalents. And for every claim which ſhall be admitted by ſaid board, as duly ſupported, the equivalent by them allowed, may be taken either in the old or new purchaſe, at the option of the claimant; and warrants and patents, and all other acts of the public offices relating thereto, ſhall be performed free of expence. The ſaid board ſhall alſo allow ſuch a quantity of vacant land, to be added to ſuch equivalent, as ſhall in their judgment be equal to the expences, which muſt neceſſarily be incurred in locating and ſurveying the ſame. And that the board of property may in every caſe obtain ſatisfactory evidence of the quality and value of the land, which ſhall be claimed as aforeſaid, under the proprietary title, they may require the commiſſioners aforeſaid, during their ſitting in the ſaid county of Luzerne, to make the neceſſary enquiries. by the oaths or affirmations of lawful witneſſes, to aſcertain thoſe points; and it ſhall be the duty of the ſaid commiſſioners to enquire and report accordingly.

Signed by order of the Houſe,
THOMAS MIFFLIN, Speaker.

Enacted into a Law at Philadelphia, on Wedneſday the twenty eighth day of March, in the year of Our Lord one thouſand ſeven hundred and eighty ſeven.
PETER ZACHARY LLOYD, Clerk of the General Aſſembly.

Philadelphia, April 2d, 1787.

IN Purſuance of the foregoing Act of the General Aſſembly of Pennſylvania, we hereby give Public Notice, That the Commiſſioners thereby appointed will meet at the houſe of Col. Zebulon Butler, in Wilkeſborough (otherwiſe called Wilkeſbarre) in the county of Luzerne, on Monday the twenty-eighth day of May next, to receive and examine the Connecticut Claims to Lands in that county, and to perform the other duties required of them by the ſaid act.

MEDICINAL WATTRS,

For Drinking and Bathing, at

HARROAGATE,

Within four miles of Philadelphia, near the Frankfort Road.

THE Author of nature having provided the abovenamed ſpot with three different kinds of mineral waters, the ſubſcriber has at a conſiderable expence erected ſuch buildings over them as will render them fit to be uſed either internally or externally, according to the diſeaſes of perſons who require them.

Theſe waters have been examined by Doctors RUSH and MOYES.

The firſt ſpring contains a quantity of ſulphurous. or what thoſe gentlemen call hepatic air, and a ſmall quantity of iron. It is remarkable light, and reſembles, both in compoſition and medicinal qualities, the famous Harrowgate water in England.

The ſecond ſpring contains a quantity of fixed air, with a ſmall quantity of iron and calcareous earth, and poſſeſſes many of the virtues of the Pyrmont waters, ſo well known, and as juſtly celebrated all over the world.

The third ſpring is a common chalybeate water, and reſembles the Briſtol, in this ſtate.

The ſubſcriber ſubmits it to the judgment of the phyſicians of Philadelphia, when, in what diſeaſes, and in what quantity to recommend the uſe of theſe mineral waters. He will only obſerve, that the Harrowgate waters have rendered eſſential ſervice to perſons afflicted with diſeaſes and obſtructions of the ſtomach, bowels and kidnies. It has alſo removed worms, and relieved the irregular gout and chronic rheumatiſm. Externally applied, theſe waters have in many inſtances cured ulcers and other eruptions of the ſkin.

In the houſe erected over the Harrowgate waters are two ſhower baths, and two dreſſing rooms; and at the chalybeate ſpring is a convenient bath for plunging or ſwimming. Breakfaſt, dinner and lodgings may be had at the dwelling houſe adjoining the ſprings; and for the convenience of invalids, a light waggon will ſet off the 14th of May, and run while the ſeaſon continues, from Michael Hay's, inn-keeper, at the ſign of the King of Pruſſia, in Race-ſtreet, between Third and Fourth ſtreets: and thoſe who engage ſeats previous to the hours of ſix in the morning and half paſt two in the afternoon, the time fixed for the ſtage to ſet off, without delay, ſhould they not attend, muſt be anſwerable for the price of their ſeats.

The public may be aſſured, that no expence or trouble ſhall be ſpared to render theſe waters and baths both convenient and uſeful, by their humble ſervant,

May 4. GEORGE ESTERLY.

N B. For the uſe of theſe baths the price will be four dollars for the ſeaſon, two dollars for one month, five ſhillings for one week, and one ſhilling for each time theſe baths are uſed leſs than a week. Nothing will be demanded from thoſe people who only drink the waters. The price for each ſeat in the ſtage going and coming will be two ſhillings and ſixpence. ſtf&1awtf
